Commission eludes jail tax conflict

■ A last-minute meeting allowed the county to reword its contract with the jail's operators.

BY SANDY SUGGITT
RUIDOSO NEWS STAFF WRITER

Lincoln County commissioners voted Tuesday at a special meeting to approve an amendment to the contract with Correction Systems Inc. to put the detention center in Carrizozo in compliance with IRS tax exemption status for the bond issue.

The bonds were to be released to the public market at 11 a.m. Tuesday. The tax attorney for the county's bond counsel found the wording in violation of IRS rules for tax-exempt bonds for a loan with the New Mexico Finance Authority.

County Manager Tom Stewart said setting a fixed rate for the contract, rather than having it vary with the number of inmates, puts the bond in compliance with IRS tax-exempt status rules. The amendment approved at the last hour sets a fixed rate of $85,000 for the first 82 prisoners, and a per diem rate of $24.90 per day for each additional inmate.

Stewart said the glitch was discovered late and a special meeting was scheduled for Tuesday. He recommended accepting CSI's proposal of the fixed rate with the additional per diem rate. He also suggested a 60-day out. The variable portion cannot exceed the fixed rate portion.

Also included in the variable portion is 1/12 of the average salary of county employees who are hired by CSI.

Alan P. Morel, attorney for the county, said CSI has had four or five contracts with the county since 1997, when it managed the old jail.

Two years ago the State Fire Marshall said the facility did not meet fire code and the county decided it wasn't cost-effective to remodel. Instead, the new facility was built to hold up to 129 inmates. Initially, CSI just provided a manager.

With the new contract, an assistant jail administrator will be hired to support Mike Borrego, which "should allow us to increase the capacity of our federal contracts by an additional 10 federal prisoners, producing an additional $200,000 in annual federal revenue," wrote John R. Forren, president and chief executive officer of CSI, in a letter to Stewart about the proposed billing structure.

Stewart said the county would have had to pay a penalty of an additional $80,000 per year for a taxable bond if it had not amended the contract to include a fixed rate for operation of the detention center.

Morel said $85,000 is an average of the last five months of expenses to the county for the detention center, and that, in the case of federal inmates, the county stands to make some money.

"The way the contract's drafted, over 82 (inmates), the county gets everything over $24.90. Assuming we have federal prisoners, the county begins to make money," Morel said.

As of Tuesday, there were 90 inmates, including 25 federal prisoners. Over the last six months, an average of 93 inmates were housed at the detention center, 36.67 of whom were federal prisoners, for an average cost of $81,102.

"Operational costs will be monitored by me on a continual basis to make sure it's still profitable for the county to participate," Stewart said.

CUTTING TRAFFIC IN HALF

This fire truck has seen better days. While on patrol in the area of Redwood and Maple drives Wednesday, the Ruidoso Fire Department truck's chassis came apart, according to Tomas Chavez, volunteer assistant fire chief. Michael Morrow, who was driving it, guided the truck back down the hill it was on while avoiding any further damage. Chavez said one of two beams holding the chassis had broken prior to the accident. He added that the 1985 Ford, the first response truck in Upper Canyon, was unfixable. Upper Canyon still has one Class A firetruck, he said.

Downs OKs interim budget

BY MELANIE SATTLER
RUIDOSO NEWS STAFF WRITER

The Ruidoso Downs village council unanimously approved an interim budget two weeks before deadline.

The new budget focuses on slimming down project expenditures, increasing capital and improving the water system.

"We're probably not looking at paying for as many projects," said John Waters, village administrator.

The village paid for most of last year's projects out of its reserve funds, he said, but this year the village will apply for grants to cover most costs.

Under the new budget, improvements to the water system will likely require a raise in rates, Waters said.

The state of New Mexico requires that a municipality's enterprise fund, which is set up to maintain the water and sewer system, makes enough money to support itself.

Waters said the village will bring in a consultant to advise the council on structuring rates to make this possible.

Since last fall, Waters has decreased expenses in water and sewer with a 35 percent reduction in overtime.

Ruidoso Downs water rates have remained low, though rates throughout the state are rising, he said.

"We don't want to overburden the public," Waters said.

Improvements include replacing pipes, repairing line breaks, installing valves and maintaining the system.

"It did not get this way overnight. This is certainly something that's been building for at least the last 10 to 15 years," Waters said.

The state Department of Finance and Administration requires the 2002-2003 interim budget be submitted by June 1. Ruidoso Downs closes the fiscal year June 30 and must submit a final budget a month after that date.

YMCA organizers decide to start small

■ Only "key leaders" will meet with consultants as part of the first step toward a center.

BY SANDY SUGGITT
RUIDOSO NEWS STAFF WRITER

Only key community leaders will meet with YMCA consultants as the first step toward developing a YMCA for Lincoln County in Ruidoso.

The possible development of a YMCA took a different direction after the May 7 public meeting at First Christian Church, attended by about 60 members of the community, when a national consultant told organizers that they were moving too fast by beginning with a large public meeting, said organizer Peggy Jordan French.

French said the meeting that had been scheduled for May 21 had been canceled and that the first steps involve some of Ruidoso's and Lincoln County's "key leaders."

"Over a short period of time, several meetings with small groups of community leaders will form a sound basis for any grass roots YMCA movement," French wrote in a memo to those who signed in at the first meeting.

"The national Y has a format they follow," French said. "They like to start out with smaller groups."

John Brooks, the El Paso, Texas, YMCA director who attended the first meeting, said he was shocked by the number of people at that meeting and had expected only two or three people. (See his letter, page 4A.)

A meeting with national consultants will take place in Ruidoso on May 29 with community leaders, French said, and the next meeting or two will be open to the public as was proposed for the May 21 meeting.

Commission hopefuls offer views at debate

BY DIANNE STALLINGS
RUIDOSO NEWS STAFF WRITER

Candidates for three Lincoln County Commission seats in the June 4 Republican primary election fielded some tough questions last week about their attendance at county meetings and if sessions should be scheduled outside of the county seat of Carrizozo.

Laying out their qualifications and answering questions during a forum sponsored by the Federated Republican Women of Lincoln County were former Ruidoso village councilor Bill Chance and county planning board member Maury St. John for District 2. Democrat Mike Runnels will face the primary winner in the general election.

In District 4, Earl B. Hobbs, Frank Higgins, Bob Johnson and Curtis Payne spoke. The winner will oppose Democrat Darrel Stierwalt in the general election.

For District 5, incumbent Rick Simpson was the only candidate who showed up to speak to an audience composed mostly of family and supporters of those running. Candidate Humberto Maldonado didn't attend and Orlando Montes Jr., was represented by his daughter. The winner will face the victor of the Democratic primary between Ralph Romero and Reynaldo Valcarlos.

Responding to audience questions, Chance said marathon meetings once a month in Carrizozo do not serve the public. He would like to see twice a month meetings with one in Ruidoso on relevant items, and one in Carrizozo.

He explained that the village convention center couldn't be used as a polling place for the primary because that date already was booked. "Its primary function is for economic development and revenue," he reminded the audience.

In response to a query about his past negative comments on county government, Chance said at one time the commission and county administration seemed so anti-Ruidoso that there was talk of the village breaking away.

"I think the county's come a long way in the last four years," he said. "But prior, it was like a circus. I felt the county was not listening and responding to the people of Ruidoso."

As for attendance at county commission meetings, Chance said he's been at three to five during the past year.

St. John said she's missed four commissions. See DEBATE, page 3A

Passion for New Mexico culture, history pushed Greer into Congressional race

BY TOM SCHULTES
FOR THE RUIDOSO NEWS

For C. Earl Greer, Republican candidate for New Mexico's 2nd Congressional seat in the U.S. Congress, there's no question about what sets him apart from his primary election candidates — "They don't have the passion."

"We need to protect our heritage, our culture," said Greer, who was raised on a ranch in Winston.

The native-born New Mexican added that while his opponents may also fight to protect those values, he may be able to do so with less capitulation.

Greer, reflecting on his primary election opponents, noted that two are from the oil and gas industry, two are from the restaurant sector and he represents the ranching and lands sector.

That sentiment is a large factor behind the reason he's running for Congress.

"It's really for the kids," Greer said.

The candidate said when he was approached about selling his ranch in 1997, he quoted a price he thought would lessen the potential buyer's interest. But instead, the reply was a request to take a look at it.

"I had to sit down and really make a decision on what I wanted to do," Greer said. It was a difficult decision, but it was to sell, although he still has a small ranch at the family's original spread at Winston. At times, Greer's ranch ran 350 to 400 head of cattle.

He said that ranchers can deal with problems of weather, insects and market prices. Those are known variables starting out. But, today, "the fight is also with humans."

The human factor cited by Greer includes the Endangered Species Act, land use reform and the battle over water rights.

"The Endangered Species Act needs to be looked at," he said. "They've made animals more important than humans, and that's not correct," he said. "Albuquerque is at the mercy of the silvery minnow. We need to get that law corrected so people can live."

"The people who do it are resilient people, they love what they're doing, they love the lifestyle," Greer said.

"No one should be required to make a decision (about selling property) like that, for those reasons," he said. "And I decided that I didn't want to saddle my children with that."

That thought doesn't surprise his friend from childhood, Howard Bartoo of Truth or Consequences. Bartoo operates Bartoo Sand & Gravel & Transit.

Bartoo, a 1965 graduate of Hot Springs High School, said he has known Greer since his childhood, and the families still have a relationship.

"I think he is a very moral, honest human being," he said. "I don't think he's ever done a dishonest thing in his life."

"He tells it like he sees it," Bartoo said. "That means a lot to me."

Being in the construction business, he said, has put him in a position where "I'm not real strong on politicians."

"But Earl has listened. He's got some plans, and he's looking at the future for his kids, and my kids."

Greer is openly running a conservative campaign, with the motto, "Committed to continuing the legacy of conservative leadership required by

DEBATE: County Commission candidates talk water, meeting locations

sion meetings in the last two years.

"It's very important to know the business going on and how it's conducted," she said. "I have seen how smoothly it runs. I questioned (about other sites) and was told when they had meetings in other places, there was no better turn-out. I saw that last year when they met in Ruidoso Downs and only five people attended."

Hobbs, a retired businessman and retired FAA air traffic control specialist, said he's missed only one or two meetings in the last year and has been attending for about four years.

"I've seen that the business of the county is best conducted at the county seat where the records are kept," he said. "But I'm not opposed to alternate locations, such as Ruidoso, Corona, San Patricio and Capitán. They have just as much (right) and if it would get more participation, by all means, let's look at other locations."

Higgins, a former planning board member with 29 years in the international oil and gas business, said he's attended from five to eight meetings in the last year and favors an approach that encourages more participation.

"I recognize that a large percentage of the population lives in this end of the county and I think we should accommodate them when the subject pertains to the area," he said. "We should move around from time to time. We need public input for future action."

Johnson attended one meeting and said, "I don't believe how many meetings you have attended means anything about how many you will attend."

He favors all regular commission meetings at the county courthouse in Carrizozo, but flexibility for special meetings. Payne agreed with Johnson and said he also had gone to one meeting.

Simpson said with all county records and a good recording system in place at the courthouse, regular meetings should stay there, but special meetings could be elsewhere.

In general remarks, Chance said he's concerned that lack of planning on how to manage growth may jeopardize the county's water supply, that the new jail could mean more liability to the county for lawsuits, that the U.S. 70 project is finished in a timely manner and that taxes are kept to a minimum.

St. John, a registered nurse for 24 years, said she moved to the county seven years ago and her main focus is for the people already here.

The area faces two big issues, water and wildfire, but they are two sides of the same coin, she said. "If you thin the trees, you'll save water."

She advocated conservation measures "everyday by everyone," such as not allowing the water to run while brushing teeth, taking fewer showers and waiting for a big load to wash dishes.

Payne, a fourth-generation resident, says he knows the county and its needs and wants to keep continuity on the board and reduce squabbles.

"Our problems didn't start overnight," he said. "The trees took years to become overgrown and we've had drought before and we will again."

He would oppose a moratorium on development.

"I think we need more control of growth in the future," he said. "We could conserve water and we might be more prepared for the next drought."

Johnson, a rancher, farmer, former land use specialist for the state Land Office and a former state Legislator, said from knocking on doors around his district, he found that many people don't know the extent of the commission's power. He read a list of the possibilities, although several currently aren't exercised, such as operation of parks and libraries.

He served on the Curry County Fair Board and would like to use that knowledge to boost Lincoln County's annual fair, he said.

"I realize that a well-planned subdivision can be an asset while a poorly planned one can be a liability," Johnson said.

Hobbs, an Alto resident, said he was raised in Lubbock, Texas, and attended Texas Tech University, then served in Vietnam.

He called himself a monetary conservative and a social moderate.

"I don't believe government has any business in the business of running our lives, but it has a place to provide assistance," he said.

"The issues are water — we don't know how much we have, use or discharge," Hobbs said. Roads need improving, a fair return on their tax dollars is due to residents and growth must be regulated while remaining cognizant of private property rights, he said.

Higgins, a member of the Lincoln County-Ruidoso Extraterritorial Zoning Commission, said he moved to the county three years ago after spending 19 years as a negotiator and 30 years as a manager. He's dealt with different cultures, needs and environments and believes consensus is the longest-lasting solution to disputes.

"I'd like to bring that experience to Lincoln County," he said, adding that he's retired and has the time. "I think growth is a reality whether we like it or not."

"The baby boomers are coming and we need to be ready for those folks. We need to plan now for the future in water needs, hospitals, schools, waste control and fire protection. We can't wake up on July 4th in 2013 and find we have no water. We need to start now and we need input from all parts of the county."

Simpson, a lifetime resident who served as commissioner when terms were two years and was elected to a four-year term in 1998, said his main concern is water. One way to improve that is to eliminate trees that have grown too thickly together since pre-settlement times.

One obstacle is the Endangered Species Act, which interferes with some logging activity, he said.

A rancher and former owner of a school bus service, Simpson said he's a strong advocate of private property rights.

"One of the reasons I don't live in town or in a subdivision is that I'm particular about my property rights, and that's why I am about the property rights of others," Simpson said.

OUR OPINION

Something good blowing with the wind

A closed forest didn't stop our Memorial Day visitors

An ill wind blows no good, they say...and when dry winds close a forest, it usually is even less good for Ruidoso.

But not this year. Whether it was the 23 trial races on opening day for a shot at the biggest prize ever at Ruidoso Downs Race Track, or perfect weather, or the fact that our recreational forests were locked down because of the fire danger — whatever the reasons, new Memorial Day weekend records were set for attendance at the races.

Add to that an 82-team baseball tournament that brought more than 1,000 more visitors to the village and filled every athletic field in the area.

All this spilled over into Midtown, where parking spaces were at a premium, lodgings were full and cash registers were ringing everywhere.

Race fans totaled 2,896 on Friday, 5,253 on Saturday and 5,505 on Sunday. Monday, even as many were headed back home, 3,663 people were in the racetrack stands. The weekend gate topped 2001 by 7 percent.

Ruidoso business people wanted something positive to start a new summer season, and they got it.

A modicum of outrage

I'm outraged. It is happening once again. Newspapers in New Mexico are making a big deal out of the oh-so-American practice of lavishing treats on our state legislators.

Look, these are our leaders! If we want to give them packages of fire-works, cute little Teddy Bears, and fly fishing trips, it is simply our way of saying "hey, thanks, job well done!"

But, no, let's not explain it so innocently, so simply. The cynical among you will just assume that when a lobbyist gives a gift to a legislator, that lobbyist kind of expects a favorable vote on bills affecting his business or industry.

And so when you hear about a dozen lobbyists spending $2,900 to throw a birthday party for House Majority Whip James Taylor, do you chime in with, "Happy Birthday, Jim!"?

No, you don't. You wonder why Mr. Taylor can't put on a funny little hat and go visit Ronald McDonald with the rest of us kids. You're saying — because every party needs one, that's why we invited you — "what in heaven's name do you DO at a $3,000 birthday bash!?"

You read the story about Senate Majority Leader Manny Aragon floating down the San Juan River with a fishing pole in his hand and you think, just because the Public Service Company of New Mexico is paying for this trip, Manny might be persuaded to look fondly at legislation benefiting the utility company.

How distrustful you are. What you should be savoring is the wonderful mental image of Manny sitting in a boat in the middle of the river with a silly hat on his head and appreciate the ammunition this gives political cartoonists around the state.

Do you really think a politician's vote can be influenced by such small favors? Don't be silly!

Although they cleaned up their act in the last decade or two, newspaper writers themselves were often treated to junkets. You didn't hear so much criticism of politicians then, did you?

This writer was once the four-day guest of the City of Oceanside, Calif., swank hotel, food, tours, and all the trimmings, free. The thought, just the thought, that somehow this gift could influence me to write nice things about Oceanside is an insult to my integrity.

(As an aside, I might mention that Oceanside is a delightful seaside community near San Diego, with acres of flower gardens and tremendous restaurants.)

So let's tell it like it is. These Teddy Bears and fireworks packages are not going to influence anybody. No. If you are going to influence legislation, you have to grease the palm in a more meaningful way.

Look at how the big leaguers play the game. Wouldn't you like to know what good lobbyist luck befell those members of Congress who pushed through $180 billion in farm subsidies over the next decade? $180 billion! This federal handout will go to whom the New York Times' Paul Krugman satirically calls "the denizens of the heartland... rugged, self-reliant..."

Ooooh, saaaaay can't you see, the lobbyist behiind that tree....

A YMCA must come from the grassroots

To the editor:

YMCAs have been changing the lives of children and families across the USA for more than 150 years and in 164 countries around the world for 158 years, with 30 million members worldwide. The YMCA is the largest non-sectarian, nonprofit organization, serving all people from every background, creed and religion worldwide.

Every YMCA, whether in El Paso, the Middle East, Brazil, Japan or Russia, is a valued community asset...

Because the YMCA is a bottom-up organization that belongs to a community and serves the needs of that community and not those of a national or worldwide organization, it is vitally necessary that its "birth" stem from the "grassroots" of the community it is to serve.

When the YMCA was recently invited to share the story and the philosophy of starting a YMCA in Ruidoso on May 7 ... I was overwhelmed by the excitement the community had ... when a large number of individuals showed up to hear my comments and those of Allan Kinkowski of ... Prescott, Ariz. We were thinking 5 or 10 people sitting around a table sharing a vision and a dream... The surprise we had was tremendous in building the network necessary for future understanding.

However, as with any dream and vision, it is also necessary to take one step at a time. ... Consultant Joe Casado, who provides services to local YMCAs in New Mexico and west/north Texas, has assisted several communities in developing the foundation of a YMCA, and has suggested a procedure to follow, resulting in a much more defined and balanced approach...

We will soon announce the start-up of small group meetings, which will be your beginning of a true "grassroots" movement. Since YMCA is not a franchise, we need to be partners with city, civic, church and private organizations, all reaching out to build strong kids, strong families and a strong community.

As president of the El Paso YMCAs, I am willing to share my free time in any way to assist the Ruidoso community... This is my personal mission, I obviously believe in a difference a YMCA can mean to your community ... as a result of the many programs, such as aquatics, sports health/wellness, childcare, after-school teen networking, educational classes and community development activities. A YMCA benefits all ages.

By working closely together as community leaders, support groups and God's direction, we will properly achieve our joint mission for the community of Ruidoso.

HEAT is welcome at Tinnie

To the editor:

I understand that some people here in the Hondo Valley have attacked my character, because I support the High Energy Access Tools Corp. These attacks don't bother me, because the people who have slandered me don't have my respect.

The Tinnie Range Complex is in my backyard. When the HEAT people first arrived, I contacted the FBI. The post-9/11 FBI investigated and cleared the HEAT folks.

If I had a son or daughter in the armed or police forces, I'd want them to be trained by the HEAT's experienced military and law-enforcement veterans.

In Vietnam, many of our youth were needlessly killed or maimed, because they weren't properly trained. "The more our troops sweat in training, the less they'll bleed in combat." In addition, the higher that our allied forces are trained, the lower our own nation's casualties will be in war.

Readers, please join me in welcoming the HEAT folks to Lincoln County, and please don't believe all those unfounded and malicious rumors about them.

The 'powers that be' are us

To the editor:

On May 14... the governing body of the village of Ruidoso, the "powers that be," was presented with a request to consider establishing an ordinance regulating smoking in the incorporated areas of the village...

The purpose: Improve and protect the public's health by regulating smoking in public places and places of employment, guarantee the right of nonsmokers to breathe smoke-free air, and recognize that the need to breathe smoke-free should have priority over the choice to smoke.

The reason: Numerous studies have found that second-hand smoke is a significant air pollutant and that breathing secondhand smoke, a Group A Carcinogen, is a proven source and cause of disease...

The smoking of tobacco is a form of air pollution, a positive danger to health and a material annoyance, inconvenience, nuisance, discomfort and a health hazard to those who are present in confined spaces...

Before a packed council chamber, numerous concerned citizens presented a substantial amount of data and resource material documenting the nature of the hazard. More than 650 names of petitioners were presented, to establish substantial grassroots support for the effort. A compromise was offered that would have provided a winning solution...(that) would have provided a smoking section, providing a physically separated and independently ventilated area...

The resulting course...by the village council was to shirk responsibility to provide for the safety and preserve the health of the citizens of the village, and to "take no action"... The "powers that be" stated that if the non-smokers are indeed a majority, then "vote with your feet and with your dollars. Don't go to the businesses that won't provide smoke-free air!" So we are in effect "on our own." We have been challenged to make the social change and difference on our own.

So who are the "powers that be?" ...DTK Coaching Associates says "We are, if we choose to be." If we are willing to speak our minds and hearts, if we are willing to stand behind our words, and to act with others who believe as we believe, even when what we believe is uncomfortable or unpopular. We can and do make a difference, one moment at a time, one step at a time. If we choose not to step up, we willingly give our power to others.

...We can have the power, along with the responsibility, of creating the world we most want to live in. What action can you take before this day is over to move in that direction? Are you willing to take it?

Disturbing LCMC change

To the editor:

I found the article in the Ruidoso News May 17 edition entitled "Vote does not change hospital mill levy" to be very disturbing. Once again our county commissioners have displayed their "go along to get along" philosophy to be their guiding light rather than considering their responsibility to the property tax payers of Lincoln County to ensure the county is run in a fiscally responsible manner.

Although there is a surplus in the account, and against the advice of the County Manager, the "good ole boys" decided to abdicate their responsibility in favor of enhancing the "sweetheart" deal to Presbyterian who for $1 get to determine how the millions of dollars of taxpayer monies are to be spent, through Presbyterian-appointed board members. Apparently, no plans or studies have been completed to determine if this money is needed or how it should be spent.

The article states a cardiovascular or orthopedic rehabilitation unit is under consideration. The only guarantee is that given this "free" money, it will be spent whether necessary or not.

There is very little doubt in my mind, it will be spent on whatever increases Presbyterian's revenue stream, especially since none of our commissioners, perhaps with one exception, have any desire to control or monitor LCMC expenditures.

Once again, let me point out the LCMC stands ready to serve all visitors, transients and residents. To place the levy on property owners rather than all possible users through the gross receipts tax is absolutely asinine.

EDUCATION BRIEFS

Domenici chooses Carrizozo student

Briton Goad of Carrizozo was selected to serve as a summer intern in U.S. Senator Pete Domenici's Washington, D.C., office.

Goad, a junior international business major at Abilene Christian University in Abilene, Texas, will be among eight college students whose five-week internship begins July 8 and continues through Aug. 9.

Goad is a graduate of Carrizozo High School.

Domenici designed his internship program to give college students opportunities to work with his administrative, legislative, press and constituent services staff. Domenici is the ranking minority member on the Senate Budget Committee and a senior member of the Senate Appropriations Committee. He also serves on the Energy and Natural Resources Committee, the Environment and Public Works Committee and the Indian Affairs Committee.

Participants in Domenici's 2002 Summer Internship Program have completed at least one year of study in an institution of higher education and are enrolled for the following semester.

New Mexico residents and/or students received priority attention in the selection process.

College graduates

Preston Parson of Ruidoso received an associate of applied science degree in sound technology May 10 during commencement exercises at south Plains College.

Talia Wood and Jaime L. Wood, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Jimmy P. Wood of Ruidoso Downs, were among the 550 graduating seniors who received diplomas in commencement exercises at Harding University, Searcy, Ark., May 11.

Majoring in dietetics, Talia Wood received a bachelor of science degree. Majoring in management, Jaime L. Wood received a master of business administration degree.

Trouble in Vegas

District Court judge Art Encinias ordered the Las Vegas City Board of Education to approve the charter application for Bridge Academy Charter School "forthwith and without delay" or appear in his court.

The State Board of Education voted on March 1 to remand the charter school to the local board for approval. The state Charter Schools Act requires local school boards to approve charters when directed to do so by the SBE. The local board voted on March 19 not to accept the remand.

"The Las Vegas City Schools Board of Education has defied a proper order of the State Board of Education," said State Superintendent Michael Davis. "At the State Board's direction, I have sought legal relief to get the order expeditiously enforced."

Carol Winkel, the principal organizer of the charter school, applied to the local board on Sept. 28, 2001, for a charter to operate the Bridge Academy Charter school. On Nov. 20, the board voted unanimously to deny the charter. Winkel then appealed to the SBE on Dec. 4 regarding the denial of the charter application.

At its regular meeting January, the SBE heard presentations regarding the charter application from the new Mexico State Department of Education staff, Winkel and local board representatives, and decided to seek additional input from the West Las Vegas Public Schools board before making a final decision. The SBE heard the views of the West Las Vegas Public Schools on March 1, before acting by majority vote to reverse the local board's decision.

"The local school board has not articulated any legal reason for refusing to approve the charter as required by the Charter Schools Act and it has actively refused, without just cause or excuse, to perform its duty by granting the charter," Davis said.

"Charter schools offer choices and alternatives for parents and students and represent new ways to improve outcomes for public school children.

The charter of the Bridge Academy Charter school is legitimate, the State Board approved it in March and it is our intention that the charter school will be approved to serve children in the fall of 2002," he said.

Superintendent Mike Gladden looks over the lobby of the new theater going up adjacent to the fine arts building on the Ruidoso High School campus.

Weather delays theater completion

The $2.8 million project also might get more seating before it opens

BY SANDY SUGGITT
RUIDOSO NEWS STAFF WRITER

A major addition to the Ruidoso High School Fine Arts Building looms large, with the 65-foot beams and decking for the roof completed last week.

The 360-seat theater is about 50 percent complete, said Mike Gladden, superintendent of the Ruidoso Municipal School District. The classroom section should be finished within the next two or three weeks.

The school district and Gentry Construction are negotiating over the cost of adding an additional 150-seat section, and that question should be resolved by the end of the week, Gladden said.

"Even if it's not ready when school begins, it's not a big thing. We want it done right and we've probably been delayed three to four weeks on this addition because we can't finish the ceiling and the outside wall until we know whether we're doing the addition or doing what we originally planned," Gladden said.

The auditorium, which was scheduled to be complete by school start-up in August, also was delayed because of snow days and more days of high wind than usual, said project superintendent Dave Malett.

The theater has been added onto the existing fine arts building, with a spacious lobby offering a view of Sierra Blanca, a ticket booth, electrical room, and control booth. The former drama room has been divided up into restrooms, accessible from the lobby, and a new drama classroom and teacher's office.

The area where band students used to store their instruments has been converted into a prop shop for theatrical productions.

The 65- by 32-foot stage will be made with layered wood and appropriate for dancing. A catwalk, which will be accessible by a ladder, stretches high above permit adjusting the stage lighting.

Aisles will run down the sides of seating area. The seats have been chosen Gladden said, in a red-tan-black twe and every other seat will have a lift desk top to use for testing. Some of desk tops are for left-handed writers.

The seating inclines downward toward the stage gradually, allowing a good view from all seats. If the extra 160 seats added, though, that section will have stairs leading up to it.

The project — without the additional seating — will cost about $2.8 million including equipment.

The 1997 bond issue provided $1 million, the last project of that issue; $1 million will come from last fall's capital outlay funds from the state; and the remainder from "being creative." Gladden said an extra-seating addition would cost about $190,000-$200,000 and the equipment would run in the neighborhood of $30,000.

"It'll be great for our school district and for the community," he said. "There's no going to be a bad seat in the house."

New theater is at the Warrior Drive-Gavilan Canyon Road intersection.

Dave Malett, right, and Gladden show the scale of the theater building.

Six named honorary Sam Steel Society members at NMSU

LAS CRUCES — Six alumni and supporters have been named honorary members of the Sam Steel Society at New Mexico State University.

They are Bruce Carpenter, alumnus and livestock researcher; Bill Gorman, NMSU professor and author; Jennifer Hopper, director of New Mexico's Agriculture in the Classroom program; Mary Liesner, assistant to the associate dean and director in the Academic Programs office for the College of Agriculture and Home Economics; Rose Nakayama, supporter and scholarship donor; and Tom Simpson, Mesilla Valley farmer and NMSU research cooperator.

The society honors the memory of Sam Steel, who would have been the university's first graduate had he not been killed just months before his graduation in 1893.

Carpenter, a 1993 graduate of NMSU, is an associate professor and Extension livestock specialist with Texas A&M University. He received the Texas Agricultural Extension Superior Service Award and was awarded the Texas A&M Vice Chancellor's Award for Excellence.

Gorman has served as a professor in NMSU's agricultural economics and agricultural business department for more than 30 years. He co-founded the International Food and Agribusiness Management Association in 1991 and co-authored a textbook, Introduction to Food and Agribusiness Management, published this year.

Hopper works to promote agricultural literacy as director of the New Mexico Farm and Livestock Bureau's Agriculture in the Classroom program. After earning her bachelor's degree in family and consumer sciences and master's degree in agricultural and extension education from NMSU, Hopper worked briefly as an Extension home economist in Valencia County before taking her current job.

Liesner serves as assistant to the associate dean and director of the Academic Programs office for the College of Agriculture and Home Economics. She oversees the college's tutoring program, serves as college athletic adviser and manages scholarships. She was the Outstanding 4-H Leader for New Mexico in 1989. Before joining NMSU, she worked as a public school teacher in New Mexico for 20 years and headed the Business Education Department in Carlsbad for six years.

Nakayama is a continuing supporter of her late husband Roy Nakayama's chile pioneering endeavors. Known as "Mr. Chile," Roy developed chile varieties that greatly advanced the industry and helped make chile a commercial crop. She is the primary supporter of the Roy Nakayama scholarship for NMSU agronomy and horticulture students.

Simpson, a 1964 graduate of NMSU, has continued a three-generation legacy of farming in the Mesilla Valley. As an agricultural producer for nearly 40 years, he conducts cotton and alfalfa field trials at his farm to aid researchers in improving farm practices.

Hunger impacts educational development, new studies show

ITHACA, N.Y. — Hunger and poverty in the United States are severe enough to significantly impair the academic and psychosocial development of school-age children and adolescents, according to two studies at Cornell University.

"The level of food deprivation in this wealthy nation puts millions of children at risk for multiple developmental problems," says Katherine Alaimo, who obtained her Ph.D. at Cornell in 2000 and now is a community health scholar at the University of Michigan.

Alaimo conducted the studies for her doctoral dissertation using data from the National Center for Health Statistics, with Cornell nutritional sciences Professor Christine Olson and Associate Professor Edward Frongillo.

One study looks at how hunger is linked to depression and suicide attempts among adolescents. The other links hunger with the cognitive, academic and psychosocial development of school-age children.

The Cornell researchers found that young people, ages 15 to 16, in homes where there is not always enough to eat are five times more likely to attempt suicide, compared with well-fed adolescents.

They also are four times more likely to suffer from chronic, low-grade depression, which is a high-risk factor for major depression, are almost twice as likely to have been suspended from school, and have more problems getting along with their peers.

Young people, ages 6 to 12, who live in families with enough food are twice as likely to have seen a psychologist.

Willis places three horses in Ruidoso Futurity

■ Corona Coquette led the field with a time of 17.515 in the 16th of 23 trial races for the first leg of the Quarter Horse Triple Crown

BY TODD FUQUA AND KRISTIAN LOVELACE
FOR THE RUIDOSO NEWS

Horse racing is a sport of many uncertainties. And more than often, getting a horse into any stakes race is just as much a matter of luck as any amount of preparation or training.

Trainer Ed Willis certainly considers himself lucky after trials were run for the Ruidoso Futurity last week in the first day of racing at Ruidoso Downs — but he also believes his horses are the ones to beat.

Willis was without a doubt the most successful trainer on that day, as he qualified three horses for the first leg of the Quarter Horse Triple Crown. That includes the two fastest horses in the field — both of whom ran into an unrelenting wind which affected every horse equally.

"I thought I had four good shots, but I was lucky to get three," Willis said. "You've got to have things go right on race day, but you also have to have some good horses."

Corona Coquette was the fastest qualifier on the day, posting a time of 17.515 in the 16th race on Friday, while stable mate Southern Cartel ran a 17.568 in the third race.

That the two horses were the front-runners shouldn't come as too much of a surprise, the duo are descendants of Corona Cartel, a horse which won $557,142 in 14 starts.

"I think everyone will have to outrun the two I've got," Willis said. "I hadn't seen them since they ran (Friday), but they should be OK."

Willis also qualified two other horses in the Futurity, including Red River Crossing, which ran a time of 17.707 in the 15th race Friday.

Willis was the only trainer to have more than one horse qualify, but the remaining field boasts some pretty big names.

John Bassett — last year's Quarter Horse Association Trainer of the Year — qualified Slew Ta Fame with the fourth-fastest time of 17.649, Blaine Wood has

Rodeo showcases area ranch hand talent

BY TODD FUQUA
RUIDOSO NEWS SPORTS EDITOR

CAPITAN — Most rodeos are professional affairs in which most participants ride or rope for about 10 seconds, return to their trailer and change back into their tennis shoes.

But then there are ranch rodeos — rodeos in which actual ranch hands show off the skills they need to do their job every day.

One such rodeo was the 13th annual Lincoln County Ranch Rodeo, held Saturday at the Capitan Fairgrounds. Eight teams from seven area ranches came to the rodeo to hone their working skills.

The rodeo was divided into five events —

Remuda race, team penning, team branding, team tying and wild cow milking.

In the remuda race, the opening event in Saturday's rodeo, four team members turn their horses loose in a pen, then each use a hulahop — rather than a regular lasso — to get them back. They all must saddle their steeds and cross the line at the same time.

In team penning, team members are presented with a number of calves. They must then isolate specified calves and herd them in a pen — all while being timed.

Team roping is similar to team penning,

Youth baseball is king over weekend

BY TODD FUQUA
RUIDOSO NEWS SPORTS EDITOR

Anyone working in the hotel or restaurant industries in town over the Memorial Day weekend couldn't help but notice a major influx of people during those four days — many of them wearing baseball uniforms.

The reason for this avalanche of business can be attributed to the third annual Ruidoso Mountain Classic, an 82-team youth baseball extravaganza which took over every softball and baseball field in the area.

Playing in seven different divisions, teams from all across New Mexico, Texas, Arizona and Colorado played in the tournament, which is sponsored by the United States Specialty Sports Association and was organized by brothers Rodney and Phillip Lathram.

"I am pretty much in charge of the southern half of the state," said Rodney, who lives in Hobbs. "We can draw on teams from all around the area, and this is just a great place to play."

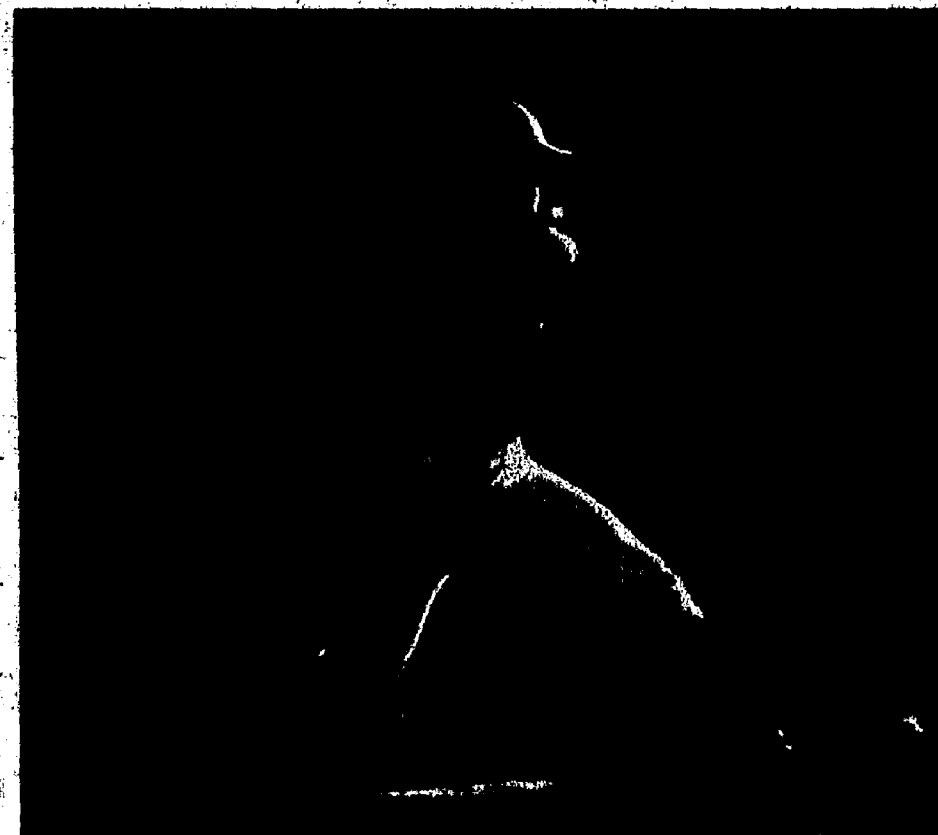

Teams in age divisions from 8 to 16 years old played on seven fields in the area — including the three softball fields at Eagle Creek Sports Complex, where portable mounds and moveable bases had to be brought in to turn the diamonds into youth baseball fields.

Little League out of any town.

Indeed, Phillip believes USSSA and Little League can co-exist and even thrive in the same community.

"In Little League, they play a couple of games a week, and have no tournaments until the end of the year," Lathram said. "In USSSA, you can play your Little League games, and then there are tournaments every weekend."

"You can benefit all the kids and both programs," he added. "When it comes to all-star time for Little League, those kids have already played in four or five tournaments."

For all the teams, excitement and obvious benefit to the community, only two local teams threw their hat in the ring this year: The Ruidoso Warriors in the 13u division and the Ruidoso Eagles in 12u.

Neither local team did particularly well — they lost every game they played. But for Warriors coach Greg Kopacka, who is in charge of a CPS youth program, the teams still met their goals.

"Our job is to teach these kids life skills," Kopacka said. "Our target age group is 12 to 13 years old, and we started a sports-related program last year to give the kids something to do once school was out for the summer."

"The goal is actually to keep kids off of cigarettes and alcohol, and put them in an environment where their parents want to take part," he added. "That's the advantage of this program."

The Warriors lost to the Las Cruces Tigers Friday 13-1, and fell to the Texas Blue Jays 11-0 on Saturday. They then dropped their game to the Albuquerque Cardinals in tournament play before dropping an 8-5 decision to Portales Select in an unusual midnight start late Sunday night.

"This was exciting for the kids, they'd been waiting to be able to stay up late to play a game," Kopacka said. "I don't know how much the adults liked it though."

USSSA future in Ruidoso?

Ruidoso Eagles coach Victor Montes is a close friend of the Lathrams, having moved to Ruidoso from Hobbs last year. Montes was a strong pro-USSSA advocate and has gone so far as to apply to be the organization's area director.

"There's a lot of financial gain by this tournament for the village, but you hardly see any Ruidoso people out here," Montes said. "We're hoping to get more local people out here to take part."

Montes also coaches a Little League Major division team, and it's that team — the White Sox — pretty much made up the Eagles, excepting a couple of players from the Angels.

"I kind of got hammered for not putting an all-star team together for this," Montes said. "But that would defeat the purpose of giving every one of my players — the good and not-so-good — a chance to take part in this tournament."

The biggest difference between Little League and USSSA rules comes down to one thing — leading off base.

In Little League divisions for ages 12 and under, players who reach base are not allowed to lead off and must remain on that base until the pitch has been delivered across the plate. The rule is meant to neutralize the advantage base stealers would have on the smaller field.

In USSSA, all players, regardless of age, are able to lead off. This means the catcher and pitcher must always be aware of who is on base and where.

"This is the first time some of these kids have had to learn these rules," Montes said. "By learning these things now, they will be better prepared for high school ball in the future."

The Eagles also lost their pool play games to the Las Cruces Bats and the West Texas Heat before falling 20-0 to the Roswell Rockets in bracket play.

They literally closed out the tournament, playing the last scheduled game at the Eagle Creek complex Monday against the El Paso Longhorns. Ruidoso spotted a five-run lead for El Paso and scored three runs of their own in the bottom of the first before finally falling 16-7.

Consolation will be run June 9. Ruidoso Derby

Saturday saw five trials run for this year's Ruidoso Derby, a race estimated at just over $90,000. First Down Dandy, ridden by Jerry Yeakum and trained by Marcom, had the fastest time out of 10 with 19.427. Genuine Strawberry and Strawberry Boy were the second and third-fastest qualifiers — all finishing 1-2-3 in the fourth race.

Other horses coming out of the fourth race were Achievement, Elans Lucky Charm, That's Proud Royalty and Desperado Man.

Rounding out the qualifying list is First Regards, Dashin Prince Henry and Winning Blues.

The final of the Ruidoso Derby will also be held June 9.

Fine Loom Handicap

In racing action on Sunday, King Rick Rack took home the Fine Loom Handicap title by 5 1/4 lengths over Mr Moon Policy for owner Lewis B. Allen.

King Rick Rack took the lead in the backstretch and never looked back. Going into the home stretch, King Rick Rack was ahead two lengths and crossed the finish line posting a time of 44.990.

The five-year-old sorrel gelding is trained by Patrick E. Swan and earned a speed index of 103 in the race.

King Rick Rack is usually jockeyed by Tomey Jean Swan. However, Swan was unable to ride because of engagements at Remington Park in Oklahoma. James Gonzales II, picked up the mount from Swan and he knew that he had a good horse under him.

"I just had to hold on and not fall off," Gonzales said. "That was easy, real easy."

"All I needed was a safe trip and a little racing luck to win the race," he added.

Gonzales was third in last year's jockey standings at Ruidoso Downs.

Mr Moon Policy made a late rally in the home stretch to place second over Richmond by three-quarters of a length. Mr Moon Policy was ridden by Juan Vasquez for trainer Roy L. Marcom, Jr. and owner E.D. Calvert of Denton, Texas.

Sunday's earnings of $9,900 in the $16,600 Fine Loom Handicap brings King Rick Rack's lifetime earnings to $85,518.

Completing the order of finish were Bad Boy Willy, Screen Trick, Rust N Diamonds and Bye Bye Habanero.

Attendance up

Attendance over the Memorial Day weekend at the track increased by more than 1,000 from last year, due mostly to the 23 trial races on Friday.

Last year, with only 14 trials for the Ruidoso Futurity, the Downs reported a gate of 16,193, compared to 17,317 at this year's four-day opening weekend.

excepting that two team members roped the calves cut out from the herd, while the third marks an X on the head, symbolizing a vaccination.

In team branding, team members again pin down a calf, while the third brands the animal with paint.

The concept of wild cow milking is exactly as it sounds: a cowboy must rope a cow, get milk in a bottle as the cow kicks, and demonstrate to judges a set amount of milk was procured.

While many of these ranch hands are well versed in the skills needed to complete these events, there were plenty of instances in which the unexpected made things quite difficult.

Example — as the team from Bonita Canyon Ranch in the remuda race finally saddled their horses and began racing to the time line, one cowboy found himself suddenly bucked from his horse.

The day was filled with surprises such as this one, and ended with an overall tie between the Black Hills and Turkey Track ranches, with Turkey Track taking first place in a run-off. The L7 Ranch finished third overall.

In a separate cow horse competition earlier in the day, George Grassie took first prize in a display of speed and control. Riding a horse owned by Jimmy Clark of Lincoln, Grassie completed a set course

POOP SCOOP

BY DIANNE STALLINGS
RUIDOSO NEWS STAFF WRITER

Thumbing through Judith Halliburton's humorous, but to the point book on training different breeds of dogs, I thought readers might gain some valuable insights.

Her book, "Raising Rover," published by St. Martin's Press, is full of great information and is an up-beat read.

Her observations include that:

- Afghans were bred to be shepherds or hunters of top of the line predators such as wolves, jackals and leopards. Today, they are more pampered pets. They're sensitive to the environment and people around them and become upset if they see someone crying, witness a fight or the barometric pressure falls, Halliburton wrote.
- They need a lot of exercise and are prone to nip at heels and push when in shepherd mode. They may be suspicious of strangers. Don't push him to get acquainted. Train with kindness and gentleness and he will respond well.
- The Basenji was bred in Africa to guide hunters through the forests and to warn of dangerous animals. They are an extremely clean breed and very proud. Keep verbal discipline low-keyed.

Halliburton likes this breed, writing that if you have one, it may be the only breed you'll ever want. They're good with the elderly because of their quiet affection.

They may run around a yard with a child, but they'll also take a calm slow walk. They are patient and intelligent.

• Basset hounds are bred to hunt and are not considered a clean breed. They're not easy to house train, she warned.

Be patient and stick to the rules. If he's left alone in a confined space, make sure he has room to eat and sleep away from his waste.

They also drool, but can find anything with that superb nose.

They're mellow, affectionate and passive, she wrote, adding, "I don't think it would occur to one of them to bite."

• Jack Russell terriers are popular across after appearing in several television series ad films.

They were bred to hunt small game in its lair because they can burrow into small holes.

They are very active dogs and love to explore. Don't give him the run of the house until you have him trained or you risk finding eliminations everywhere, she said.

Keep eating habits precise to anticipate his patterns and when to let him out while training.

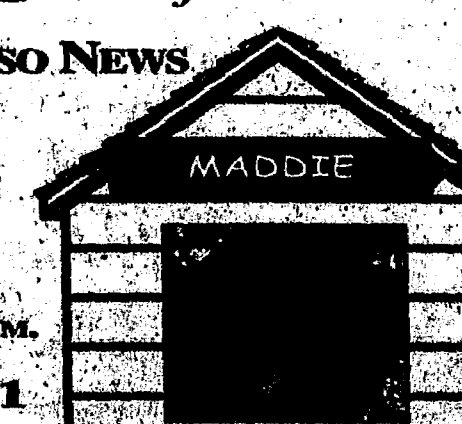

They are light hearted and fun to have around with no disposition problems. Keep them on leash when outside because they are courageous and curious and will introduce themselves to snake, porcupine or anything else that interests them. They are very trainable. They want to please and love to learn.

These pets are currently up for adoption at Lincoln County Humane Society
