Tribal council overturns election

BY AMANDA WITT
RUIDOSO NEWS STAFF WRITER

■ Joseph Geronimo, an unsuccessful candidate for tribal council, questioned the use of voting machines instead of paper ballots.

The Mescalero Apache Tribal Council has nullified the Nov. 6 tribal election because voters used voting machines instead of paper ballots required under the tribe's election code.

Joseph Geronimo, who lost his bid for a council seat, questioned the validity of the election, according to a news release from the tribe.

Geronimo said the council had failed to change the tribal election code, as required by the tribal constitution, to provide for voting machines.

The council voted 5-0 with three abstentions to nullify both the primary and general elections, according to the news release.

The president and vice president of the tribe do not vote on council matters.

In the Nov. 6 vote, incumbent President Sara Misquez lost her re-election bid to Mark Chino, son of the late Wendell Chino, who held the office for more than 30 years.

Chino got 590 votes. Misquez got 523 votes.

Ferris Palmer, former tribal administrator, defeated incumbent council member Arthur "Butch" Blazer for the vice presidential seat with 689 votes to Blazer's 402 votes.

The council scheduled a new primary election for Dec. 10 and a general election for Jan. 9, tribal Secretary Sandra Platero said.

It also adopted an ordinance to change the Election Code so that voting machines may be used instead of paper ballots in the upcoming primary and general elections.

Tribal administrator Freddie Kaydahzinne refused to comment.

Members of the tribal council were in a meeting all day Tuesday and could not be reached for comment.

Saving Carrizozo's historical gems

DIANNE STALLINGS/STAFF

Efforts to preserve the Carrizozo Woman's Club were launched by the Lincoln County Historical Society in conjunction with club members.

NEW FOCUS ON PRESERVATION

BY DIANNE STALLINGS
RUIDOSO NEWS STAFF WRITER

Mention historical preservation in Lincoln County and Fort Stanton, an 1855 complex northeast of Ruidoso, usually pops into mind.

But efforts now are underway to focus attention on a WPA - Works Progress Administration - adobe building constructed in 1939 for the Carrizozo Woman's Club.

Lynda Sanchez of the Lincoln County Historical Society explained that society members have joined with club officials to ask for help from the state.

"It's our mission to help preserve the history and heritage of Lincoln County," she said Wednesday. "Once we found out that the building was in dire need of repair, we got involved."

"People don't realize that preserving history is expensive. It costs lots of money to preserve a building in the setting we'd love to visit and it has to be preserved before it falls down."

The society uses the building for meetings, she said.

"It's a great landmark," Sanchez said. "But it has electrical problems, among other things."

She arranged for a tour of the structure with the club president for Mike Taylor of Santa Fe, an adobe expert who was coming to Carrizozo to speak at the society's annual meeting.

"People don't realize that preserving history is expensive."

"He went on tour and pointed out some things," she said. "He had grant applications with him and the names of other people to contact. We were overwhelmed by his knowledge. That got the ball rolling."

The club submitted an application for the building to be included on New Mexico's

County puts time limit on public input

No one bumped by new 5-minute rule

BY DIANNE STALLINGS
RUIDOSO NEWS STAFF WRITER

Although a few objections were voiced about the Lincoln County Commission's new five-minute speaking limit, no one was bumped from the podium last week.

County Manager Tom Stewart said Thursday he was asked by commissioners in October to impose the speaking limit for people not on the monthly agenda to present an issue.

"I have a 30-second sign to hold up," he said. "I'm trying to procure a lighting system that goes from green to yellow to red, because I think it would be less disruptive to the speakers."

Norm Van Gorder of Carrizozo objected to the limitation.

"We are the government. You are the servants," he said. "When you're collecting information, five minutes is insufficient. The decision should be on a one-to-one basis. If someone is rambling, the chairman should make a point of order."

Chairman Rex Wilson said the intent of the policy is to provide a mechanism to stop rambling speeches and to let people know they should be prepared when they come to a meeting to speak.

"It's the commission's option to allow more time," Wilson said.

In other business, Commissioners William Schwetzmans asked about adding more signs along Cedar Creek Road to let people know it also is Sam Tobias Memorial Road.

The road was named after a well-known local forest ranger killed in an airplane accident while spotting fires around Cloudfcroft.

"We need eight to 10 signs to truly make it a memorial road," Schwetzmans said. "It's almost been two years and we have three."

When Stewart said often the sign post is at the wrong angle, Schwetzmans told him to "dig it up and turn it around."

"We are the government. You are the servants."

Ski Apache delays opening

Officials at Ski Apache announced Monday that due to insufficient natural snow and warmer than average temperatures, opening the ski area on Thursday was postponed.

Snow is being made daily and officials are working hard to open the ski area as soon as the weather permits. There is no official opening date.

Last week's storm helped the ski area but only resulted in six inches of snow.

Roy Parker, general manager of Ski Apache, said the best temperatures for making snow is in the teens. Monday night the temperatures dropped to the teens, he said.

No other ski areas are planning to open this weekend as far as he knew, Parker said. "Everyone's in the same boat as we are," he said.

Work starts on revamp of ETZ regulations sions, members of the Ruidoso-Lincoln County Extraterritorial Zoning Commission and the ETZ Authority Monday approved a new organizational approach to the law.

The work will start at the December meeting of the ETZ commission with authority members also attending as they did Monday.

Giving some history on the ETZ law, Charles Rennick, the village attorney who advises the board, said the ordinance adopted in 1984 was composed of 24 articles and was never designed for Ruidoso. It was fashioned from a Roswell ordinance.

HISTORY: Carrizozo building grabs new attention

List of the 11 Most Endangered Places put together by the New Mexico Heritage Preservation Alliance, Sanchez said.

In support of that application, Taylor wrote the alliance about the features that distinguish the building.

Constructed with locally made adobes, "two architectural features give the Spanish/Pueblo Revival structure a unique personality," he stated. "They are the curvilinear parapet on the front facade with the date 1939 in large raised letters, and the west circular room with a viga ceiling resembling the spokes of a wagon wheel, totally supported in the roof with no vertical post to the floor."

"The fact that this building has been continually used as the Woman's Club since its construction speaks to the citizenship of the townspeople and the pride that they have in their community."

Although the building appears well kept from the outside, Taylor wrote that repairs have been cosmetic and cover major structural problems.

"At the core of the problem is moisture that has been collecting at the base of all the walls for many years because of the lack of a positive slope away from the building and from landscape irrigation," Taylor wrote.

An antiquated electrical system that doesn't meet code is stretched to its limits during public events at the building, he said. Hidden deterioration ultimately could destroy the structure, he contended.

Society president Herb Marsh, Carrizozo resident and author Ann Buffington and Sanchez, vice president for programs and public outreach, as well as an author, historian and educator, also wrote in support.

Marsh said some of the society members were part of the construction team in 1939. One 89-year-old man hauled vigas from Pine Lodge in the Capitan Mountains, Marsh wrote.

He pointed out that the north wall of the structure "was a mush of adobe and literally collapsed several months ago. That was the final straw and a desperate call went out for help."

The woman's club, with about 30 members, could never afford to preserve the building on its own, he said.

For more information about how to join the effort to preserve the building, call Sanchez at (505) 653-4821.

Downs to sell zoning books for $8.80

The Ruidoso Downs village council has decided to sell its Planning and Zoning Commission Land Uses and Zoning Articles book to the public for $8.80, the council decided at its regular meeting.

Trustee Bonnie Richardson said the book will benefit those who are interested in buying real estate.

The books will also show residents of Ruidoso Downs who are concerned with the zoning that took place last June how their property was zoned.

Gasoline prices in New Mexico down just in time for holiday

BY AMANDA WITT
RUIDOSO NEWS STAFF WRITER

The lowest gas prices in two years could increase the number of holiday travelers in New Mexico this season, AAA New Mexico said.

The 2001 average price before the Thanksgiving holiday, for a gallon of self-service regular unleaded gasoline is $1.23 in New Mexico.

The average price of gas in the Ruidoso area on Monday was $1.18.

The average price in Albuquerque was $1.13.

The average price in New Mexico is three cents higher than the national average price of $1.20, which is 36 cents lower than last year at this time.

Planning board rejects Rainmaker first phase

BY DIANNE STALLINGS
RUIDOSO NEWS STAFF WRITER

A recommendation to reject the first phase of a 1,000-acre golf course and equestrian subdivision was passed Tuesday by the Lincoln County Planning Commission.

After a two-hour presentation by the Utah-based developer of Rainmaker and an hour of public input, five members of the planning board said instead of tabling the proposal, the application should be refiled when more information is available.

The recommendation goes to the county commission and can be appealed by CDS Rainmaker Land LLC.

Planning member Maury St. John first offered a motion to table the issue to give chief executive officer Dan Stanger, consultants and his crew time to fill in the blanks, but no one seconded her motion.

Member Van Shamblin then proposed a motion to deny, seconded by Jim Crouse. Two members of the board were absent, including Chairman Charles Rennick, law partner of John Underwood, who represents the developer.

Although surveyor Tim Collins and Stanger discussed various aspects of the 377-acre first phase, the focus of planning board members and a packed room of spectators was water.

Al Junge, a former Ruidoso councilor, said if the developer can prove adequate water is available, the development should move ahead. "But if not, who cares about the size of a drainage pipe. It doesn't matter," he said.

Crouse said he grew up in Roswell where an artesian basin flowed vigorously.

"Our wells didn't start dropping until we stopped seeing snow on Old Baldy (Sierra Blanca Peak) year-round," he said. Without snow, the underground aquifer doesn't recharge and can't supply water for springs and wells, he said.

"This water hasn't been proven," Crouse said. "I don't think it can be. If I were to buy a lot there, I would want a clause saying if the wells went dry, I would get my money back."

County Attorney Alan Morel

told board members they could deny the application or table it.

Stanger asked for the decision to be tabled until January to give him time to respond to questions posed by the state, the board and the public.

Phase one would cover 268 single family lots, 31 patio homes and five tracts for future development, as well as an 18-hole golf course, he said.

The development has enough water rights to serve that phase, but would be short if the entire development of more than 600 lots was considered all at one time, he said.

But Reginald Richey, head of the Rio Bonito Preserve, said one phase should not be considered in isolation.

"It must be planned as a whole," he said. "I urge you to wait for the state engineer's review."

Underwood countered that developers would only move to phase two if they could show enough water rights.

Ed Livingston, an Alamogordo consultant hired by the county to review the development for compliance to the subdivision ordinance, cited several areas of conflict or lack of information.

He specifically noted that CDS officials used two persons per household in calculating the amount of water that would be needed to serve the first phase, but used four per household in determining the point at which a proposed sewage system, designed to recycle water, could run effectively.

Resident Joanne Bonds said she lives a quarter-mile from an exploratory well that developers started drilling Monday and her well dropped 35 feet. She asked planners to order the drilling stopped until more facts are known.

Rod Graham said in committing to serve other subdivisions in the area tied to the Ranches of Ruidoso water system, the Rainmaker representatives may not be looking ahead to when those developments are built out.

"It won't be the 130 houses in the valley, it will be 500," he said.

David Tremblay asked planners to require CDS to warrant all wells above the development for 40 years "if they're sure the water is there."

Others commented on negative impacts to wells in neighboring Ranches of Sonterra, the amount of water required to irrigate a golf course and predictions that the area is in the beginning stages of a 13-year drought.

Boards aim to simplify ETZ

BY DIANNE STALLINGS
RUIDOSO NEWS STAFF WRITER

Two years ago, when the village took over management of the 1-mile extraterritorial zone surrounding the village, the administration section of the law was rewritten to reflect the changes.

A four-page table of contents was reduced and incorporated changes with the original language struck out. Village attorney Charles Rennick subsequently consolidated and streamlined the material.

The boards approved his reorganization, which does not contain changes in content.

Members of the Extraterritorial Zoning Authority and Commission

Monday approved a new approach to revamp the law.

The new approach consists of five articles; one through three dealing with administration, the fourth with zoned districts and the fifth with development standards.

The approach should mean easier reading for the public and members of the two ETZ boards in trying to revamp the last two sections, he said.

"My recommendation is that we do the standards first because the zones will be the most complicated and demand the most hearings," Rennick said. "The existing standards are bizarre or are completely lacking."

"The existing standards are bizarre or are completely lacking."

Charles Rennick

County Commissioner L. Ray Nunley, chairman of the ETZ Authority, told Rennick to continue to consult County Attorney Alan Morel on changes.

The commission rules on requests for land use in the zone and the authority is the board of appeal, as well as the final decision-maker on changes.

OUR OPINION

Connecting us and them, faster

Something to be thankful for in traumatic times.

Fuzzy lines are taking over in Ruidoso — the lines of communication between us and the rest of the world, that is.

They're fuzzy, as we see it, because it's getting harder than ever to distinguish between telephone, television and computer communication.

Something called DSL, or "digital subscriber lines," is coming along to enhance the joys of Internet access for the 3,000 or so ZiaNet subscribers in the area, for a price.

ZiaNet made a deal with Valor Telecom to inaugurate DSL service in part of Ruidoso, even as Valor was enhancing its own basic telephone service. There's a price, of course.

Charter Communications, which provides television cable services in Ruidoso, can provide high speed Internet access through its cable system, for a price. Meanwhile, competitors in communication delivery using little round dishes on rooftops, magic boxes connected to TV sets, and signals bouncing off satellites are getting into the act, also for a price. Can Internet access through the ozone be far behind, or already here?

All of this means that people in mountain-bound Ruidoso now, or soon will, have options formerly available only in the great world outside to keep in touch — for business, for pleasure, and just for the heck of it. Remarkably, this is coming along at a time when international security (or insecurity) is preoccupying a large part of the nation.

What better way, come to think about it, to celebrate Thanksgiving in traumatic 2001?

Saving lives and dollars in the air

WEST LAFAYETTE, Ind. — Engineers are developing a system that could save lives and billions of dollars in maintenance costs by using radar-like signals to detect when structures and mechanical parts, such as those in aircraft, are about to fail.

The "structural health monitoring" system uses a network of devices that could be attached to, or embedded in, an aircraft or vehicle. Some of the devices, called actuators, send out high-frequency sound waves that create vibrations in surrounding materials. The other devices are arrays of sensors that detect acoustic signals bouncing off of the vibrating material.

By continually comparing data from the sensors, the system can determine whether a material is damaged, said Douglas E. Adams, an assistant professor of mechanical engineering at Purdue University.

Adams will present a research paper about the system Dec. 13 during the International Conference on Smart Technology Demonstrators and Devices in Edinburgh, Scotland. The paper was written by Adams, undergraduate research assistant Rebecca L. Brown and engineer Mark Schiefer, a researcher from The Modal Shop Inc., a company in Cincinnati specializing in test equipment related to vibration and acoustics.

Such systems may be used in future aircraft and commercial and defense vehicles to constantly monitor the condition of materials and mechanical parts. The monitoring will make it possible to determine whether a part is wearing out and how long it will last before failing, Adams said.

"We want to move everything from time-based maintenance to what's called condition-based maintenance," he said.

A condition-based strategy makes it possible to replace parts and materials only when they are getting close to failing, instead of simply replacing them after every so many miles or hours of use, which is the conventional approach. "You want to do this because it's expensive to service systems," Adams said. "Let's not service it just because the warranty says so. Let's service it when it needs servicing."

Adams created the software algorithms that enable the system to properly interpret structural vibration and acoustic signals. This interpretation is made more difficult by the fact that materials react differently to vibration as they heat up.

A system being developed at Purdue was able to accurately determine when material is damaged, regardless of its temperature. The system also was able to determine the location and severity of the damage. It yielded accurate results even when researchers fluctuated how strong the sound waves and vibrations were; such fluctuations can confuse other monitoring systems.

The monitoring system uses a concept known as "structural radar."

LETTERS POLICY

The Ruidoso News encourages letters to the editor, especially about local topics and issues. Each letter must be signed and must include the writer's daytime telephone number and mail address. The phone number and mailing address will not be printed; the hometown will be. The telephone number will be used to verify authorship. No letter will be printed without the writer's name.

Letters should be no more than 300 words in length, of public interest, and free of libel, editing will be for length, grammar or spelling. Shorter letters are preferred and generally receive greater readership.

The Ruidoso News reserves the right to reject any letter. Longer by-lined "Guest Commentary" articles will be considered; call the editor at (505) 257-4001.

Letters may be delivered to the Ruidoso News office at 104 Park Avenue, mailed to P.O. Box 128, Ruidoso, NM 88858; faxed to 257-7059; or sent by e-mail to ruidosonews@zianet.com.

A Thanksgiving Day with a new unity

To the editor:

Thanksgiving means remembering with gratitude and love for all the many gifts and blessings God has given us on this special holiday. This year, as we gather around the table with our friends, let us pause for a moment of prayer as we reflect upon the national disaster brought upon our nation on Sept. 11 of this year, voicing our prayers for the thousands who lost their lives and to their loved ones from this tragedy.

Help us to remember through our faith in God to know that those who were taken from us are not only in a better world, but would say to us to go on living and enjoying the wonderful life we have now and the life ahead. I know this would be the best act of thanksgiving we could express on their behalf.

Thanksgiving normally centers on things to give thanks for, especially this year. As someone has said, "The grateful mind is not just a response to the condition of things in life, it is a celebration of an ever-present spiritual reality."

This attitude of gratitude opens the door to the recognition of all the things we have to be thankful for.

The greatest tool that brings marvelous insight into Thanksgiving is love. Some people do great things, others have good health, others rich possessions. But, when we get the view of Thanksgiving from a spiritual point of view, all sense of separation or comparison disappears in the unity of the whole. We can celebrate the all-good of God that is manifested so lavishly and creatively, no matter in whose life it may be appearing. Knowing "all that the Father has is mine," we can celebrate the order, beauty, intelligence, life and affluence that are everywhere in our great nation.

Thanksgiving is being thankful that we live in America and have the freedom that we have. It is:

- Being thankful for all the wonderful people who serve us; our emergency ambulance teams, our hospital and medical staff, our police department, and so many others who for us are forever on the go — be it in rain, sleet or snow, 24 hours a day.

- It is being thankful that every sunrise is a gift from God, wrapped with scarlet ribbons and tied with bows of love.

- It is being thankful for all our blessings in life, whether they seem simple or complex; each one, let us remember, is a powerful reminder of God's love for us.

- Thanksgiving is adding to our prayer of Thanksgiving with acts of thanksgiving by doing for others — to "love our neighbors as we love ourselves."

God help us to make every day a day of thanksgiving, and every day a day of giving and forgiving.

Happy Thanksgiving.

Presidents listen; speak out!

To the editor:

Most politicians will listen to a vocal electorate.

I served as a member of the White House's permanent staff during a Democrat and Republican administration. I observed the appointed staff members (the President's handlers) almost panic every time that they merely thought that the people were upset with our presidents.

The majority of the public who voiced their concerns to the White House, consisted of self-interested individuals and special-interest groups who spoke out only when they or their causes were directly affected by the federal government.

While I was at the White House, our switchboards received, by far, the most calls from the public when the President once interrupted a nationally televised football game with a special report. Needless to say, the President never interrupted another televised game of any kind.

Our presidents made numerous decisions which affected the current and future generations, and our people, as a whole, were more concerned about a game.

We've all seen what relatively small, vocal groups have accomplished. Unfortunately, our politicians can't hear the "silent (apathetic) majority."

One thing that I can say for the self-interested individuals and the special-interest groups — they're vocal.

Who is speaking and looking out for the children? Not the parents, politicians, judges or our society at large. President Kennedy once said that he put more stock in 10 letters from the public than he did in all of the polls, combined.

Penalty threats do cut smoking

MIAMI, Fla. — Middle school and high school students are more likely to pass up cigarettes when faced with the prospect of being fined or losing their drivers license, according to a study of a Florida program that has helped reduce underage smoking by 40 percent.

Smoking rates for the most recent 30 days were lower in areas where underage smoking laws were more strictly enforced, ranging from 21 percent to 26.6 percent compared with low-enforcement areas, where rates ranged from 28.1 percent to 29.2 percent.

Students in the high-enforcement areas were also much more aware of enforcement activity and the penalties for being caught smoking.

"It would be unreasonable to conclude that the differences in tobacco use were due to enforcement without differences in awareness of enforcement activity," says lead author William C. Livingood, Ph.D., director of health, policy and evaluation research with the Duval County Health Department in Florida.

The findings are published in the December issue of Health Education & Behavior.

Florida's comprehensive campaign is made up of multiple components, including an advertising initiative, youth leadership and community partnerships, education, enforcement and evaluation and research. Since enforcement of underage smoking laws requires a complex coordination of police officers, judges, court clerks and states attorneys, counties varied widely in the number of children and adolescent smokers who received citations, ranging from one to more than 200.

For the purpose of this study, several counties were classified as either high-enforcement or low-enforcement counties.

High-enforcement counties dispensed at least twice as many citations to underage smokers as low-enforcement counties. This study included surveys with 2,088 students, 1,140 from the high-enforcement counties and 948 from the low-enforcement counties.

Students in the high-enforcement counties were more likely to say that penalties reduce their willingness to smoke close to schools than were students in the low-enforcement areas. Middle school students were more likely to say that penalties would affect their use than were high-school students.

Nearly 49 percent of students who smoked no more than one cigarette a day said that penalties influence their likelihood of smoking, compared with 23 percent of students who smoked two or more cigarettes a day and 18 percent of those who had smoked on the day of the survey.

"The potential for law enforcement to discourage tobacco use in younger, less frequent tobacco users and to reduce the role modeling in locations frequented by younger children may have profound implications for reducing the epidemic of youth tobacco use," says Livingood.

The study findings were consistent across racial and ethnic groups, although smoking rates among African-American students were more dramatically influenced by the enforcement rating of their county than white students.

The study was funded by a grant from the Florida Department of Health, Office of Tobacco Control.

LCMC sees more construction in the near term

Outpatient surgery renovations, laundry and a warehouse proposed to commissioners by hospital administrator

BY DIANNE STALLINGS
RUIDOSO NEWS STAFF WRITER

The next phase of construction at the Lincoln County Medical Center will focus on a warehouse, outpatient surgery renovations and a laundry, the hospital's top official said last week.

James Gibson, administrator of the county-owned hospital in Ruidoso, handed Lincoln County Commissioners three sets of drawings at their Thursday meeting in Carrizozo.

He asked them to approve the general concept to allow him to get price estimates and advertise for an architect.

He reminded commissioners that in 1996, the hospital reviewed the growth in the county and what services were needed to stay current.

Phase 1 of construction included an enlarged and improved emergency room, laboratory, radiology section, parking lot and a new entrance.

The new plans cover Phase 2. By moving the warehouse off-site, valuable square footage will be converted into a revenue-producing service, Gibson explained.

"We will renovate the vacated area into ambulatory surgery (for outpatients)," he explained. "We now have only three beds in the recovery room and that creates a bottleneck because recovery, even after an outpatient procedure, takes time. This plan would create a separate area."

Adding the laundry to the warehouse also makes sense, he said.

Commissioner L. Ray Nunley said the price of the warehouse could be greatly reduced if a steel building was used, but Gibson said Ruidoso regulations don't allow steel buildings. Nunley suggested he check again because the village recently approved a steel building with a stucco exterior.

A third phase of construction on the hospital managed by Presbyterian HealthCare Services "is way down the road," Gibson said. It may include an enlarged pharmacy, renovated medical records center and a swimming pool for physical therapy. Commissioner William Schwettmann said the hospital is county-owned property and the projects are enhancing it.

The cost of the projects is reimbursed through proceeds from a special property tax designated for the hospital and three rural health clinics, he pointed out.

He asked Gibson if the hospital is running out of land for expansion.

"That's a few years down the line," the administrator said. "Our problem is not beds, it's that sector had double-digit volume growth."

Inpatient demand also is growing from five beds a day when he was hired a few years ago to eight a day now, he said.

"The length of stay is low, but our growth is the highest in Presbyterian's circle," he said.

The architectural cost for Phase 2 is estimated at $5,080, he said. The project will cover the calendar year of 2002 and into 2003, he said.

The hospital auxiliary recently added $50,000 to the mix for furnishings for a total of $300,000, he said.

Commissioner Leo Martinez questioned how much the county can afford to invest in a primary care hospital that uses 10 percent of its beds and transfers patients needing specialty services.

He suggested using the empty inpatient beds for outpatient care instead of increasing the size of the recovery room.

"You're a great primary care hospital, but the rest are shipped to Albuquerque," Martinez said. "When you tell me you're using full capacity of the hospital, that the beds are filled, then I'll climb on board. When we have 30 beds empty, it bothers me."

"It will never stop as long as the community grows," Gibson said. "We will continue to have expanded needs and patients needing secondary care will continue to be shipped out of town."

Commissioner L. Ray Nunley, a pharmacist, said the hospital may have 15 outpatient procedures per day and many rooms are used for a matter of hours, if not occupied all day long.

Gibson said during the winter, with skiing injuries and flu, he has seen more than 25 in-patients at the hospital on any given day.

Many years ago, the community was given a federal grant to build 50 beds and most were used in the early 1970s when big federal reimbursements were received on Medicare and Medicaid, Gibson said.

"I can remember when people went to the hospital and stayed for a week or two at a time," Nunley said. "You can't do that anymore. The surgical procedures and medications are better and people can be treated at home."

Schwettmann interjected, "When the people in Lincoln County tire of supporting the hospital, they will stay so in an election (by rejecting the special property tax), but election after election, they say they want to invest in their protection."

Martinez said he's not against the hospital, but it's his job as a commissioner to ask questions.

"The length of stay is low, but our growth is the highest in Presbyterian's circle."

POLICE REPORTS

Drug allegation, arrest

Police arrested Lacy Goldsmith, 29, of Albuquerque, in the 200 block of Mechem Drive at 12 a.m. Nov. 18, charging possession of drug paraphernalia and of marijuana.

The driver of the vehicle, Allen Brett Stalls, 21, of Albuquerque, was cited for having a suspended driver's license. Officers made a traffic stop for the driver, Stalls, not wearing a seat belt. Goldsmith had an open container of alcohol, the report stated.

Police asked to search the vehicle and were given a gym bag that contained marijuana and a pipe.

A small metal pipe with marijuana residue and a glass pipe with residue were also found in the vehicle. Goldsmith said the pipes and marijuana were hers, police said.

Forgery, theft

Ruidoso police reported incidents of stolen credit cards and forgery in the 200 block of Camelot at 8:40 p.m. Nov. 11.

Police said the victim left her keys in the apartment door on Nov. 1 and later noticed that the keys and her purse were missing from the apartment.

The purse contained two credit cards, driver's license and checkbook.

The victim later received a photograph copy of a check from her bank for $400. The back of the check had a Ruidoso resident's name written on the back of the check along with a driver's license number. The victim said the person lived in the same apartment building, police said. Police were unable to meet with the person.

Liquor violation

Police investigated a report of a minor allowing himself to be served alcohol on the south side of the Solid Waste Department station at 9:42 p.m. Nov. 16. Police heard yelling while patrolling the area and found a male minor alone standing next to a vehicle. The minor told police that he was alone and then later that his friends had run away.

A large number of beer cans were found near the vehicle along with a half-empty 12-pack, police said. The minor admitted to drinking one beer and said his friends drank the rest, police said. The minor allegedly was the driver but did not have a driver's license.

He was released to his father, who picked up the vehicle.

Multiple counts filed

Police arrested Claralyn M. Hosetosavit, 31, of Mescalero, on Sudderth Drive at Walgreens at 9 p.m. Nov. 16, alleging battery and injuring or tampering with a vehicle. Hosetosavit was refused sale of alcohol by a clerk because the clerk said she was too intoxicated. Police said Hosetosavit punched the clerk in the face.

Police reported Hosetosavit was verbally abusive and uncooperative and was put in the police car, where she kicked the inside of the door and window. The door didn't close properly after the damage, police said.

Downs arrests for DWI

Ruidoso Downs police arrested Jose Cardenas, 20, for DWI-second offense. Cardenas was stopped by police in the 300 block of North Central at 5 p.m. Nov. 17.

Ruidoso Downs police arrested Trenton Prins, 35, for DWI-third offense. Prins was stopped by police at the Allsup's on U.S. Highway 70 at 10 p.m. Nov. 17.

Dog-owner cited

Police cited Marie C. Slaten, 49, of Ruidoso in the 300 block of Walnut Drive at 10 p.m. Nov. 8, alleging her dog was running at large and was a vicious animal. Police responded to a complaint from a neighbor whose child who was on her porch when the dog, a Bassett hound, tried to bite her. Another neighbor said he was also bothered by the dog while taking out his trash on the same day.

Cardinal girls get wins over Hondo, 'Cats

Corona won an ugly one in the first game of the year in Lincoln County.

BY WES SCHWENGELS
RUIDOSO NEWS SPORTS EDITOR

The Corona and Hondo girls basketball teams met in the first Lincoln County game of the year Thursday, and made it look like an early-season contest, as the Cardinals (2-0) beat the Eagles (0-1) 33-32 in Hondo.

Shooting was at a premium in the game, as neither team was able to hit many open shots or free throws.

The Cardinals were just 6-for-20 from the line, a problem that coach Tommy Mulkey said was at least partly his fault.

"I'm really stressing defense this year," he said. "We haven't really shot a lot of free throws."

While Hondo coach Julie Montoya could not be reached for comment, her team did not seem any more proficient with the ball in the loss.

Mulkey said he was pleased with the Cardinals' effort in hanging on for the victory.

"It was a case of nerves," he said. "We took really good shots, but didn't get anything to go. We just gutted it out and got the win."

Newcomer Victoria Rossi led the Cards with 16 points in the win. Things got even better for Corona, as they also beat Desert Academy Saturday, 61-21. Mulkey said the shooting was much better for his team at home.

"We looked real good against Desert. We've been working hard in practice," Mulkey said.

Rossi put in 23 more points against the Wildcats, and her twin sister, Francesca, added 12 of her own. Laura Gonzalez was also in double figures with 14.

While Corona is off to a hot start, Mulkey said he is holding his breath about some issues, the biggest of which

Warriors strong in tune-up

RHS competitive during weekend 4-team scrimmage

BY WES SCHWENGELS
RUIDOSO NEWS SPORTS EDITOR

Youth and inexperience were certainly present for the Ruidoso boys basketball team during a four-team scrimmage Saturday, but so were signs of good things to come.

The Warriors stayed with Class 4A Roswell and were even stronger against Mesilla Valley before struggling against Mayfield at Ruidoso Middle School during three separate scrimmages.

Coach Billy Page said he liked much of what he saw Saturday.

"This gives us the opportunity to see if the kids are ready for that level of basketball," he said. "I think we are."

The boys won't have to prove it right away though, as they now await their first regular season game Nov. 30 at Goddard. Page said he's glad to have the break, as it will give the team a chance to improve in some areas.

The biggest weakness the coach said he saw Saturday was inexperience, something which can only be cured with time.

"This gives us a chance to work on stuff we need to work on," he said.

The Warriors were able to stay with Roswell in their varsity opener Saturday, rotating 12 players the entire way. Page said the bench depth was very encouraging at the scrimmage.

Warrior Kendal Bishop goes up for a layup over a Mesilla Valley defender Saturday during a scrimmage game. Ruidoso looked good at the tune-up.

ond game, the Warriors picked things up on both ends of the floor. The press began to work better, enabling several easy buckets.

Page gave part of the credit for that to his team's conditioning, which he said was ahead of the other three teams.

The day's final scrimmage came against Class 5A Mayfield. The Warriors didn't play up to the level they had earlier, and the Trojans were able to control the game much of the way.

"Mayfield had us kind of frustrated with ourselves," Page said. "Our youth and inexperience showed up."

The Ruidoso junior varsity and freshman teams also got multiple chances to scrimmage against the other schools, and

Page said he saw a number of positives there.

"A couple of kids on JV stepped up. They really played intense."

Two varsity players Page recognized were seniors Christie LaPaz and Kendal Bishop. The coach said they handled their roles as leaders well.

"I was just proud of how we came out and worked hard. They're starting to understand what it takes at this level."

Ruidoso gymnasts dominate in Alamogordo

The Ruidoso Gymnastics team was back to its winning ways over the weekend as several girls took top spots at the Twister Invite in Alamogordo.

The Level 4 team was particularly impressive, as all seven girls on the roster finished in the top three of their age group, bringing home individual trophies.

"It was quite an achievement," coach Amy Eggleston said.

Amanda Willingham (8-and-under division), Lauré Montes (9-year-olds) and Monica Nunez (11-and-older) got first place in the all-around and won three events each.

Alaitia Enjady and Haley Griffin completed Ruidoso's sweep in the 8-and-under division, finishing within 0.05 points of each other. Atera Barnett was second in the 10-year-old division, while Brittney Marshall won two events and was third overall.

As a team, the girls beat Alamogordo 109.00 to 104.30.

The Level 5 team had three more all-around champions in Alex Weaver (8-9-year-olds), Victoria Ramirez (11-year-olds) and Sierra Nelson (12-year-olds). Each won two events. Megan Mirau nailed down third place in the 8-9-year-old division, while Ari Hale, Aleah Tipper and Aimee Vasquez finished second, fourth and fifth respectively in the 11-year-old division.

Hale also won the balance beam. "Things are really coming together for us. ...I'm impressed with the progress they have made since summer," Eggleston said.

Lady Warriors gain ground in warm-up

Scrimmage provides necessary experience

BY WES SCHWENGELS
RUIDOSO NEWS SPORTS EDITOR

A weekend scrimmage with Alamogordo gave the Ruidoso Lady Warriors basketball team some much-needed experience.

The Warriors hooped it up three times with the Tigers Saturday in Alamogordo, and by the end of the day, Ruidoso coach Albert Ronquillo said there was a noticeable difference in his team's play.

"Our defense was OK, but offense was struggling," Ronquillo said. "We worked on our offense for four days. In the third scrimmage we looked a lot better."

For some of the Lady Warriors, the transition has had to be a quick one. Several basketball girls are coming directly off volleyball season, which wrapped up Nov. 10. Those girls had just four practices between then and the scrimmage.

There won't be any more breaks for Ruidoso, as the Lady Warriors tipped off the regular season Tuesday at home against Cloudercroft. Results from that game were not available at press time.

Before the game, Ronquillo said he thought his team would be able to handle the Bears.

"We worked a lot, on our offense. I think we're ready for them."

Ronquillo said Cloudercroft, a Class 2A team would not be a pushover. He called the Bears a big, physical team that would not be intimidated.

"We need to get up and down the floor. We're looking to put a lot of defensive press on them and play a real physical ball game," he said.

The coach added that he was anxious to see how his team would respond.

"I'm excited. I think the girls are ready."

The Warriors now have a week off and will be able to get significant practice time before their next game against Socorro Tuesday.

That contest starts at 4 p.m.

Corona boys start season slow

The Cardinals' small numbers have forced them to postpone one game and nearly foul out of another.

BY WES SCHWENGELS
RUIDOSO NEWS SPORTS EDITOR

As one of the smallest schools in the state, Corona often has to worry about the depth of its sports teams. This year is no exception.

With only five boys on the basketball team's varsity roster, the Cardinals have already seen some problems. That doesn't mean they're not optimistic.

"I think if we could be consistent, get these boys to gel, we could be pretty tough," said Corona coach Ronnie Dunsworth. "Hopefully by mid-January, we could be pretty tough. Our outlook is pretty bright."

But Saturday did not bring the start the Cardinals were hoping for, as they fell to Desert Academy 73-37. That came just two days after the team had to postpone its scheduled season opener at Hondo due to a lack of players.

Graduation took three seniors from last year's squad, and three other players moved away. The Cardinals start an eighth-grader, a freshman and two sophomores, as well as their lone senior, Dal Frost.

The undermanned Cardinals looked strong early against Desert Academy, though, keeping the game within nine points at halftime. But Frost and Keith Shafer both fouled out in the third quarter, allowing the Wildcats to pull away. The teams played three-on-three basketball for the entire fourth period.

"I was really pleased and proud with the way we played. They hang tough and never quit," Dunsworth said.

The Cardinals will try to gain as much experience as they can for the early part of the season, since they don't have enough players to run a realistic practice. But Dunsworth said his team will be able to compete when the district season rolls around.

"We've got a pretty good shot for third or fourth," he said. "Us and Carrizozo will probably battle it out."

One thing Corona does have going for it is experience from 2000-2001. Four of the five boys on the team played on last year's squad, three of them regularly.

"Right now, I've got the best five kids in the school on the team," Dunsworth said. "We might take some lumps, but we'll be a little stronger for it."

The Cardinals are hoping for at least as good a season as they saw last year, when they went just 4-16, but finished third in District 7A. "Hopefully we can match or better that. We've got a pretty good bunch," Dunsworth said.

The coach added that he has heard of a couple kids moving to town and could get a few more athletes out by Christmas time.

For now, though, Corona must work with what it has. The coach said his team must improve its shooting percentage, both from the floor and the free throw line, and work on keeping turnovers down.

"If we do that, we should be in pretty good shape," he said.

The Cardinals were scheduled to play Hondo Tuesday. Results were not available.

Aggies get comeback win

But the Lobos fell Saturday, and now prepare for their in-state rivals.

Dario Aguiniga kicked a 29-yard field goal as time expired, giving New Mexico State a 49-46 comeback victory over Louisiana-Lafayette on Saturday.

The game was tied with less than two minutes to play when E.J. Winston caught K.C. Enzinger's 33-yard pass to put New Mexico State (5-6, 4-2 Sun Belt) at the Cajun 34.

Aguiniga's winning kick completed New Mexico State's comeback from an 18-point third-quarter deficit.

Aguiniga also scored the game's first points, a 35-yard field goal in the first quarter.

Jon Van Cleave threw the first of his four touchdown passes for Louisiana-Lafayette (3-7, 2-4 Sun Belt), a 38-yarder to Fred Stamps. Van Cleave threw two more touchdowns in the first half, a 15-yarder to Andre George and a 38-yarder to Frederick Stamps.

Aguiniga kicked a 43-yard field goal with 5 seconds remaining and Louisiana-Lafayette leading 31-20 at the half.

New Mexico State closed to 38-33 on a fake field goal in the third, with holder Buck Pierce throwing a 6-yard touchdown pass to tight end Michael Bangs. The Aggies took a 39-38 lead on Marcus Dixon's 1-yard touchdown run.

Van Cleave hit Eric Bartel on a 35-yard touchdown pass with 3:27 remaining, tying the game at 46.

Van Cleave was 26-of-43 for 329 yards and one interception.

Keith led all rushers with 166 yards on 22 carries.

Colorado St. 24, UNM 17

University of New Mexico sophomore quarterback Casey Kelly was intercepted on the Lobos' final two possessions as Colorado State University held on for a 24-17 victory in Albuquerque Saturday afternoon.

New Mexico (5-5; 4-3 MWC) advanced to the Rams' 36-yard line on its last two fourth quarter drives before CSU cornerback Justin Gallimore intercepted Kelly at the 19-yard line with 2:35 remaining and safety Aaron Sprague picked off Kelly's "Hail Mary" pass in the end zone as time expired.

With the win, Colorado State (6-5; 4-3 MWC) assumed sole possession of third place in the Mountain West Conference, while UNM dropped to fourth.

Trailing 21-17 with 6:26 left in the fourth quarter, New Mexico forced Colorado State into a fourth-and-four play from the UNM 30-yard line. CSU opted to go for the first down and quarterback Bradlee Van Pelt hit tight end Alex Ochoa on the right sideline for a five yard gain and the first down. Five plays later, CSU kicker Kent Naughton connected on a 19-yard field goal to give the Rams a 24-17 lead with 2:53 remaining in the game. Kelly drove the 46 yards on the Lobos' ensuing possession before Gallimore's interception. After a CSU punt pinned New Mexico on its own five-yard line with 1:00 remaining, Kelly drove the Lobos 59 yards before having his desperation pass intercepted.

New Mexico dominated the final statistics, outgaining the Rams 411-299, tallying a 24-17 advantage in first downs and finishing with a 32:40-27:20 advantage in time of possession. However, CSU finished +4 in turnovers as Kelly threw five interceptions, including three in the first half, to tie a UNM school record.

New Mexico returns to action on Saturday, when it hosts state rival New Mexico State at 1 p.m. at University Stadium.

CARDS: Corona nets 2 early wins

The Cardinals have just six girls that play regularly, with a few freshmen and eighth-graders on the bench whom he said would play mostly JV ball this year.

That means if the Cardinals get into foul trouble or lose one or two girls to injury, the amount of experience on the floor could drop in a hurry.

"I like our chances right now if we can stay healthy," Mulkey said. "We've had two twisted ankles already, but not bad."

If Corona does avoid the injury bug, it could be a sleeper team in District 7A. While Mountainair and Carrizozo are favored to take the two playoff spots again, Mulkey said he thinks his girls can "give those other teams a run for their money."

The Cardinals finished third in district in 2000-2001, behind the Mustangs and Grizzlies. Although their record last year stood at just 6-15, they came close to topping Mountainair in the district tournament.

Mulkey said he hopes to improve on both the record and the district finish this time around, but that it's too early to tell how the district will shake out.

In the meantime, Corona must get through its nondistrict schedule. That resumed Tuesday, as Hondo paid a visit to the Cardinals for a rematch. Results from that contest were not available at press time.

Updated fishing report for Ruidoso and the area as of Nov. 21, 2001

Ruidoso River - A small amount of moisture found its way into Ruidoso the past week; however welcome the rain, it was not enough to change the flow rate on the Ruidoso River. The river flow rate is well below 2 CFS. Below the confluence of Carizo Creek the fishing has been outstanding. The water flow in this part of the River is about normal for this time of year, but is dropping due to lack of rain. The River was stocked this past week with over 900 Rainbow trout. The water is gin clear so wear clothes that blend in with the background. Large Stoneflies are abundant in the river now, Rock Worms are declining in size and quantity, and Scuds are still on the increase in the waters. Tie a dry fly on as a lead fly then tie a nymph dropper about 12-18 inches behind. Use the lead fly as your strike indicator. This is an effective and fun way to fish small waters.

South Fork - Southfork is about done until Spring. The water flow rate is at a trickle.

Bonito Lake: Bonito Lake was stocked this past week with over 2,000 Rainbow trout. Add this to the nearly 3,000 Rainbows stocked over the past eight weeks and Bonito will have a great carry over of fish for its Spring opening. Fly patterns that have been working on Bonito are Humplies, Dark Hendricksons, and Parachute Adam. The best fishing remains just before dark on the main lake body. A damsel fly nymph tied as a dropper behind your dry fly offering continues to bring an unexpected take. For the spin cast fishermen, try a hot pink, renegade pattern propeller fly or a black with grizzly hackle propeller fly behind a bubble rig. Remember Bonito closes the first of Dec. and will reopen the first of April.

Eagle Lakes: Eagle Lakes are closed for the season. Grindstone: Grindstone Lake was stocked this past week with over 1,200 hungry Rainbows. Darnsilly and Dragon fly imitations continue working well. For spin casters, tie on an Olive or Black propeller fly behind a bubble rig and enjoy catching fish. Please remember to squeeze the bars down on all hooks; this will reduce injury to any fish caught and returned to the water. Lake Mesalero: The lake level is quite low, but is fishing well. Dark wooly buggers continue to take fish late in the day. A few folks have been successful with Parachute Adams, Mosquito, or Hendrickson patterns and casting to rising fish. Remember to get your day pass at the front desk.

Please practice Catch and Release wherever and whenever you can. We have moved our local shop. New address is 2501 Sudderth Drive. Come see us for daily fishing information. Check out our improved and expanded website for community information.

EDUCATION BRIEFS

Capitan selects new school board member

The selection committee of two board members and a faculty member that interviewed nine candidates for the vacant position No. 4 on the Capitan Municipal Schools Board of Education recommended that Glen W. Crane of Alto fill the unexpired term of Irvin Aldaz, who resigned on Oct. 11.

The board of education approved Crane at a special meeting at noon on Tuesday.

Local students at ENMU

From Ruidoso, Capitan, Hondo and Mescalero, 176 students are enrolled at Eastern New Mexico University-Portales this fall. In all, 128 from Ruidoso High School, 36 from Capitan High School, eight from Hondo High School and four from Mescalero High School, are enrolled at ENMU.

ENMU has about 3,500 students at the main campus in Portales and has a branch campus in Roswell and an instruction center in Ruidoso.

Capitan student to go to Washington

Ginger Cupit of Capitan was selected to attend the National Young Leaders Conference from Nov. 13 to 18 in Washington, D.C. Cupit is among 350 outstanding national scholars from around the country to attend the conference.

She will interact with key leaders and newsmakers from the three branches of government, the media and the diplomatic corps.

New GED test due

A new GED examination will be released and implemented across the United States, its territories and Canada in January. The exam will have a new score ranking system, centralized scoring and an Internet-based scoring retrieval system and will allow for the retrieval and access of scores nationally, as well as for improved demographic data regarding GED testing. GED candidates who have not passed the exam by Dec. 30 will lose their current scores and will have to test again in 2002.

The next GED test at Eastern New Mexico University-Ruidoso is Dec. 14 at the college. Students must arrive between 8:15 and 8:30 a.m. to register.

Loan-for-Service accepting applications

The New Mexico Commission on Higher Education is accepting applications for the spring 2002 awards of the New Mexico Teachers' Loan-for-Service Program. The program gives students the means to complete or enhance their post-secondary teacher education. As a condition of the loan, a student must declare intent to teach in a New Mexico public school after graduating from college.

State residents enrolled in an undergraduate, graduate or alternative licensure teacher preparation program at a New Mexico college or university that has been approved by the New Mexico State Board of Education are eligible. The amount of the award is dependent upon the relative need of the student but may not exceed $4,000 per academic year for five consecutive years, with a maximum of $20,000.

The deadline for awards for spring 2002 is Friday. Applications are available by calling the commission's student help line at (800) 279-9777.

Planning for a Mars future

BY SANDY SUGGITT
RUIDOSO NEWS STAFF WRITER

Teams that included two Ruidoso High School students won first place at the statewide NASA Mars Settlement Design Competition 2001 and may advance to national competition.

Fletcher Herring, a junior, and Layla Reyes, a sophomore, were on the winning team designing the "Camulom" space settlement, which included a "mass driver" to shoot off rockets and put them into orbit. Their design was built into Olympus Mons, the highest mountain on Mars and the largest volcano in the solar system, with the mass driver at the top of its pyramid-shaped structure.

Reyes described her team's design as being made of adobe from Mars dirt, 2 km. tall, with each level (for different activities) 36 meters wide and 15 meters high. The space settlement had to provide a "safe and pleasant living and working environment for 14,000 full-time residents, and an additional transient population, not to exceed 1,500 at any time, of business and official visitors, guests of residents and vacationers," according to the criteria of the Request for Proposal for the student "companies" were presented with when they arrived at the weekend workshop site in Las Cruces on Nov. 9.

The winning design had science laboratories, a mall, a hospital, recreation area, a section for environmental control, two for farming, another each for animals, waste/water/air filter, air lock and filter and tourism/robotic repair.

Participants formed company teams of about 17 students each from schools all over New Mexico. After briefings by NASA staff, including some astronauts, the companies had 21 hours to come up with a proposal, including design drawings identifying volumes and their uses, local terrain and the design's compatibility with it, descriptions of the facilities and infrastructure needed to build and operate the community, sources of materials and equipment, and a description of contractor tasks from the time of awarding of the contract (Nov. 11, 2051) until the imaginary Foundation Society members can begin moving in.

The designs were evaluated by 20 judges for thoroughness, credibility and balance in emphasis in the four technical areas of structural design, operations, livability and automation, and innovation.

Reyes said her team's design included parks, a pool and a small theme park. Food for the community would be provided by hydroponically grown crops, with water obtained by drilling into an ice comet in orbit. The two farm components included free-range chickens and rabbits for meat and plans to grow soybeans, lettuce, potatoes, corn, strawberries and other easily grown vegetables. There was a lot of vegetation on all (activity) levels to produce oxygen, Reyes said.

"Ours was the only one not on flat ground — and we had a mall," Herring, describing the features of their design. Reyes said most students patterned their designs after the Colosseum. They chose to design theirs after the Egyptian pyramids, which were noted for the strength of design.

This was Herring's third year to attend the NASA Mars competition. He placed first last year, too.

Daniel Davenport, and Teatata Layher, both sophomores, also attended the competition; Layher's team placed third.

Layher said her team's design was completely under ground, with a glass dome at the top, whereby natural light entered and was directed, by mirrors, to the lower levels. These included parks at the top, with entertainment, housing and storage and waste levels below.

"We had adobe, Western-style housing and all the building materials were from Mars — aluminum and iron," Layher said.

Sponsored by the White Sands Test Facility, part of the Johnson Space Center, the weekend competition was held at Oñate High School. Students and teachers slept in classrooms. Friday night the lights went off at 11:30 p.m., but Saturday students were allowed to stay up all night if they needed to, in order to complete and present their designs to the judges at 9 a.m. on Sunday, Nov. 11.

"Very few people got any sleep,"

Mars Reconnaissance Orbiter, shown in artist's conception, will search for possible landing sites in 2005. NASA announced earlier this month. For details, visit the Web site <http://mpfwww.jpl.nasa.gov>

Davenport said. Friday's activities started with guest speakers on Mars and NASA's current Mars exploration plans, a presentation of the requirements for the Mars settlement designs and assignment to teams or design competition companies.

On Saturday the teams met with their volunteer CEOs and then attended technical training sessions and began brainstorming their designs and proposals.

"It was like a small Utopia," Davenport said of the Mars designs.

"Basically, these colonies were the creation of 17 different minds. It was a mass Utopia of 17 different people."

Carla Burns, the Ruidoso High School science teacher who has accompanied students to the competition for the last three years, said she liked the design assignment this year because it focused on environmental issues and launching the rockets by the mass driver, which works on magnetism and not on fuel.

New this year, workshops were provided for the teacher-sponsors during the day. Burns agreed with the judges' choice of winner of the competition because their presentation on Sunday covered all the required issues and the design.

"What was good about Fletcher and Layla's design was that it was designed on a mountain and it had science labs," Burns said.

All the students — and their teacher — said they'd make the six-month trip to Mars if the opportunity arose.

"I would definitely live in my colony — in a heartbeat," Reyes said. And Burns said she'd live on one of the colonies, too. "Gravity on Mars is a third the gravity on Earth," Herring said. "That means I'd be three times stronger in all respects."

Herring, who was director of structural engineering for the Mars design, wants to pursue studies in astrophysics. Reyes, who designed the floor plans, wants to be an architect — or a lawyer.

Next year, the student companies will be asked to come up with a Mars settlement design that changes the climate on Mars to one more like that on Earth.

All four Ruidoso students said they want to attend again.

County tax money comes rolling in Commissioners were told their financial picture looks better now that property tax proceeds have begun arriving.

BY DIANNE STALLINGS
RUIDOSO NEWS STAFF WRITER

Things are looking up for Lincoln County finances now that property tax revenue is rolling in, County Treasurer Joan Park told county commissioners last week.

"We're ahead of collection by $200,000 over last year at this time and that really helps the general fund." Earlier in the year the county had to dip into reserves to cover expenses, she said.

The down side is that interest rates remain low, about 1.94 percent for 30 days and 2.03 percent on a yearly rate, she said.

"We have quite a lot of money to invest. The dilemma is what to do," Park said. "The money we have in a depository money market account is making better interest than certificates of deposits."

"A couple of banks said they weren't interested in any new public money right now."

To accept more public money, banks have to increase their collateral.

"One bank offered a business investment account at 2.19 percent, but the county's operational account at First Federal Bank is earning more at 2.53 percent," Park said. If the county agrees to accept a lower rate of 2.28 percent, the bank will collateralize the additional money, she said.

Commissioner William Schwettmann gave an overview of the budget, flagging departments or line items that exceed or lag significantly behind the 33 percent of the year mark.

He said most have reasonable causes, but it's something to watch.

At Schwettmann's request, County Attorney Alan Morel reported on the legality of the payment method used by the county. Often, bills are paid before commissioners actually approve the checks. Schwettmann said even though the items are budgeted, that's not a good way to do business.

"It looks like what we're doing is not against the law, but it looks non responsive to the law," the commissioner said.

If items are approved in the budget and there is money available, the county is covered, Morel said.

"As long as we have followed the procurement code and have back-up documentation with the check, the process is all right," the attorney said. "I do believe the commissioner signing the checks needs to ensure everything is properly budgeted, because he has liability. You have to rely on the manager's office that appropriate procedures are followed and it's properly documented.

"You have the authority to direct the county manager not to pay any bill until it approved in a meeting."

A way to solve the problem would be for commissioners to meet three times a month on the Tuesday before bills are paid, County Manager Tom Stewart said.

"I think that's a good idea," Commissioner Rick Simpson said, but no one offered a motion for the extra sessions.

Stewart said the board issues about 500 checks each month. The procedure was never challenged by an auditor, he said.

Stewart contended requiring board action before checks are issued would create a potential for some late payments, possibly would not allow the county to take advantage of early payment discounts and might limit the staff's ability to respond to businesses that require immediate reimbursement.

"It's still very weird the way we're doing it," Schwettmann said. "You should just have a rubber stamp for all of us. You say we're supposed to check, but we're brought 200 checks at a time. That's a farce. The present staff is fine, but that changes."

"It looks like what we're doing is not against the law ..."

WHAT ARC CAN DO FOR YOU

When driving at night, do you have problems with annoying glare from oncoming traffic? Do the lights in your place of business or from your computer cause a reflection or a glare? If you answered yes to either one of these questions, anti-reflective coating or ARC on your glasses may be the answer for you.

Anti-reflective coating is a special coating applied to the front and/or back side of lenses that can virtually eliminate glare and reflections. AR coating allows up to 99% of the light to reach your eyes. This special coating can be used along with other lens treatments including ultra-violet protection and tinting. Even if you don't wear glasses, non-prescription occupational lenses can be treated with anti-reflective coating to help with the glare of driving or office work.

Call 257-5029 or drop by Family Vision Center at 159 Mesalero Trail and speak to our friendly staff about anti-reflective coating. You may also want to know about our in house specials on frames and lenses.

County tells demographer: Try again on redistricting

After hearing the consultant's report on the difficulties of his task, county commissioners told him what they don't want to see in the reshaped districts.

BY DIANNE STALLINGS
RUIDOSO NEWS STAFF WRITER

Try again, Lincoln County commissioners told the demographer hired to juggle population numbers into five fairly equal commission districts.

After listening to Rod Adair's explanation of the difficulties of trying to comply with the ground rules of redistricting, a process timed to follow the national census every 10 years, commissioners Thursday pinpointed what they did and didn't want to see in the reworked lines.

A redistricting workshop is set for 9 a.m. Nov. 29, at the county courthouse and a public hearing is scheduled for 6 p.m., Dec. 13, at the Ruidoso Convention Center.

Two plans were presented Thursday, but County Clerk Martha Proctor emphasized they represented preliminary efforts to coordinate ethnicity, history, cultural aspects, occupations and community of interests as well as numbers.

One of the greatest constraints is trying to align the districts with census blocks as required by law and to keep the deviation of population within 5 percent, plus or minus.

Census blocks in rural counties like Lincoln tend to be large and don't leave much room for manipulation, she said.

Currently, District 3, represented by Leo Martinez deviates by plus 11.21 percent and District 1, headed by Chairman Rex Wilson, by minus 17.16 percent.

Because precinct lines can't be changed until next year, Adair and Proctor created building blocks within precincts that could be manipulated later, he said. The ideal size for a district is 3,800 people, they said.

Martinez and Commissioner L. Ray Nunley said the proposals were too radical. Different versions shifted Martinez's District 3 out of Ruidoso and into Ruidoso Downs - placing his home in another commissioner's district. Proposals split the village of Capitan, extended District 5 north, linked Alto with Carrizozo or linked Alto with Ruidoso.

Nunley said Ruidoso and Ruidoso Downs residents don't share much in common and Alto residents have fiercely resisted attempts to link their future with Ruidoso.

"It's like the Mason-Dixon line," he said of the boundary between Ruidoso and Ruidoso Downs. "If you shifted 3 more into Ruidoso and brought 5 more into Ruidoso Downs, you'd have more common interests."

"In my opinion, Ruidoso deserves two full commissioners because of its size and impact. It's also my opinion that Capitan deserves a chance for two commissioners."

Commissioner Rick Simpson, who represents District 5, agreed, saying, "The commonality is not there."

Although Adair said he tried every combination of existing precincts without being able to reach the correct balance, Martinez asked him to look over a "common sense" plan he posted on the wall.

"It's simple," he said. "You cut in a rational manner, not changing the bulk of the district, but cutting off small pieces to slide into other districts that need the numbers."

After examining Martinez' map, Adair said he'd try that approach and it could be reviewed at the workshop.

Resident James Slocum urged that Hispanic areas not be diluted into multiple districts instead of being a major force in one district.

Adair responded that because of the county's predominantly white population - 77 percent - and low minority presence, that aspect as well as political affiliation in the heavily Republican county don't impact considerations.

Currently, District 5, represented by Simpson, is the only one with significant Hispanic numbers at 45.9 percent. That figure would drop to 40.8 percent under one of the options, called Plan D, reviewed Thursday.

Hispanic representation would be broken up more evenly under Plan C with Martinez coming out with the highest single Hispanic block at 39 percent.

Ruidoso village councilors Bill Chance and Ron Anderson, and Charles Rennie, village attorney, said their concern is that the final plan be fair.

"As a representative of Ruidoso, I need to ensure we are effectively represented," Chance said adding his thoughts on a Capitan split. "Maybe if you divide Capitan, its vote will be so diluted, neither commissioner would be elected from there. I'd rather have one representative devoted to me."

A time to give thanks

There has never been a more important time to give thanks. All of us at State National Bank wish to express our sincere gratitude to our customers and our community. Thanks to you, we just broke ground for our new Ruidoso Downs location to open in the summer of 2002.

We will be closed on Thursday in observance of the holiday, and wish everyone a very happy Thanksgiving.

msn. Save up to $200 Instantly! (on any Staples purchase when you sign up in store for 2 years of MSN* Internet Access @ $21.95 per month.)

Details of the MSN Instant Rebate and One-Year FREE Programs for Staples. The MSN Rebate Program and the MSN One-Year FREE Program are separate offers and cannot be combined with each other. The MSN Instant Rebate Program for Staples requires: (1) a $200 rebate, the purchase of eligible merchandise totaling in excess of $200 from Staples between August 30, 2001 and December 30, 2001; (2) selection of a 24-month subscription to MSN Internet Access at the rate of $21.95 per month plus applicable taxes (total cost if you remain a subscriber for the entire term 2-year = $526.80); (3) in-store sign up for a new MSN Internet Access account at the time of purchase; (4) a valid major credit card; and (5) acceptance of the MSN Internet Access subscription agreement. If you do not continue as a subscriber for the two years, you will be required to pay MSN a termination fee equal to 70% of the monthly service fee multiplied by the number of months remaining in your subscription period. The MSN One-Year FREE Program for Staples requires the purchase of a Personal Computer (CPU only required) between August 30, 2001 and December 30, 2001 and items (3)-(5) above. You must cancel your subscription prior to the expiration of the FREE period to avoid having your credit card charged for the applicable fee per month thereafter. You may cancel at any time during the free period without penalty. These MSN programs are available only to residents of the 50 United States, the District of Columbia and Puerto Rico through participating Staples stores. You must be 18 years old or older to qualify for these MSN Programs. MSN reserves the right to modify or withdraw these promotions at any time. MSN Programs are available only to users of the Windows® 95 or later operating systems and only for personal non-commercial use. Local phone and/or long distance toll charges may apply. It is the customer's responsibility to check with a local phone company to determine if access numbers are local. A list of available access phone numbers can be obtained by calling 1-800-373-3676. Local market network activity and capacity may affect access availability. MSN is a registered trademark of Microsoft Corporation. See store for details.
