Councilors reconsider Rio Grande Air

Ruidoso officials are hesitant to recommit $100,000 to airline despite sizable federal grant approved earlier this year

BY DIANNE STALLINGS
RUIDOSO NEWS STAFF WRITER

Ruidoso village councilors listened, but didn't commit, Monday to accepting a $500,000 grant that would subsidize air service for this community and Taos.

Accepting the grant from U.S. Department of Transportation would mean that Ruidoso must pay $100,000 as a match toward the grant, the same amount as a partnership in Taos that includes several entities must contribute. The state Highway and Transportation Department also would kick in $200,000 for a total of $900,000.

Announcement of the grant came a few weeks after the council decided to eliminate a $100,000 subsidy in the 2002-2003 budget, about $50,000 less than the village paid Rio Grande Air last year.

The airline subsequently pulled its service here and shifted its focus to Alamogordo, where it receives more than $872,000 in a federal grant to provide commuter service because of that city's designation as an essential destination.

Councilors agreed to review the material presented by representatives of the airlines and related agencies, to examine the possibilities of a local partnership with other towns, tribes, casinos and hotels that would benefit from air service, and then consider action at their meeting July 30.

One of the key questions would be a route connection to El Paso, as well as Albuquerque through Alamogordo. Tim Wooldridge, chief executive officer of the airline, said agreements also are lined up that will show Rio Grande as a connection when people line up tickets through American Airlines.

One of the first things council members learned Monday was that they couldn't seek another airline to provide service. The grant is tied to using Rio Grande. One of the reasons for the award was the airline's proposed marketing approach.

"I know there have been problems, but it's a start-up airline, exactly what the DOT is looking for," said Mike Rice with the Aviation Division of the state transportation department. "There are going to be hiccups and bumps."

But Councilor Deborah Marcum-Byars said what occurred this past year was more than hiccups, and the village paid the bill.

Planning head says new rules will take time

■ Mike Runnels explains some of the ins and outs of the new fire codes.

BY DIANNE STALLINGS

Just because four fire-hazard-based ordinances were swiftly passed into law last week, residents in Ruidoso shouldn't expect to see an army of enforcers prowling the streets, says village planning and zoning director Mike Runnels.

"First, we've got to identify the high-hazard areas," he said during an interview after the village council meeting. "We have a lot of groundwork to do. It will take time. We are planning on getting (urban forester Rick DeLacoe) an assistant and possibly, three temporary employees next summer — forestry majors to go out and do assessments and work with people on what they can do."

"It also will be necessary to work closely with private (lot clearing) contractors doing the work so they understand our approach and we're comfortable with what they're doing."

Reacting to the light turnout at a public hearing on the ordinances Tuesday, Runnels said, "I think generally people understand this is a

Game officials: Don't feed bears

BY DIANNE STALLINGS
RUIDOSO NEWS STAFF WRITER

They're wonderful to watch from a distance, but Ruidoso's black bears aren't pets and shouldn't be fed by visitors or residents, say the staff of the New Mexico Game and Fish Department.

Despite tough prospects for natural sources of food because of the prolonged drought, game officials warned that feeding bears can lead to their deaths. Once they lose their fear of humans, they can be branded nuisances and have to be destroyed, as happened last month to one of 25 orphaned cubs given a second chance by the department.

The cub was released into the Gila National Forest in December as part of Operation Bear Den. The bear was destroyed after it appeared in an unsecured barn north of Glenwood and about 15 miles from where it was released. The barn contained some dog food and several empty dog food bags.

"It's unfortunate that the drought conditions that helped orphan these bears have continued this year," said Don MacCarter, chief of Public Affairs for the department. "But we didn't release these animals to become nuisance bears. We had hoped they would make it in the wild."

A lack of natural foods drove a record number of bears into human communities during the spring and summer of 2001. The orphaned bear cubs were restored to health at the Wildlife Center in Espanola, then released to artificial bear dens on the Gila and Carson national forests in December.

Although supplemental feeding may be an alternative for other species, several reasons dictate the policy of no bear feeding, game officials said. They include:

- Bears throughout northern New Mexico entered their dens in a weakened condition last fall and winter because of a lack of natural forage. Their acorn and berry crops nearly were eliminated by a late spring frost. Because emerging bears are emaciated and concentrating mostly on finding food, they represent an increased risk to anyone who encounters them.

- Once a bear finds food, it becomes territorial and may become more aggressive. Females with cubs attracted to food piles can be killed by large, dominant males.

- Bears are naturally adapted to times of drought and females do not give birth

It's fun to watch these black bears play around, but it's not a good idea to feed them.

Ruidosoans stock up on newest postage

BY DIANNE STALLINGS
RUIDOSO NEWS STAFF WRITER

On the first day of sales for the new 37-cent stamp, customers created Christmas time-like lines.

But Ruidoso Postmaster John Quemada said he ordered a half million of the new stamp, as well as 200,000, 3-cent stamps for those using leftover 34-cent stamps, and 20,000 post cards featuring Carlsbad Caverns.

"I think we'll have plenty for everyone," he said Tuesday. "We're a hub office. Another office can call us and we can help so they don't go without stamps."

"Yesterday we sold

50,000 of the new stamps and today I issued another 20,000. We have plenty."

The new stamp comes in two designs, the American flag and a commemorative that comes 20 to a page and features antique trucks and toys.

A clerk at the Ruidoso Downs Post Office described business there Monday as "brisk."

"We had a lot of people coming in to try to exchange rolls of stamps that weren't open and we sold a lot of 3-cent stamps," he said. "We told people about this more than a month ahead, but I guess some still ended up with the old stamps."

Engineer's worries not drying up

■ Bill Midkiff says that drought and growth are combining to wring out Ruidoso's water.

BY DIANNE STALLINGS
RUIDOSO NEWS STAFF WRITER

For engineer Bill Midkiff, preaching the gospel of sustainable water yield and the relationship among wells, streams and lakes drives him to public meetings and college classrooms.

He methodically reviews data he has collected for the past two years, along with anecdotal information from long-time residents, charting the disappearance of natural springs and the drying up of streams and wells.

In recent appearances before the Ruidoso Village Council and the Lincoln County Commission, Midkiff emphasized that taking a realistic approach to the problem of prolonged drought could help the council, developers and real estate agents find ways to ensure a sustainable yield from year to year.

"Ruidoso has the rights to water, but what is the right thing to do in a drought?" he asked.

Precipitation for the past three years has lagged behind historical averages, but to keep up with growth and consumption, it should increase each year, he said.

The cities of Santa Fe, Española and Las Vegas are in states of emergency — yet few places in the nation have ever tied new development to water availability, Midkiff said.

State Engineer Tom Turney has warned that groundwater supplies in Albuquerque and Santa Fe are not sustainable, that more water is being removed than can be replaced, Midkiff said. While reducing the number of trees and vegetation would play a positive role in making up for lost precipitation, the biggest impact is human consumption, he said, adding, "But as long as water flows from the tap, there are no visible symptoms."

Ruidoso wells on Eagle Creek were deepened because the water table dropped and the amount of water being pumped declined, he pointed out. That action violates the sustainable yield premise, he said.

As examples of how Ruidoso's demand for water affects residents outside the village, Midkiff said when exploratory wells on Eagle Creek were shut down by the village after neighbors complained about the effect on their domestic wells, production in residents' wells went back up in 72 hours.

Water pumped from Eagle Creek is transported to a filter plant and then is exported to Ruidoso, outside of the basin. The Alto Lakes Water Company also has wells on the all draining the resource before it reaches wells further down the line, he said. The pumping continues without regard to the environment and downstream users, one of which is Midkiff.

"If you can't see the flow, pretty soon there will be nothing to drink, in my opinion," Midkiff said.

Enough rain fell until last year for Eagle Creek to show some flow, but it's been dry for about two years, he said.

"Consumption clearly is exceeding the sustainable yield," Midkiff said. "If you keep doing the same thing, you'll keep getting the same answer."

The current approach "encourages development that gives us 30-year mortgages and 10-year wells," Midkiff said.

He urged village officials to stop pumping the wells at North Fork to allow the aquifer to fill up and surface water to start flowing again. The stream then could supply Alto Lake and saturate the stream bed, keeping old walnut trees along the shore alive, he said.

Len Stokes, a village water consultant, told village councilors at the meeting that he doesn't disagree the flows in Eagle Creek are diminishing.

After the turn of the century, every drop in Eagle Creek was appropriated by the railroad, he said. "If there's a tragedy, it's that (the village) and Capitan ever allowed other wells to be drilled, sucking it out from under us and we have to dig deeper."

"We're not the bad guys here."

The village acquired water rights long before anyone else lived there, he said. The drought also aggravated the situation.

"Developers sold lots and domestic wells went in," Stokes said.

The village actively is looking for answers by hiring one of the finest hydrologists in the state, he said.

"Ruidoso has the rights to water, but what is the right thing to do in a drought?"

OUR OPINION

The Fourth of July in a changing nation

Court rulings will rock our schools

When the nation celebrates its birthday tomorrow, it's worth taking note of the fact that ours isn't a static nation. We're doing things, like them or not.

Just last week, our judicial system did these things:

- The Supreme Court ruled that Ohio may issue school vouchers, giving parents taxpayer money to send their kids to private schools.

- The Supreme Court also ruled that public school students may be tested for drugs if they are engaged in any sort of extracurricular activities, not only in athletic programs.

• And a federal appeals court in California ruled that the pledge of allegiance to the nation's flag is unconstitutional. (In this instance, the uproar was so loud that the presiding judge delayed execution...perhaps before somebody executed him.)

Those Supreme Court rulings on constitutionality opened the door to arguments and turmoil in every state in the union, including New Mexico, for a long time to come.

Now, all together, "I pledge allegiance to the flag..."

What do re think of Newdow?

Tony Bennett left his heart in San Francisco. He should have left his brains. The Federal Appeals Court there could have used them.

Fires, drought, scalding temperatures, other common conversation topics around New Mexico evaporated like a sweat drop on a sidewalk the moment on June 26 the Appeals Court ruled unconstitutional the Pledge of Allegiance.

When the news flashed on Fox TV, the normally articulate anchor lady could accomplish little more than bewildered blabbering. She was astounded. So were most Americans.

One can only surmise the type of speculation behind closed doors that led to the ruling. You can almost hear one of the judges saying, "You know, when you think about it, this makes sense. The American people will welcome this concept."

That would rate in the annals of historical miscalculation with:

The Captain of the Titanic: Crank her up to 16 knots. A few submerged ice cubes ain't going to sink this baby."

Or Trail Scout to Custer: "This valley looks like a good place to set up camp, General. They'll never track us down here."

Or Osama Bin Laden: "Let's take out of a couple of their buildings in New York. The Americans are too soft to fight back."

Or Career Counselor to a young Bill Gates: "Son, this computer business is going nowhere. Forget that foolishness, get yourself a solid job selling typewriters, and a good woman, and settle down."

Sacramento is the home of California State Government, which can be wacky, and Mike Newdow, who is wacky. Newdow launched the challenge of the Pledge of Allegiance.

An overachiever, Newdow is both a lawyer and a doctor. We can do no better than radio show host Don Imus who suggests this is a fellow with way too much time on his hands who should sue himself for malpractice.

There are two ways to speculate on Mike Newdow's attempt to challenge the Pledge of Allegiance. One is to take him seriously as a constitutional scholar of sorts, protecting our way of life.

The second approach, one to which I subscribe, is that Newdow has a pathological need for attention, responds to voices only he can hear, dances to tunes whose melody only he can discern.

Consider this: Newdow is the founding minister of the First Amendment Church of True Science (FACTS). And he has more on his mind than ousting the Pledge. He also wants to change the English language.

In Newdow's dictionary, the words "he" and "she" would be replaced by the word "re," "His" and "hers" would become "rees," and "him" and "her" would become "erm."

Now, isn't this the type of fellow with whom you would like to waste away a lazy summer afternoon? Not really. Re is a jerk.

That explains Newdow, but what explains the federal judges who embarrassed themselves by ruling in his favor? No one knows. We do know liberal San Francisco is the center of widespread use of non-prescription drugs, and one can only wonder if some of that stuff did not make its way into the judges' chambers.

Ned Cantwell is a retired newspaperman living in Ruidoso. Many readers find erm, strange, also. He welcomes ideas at cantwell@zianet.com

LETTERS POLICY

The Ruidoso News encourages letters to the editor, especially about local topics and issues. Each letter must be signed and must include the writer's daytime telephone number and mail address. Shorter letters are preferred and generally receive greater readership. The Ruidoso News reserves the right to reject any letter. Longer by-lined "Guest Commentary" articles will be considered; call the editor at (505) 257-4001.

Letters may be delivered to the Ruidoso News office at 104 Park Avenue, mailed to P.O. Box 128, Ruidoso, NM 88355; faxed to 257-7053; or sent by e-mail to ruidosonews@zianet.com.

YOUR OPINION

Let's not be too quick with new fire defense rules

To the editor:

Thank you, Jo Perryman, for doing what most of us should have done! We were too apathetic, busy, tired or previously committed to be at the (Ruidoso village) council meeting (last week).

Fire safety is a major issue, and imposing rules and liens will not help. No one can control a wildfire; firemen will tell you that.

Most homeowners do not realize how these rules will affect them. Most homeowners do not even know what the rules will be.

Letters from the (village) should have been sent to all property owners, clarifying each issue and rule. Discussion of these rules is greatly needed.

There are many low-income seniors who own property and cannot or do not understand how these rules will affect them.

Property owners, wake up! No one who lives here wants a fire, but the forest which surrounds us is more of a danger than the little tree close to your house. If liens are put on houses because of landscaping rules, and taxes increased, what will happen to the small-income landowner? We will be forced out.

In speaking with friends in Colorado in very high danger zones next to the national forest, the officials from these zones never heard of landscaping rules to prevent fire. They have none for their town...

Oh, they do have a ban on chain-saw use right now; it seems they spark and start fires.

Let us not panic or be too quick to do something that will be a greater problem down the road.

Ever heard of Harvey Keck?

To the editor:

I wonder if anyone concerned about private property rights has ever heard of a man named Harvey Keck? No? Well, some years ago Harvey was a minor employee in the Planning and Zoning Department in San Bernardino County, Calif.

One morning, at a staff meeting, the head man asked if anyone had any new ideas on how to make things more difficult for private property owners. Harvey, off-handedly, suggested that anyone wanting to build a house also would be required to build a garage, regardless of whether or not they owned a car, or no permit would be issued!

For a minute or two, the entire staff sat in stunned silence due to the pure devilishness of the proposal. Then a burst of applause, shouts and whistles rocked the room. The proposal was immediately adopted.

The events of that memorable day spawned an organization known today as the "National Academy of the Arts and Science of Planning, Building and Zoning."

The purpose is to award the "Harvey" to the employee of any city, town or hamlet who has done the most to further restrict, hinder or harass private property owners.

Harvey Keck has since passed away, but his spirit will live forever in the hearts of officials, even in such a lovely place as Ruidoso.

AMERICAN ISSUES

Despite Supreme Court, school vouchers not legal in N.M.

BY CHARLES GOODMACHER

NEA-NM SOUTHEAST UNISERV CONSULTANT

The U.S. Supreme Court agreed last week to allow Ohio taxpayers to subsidize religious instruction and practice. This moves that debate to the New Mexico state legislature and it will surely be an issue in the Governor's race too. Politics aside, vouchers still won't be legal in New Mexico because they violate our State Constitution, including the anti-donation clause.

Just because vouchers may be legal in some circumstances doesn't make them a good idea. The National Education Association-New Mexico hopes that policymakers will turn toward educational issues, like teacher quality, class size, more parental involvement and high expectations for every child.

New Mexico has received high grades in standards and accountability, according to Education Week. More students are completing high school and there's a higher percentage going on to college.

NEA-NM president Eduardo Holguin says the good news must be considered with caution. "Until now our teaching force worked hard and got results. Increasingly, we can't compete in keeping these folks in the state. If we don't address basic problems such as salaries and recruitment, we can't assume there will be good news in the future. As an organization, NEA-NM believes it's critical to accelerate our efforts with all students. Quality schools begin with us because it takes highly trained professionals in each classroom to make a difference and get results as well as achieve success. We believe in working with other education partners to strengthen teacher preparation and professional development."

Ninety percent of American students attend public schools. Most parents don't want vouchers. They want to see efforts to improve the quality of schools their children attend.

Vouchers are a divisive and expensive diversion from continuing progress in these areas. Make no mistake, vouchers are not reform.

If policymakers want to act on the issues that parents care most about, they will address teacher quality, class size, making sure all schools have high expectations for every child, and providing the resources to help students succeed.

The Ruidoso Education Association, NEA-Hondo Valley and NEA-New Mexico will continue to fight for public schools and against vouchers at the ballot box and in the legislature. We will continue this fight in allegiance with the vast majority of American parents who want good schools in their communities. And we will continue this fight with the best interests of children foremost in our minds.

The NEA is the nation's largest professional employee organization, representing 2.7 million elementary and secondary teachers, college faculty, education support professionals, school administrators, retired educators, and students preparing to become teachers. NEA-New Mexico's Roswell office represents public education employees throughout Southeast New Mexico, including those of the Ruidoso and Hondo Valley public schools.

Welder cited for June fire

BY DIANNE STALLINGS
RUIDOSO NEWS STAFF WRITER

A Ruidoso Downs man pleaded no contest Monday to improper handling of fire in connection with a blaze last month that burned three acres off Sierra Blanca Airport Road.

Tory Irons was assessed a $500 fine, plus $51 in court costs, by Magistrate Judge Gerald Dean Jr. in Carrizozo. He was placed on 182 days of probation and was given six months to make restitution for fire fighting and related costs. No exact figure was attached to the order and may be determined by the district attorney, according to a court clerk.

Irons was cited by Lincoln County Deputy Sheriff Robert Shepperd, who is part of the area arson task force.

In the charging documents, Shepperd wrote that when he arrived at the scene of the fire, Irons told him he was welding a fence, a fire started and got away from him. Shepperd determined the cause to be welding slag, he stated in the report. He also determined that Irons didn't have adequate resources to suppress any fire that might have occurred from the welding or to prevent the spread of fire.

Fire fighters battled the flames for several hours with some staying on-site to ensure any embers were extinguished before they could flare up again. No one was injured and no structures were affected.

Two local companies get grants

■ Sherry Barrow Strategies and Blue Skies got help with their forest thinning ideas.

BY DIANNE STALLINGS
RUIDOSO NEWS STAFF WRITER

Sherry Barrow Strategies was awarded a $58,000 grant from the Four Corners Sustainable Forests Partnership toward purchase of equipment for more efficient handling of small-diameter wood.

With her husband, Barrow put together an operation in Glencoe that produces wood shavings for animal bedding using the small-diameter trees cut during community and private forest thinning to reduce the fire hazard and improve forest health.

Using a previous grant from Four Corners, the company developed the successful wood utilization model by introducing technology and practices for the production process, according to information from the Four Corners staff.

Hauling contractors in the area were unfamiliar with methods of handling small diameter wood. The addition of a sling loader on a fork lift purchased with the latest grant will substantially increase the amount of wood that can be handled.

Partners with Barrow include the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Forest Service, Lincoln County, the village of Ruidoso and the New Mexico Forestry Division.

Another $38,000 grant was awarded to Blue Skies of Ruidoso to buy a trailer with a grappler and an all-terrain vehicle to economically retrieve, transport and deliver small-diameter materials to small sawmills and wood yards in the area that are selling rough-cut lumber and firewood to the local market.

Barrow also can use whatever additional materials Blue Skies can deliver for the animal bedding product that is planned to be marketed nationwide.

Bart Parsons, Blue Skies owner, is predicting economic success for his company with the new equipment and the market he identified. Blue Skies partners on the project include the Forest Service, the village of Ruidoso, and Ruben Reyes, a forest thinning contractor.

The Ruidoso projects were among four selected by Four Corners to receive grants and to demonstrate forest restoration, community economic development and wildfire reduction. They have received about $206,000 in 2002 from the partnership.

Four Corners was formed four years ago by state foresters in New Mexico, Arizona, Colorado and Utah with the support of the U.S. Forest Service and many other organizations. Since then, grants funded by the federal government have been awarded to non-profit organizations, entrepreneurial and tribal enterprises in each of the four states.

More than $760,000 was awarded in 2002 for all four states while project sponsors provided matching funds of more than $363,000 for a total program of about $1.1 million this year.

The thrust of the program is to alleviate deteriorating forest health, declining forest-based economic activity in Four Corners communities and the increasingly severe wildfire hazards.

EDUCATION BRIEFS

What's happening with the collegians

Chelsey Stroud, a 2000 Ruidoso High School graduate, was named to the Dean's List for both the fall 2001 and spring 2002 semesters at Northern Arizona University in Flagstaff, Ariz.

Stroud, the daughter of Bill and Jaimie Stroud of Ruidoso, maintained a grand point average of 3.5 or above.

Ruidoso High School 1997 graduate Kelley Stroud graduated cum laude from Texas A&M University at Galveston on May 11. She received a bachelor of science degree in marine fisheries. In August, she will train with the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration in Long Island, N.Y. She is the daughter of Bill and Jaimie Stroud of Ruidoso.

Amanda Arrowsmith of Lincoln was named to the President's List at Mississippi College for the spring 2002 semester. Arrowsmith, daughter of Murray Arrowsmith, attended Captain High School and Eastern New Mexico

Arrowsmith

University-Ruidoso.

Texas-New Mexico Power Company recently awarded scholarships to high school seniors in its service area as part of its effort to support and encourage education.

Keren Colorado is the 2002 scholarship award recipient from Ruidoso, and may use the scholarship at the junior college, college or university of her choice.

A committee of TNP employees and community representatives based their choices on academic excellence, community involvement, work outside the school and special achievement.

The company also awards teacher mini-grants to assist K-8 classroom teachers in math, science and energy education.

SBE eyes priorities

SANTA FE — The executive committee of the New Mexico State Board of Education will meet July 16 from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. in Santa Fe to consider legislative priorities for the 2003 legislative session.

The meeting will be at the Division of Vocational Rehabilitation, 435 St. Michael's Drive, Building D, in the large conference room, according to a news release from the board.

Ruidoso's Parks & Rec people are looking for a few more kids

BY SANDY SUGGITT
RUIDOSO NEWS STAFF WRITER

Numbers are down for Wilderness Camp this year, said Parks & Recreation Department director Rafael Salas, but children are out there exploring nature on horseback, battling each other in inflated boats at Funtrackers and swimming and sliding. They've also gone canoeing and fishing at Grindstone Lake, and on other days take field trips to the library and Hubbard Museum, go bowling, and work on crafts at the White Mountain Elementary School gym.

Last week, 10 or 12 children participated, said camp coordinator Melanie Whittaker, down from an average of 15 to 25 children each week in past years. This means there's room for more children to join the summer fun, she said.

Five weeks remain for Wilderness Camp, which runs from noon to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday through Aug. 9 (there is no camp this week because of the July 4 holiday). The cost is $50 per child per week, which covers all activities. For information call the Parks & Recreation office at 257-5030.

Evan Boroyles, 6, found that his horse fitted him fine as he headed into the forest for a trail ride.

Ah, Wilderness!

Funtrackers provided a slightly urbanized wilderness adventure for these participants.

Trail riding was an appealing activity for the approximately one dozen youngsters who participated last week in the village's wilderness adventure program.

Five more of the weekly programs are on tap, and Parks & Rec would like to see a greater enrollment for each of the sessions. The fee is $50 per session, which includes all scheduled activities.

Gas royalty suit settlement adds to N.M. schools' coffers

SANTA FE — Public schools will receive almost $5 million in additional revenue in July as their share of a $30 million settlement of the state's lawsuit against BP America Production Company for additional royalties, which was announced by State Land Commissioner Ray Powell and Attorney General Patricia Madrid in May.

Proceeds from the settlement also will be distributed to other beneficiaries, which include universities, special schools and hospitals that serve children with physical, visual and auditory disabilities, among others.

Public schools statewide received the majority of the allocation, which was $4,936,483 in money distributed directly from the settlement. Almost $4.4 million will be deposited into the Land Grant Permanent Fund account for public schools.

Water reservoirs will receive more than $348,000 in money from the settlement. This is money that will be helpful if the drought in New Mexico continues. These funds are administered by the State Engineer and the Interstate Stream Commission.

This additional revenue, combined with money recovered since Powell launched oil royalty audits in 1993, amounts to nearly $50 million in royalty settlements with oil and gas companies.

BP (formerly known as Amoco Production Company) was one of four named defendants in a complaint for additional carbon dioxide royalties filed in August 2000 by the Attorney General's Office on behalf of the state land commissioner.

In all, 22 companies have settled with the State Land Office for oil and gas royalty settlements during Powell's administration.

Ruidoso student at NMSU tallies perfect 4.0 to lead graduates

BY SANDY SUGGITT

Morgan Switzer had the highest grades of her graduating class at New Mexico State University this May — 4.0 — but didn't receive special recognition because she'd transferred there for the last two years of her undergraduate degree.

"I had transferred from Abilene Christian, one year, and Eastern New Mexico University-Ruidoso, one year, with a 4.0 grade point average," she said.

Majoring in journalism/mass communications with a specialty in advertising, Switzer was the CEO or account executive of her Capstone Senior Project, which was to design an advertising campaign for Banc of America Investment Services. The Advertising Club then raised money for the National Student Advertising Competition in Denver, where it presented its campaign.

"I ran the class," Switzer said. "Public relations promotions, media scheduling; it took up the majority of my time during my senior year."

Her goals are financial independence and "to be successful at whatever I choose to do," she said. "And to get a dog."

Switzer grew up in Corpus Christi, Texas, and moved to Ruidoso three years ago. Now that she has her bachelor's degree, she's considering graduate school in communications at NMSU. Currently she's working part-time for her second summer at Alto Lakes Golf and Country Club, and continuing a business she started as a student — as an image consultant for BeautiControl, which sells skin care products and recruits other consultants.

"My family and I are really close, and they're important to me," she said. "I'd like to stay close to my family. If the makeup business goes well, I might do it full time."

Anyone interested in her products can e-mail her at switzer98@hotmail.com.

President rated 'most important' in World Almanac for Kids survey

NEW YORK — President George W. Bush was chosen as the most important person in the world today by kids, in the second "Kids Speak Out!" contest, sponsored by The World Almanac for Kids. Mom took the No. 2 spot, and Dad ranked third (sorry, Dads).

The events of Sept. 11, 2001, and kids' concern for safety showed up frequently in how kids responded to the contest question, "Who are the three most important people in the world today, and why?" Osama Bin Laden, Rudolph Giuliani, Vice President Dick Cheney, and Colin Powell — as well as firefighters, police, the U.S. military forces, and doctors and nurses — all appeared among the top choices.

The "Kids Speak Out!" contest was held for kids aged 6-14 and conducted between August 2001 and February 2002. To enter the contest, kids wrote in and described who they thought were the three most important people in the world. The World Almanac for Kids sponsored a similar contest two years earlier.

The winning entry came from Scott Skophammer, a 10-year-old 4th-grader from Fort Dodge, Iowa. He chose Nelson Mandela, Rudy Giuliani, and George W. Bush.

In his essay, Scott writes that "they all took disaster and are trying as members of a team to turn those disasters into something positive."

For creating the best entry, Scott and his family will be given an all-expense-paid trip to Washington, D.C.

Public servants, both U.S. and international political figures, and past U.S. presidents dominate the full list of important people. Authors, historical figures, cultural icons, and personal friends and family appear throughout the list.

And while sports stars and entertainers are well represented, they rank surprisingly low, just as they did in the previous contest (see complete results below).

For the second time, the President was the top vote getter in the "Kids Speak Out!" contest; however, this time President Bush was named by 69 percent of kids, while previously President Bill Clinton received only 30 percent of the vote. The events of Sept. 11 altered kids' perceptions as to who is important in their eyes — firefighters, police, military, and doctors and nurses didn't appear in the top 25 of the last contest. Not one athlete or astronaut made it in the top 25 this year, while Michael Jordan, Mia Hamm, Neil Armstrong, and John Glenn all made it into the top ranks in the previous contest.

God, ranked 6th this year, and teachers, ranked 5th, both became more important — they were previously 19 and 20. Rosa Parks and Martin Luther King Jr. both remained in the top 25, and Mom, with 25 percent of the votes, is still more important than Dad, who got 20 percent.

"Every adult knows that the world changed on Sept. 11. What I find interesting is that young kids seem to have a real sense of that as well. Their responses provide another measure of the magnitude of those events," said Kevin Seabrooke, editor of The World Almanac for Kids. "The president is a very concrete representative of government for kids, and he's one you would expect to see near the top. It's telling that names like Giuliani, Cheney, Powell — and even Bin Laden — also appear on the list."

"And this year, firefighters and police officers made the top 10. It's reassuring to see that kids still feel that family, teachers, and faith are important. Of course, they are kids after all, so you will find the likes of J.K. Rowling, Britney Spears, Michael Jordan, and Walt Disney on the list as well."

Kids from 46 states entered the contest. Entries also came from children in Canada, Bosnia, Croatia, Egypt, England, Japan, Nigeria, Malta, Malaysia, India, Pakistan, Philippines, Romania, Saudi Arabia, Slovenia, and Kuwait.

More than half of the entries were received via e-mail.

The contest was sponsored by The World Almanac for Kids, which is published annually by World Almanac Books. The completely revised and updated World Almanac for Kids 2003 will be in stores this month. The 2003 edition will sponsor a new "Kids Speak Out!" contest.

Details can be found in The World Almanac for Kids 2003 or on The World Almanac for Kids Online (<http://www.worldalmanackforkids.com>).

Village clerk replacement ready

BY DIANNE STALLINGS
RUIDOSO NEWS STAFF WRITER

When Tammie Maddox resigns as Ruidoso village clerk, Mayor Leon Eggleston is ready with her successor.

Irma Nava, who now is deputy clerk, is his choice for appointment to the position, Eggleston said last week during a village council meeting.

"I want to announce this to quell any rumors," he said.

Councilor Bob Sterchi applauded the selection, but said action should wait until Maddox successfully emerges from the general election. She won the Republican nomination in the primary and faces no Democratic opposition, but a candidate from a minority party still could run against her.

Village Attorney John Underwood said he is researching and seeking a second opinion on the village's stance in passing an ordinance declaring the village clerk and police chief classified employees. That move is contrary to state statutes, which define those positions as "at will" jobs, not requiring cause for firing. A mayor may nominate, but needs approval of the council to hire or fire, Underwood said.

In other action, councilors rezoned a tract of land owned by the village in the Grindstone area. The 12 acres were designated for an affordable housing project, but that appears to be on hold because the developer said the numbers won't float. The land was rezoned from single-family residential to residential planned unit development. The action doesn't obligate the council to move forward with the project.

The council also approved a wine wholesaler license to be used at Wines of New Mexico at 2801 Sudderth Drive, submitted by applicant Jessica Green.

Under the consent agenda, councilors approved:

- A special dispensers permit for the Swiss Chalet Inn Horse Shoe tournament July 26-27.
- A professional services contract with

Nancy Luna for DWI Prevention Program clerk in the magistrate court in Carrizozo and with Tennie Swanner for the DWI clerk in the magistrate court in Ruidoso; with Kathleen Freebird and Janet Norris for DWI Program assessments and recommendations to the court; and with The Counseling Center for DWI counseling services.

Norris and Freebird are paid $75 per scheduled client from fees charged to those clients. Luna will be paid for 10 hours a week and Swanner for up to 30 hours at a rate of $10 per hour.

- Approved the renewal of the annual agreement with the Humane Society of Lincoln County to provide humane care and kennel facilities for animals.

- Approved a second renewal agreement for professional services with Progressive Environmental Systems Inc. for services related to water.

- Approved a second renewal agreement with Mary Lea Lane as Arts Commission Coordinator.

■ William K. Smith was arrested for drug possession and being in the closed Lincoln National Forest.

RUIDOSO NEWS STAFF WRITER

One of the young people charged with starting the 8,650-acre Cree Fire in May 2000 was arrested June 29 for possession of marijuana and illegally being in a declared forest area on Upper Hideaway Loop.

William K. Smith, 19, of Ruidoso, had admitted to lighting up a cave by setting a branch on fire and then tossing the burning branch to the ground outside the cave. He was convicted and sentenced to a two-year probation term for negligent arson and making a false report to law enforcement officials. The blaze took a week to contain, at least 550 homes were evacuated and about $4 million was spent on fire control efforts.

Smith was arrested in June with Bruce Charles Kyle, 20, of Ruidoso, who was charged with wrongful use of public property (being on a declared forest area), possession of marijuana and drug paraphernalia and allowing self to be served alcohol; and Lashla T. Rue, 18, of Ruidoso, who was charged with wrongful use of public property and allowing self to be served alcohol.

RUIDOSO POLICE

Disorderly conduct

Ruidoso police arrested Erita Axilis Yahnahki, 51, of Mescalero, and Darrell Lee Wheeler, 52, of Mescalero, July 1, concerning an altercation at Chileo's Restaurant, 135 Highway 70. Yahnahki was charged with battery against a household member, and Wheeler was charged with disorderly conduct. Both were found intoxicated.

Bad driving

Myles C. Herrera, 29, of Ruidoso, was charged with the hit and run of three street signs, aggravated DWI, resisting arrest, no insurance on his vehicle, no license present, criminal damage and conduct offensive to public well being, after an accident June 29 at Highway 70 and Gavilan Canyon Road. A Ruidoso Downs police officer told Ruidoso police the suspect "backed off the poles and drove north on Gavilan Canyon Road." That officer followed him to Allsup's, 311 Sudderth Drive. The report states that Herrera became violent and was transported to Ruidoso Police Department for booking.

Game taken

A Sony PlayStation valued at $200, a game valued at $50 and a Sony controller valued at $50 were reported stolen from a residence in the 300 block of Canyon Road between 9 a.m. and 9 p.m. June 25.

Drug possession

Police cited Michael Otto Prochnau, 19, of Albuquerque, charging him with possession of one ounce or less of marijuana and possession of paraphernalia, after seeing him lying inside his van in the public parking lot at 113 Rio St.

Charcoal no-no

Bertha Dominguez, 51, of El Paso, Texas, was cited with improper handling of fire June 29 when police officers discovered she was using charcoal to cook, the report states.

Roof vandalized

Graffiti was drawn on a roof that had been sealed and was still wet in the 900 block of Carrizo Canyon Rd. between June 26 and 27. Somebody had used the brush and roller left on the roof and wrote in the wet sealant all over the roof, the report states. The old sealant has to be removed and sealant reapplied, costing an estimated $300.

Household battery

Police arrested Julia A. Sago, 37, of Ruidoso, June 27, charging her with assault on a household member and battery on a household member in the 200 block of West Street.

Chris Brubeck, a multi-instrumentalist, composer, arranger, lyricist and vocalist, demonstrates his extraordinary talents in an eclectic program of old blues classics and famous Dave Brubeck tunes. Brubeck is joined by harmonica king Peter "Madcat" Ruth and his basket-full of percussion instruments, and Joel Brown, a soaring blues and jazz improviser playing guitar with classical technique. Brubeck leads the marvelously versatile trio on trombone, piano, bass guitar and vocals - sometimes switching between instruments in the same song. The beauty of this group, say critics, is the collaboration of virtuosos performing a repertoire that defies all categories. Their genuine rapport on stage creates an infectious mood that is wry and wistful, a mood translated by rhythmic drive and exquisite musical inflections.

RUNNELS: Fire rules will work out

reasonable approach. I think the word got out that this is a long-term plan, not something we'll rush into and jump out and start stomping like we landed in a fire ant pile. We'll be methodical and reasonable and get this thing established and moving in a way so when Rick and I aren't here, it will function in a reasonable manner."

New construction is the main thrust, he said. Properly preparing a lot and choosing the right building materials and construction design can be handled when a person comes in for a building permit.

As for remodeling, a breakpoint already is set in the building code for when remodeling passes into a major structural overhaul and becomes new construction.

"But generally, the overlay zone (that will establish high-risk areas and impose stricter standards) isn't going to apply until a 400-square-foot threshold is passed," Runnels said. "That came from Boulder, Colo., and works for them. If it doesn't for us, we'll find one that does. So, the short answer is no, remodeling and an addition doesn't trigger a retrofit for the whole house."

Enforcement of the code will fall to different people, depending on the standards being addressed — construction will continue under the building inspectors already on board. Delaco and staff would handle forest fuels and landscaping.

"Where you are dealing with a need to thin for fire protection, that's where requirements and recommendations are important to adhere to," Runnels said. "Some others just pertain to general forest health issues. But the real thrust of these ordinances is fire protection."

"We care about our forests and want them to look good and to work with property owners, but fire protection is the real goal. The No. 1 threat to this community remains wildfire. That's just a fact we live with and a fact that we can do something about, fortunately."

The need to educate the general public on the meaning and implications of terms being tossed around by the Forest Task Force, which submitted recommendations for the ordinances, and village officials will fall to the public relations and information element of the forest management plan, he said.

"They're going to have to do a lot of public-awareness cam-paing," he said.

If perceived abuses of power occur among village staff handing down decisions on property owners' plans, the appeal process follows a chain — all without a filing fee for an appeal or grievance, Runnels said.

"People who come in for site development or zoning change pay a fee in the beginning, but there are no fees attached to this stuff," he said. "If someone has a problem, he can appeal first to me and see if we can work it out, or take it to planning and zoning and ultimately to the council — the last step is the court and that's always expensive. We're not in the mode to tell people to sue us. We've tried to be user friendly while still setting some standards that will make a difference."

"(This is) not something we'll rush into and jump out and start stomping like we landed in a fire ant pile."

Mike Runnels
Village planning director

officials recognize that many people come to the mountains to live in cabins.

"We can't change that," he said. "We can't tell them not to build them."

The code leaves some leeway to negotiate, he said. For instance, in high-hazard areas, exterior walls are to be constructed of materials with a minimum one-hour resistance to fire or be of noncombustible material, but an exception is heavy timber or logs.

"That's part of code," he pointed out. "Some places require enclosing decks from the ground up, but that's not practical here. People aren't going to do that, but I think when they look into the sky and smell the smoke, they see the effects of doing nothing."

The fuel management standards in the ordinances have three levels — requirements, recommendations and comments.

"In the zone from zero to 10 feet from a structure, the requirement is to remove all pine needles and flammable ground materials like dead leaves and stuff like that," Runnels said. "You remove all the ladder fuels. They're the limbs and small trees close to the ground that allow fire to climb into the crowns of trees."

"The standards also call for maintaining 10 feet between crowns of native trees or clumps of trees. Rick is recommending for this community that we go more to a clumping manner of dealing with fuel because it looks more natural, but you can do either one. It gives the property owner flexibility."

"Then you need to trim limbs that extend over the eaves of the roof and keep any branches 15 feet away from the chimney. It would not prevent you from having a tree next to the house, if you had trimmed it back. You don't necessarily have to cut it."

The next level is recommendations, steps a property owner can take if he wants to get more aggressive. Comments are written to give the owner an idea of where the forester is going and why. Everything is in consultation with the property owner.

"We're not going in handing everybody a cookie-cutter blueprint and saying here's what you have to do to your property," Runnels said. "Everybody's solution can be individualized."

The same approach works for all the other zones going from 10 to 30 feet from a structure, then from 30 to 60 feet and for lots of 2.5 acres or more.

The village has applied for a $100,000 grant from the Federal Emergency Management Agency to help with the cost of cleaning up its own rights-of-way — removing weeds, underbrush and some trees, Runnels said.

Lincoln County and Ruidoso are ahead of the curve in seeking cost-sharing money to help private property owners clean lots, Runnels pointed out. The county currently is working with the state Forestry Division to use a $600,000 grant for that purpose.

"They already are concentrating their efforts in the priority urban/wildland interface — on the perimeter of the village," Runnels said. "Our efforts will complement and create identified areas within the village."

Standards for larger tracts will be different than for a small lot, he said.

"We can't come up with arbitrary insurance standard like no trees within 100 feet of a house because there aren't that many large lots in the older sections of town," he said.

He acknowledged that the village and federal policy helped create the problem faced today by restricting tree cutting and preventive burning.

Critics blame environmentalists for blocking forest thinning, but groups like the Sierra Club have long advocated thinning, he said. They just don't like new logging roads and clear-cutting. A review showed that of 1,671 applications for thinning in 2001, only 20 were challenged and none ended up in litigation, Runnels said.

"The head of the forest service said the service had to take responsibility and not push it off on anybody else," he said. "The feds recognize that and have been pouring money in for cost-sharing programs with public and private entities to create fire breaks and to thin forests. They've committed millions long-term for the Lincoln National Forest to be a national demonstration project for the next 15 to 20 years.

"Forest practices were misguided for the last 100 years and now we're paying the price for that all over the West."

Ruidoso is the first community in the state to pass such ordinances, Runnels said.

"It's a fire safety issue — it's that simple," he said. "We have to do something. I sympathize with those doing new construction who find out they're going to have to do it a different way, but the plan gives flexibility. If you build a house on a beach in Florida, it has to be built to withstand 200 mph hurricane winds. In flooding zones, houses have to be on stilts. This is acknowledging we're in a fire zone and it will be with us for a while."

Church add-on nixed by board

Planning and Zoning commissioners side with neighbors along Hull Road

BY DIANNE STALLINGS
RUIDOSO NEWS STAFF WRITER

Officials with Shepherd of the Hills Lutheran Church can appeal or replat, but Tuesday, their plans for an outdoor pavilion, dining hall and four cabins on Hull Road were denied by the Ruidoso Planning and Zoning Commission.

After listening to two hours of testimony, about the same amount of time devoted to the petition at a meeting two weeks ago, members Phillis Barnett, Mike Reveley and chairman Glen Barrow voted to deny a conditional use permit for the proposed church retreat. Member Bill Hirschfeld abstained, saying that someone had questioned a possible conflict on his part because his wife was a founding member of the church.

Rev. O.E. Krohn, pastor emeritus, told commissioners that the primary goal of the retreat was to minister and nourish the spirits of those who may stay at the cabins. They want an outdoor sanctuary close to the church as part of that mission.

But Charles Rennick said the closest definition for what the church members proposed was a hotel or motel because the cabins would serve youth groups and others coming from out of town to enjoy recreational facilities and for conferences.

Reveley, after having Rennick read the requirements for granting a conditional use permit, pointed out that the board is directed to give weight to the wishes of surrounding neighbors.

The wishes of many of those owners were expressed at the first meeting, in a petition against the application submitted Tuesday and in letters sent to the commission.

They echoed statements by Linda Flack, a neighbor, who said people buying property next to a church never envisioned that a retreat with cabins would be part of the package.

Church member Mary Ann Schweers disagreed with the contention that property values might be adversely affected if the project goes through and said that the cabins could be used by the American Red Cross in case of disasters and evacuations. If the project is denied, the property purchased in 1993 might have to be sold, she said. Then someone could buy the land and put in multi-family units.

One resident said he would prefer that to a youth camp.

Reveley said that might solve the problem. The church could sell that valuable five-acre tract of land and buy other acreage that is more isolated.

But for now, the group can appeal the decision to the village council or could submit a replat of the property, making the outdoor pavilion part of the church and the other tract green space to be considered at a later date.

Rennick and Runnels assured members of the commission that the decision with three members voting to deny and one abstaining met the test, because it still constitutes a quorum of board members. A conditional use permit is required for church activity in any land use zone within the village.

BEARS: OK to watch, not to feed

when they enter dens in an emaciated condition. Supplemental feeding of bears can result in cubs being born in habitats that can't sustain additional animals. They typically suffer and starve to death.

• Making unnatural food sources available to bears may endanger human hikers or others who unknowingly surprise bears on food piles. It is against the law to create a public nuisance by feeding wildlife.

• By not attracting bears to your community, the number of dangerous situations often facing bears is reduced. People shoot guns to chase off bears. When that no longer scares the animal, they often shoot the bear.

Not feeding bears includes bear-proofing homes and properties, game officials said. They recommended:

- Store garbage in sturdy cans inside closed metal sheds or garages until the night before collection.
- Pets should be fed indoors and pet food stored in sturdy cans kept inside.
- Barbecue grills should be cleaned after every use and stored inside.
- Hummingbird feeders must be taken in at night. All bird seed should be consumed within a day.

• Woodpiles should be removed from houses, because they attract rodents, which are bear food.

• Compost piles will attract bears, especially if they contain melon rinds or other fragrant fruit.

• Beehives, chicken pens and other livestock should be kept away from a house. Protect them with electric fencing.

• Fruit trees should be planted away from homes and fruit be picked as it ripens. Those that fall to the ground should be removed.

Leadership Lincoln seeks participants

BY MELANIE SATTLER
RUIDOSO NEWS STAFF WRITER

The directors of Leadership Lincoln are developing a curriculum focused on creating a solid foundation of fun, energetic activities and sharp speakers. They aim to make the program self-sufficient within a year, funded by grants, contributions and tuition.

The program began this year as a Ruidoso Valley Chamber of Commerce initiative to educate and retain community leaders.

"It will encourage those people that are strong individuals to become more involved," said Brad Treptow, Leadership Lincoln treasurer.

With a projected 12 participants per year, at an annual tuition of $250 each, however, it will not cover its expenses. Leadership Lincoln is therefore seeking sponsors, companies whose own leaders see the importance of training involved citizens.

Employers like utility companies, municipalities, financial institutions and entertainment outlets might consider sponsoring one of their own employees with a scholarship, Treptow said.

In addition to providing scholarships, a sponsor can donate goods and services or cover the cost of a luncheon. For $500, a sponsor can underwrite a program session and participate in that session. And for $1,000, a "Founder" sponsor receives recognition in Leadership Lincoln printed material and an invitation to participate in a program session related to the sponsor's own field.

Participants will meet in nine all-day sessions from September through May, learning to network and promote teamwork within the community, to create a vision for the region, and to solicit resources for assistance.

Session topics will include health, education, government, arts and resource management.

Lincoln County and Mescalero residents interested in participating in Leadership Lincoln have until July 15 to apply. Applications are available at the Ruidoso Valley Chamber of Commerce, the Ruidoso News office, area financial institutions and utility companies.

LCMC awarded funds for communications

The Lincoln County Medical Center will receive $5,998 to improve its telecommunications system.

The award from the Rural Health Care Universal Service program was announced last week by U.S. Rep. Tom Udall, D-N.M. The 1996 Telecommunications Act established the grant program to provide services to rural health care providers.

"This award will allow the center to direct more of its funding to improving the health of many residents of Ruidoso," Udall said. "Rural health care practitioners offer an essential service to the many citizens who live in remote areas of our state. Their costs often are prohibitive to providing necessary health care services to New Mexicans in rural areas."

Tele-health is the use of electronic information and telecommunications technologies to support long-distance clinical health care, patient and professional health-related education, public health and health administration.

Technologies used in tele-health include video-conferencing, the Internet, store-and-forward imaging, streaming media, satellite and wireless communications.

They already exist, but are not yet part of the regular landscape for the nation's rural and urban underserved peoples, the congressman said.

The health care industry is about 15 years behind in the effective use of the technology, said Udall, who is the ranking member of the subcommittee of Rural Enterprises, Agriculture and Technology.

Trujillo to represent state at World Games

BY TODD FUQUA

RUIDOSO NEWS SPORTS EDITOR

For any Special Olympics athlete, just getting a chance to compete can be special.

But for one particular Ruidoso athlete, the chance to compete has become that much more special.

Ruidoso's Ernest Trujillo, who ran at the New Mexico Special Olympic games May 31-June 1, has been chosen to represent the United States at the World Games, to be held in Ireland in June 2003.

Trujillo, who ran 50-meter run, 100-meter run and 4x100 relay at the state games in Albuquerque and took the gold medal in the 100 meters, was chosen after filling out an application and being reviewed by the state's Special Olympic Committee.

The reviewing process was particularly difficult because Trujillo was up against 45 other runners from the state who met the same qualifications.

"We looked at the attributes and characteristics of that person," said Special Olympics spokesman Chris Page. "Will he represent the United States and New Mexico well? We felt that Ernest would."

"Will he represent the United States and New Mexico well? We felt that Ernest would."

Trujillo is one of only nine athletes from the state traveling to Ireland, and is the only one running track.

He'll travel to the U.S. Olympic Training Center in San Diego in October to develop a personal training regimen, and will take another trip in March to meet with his teammates from across the country.

"We have to have these conferences because we're no longer New Mexico, we're Team USA," Page said.

Page said the trip will be exciting and interesting for everyone involved, not just those that will be competing.

"That's been the coolest thing out of all this, to call everybody and let them know they're going," Page said. "There's tears, laughter, and a lot of people are just speechless. It's really exciting and there are so many unknowns for us, because none of us have been to Ireland, either."

"I think this will be the best World Games ever," he concluded.

Zia Derby qualifiers set for July 14

BY KRISTIAN LOVELACE AND TODD FUQUA
FOR THE RUIDOSO NEWS

Three divisions were run Friday to find out which horses would run in the $73,602-estimated Zia Derby set for July 14.

Chicks Goes Steppin posted the fastest qualifying time of 19.972 with jockey James Gonzales, II aboard. Chicks Goes Steppin, trained by Michael W. Joiner, won the second division for owners Mike Abraham, R.E. Grebe and Mary Erbert. Joiner also qualified A Major Hand, ridden by Tim Williams, who qualified in the time of 20.079 for owners B.G. Smith, Randy Eastburg and Leo Labarge.

Rabbits Jet qualified with the second fastest time of 20.055 with jockey Bobby D. Harmon aboard. Rabbits Jet is trained by Timothy W. Cross and is owned by James T. Lewter.

Jockey Juan Vasquez qualified Majorlee Exclusive, Scariest, and Time For Aces in 20.290, 20.291, and 20.382 respectively. Majorlee Exclusive, trained by Jack W. Brooks, qualified for owner Oil & Hay Partners. Scariest, owned by Molly B. Morris, was the eighth fastest qualifier for trainer Roy L. Marcom, Jr. Time For Aces, the ninth fastest qualifier, qualified for trainer Carroll R. Hopper and owner Rose Webb.

Miss Perfect Ink qualified in the time of 20.301 for owner/trainer Charles W. Harper. Larry Gamble rode Miss Perfect Ink in the trials. Forced To Fly, ridden by Carlos Madiera, qualified for trainer Fred I. Danley and owner Pat G. Sorrells. Forced To Fly qualified in the time of 20.382.

Rounding out the qualifying list is Indy Bud Bob and Another Talker. Indy Bud Bob qualified in the time of 20.2151 with jockey Toney Swan aboard. Indy Bud Bob is trained by Patrick E. Swan and is owned by Circle S Enterprises. Another Talker qualified in the time of 20.251 with jockey Christopher Zamora aboard and is trained by Jim R. Clemmons and is owned by Jim R. Clemmons and John Clemmons-Lessor.

Señor and Señorita Futurities

The Rio Grande Señor and Señorita Thoroughbred Futurities will be the Fred I. Danley show, judging from the sheer number of horses the trainer was able to qualify for the two July 14 races.

Danley saw Shemoveslikeaghost, ridden by Jorge Bourdieu, qualify with the fastest time of 1:03.40 for the Señorita, and qualified seven horses in all — three in the Señorita and four in the Señor. Shemoveslikeaghost owner W.T. Stradley also had a big day, as he also owns Gulchrussweet and is a part owner with Tom A. Williams of Tornados Jack and Fancyman Jack. Those three colts — all trained by Danley — are qualified in the Señor.

Quote This, ridden by Zamora and trained by M. Dolley Guinn, turned in the fastest time for the Señor trials with a 1:05.20.

Smokey Bear Stampede starts today in Capitan

■ Rodeo, dancing, fireworks and barbecue to highlight Independence Day weekend.

BY TODD FUQUA
RUIDOSO NEWS SPORTS EDITOR

Depending on who you talk to, the 47th annual Smokey Bear Stampede, starting today at the Lincoln County fairgrounds in Capitan, is either the largest amateur rodeo in the state or in the southwest.

However you look at it, the rodeo is big.

From today through Saturday, about 200 entrants from New Mexico, Texas, Arizona and Colorado will try their hand in competing in seven events: bareback, bull riding, saddle bronc, calf roping, ladies breakaway roping, barrel racing and team roping.

All proceeds from the gate — $5 per person — as well as proceeds from the barbecue and dances, will go toward improvements to the fairgrounds and to fund the Lincoln County Fair, to be held Aug. 5-10.

Entry fees for the rodeo, from $50-$120 per event, will be used for prize money.

Besides the actual competition, those attending will also be treated to a show by famed rodeo cowboy Bob Weir and his Weirmobile, who will banter with announcer Skeebie Norris during slower periods of the rodeo.

On July 4th, the rodeo queen will be crowned shortly after the grand entry, and the fireworks display will take place just before the final bull riding performance of the night — fireworks before the fireworks.

In addition to the regular rodeo, there will also be a ranch rodeo Friday and Saturday. Like the Lincoln County Ranch Rodeo held May 25 at the fairgrounds, this event will feature real ranch hands performing actual tasks needed in their job.

All events — team penning, team branding, team tying, horse catching and wild cow milking — will be timed.

There will also be a youth timed roping event for ages 13-15 and 16-17, as well as steer roping.

Also, for the really little kids ages 10 and under, there will be a calf scramble during each day of the Smokey Bear Stampede — with Smokey Bear himself handing out buckles for prizes.

Ruidoso teams fare badly in district play

Two local teams are done, now there's just one left. The Sierra Blanca 9 and 10-year-old and Junior division teams played in Dexter and Roswell this past weekend during the District 2 tournaments, only to see their season end in the double-elimination tournament after just two games each.

The 9 and 10-year-olds, playing at Hal Bogle Field in Dexter, dropped their first game to Artesia June 28, then faced Tularosa in the losers bracket June 30. They lost that game to bring their year to a close.

For the juniors, it was much the same situation. Sierra Blanca dropped their opening game to Alamogordo in Roswell June 28, then fell to Lions Honda 15-3 in the losers bracket. There is still one local team left in upcoming Little League action.

PSYCHIC PREDICTIONS

Judith L. Christopher

Week of July 3 - July 9

CANCER:
(Jun. 21 - Jul 22)
Change is in the Air, Water, and Earth too! Look around at all the beautiful Things and People that you take for granted. Don't let it pass you by.

SCORPIO:  (Oct 23 - Nov 21)
Your temper could set you back, not only time, but could cost you money. Don't give in, by giving up. Take the time to check things out first.

PISCES:
(Feb 19 - Mar 20)
Don't work all the time, with no play. Your mind will work overtime for a while until you decide to do what needs to be done right the first time.

LEO:
(Jul 23 - Aug 22)
Something new is just around the corner, take your time and make sure what you're doing is what you really want to do for the rest of your life. Think.

SAGITTARIUS:
(Nov 22 - Dec 21)
Don't let a little rut trip you up, while you're looking at the Mountain that you're afraid to climb. Fear can do a lot of damage by just thinking about it.

ARIES:
(Mar 21 - Apr 19)
A nice surprise is waiting for you! Open your heart up and receive the love you have waited for a life time. Start to love yourself first. Love is here.

VRGO:
(Aug 23 - Sep 22)
Someone close to you may need your help, and you don't even know it. Watch for signs. Take a good look at what you're doing before it's too late.

CAPRICORN:
(Dec 22 - Jan 19)
You'll have a choice to do what you think is right, or what someone else thinks is right. You will have to live with yourself longer than living with the world.

TAURUS:
(Apr 20 - May 20)

What do you really want? Don't say something to someone to make them happy. Tell the truth so you won't have to remember what you said.

TAURUS

LIBRA:
(Sept 23 - Oct 22)
You might not think that someone really cares by the way they are acting.
Sometimes people act like they want to be treated.
Give with lots of Love.

AQUARIUS:
(Jan 20 - Feb 18)

The way to double your money is to fold it in half, and put it back in your pocket! When you have to spend your money, think twice. Double up.

GEMINI:
(May 21 - Jun 20)
Life is too short to be unhappy. Remember you were looking for a job when you found this one. Look inside of yourself to find real happiness.
