State engineer nixes water rights transfer

BY DIANNE STALLINGS

The failed effort to transfer more than 260 acre-feet of water for use by The Hideout of Lincoln County could be appealed to state district court

A transfer of water rights sought by the developer of the Hideout of Lincoln County Golf Course was denied Tuesday by State Engineer Tom Turney.

He issued an order rejecting five separate applications to transfer a total of 260,825 acre-feet of water per year to wells located at the project site for golf course irrigation.

One acre-foot equals 325,851 gallons of water

The Hideout is being developed by R.D. Hubbard, owner of the Ruidoso Downs Race Track and Billy the Kid Casino.

Hubbard could appeal the decision to district court, but Turney said he has been told negotiations continue with the city of Alamogordo to obtain the water from Bonito Lake as an alternative.

Ed Burger, president of Hubbard Enterprises, said, "We are obviously disappointed with the ruling, but we just recently received a copy and our experts haven't had a chance to go through it, so we have no reaction as to what the next course of action will be until that takes place."

The decision follows the recommendation of hearing officer Fred Allen, although Turney said he reviewed all of the information submitted by the parties on both sides.

"The weight of the evidence presented showed that pumping 260,825 acre-feet per year from the golf course project wells would result in significant drawdown in the water columns in the nearby wells, with 18 wells going dry after 10 years of pumping and 41 wells going dry after 40 years of pumping," Turney said.

"Granting of the application would have impaired existing water rights."

TAKE the OATH

BY DIANNE STALLINGS

Friends and family of winners in the Mescalero Apache general election last week gathered Friday to watch the new tribal officials take their oaths of office.

What they heard from nearly each person was a call for unity.

Only two of those sworn in — Ray Kirgan, who previously served, and Michaelene Ahidley, president of the Mescalero School Board — are new to the existing council. President Sara Misquez was re-elected, as were council members Greg Mendez and Sandra Platero.

Misquez apologized for a delay of several hours in the ceremony as the council with outgoing members cleaned up last minute business. She said the time between the election and the swearing in was too short to arrange a more formal setting for the occasion. She added that a low-key approach was deemed appropriate because of a recent death of a member of the Shanta family.

Her short message centered on her hope to reunite tribal members.

Fernis Palmer, tribal administrator who won the position of vice president, spoke mostly in Apache and touched on the need for more housing. Twice he said, "We need to re-educate ourselves to work together," and spoke of the need for a democratic government and meetings.

County to look at water rules for subdivisions

RELATED STORY, PAGE 3A

BY DIANNE STALLINGS

Lincoln County Planning Commissioners agreed last week to recommend again that developers of new subdivisions with 100 or more lots be required to install a community water system.

The recommendation previously was rejected by the county commission, as was a prior suggestion of 50 lots as the trigger to switch from individual domestic wells to a water system.

County Attorney Alan Morel said at the time of the previous rejections, county commissioners were hoping for a hydrological study.

"We had a federal agency that was going to help us out," he said. "We applied for some money from the state and put $60,000 in county money aside. So far we still have that, but the state didn't come through with any money and the federal agency ran out of money."

County commissioners asked planners to take another look, "so that they can address it pending a water study," Morel said.

"I want to make it clear that this board sent dual recommendations to the county commission," said Planning Chairman Charles Rennick. "The first was to team up on a water model with the U.S. Geological Survey and that's been about a year and a half ago and it would have been done by now if the commission had acted on it."

"Second, this (board) recommended that while that was being done, let's change the ordinance to put some limits on (the number of lots without a community water system) and they rejected that as well. So this (board) has sent both of those recommendations previously."

Morel said county commissioners were hoping to obtain actual data to support an exact number.

"Now that we know that data is not coming any time soon, they want to put a number in there until we get data that says we actually have a water shortage or don't," he said.

"We had a federal agency that was going to help us out."

The DWI Prevention Program is closed at least for this week, pending a complete turnover of the staff.

The positions of DWI coordinator, prevention specialist and secretary-compliance monitor, formerly filled by independent contractors, have been filled by Ruidoso village employees.

Barbara Reyes, who had been coordinator of the program since March of 1999, applied for her position, but was not rehired. Kim Miller, whose contract as secretary/compliance monitor ran out Jan. 11, also was not rehired.

Ruidoso Police Chief Lanny Maddox, supervisor of the program, said the office is closed for a week "until we get the new people on board."

"We wanted people with administrative expertise and professionalism," Maddox said. "I think the people we selected will bring that to this program. I'm not saying the program did not have that before."

Maddox said he made the recommendations for the hires, these were confirmed by the city manager and Debbie Rogge of the Human Relations Department made the job offers.

There will be no downtime on court monitoring, which is done by contractual personnel, he said, and a representative from the Department of Finance Administration, which oversees the program, will be over to assist the new people.

Reyes, whose contract ended Jan. 10, had scheduled a substance abuse educational program at the DWI office for about 35 clients of the court system

Jan. 12. Miller called as many of them as she could but couldn't get them all, she said.

"It wouldn't have been too difficult to have negotiated a few more days to allow me to deliver the substance abuse educational program that was planned," Reyes said. "In our original discussions we were told there would be extensions to our contracts to allow us to complete things."

Proposal would require developers to bring more water to subdivisions

NEWS STAFF WRITER

A proposed change to Lincoln County's subdivision regulations would give county commissioners the right to hold developers to a higher water availability standard, even when the amount is approved by the state engineer.

The county planning commission last week decided to recommend that to county commissioners, who are scheduled to consider the change and others during the next portion of their meeting on Tuesday. The session starts at 8 a.m. in the county courthouse in Carrizozo.

County Attorney Alan Morel told the planning board that current language says a minimum of one acre-foot of water per tract is required, "unless" the state engineer decides a lower amount is acceptable based on a hydrological study.

The state engineer will accept .21 acre feet, Morel said, adding that's not a lot of water - about 60,000 gallons per year per house. An acre foot of water equals 325,851 gallons.

He proposed cutting the sentence about the state engineer to ensure the county commission has the final say, but he noted that most other counties also have the sentence in their subdivision ordinances.

The state engineer uses different formulas for full-time and part-time residents, planning chairman Charles Rennick pointed out. It's dangerous to figure part-time needs when a home the next year could be occupied full time, he said.

"If you do that, we may end up in 20 years with an entirely different demographic group and no water," Rennick said.

Morel said because interpretations could vary, he wanted to ensure commissioners retain final authority. If the sentence isn't cut, he suggested adding a line that any figure proposed by the state engineer is subject to commission approval.

Board members voted 5-2 to eliminate the reference to the state engineer. Rennick and member Maury St. John voted against it.

Speaking Tuesday, Rennick said the half acre-foot requirement has been in place for more than two years without complaint.

Neighborhoods to be without water Tuesday

Valve replacement will cause the outage.

Residents in a section of Country Club Addition, White Mountain Drive and Lower Hull Road in Ruidoso had better not plan on showers or doing their laundry early Tuesday.

Water service will be interrupted for about three hours so workers can replace valves.

Officials with New Mexico Underground, the contractor on the project for the village, sent out notices that the water will be off from 9 a.m. to noon.

The shutdown will affect Country Club Addition, Farley's and areas of White Mountain Drive to Del Norte, Lower Hull Road, Cree Meadows Heights, Morgan and Hansen Drives and part of Innsbrook Village.

For more information, contact the company at (505) 877-2300 or the village water department at 257-2386.

TER: State engineer denies transfer for Hideout development

Applications, filed by Elk LLC, Cristobal B. J. Robert Beauvais, & Veronica Gutierrez Enterprises were the subject of an administrative hearing on May 24.

During the six-day hearing, testimony and documentation on the impact of the application was presented by the staff of the Rights Division of the Office of State Engineer, and entities and individuals who were concerned about the impact of the proposed transfer.

In a prepared statement on behalf of the Rio Bonito Preserve, one of the non-profit groups that opposed the transfers of rights from the Rio Bonito and Hondo River upstream to walls, Reginald Richey said members were pleased by the ruling.

The residents "believe that the protection and conservation of Lincoln County's rivers and water resources are critical issues and that they must be protected through policy and responsible management of those limited resources," he said.

"We are grateful to the State Engineer's Office for that protection. Their willingness to preserve and administer New Mexico's water law in a fair and thorough manner gives us hope for the future."

Ron Aguayo from Ranches

of Sonterra said the successful protest was an effort of a coalition that included his subdivision's property owners association, the Rio Bonito group and other individuals.

Also opposing the transfers were the village of Capitan and the Roswell office of the Bureau of Land Management.

The county doesn't have zoning and has no regulations to govern golf courses that are not developed as part of a subdivision.

She pledged to finish projects the council started for the tribe.

Greg Mendez, who drew the most votes for a council seat, said the show of support meant a great deal to him. The past two years were a learning curve for him and now he has some experience behind him to move forward, Mendez said.

He receives a lot of requests for help, but the council must be careful to abide by the Mescalero Constitution, Mendez said.

He hopes to improve communication with tribal members through open council meetings and general tribal meetings, he said.

"We need to work for you," he said, adding that he looks forward to working with the new council members and putting aside differences.

RUIDOSO POLICE

Minors cited

The Lincoln County Sheriff's Office called Ruidoso police Jan. 8 stating that occupants of a vehicle on Mechem Drive "were throwing beer cans out of the vehicle at other motorists."

A Ruidoso police officer stopped the vehicle at Mechem and Lucille drives after noticing that the front-seat passenger was not wearing a seatbelt. The officer noticed an open can of beer on the floorboard of the vehicle and then a 30-pack box of beer.

He cited Cody Chico, 19, of Mescalero for not wearing a seat belt, and cited Chico and Ortega F. Hansen, 18, and Frank M. Gonzalez, 20, also of Mescalero, for being minors allowing themselves to be served alcohol.

Police also cited Shawn M. Adams, 21, of San Angelo, Texas with disorderly conduct, and Jordan T. Pool, 19 of Muleshoe, Texas, James D. Robinson, 18, of San Angelo, and Moises Garcia, 20, of Muleshoe, with being minors allowing themselves to be served alcohol.

Home burglarized

Police reported that a vacation home in the 100 block of Fern Trail had been broken into some time before Jan. 9.

The sliding glass bathroom window was broken and a footprint was found on an outside door of the residence where it appeared someone had tried to kick the door open.

Nothing appeared to have been stolen, the report states.

Fight ends in citations

Ruidoso police responded to a call at 2:19 a.m. Jan. 8 at the Sitzmark Chalet, 627 Sudderth Drive, about a fight in progress and cited Robert E. Downs, 33, of Dallas, Texas with battery.

Cabin damaged

The corner of a Cro's Nest cabin, 143 Upper Terrace Drive, was damaged between Jan. 7 and 8.

Police said it appeared a vehicle had hit it, causing about $500 of damage to the brick base of the structure.

Protect Your Right To Know
The Actions of Your Government

How important are public notices in newspapers?

As your newspaper looks to the future and toward continuing to provide the essential information that local citizens need in a timely fashion, it is appropriate to review the concept of Public Notice in newspapers. This concept is based on two fundamental principles:

- > First, in a Democracy, the Public has an absolute right to know the actions of its government.
- > Second, a Democracy is a system of checks and balances in which it is inappropriate to rely on the government to be the exclusive printer, repository and gatekeeper of information.

Government has a duty to make information accessible to the entire community in a place where the Public seeks and expects to find community news. Independent publication of Public Notice is essential to maintain the trust of the people.

A newspaper is a historical record that cannot be altered, is absolutely secure, and provides information that is essential to an informed citizenry. Newspapers, therefore, are the best and only way of ensuring an informed Public and to help guarantee government conducts its business openly.

Challenges to Legislative requirements for publication of notices in newspapers have become common in recent years.

With the Public's support, New Mexico newspapers will continue to provide this essential component of our democracy.

Law enforcement can't be selective

Safety has to come before commerce.

Ruidoso's police officers wrote 99 traffic citations, mostly for speeding, during the weekend after New Year's Day — on the face of it, a measure of excellent enforcement to assure safe driving on a busy weekend.

But a couple of Ruidoso village councilors didn't like that, and said as much at last week's village council meeting.

They thought writing tickets wasn't very hospitable; that our winter visitors should have been given warnings, not citations, because — as one of them said — "some of these people are coming to town for the first time and we don't want to run them off."

The same councilor said parking police cars in plain sight would do to slow drivers down. (Not so, said the cops.)

Another said use of portable radar signs outside the village limits would help.

Police Chief Lanny Maddox, appropriately, defended his officers with numbers: The average speed clocked for ticketed drivers was 61.8 mph on streets with a speed limit of 35 mph or less.

That is serious business. People have died under such circumstances — in Lubbock and Juarez and Ruidoso.

A council majority can make the rules in the village, but if we were refereeing this particular game, it would be point, set and match to the cops.

Scientific research succumbs to vested interests

LOS ANGELES — Objective scientific research, often used as the basis for policy decisions, is increasingly under attack by vested interests attempting to control the outcome or impact of research, reports the January issue of the American Journal of Public Health.

The peer-reviewed article, "Attacks on Science: The Risks to Evidence-Based Research," illustrates the real threats to objective scientific pursuits and the impact on society through a variety of case studies. The paper describes how special-interest groups have influenced policies related to needle exchange programs for the prevention of HIV, ergonomics and mammograms for breast cancer screening.

"This trend of meddling with science to achieve predetermined outcomes has serious implications for researchers at academic institutions and government agencies as well as for the public at large," said Dr. Linda Rosenstock, principal author and dean of the UCLA School of Public Health. "We would like to think that the science used to make decisions that affect all of our lives is pure — unfortunately, that is increasingly not the case."

Although growing more sophisticated and complex, attacks on science are not new.

To save his life, Galileo was forced to publicly renounce his belief that the sun, not the earth, was the center of the universe. Today, a variety of tactics including economic manipulation, delay, hidden identities and harassment are used to undermine sound science to achieve a desired end. Examples include:

• A National Cancer Institute consensus panel concluded that the science was inadequate to support mammography for routine screening for breast cancer in women aged 40-49 years. Yet, in response to external pressure from a variety of vested interest groups with financial and emotional commitments to screening, the science was revisited and repackaged, resulting in the recommendation that women in their 40s be screened every one to two years.

• Since 1995 the heavily lobbied Congress proposed or passed ergonomics riders to the Occupational Safety and Health Administration appropriations, prohibiting or delaying work on the development of an ergonomics standard.

• Congress also required that the National Academy of Sciences twice validate an ergonomics study by the National Institute for Occupational Safety and Health, providing enough of a delay for the Bush administration to withdraw the just finalized ergonomics standard promulgated in the last weeks of the Clinton administration.

• Despite clear evidence that needle exchange programs reduce cases of HIV and do not increase drug use, emotional and ideological vested interests influenced a 1998 White House decision not to fund needle exchange programs.

The authors note that between 1965 and 1995 the proportion of federal funding of health research and development dropped by almost half, to 34 percent, while industry's financial support increased more than two-fold to 52 percent of the total $55.8 billion expended. Moreover, nearly 12 percent of research funds to academic institutions now come from the corporate sector.

The authors suggest that to ensure the appropriate use of scientific evidence and the protection of the scientists who provide it, institutions and individuals must give deferential response to honest scientific challenges versus those from evident vested interests.

YOUR OPINION

'Lightening up' on speeding tickets

To the editor:

I'm writing concerning the front page article where our city councilors, especially Ron Anderson, urge the "police to lighten up on speeding visitors." Has the world gone totally insane, or just our councilors?

What idiocy to suggest that tourist won't be inclined to visit our fair town because they either have gotten, or might get, a speeding ticket while in Ruidoso. Does this train of thought, or lack of it, stop only at speeding? Why don't we also let visitors get off with just a citation for robbery, rape, or murder? Where would one draw the line? Isn't the law the law for one and all? According to our councilors, it might sour the visitors' trip to Ruidoso if we ask them to obey the laws of the land, and god only knows we wouldn't want to miss out on a single dollar the out-of-towners might bring our way, now would we? I wonder what our illustrious city councilors will say when one of these "speeding visitors" causes a major wreck, killing one, or several, of our full-time residents?

Will they still insist on just a citation? I was taught by my parents that if you break the law, you pay the consequences.

Herb Armstrong
Ruidoso

A vote reminder

To the editor:

The names of councilors Anderson and Chance now have a prominent place on my refrigerator. Their names are right below the words, "Do Not Vote For." Visitors to our village are expected to obey all our laws as we are expected to obey the laws in towns we visit. Keep up the good work, Chief Maddox.

Against drug abuse

To the editor:

Someone out there has to be awake! Surely you can see that Gov. (Gary) Johnson is against drug abuse, not for drug abuse regarding his drug policies. How about us getting out of the stone-age drug war, and do something that works?

Did you know that approximately 65 percent of the federal prison population are non-violent drug law offenders. State statistics follow not far behind. If you care about what's not working vs. what will work, hear this! The Drug War is not! Your tax dollars go down a political drain that allows an overcrowded court system, and jails and prisons that literally burst at the seams. Where is the wisdom in all this?

In reality, the war against drugs has become the war against the poor. If you don't believe this, check out the state and federal court systems and prisons. The little fish fry, big fish seldom do. While this is going on, you the taxpayer shell out $43 million per year (N.M.) for something that doesn't work. Then at the federal end of the drug war, the taxpayer is being soaked to the tune of a $50 billion figure.

But, gee whiz! If long-term drug rehab works (at less cost) rather than criminal incarceration, then local law enforcement agencies would not be allotted all those millions and underground economies would be stifled, you the taxpayer would be putting your money to better use. Or could it be, OOPS, a few ounces of marijuana isn't packaged in a Jim Beam bottle!

God bless those who want the truth about the drug war, and God bless Governor Johnson. I, for one, want a change. If you do, contract your representatives to this effect!

Maligning Senator Campos

To the editor:

The comments in the editorial in the Jan. 9 issue of the Ruidoso News maligning state Sen. Pete Campos, Democrat from Las Vegas, and showed the writer's lack of knowledge about Lincoln County.

Hurrah that Senator Campos is among the senate leadership in the state Legislature in Santa Fe!

Over the nearly 10 years Senator Campos has represented District 8 (which includes all of Lincoln County) he has obtained millions of dollars (in) appropriations for projects of our Lincoln County school districts, municipalities, quasi-governmental groups and this county.

To imply Senator Campos does not care about the citizens of this county because he did not attend a 9 a.m. meeting in Carrizozo is unfair and untrue.

State Sen. Dianna Duran, a Republican who lives in Tularosa, also did not attend the meeting with local government and quasi-government officials.

Tularosa to Carrizozo is 47 miles; Las Vegas to Carrizozo is about 250 miles.

Weather conditions north of Lincoln County on Jan. 3 were not so great, especially if one had to leave Las Vegas by 6 a.m. at the latest to arrive in Carrizozo by 9 a.m.

The Jan. 3 "wish list" A legislative meeting arranged by Southeastern New Mexico Economic Development District/Council of Governments whose director, Tony Elias, presided over the meeting, was for the convenience of those local requesters. Each group had packets of information to be provided to legislators. And some of the invited local governing entities did not attend or send representatives to submit requests.

In all fairness, Senators Campos and Duran work full-time jobs. Rep. Dub Williams, who attended the meeting, is retired. Also, Senator Campos is on the Legislative Finance Committee that is already at work in Santa Fe. Vehicle travel is the most time-consuming part of representing and meeting with the constituents of the enormously huge rural senate and representative districts in this state.

To judge the effectiveness of an elected official based on attendance at a "pork barrel wish list" meeting is not only unfair, it shows the writer of the editorial ... knows very little about the last 10 years of Lincoln County history.

...As for "pork barrel," too bad the governor vetoed the $237 million worth of ... bricks and mortar projects last year. Those projects would have been real investments ... all funded while the oil and gas taxes were good, and no one was intimidated about the squeeze of federal dollars on state programs.

Equity of financing

New Mexico is rated as one of three top states in the country for the equity of its system of financing public education by Quality Counts 2002, an Education Week/Pew Charitable Trusts report on education in the 50 states and the District of Columbia.

New Mexico received a grade of B-plus in the area of "Resources: Equity," placing third nationally and joining Hawaii, Utah, Nevada and Florida in the top five. This year's rating compares to a grade of B last year, when the state placed fourth nationally.

The state received a B in "Standards and Accountability," and a C for "Improving Teacher Quality," an increase from a grade of D last year. New Mexico is among 15 states requiring and at least partially subsidizing teacher induction programs.

In the area of "Resources: Adequacy," New Mexico received a C for how it distributes its spending for all students.

The report noted that New Mexico is one of 13 states and the District of Columbia to require children to attend kindergarten. The state began funding optional full-day kindergarten programs in 2000.

Cody Small is taking steps toward a career in the food service industry by taking a new professional-cooking class at Ruidoso High School.

Small, a sophomore, said he's learning how to do all kinds of cooking and to operate a restaurant, and he may go on to the TVI Culinary School in Albuquerque, where this class may count toward a professional culinary certificate.

This is the first time the ProStart Foodservice School-to-Career class has been offered in Ruidoso. It includes academic classroom work and internships in local restaurants. Teacher Julie Rigsby said some students are already working in food service establishments, but most of the internships will be done this semester.

The curriculum was developed by The Educational Foundation of the National Restaurant Association, with guidance from educators and representatives of the food service industry. Students will receive a nationally recognized certificate after completing the year, she said.

"There are so many different opportunities for young people in the food service industry," Rigsby said. "The ProStart program will help us prepare students for those opportunities and establish a foundation for further learning, whether the students immediately pursue food service careers or go on to hospitality management or culinary programs at the college level."

The classroom work includes basic accounting, workplace safety and communications. Students also get hands-on experience in food preparation. Local chefs come to the high school to teach cooking skills and give insider views of the food service industry.

Many of the students took Culinary I in their freshman year and the entrepreneur class, called TeePee Lounge, at the high school. Several said there is a good possibility that they will continue working toward the culinary certificate in Albuquerque. Others are taking the class simply because they like to cook and want to learn more about it.

Kristen Tissanolthos, a senior, said the class is hard because of unfamiliar cooking techniques and vocabulary, such as "scald milk."

"Last year we made cookies and lasagna, not as a profession, just to learn how to cook," she said of the Culinary I class.

This semester, students will make salads and garnishes, prepare fruit, vegetables, breakfast foods, sandwiches and do more baking, Rigsby said. They will learn about working with people, controlling food costs and do more work on careers in the food service industry.

Katosha Candelaria, a sophomore, said she needed another credit, "and I need to know how to cook, even though I'm going to law school."

Candice Johnson, a sophomore, said she practices some of the things she learns in class at home.

"My brother and sister usually don't like it," she said. "My sister cries if I make her eat things like spaghetti baked."

Sloan Alexander, a junior, said he plans to be a chef and own his own restaurant. He worked as an aide for TeePee Lounge, and sometimes put together meals for take-outs. He said he's looking for an internship in a local restaurant this semester.

The hardest thing so far in class, Alexander said, was learning how to debone a chicken — and also the "gross-est," interjected Katy Gist, a senior.

An advisory committee composed of community members in the food service industry has been helping Rigsby develop the curriculum for the class, making it relevant to the needs of this area. With the internships, students will work directly with industry professionals who will serve as mentors, ensuring that students will have a chance to practice what they're learning in class.

"The students are doing a great job," Rigsby said. "I think they're learning some new skills. They're rising to the challenge. Tomorrow we'll finish Baked Alaska."

Girls doing math and enjoying it, survey finds

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. — Taking Barbie dolls, some of which said, "Math is hard!" in the 1990s could one day more appropriately say "Math is fun, and I like it!" new research suggests.

Using large national data sets, investigators at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill have discovered that — contrary to previous research — U.S. boys hardly surpass U.S. girls in mathematical ability.

"Whether boys' mathematical skills are superior to girls' has been a controversial topic among social scientists for decades," said Erin Leahey, who is completing a doctorate in sociology at UNC. "Strong evidence for a male advantage comes from the Study of Mathematically Precocious Youth, which began in 1972."

In that research, gifted seventh-graders were invited to take the mathematics section of the Scholastic Aptitude Test (SAT), which was considered a test of reasoning skill for the children since it involved material students had yet to cover in their coursework, Leahey said. The resulting gender differences were dramatic.

About four times as many boys scored above 600 as girls did, and about 13 times as many boys scored above 700, she said. A male advantage was also evident among college-bound high school seniors. Every year between 1966 and 1997 males scored higher than females on the math section of the SAT.

In their new study, Leahey and Dr. Guang Guo, associate professor of sociology and a fellow at the Carolina Population Center, examined for the first time gender differences in test scores from elementary school through high school among U.S. students. They also analyzed sub-samples of high-scoring students and different areas of math, such as reasoning and geometry.

Among the findings were that girls had higher average math scores than boys until about age 11 and higher reasoning scores at ages 11 to 13.

"Despite relatively equal starting points in elementary school, we found that boys showed a somewhat faster rate of acceleration in math," she said. "By the 12th grade, this resulted in a slight gender difference, which is more pronounced in geometry."

The bottom line is that the UNC work does not support earlier research showing that large gender differences emerge by junior high school or exist at all, Leahey said.

"The largest gender difference between boys and girls was late in high school and that was only 1.5 percent, which is very small," she said. "Based on conclusions from the earlier work, we had expected to see a gap by junior high school, but we didn't see any difference at all then."

A report on the findings appears in the current issue of Social Forces, a sociology journal.

One major advantage of the new investigation was that it tapped both the broadly representative National Longitudinal Study of Youth and the National Educational Longitudinal Study, Leahey said.

Most previous work on the subject relied on small, selective data sets. Another strength was that she and Guo covered such a long time span in math skills development.

"We also broke down the scores to see how students did specifically in algebra, geometry and reasoning rather than just relying on the overall math scores," Leahey said. "We found out how students did on every question. To our knowledge, that's never been done before."

"We didn't refute the earlier studies entirely, but we think we have shown that previously reported gaps are exaggerated and that people need to be more careful when making broad generalizations on this important issue," Leahey said.

Former inmate sues county, CSI over jailhouse beating

BY DIANNE STALLINGS
RUIDOSO NEWS STAFF WRITER

A former inmate of the Lincoln County Detention Center is suing the county and the company that manages the jail for negligence.

Darryl Matthews claims in the lawsuit filed Dec. 17 in Lincoln County District Court that while he was in jail on Aug. 18, he was placed in a overcrowded cell. He said that six or seven other prisoners beat him for more than 15 minutes.

When he attempted to alert guards for assistance by ringing an alarm, no one appeared for 20 minutes, Matthews contends in the suit.

He suffered bumps and bruises, injuries to the head and face and cracked ribs, according to the suit. He incurred medical expenses and suffered mental pain and suffering, the suit states.

Matthews claims the failure of guards to respond in a timely manner was intentional. He is represented by Ruidoso attorney Charles Hawthorne. The suit is the second claim to surface about inmate beatings and lack of guard response at the new county jail in the Carrizozo Industrial Park since it opened in April 2001. The jail is managed by Correctional Systems Inc., a California-based firm.

About one month after the incident claimed by Matthews, Magistrate Judge William Butts was upset when William Moody entered his courtroom with a black eye and other bruises. He told the judge they were the result of a beating he received while staying in the jail overnight for a DWI arrest — driving while under the influence of alcohol.

He claimed he was booked on the evening of Sept. 16 and while sleeping, was pulled from his bed by six inmates who kicked and punched him.

Moody, a 47-year-old heavy equipment operator, said he crawled to the door and with the help of another inmate rang the emergency buzzer, but no one responded for an estimated 10 minutes.

County officials have declined comment because of the possibility of litigation, but at the time of the Moody accusations, a CSI official gave some details of the operation. A new jail administrator also was appointed, although CSI President Bill Garrison said the action was unrelated. County Manager Tom Stewart pushed for an increase in the number of guards.

Other bright spots included senior guard Christie LaPaz who led the offense with 11 points, and the team's free-throw shooting (nine-for-12).

Ruidoso had a chance to even its district record Tuesday at home versus Santa Teresa. Results were not available, but Page was optimistic that his squad could get the job done.

Bobcats full-court press shut down the offense of the Chiefs. Mescalero scored only five points in the second quarter and trailed Hagerman 63-16 at-halftime.

Even though Mescalero managed to double its scoring output in the third quarter, it still trailed, 84-32.

The Chiefs continued to improve their offense in the fourth quarter, but it was the Bobcats passing the century mark and taking home the victory, 114-59.

"Tonight we really played well. We've just got to take it one game at a time," said Bobcat coach Eddie Prather.

The Chiefs will host Vaughn Saturday at 6 p.m.

Grizzlies start district right with wins over Corona Friday

BY WES SCHWENGELS
RUIDOSO NEWS SPORTS EDITOR

Carrizozo won a Lincoln County showdown Friday night, dispatching the Corona boys and girls basketball teams in impressive fashion in both schools' District 7A opener.

Lady Grizzlies 60, Lady Cardinals 45

Carrizozo held off a Corona second-half run to get a 60-45 victory and a 1-0 mark in district play. After falling behind by as many as 12 points in the third quarter, the Cardinals came to life. Down, 36-24, Corona scored the next 11 points to cut Carrizozo's lead to one with just under a two minutes left in the third.

But the Cards couldn't quite get over the hump, as the Grizzlies scored five straight to take a 41-35 lead into the fourth. From there it was the Grizzlies' game, as they stretched the lead out to 11 with 5:30 to play and kept Corona at an arm's length.

Despite his team's 15-point loss and 0-1 start to the district season, Corona coach Tommy Mulkey said he felt positive about the game.

"We didn't turn the ball over too much, but they were just more aggressive than we were," he said.

That aggressiveness gave Carrizozo some easy points, as it went to the free-throw line 31 times, making 18 of them. The Cardinals were held to six-of-18 from the charity stripe.

Grizzly coach Mel Holland said he was glad to have the win.

"You've got to have every one of these you can," he said. "... We've just got to keep working hard and preparing."

Lady Grizzly Stephanie Brewer led her team with 17 points, while Bianca Baca had 14.

Victoria Rossi led all scorers with 18 for the Cardinals.

Both coaches said they were impressed with what the other team had.

"This is the fastest team we've played," Mulkey said. "They're a lot faster than the others. ... They shot a lot better than I thought they would. But we could have played a lot better. We didn't shoot the ball well. We couldn't get the ball to go in the basket."

Holland said his team needed that quickness to counteract Corona's size.

"They're big. Their size was giving us problems," he said. "... But we've got a lot of pride. These girls have not lost a district game in two years."

The Grizzlies did fall Saturday to Tucumcari, 68-23 in a non-district match-up, however. Holland said the loss did not concern him too much, though.

"We played two nights hard. We just ran out of gas," he said. "I think the girls have it in the right perspective in terms of what we're trying to do in district."

The girls also had a non-district game with Hagerman Tuesday, the results of which were not available. Their next match-up comes Friday, when they travel to Vaughn for a district game.

The Cardinal girls got back on track Saturday, though, with a district win over Vaughn, 43-30 at home. Victoria Rossi had 21 points and Francesca Rossi added 11 to even the team's district record at 1-1.

"We still looked a little flat. We didn't hustle after the ball well," Mulkey said.

The Cardinals had a non-district contest Tuesday with Gateway Christian, results of which were not available, and will not play again until Mountainair comes to town on Tuesday.

Grizzlies 60, Cardinals 44

The Corona-Carrizozo boys contest was not in doubt for nearly as long, as the Grizzlies jumped out to a big first-half lead, getting up 16-6 at the end of the first period and 27-11 at halftime.

Carrizozo used an 11-0 run to get control of the game in the first half, stretching its lead from 11-

Ruidoso area fishing report, as of Jan. 16

Ruidoso River - As stated last week, if you plan to fish the River, we suggest you concentrate your efforts below the confluence of Carrizo Creek downstream to the Gavilan Canyon Bridge. The fishing in this stretch of water has been outstanding. The water flow in this part of the river is about normal for this time of year, but is dropping due to lack of rain. The last stocking of the river was three weeks ago, so we should be getting another stocking soon. Large Stoneflies are abundant in the river now. Rock Worms are declining in size and quantity, and Scuds are still on the increase in the waters: Tie a dry fly on as a lead fly then tie a nymph dropper about 12-18 inches behind. Use the lead fly as your strike indicator. This is an effective and fun way to fish small waters. Wear layers of clothes as the temperature near the water changes quickly.

South fork - Southfork is about done until Spring. The water flow rate is at a trickle.

Bonito Lake: Bonito Lake is closed until April 1.

Eagle Lakes: Eagle Lakes are closed for the season.

Grindstone: No change from the past couple of weeks. Still no skim ice on the lake surface. Grindstone continues to offer spotty fishing. Woolly Buggers and Zonkers fished fairly deep have produced fish the past two weeks. For spinner casters, tie on an Olive or Black propeller fly behind a bubble rig and enjoy catching fish. Please remember to squeeze the barbs down on all hooks; this will reduce injury to any fish caught and returned to the water.

Lake Mescalero: The lake level is quite low, but is fishing well. Dark woolly buggers continue to take fish late in the day. A few folks have been successful with Parachute Adams, Mosquito, or Hendrickson patterns and casting to rising fish. Remember to get your day pass at the front desk.

Please practice Catch and Release wherever and whenever you can. We have moved our local shop. New address is 2501 Sudderth Drive. Come see us for daily fishing information. Check out our improved and expanded website for community information.

Ruidoso Ski Team finds Angel Fire to be heavenly

■ The local skiers earned seven medals, including three golds, at USSA Southern Series competition.

BY LAURA DOTH
FOR THE RUIDOSO NEWS

Enjoying three inches of fresh snow, the Ruidoso Ski Team made its mark on New Mexico racing Jan. 5 and 6 by bringing home three gold medals and four silvers from the first race of the United States Ski and Snowboard Association's (USSA) Southern Series. The competition at Angel Fire featured two days of Giant Slalom racing.

"These kids are so solid right now," said coach Hubert Seigmann. "They all skied so well. This is a dream come true for me."

Leading the pack was J2 skier, Aaron Goeller. Goeller earned two gold medals for his efforts at the northern New Mexico ski area. On Saturday, he posted times of 45.85 and 45.88 for a total time of 1:31.73. He hit it hard again on Sunday and earned times of 46.28 and 46.52 for a total of 1:32.80. The blistering runs earned him first-place finishes each day of the competition. Charles Ginnings, also a J2, started the season with two Top 10 rankings. Ginnings finished eighth on Saturday and moved up to sixth on Sunday.

Teammate Eric Vaughn earned a Top 10 berth on the bitterly cold Saturday with a ninth-place finish in the J3 division. Hot on his heels were Michael Ginnings in 12th, Stefan Seigmann in 15th and, Travis Ingels in 24th.

On Sunday, the J3 boys enjoyed warmer temperatures, and they provided some heat of their own during the competition. Vaughn again enjoyed a Top 10 finish with times of 50.49 and 52.19 for a total time of 1:42.68. The runs were good enough for eighth place. Stefan Seigmann broke into the ranks of the Top 10 with times of 51:38 and 51:56, earning him a 10th-place finish. Rounding out the tight field was Michael Ginnings in 12th and Travis Ingels in 26th.

Nicole Doth, as a first-year J3, posted two solid Top 10 finishes in her first races of the year. On Saturday, she finished a strong sixth with times of 58.26 and 58.21 for a total of 1:56.47. She dropped into eighth place on Sunday.

In the J4 division for 11- and 12-year-olds, Joe Lynch had a spectacular weekend, bringing home one gold medal and two silver medals in four races. In the only race that he didn't grab a medal, he placed high with a solid fourth-place finish. In the morning race on Saturday, Lynch posted a quick 52.08 for his first silver medal of the day. He was followed by Dylan Jasinsky in eighth place and Casey Cultreri in 15th.

As the wind picked up and the temperatures dropped, Lynch dropped to fourth place in the afternoon run with a time of 53.65.

Jasinsky came in seventh and Cultreri placed 15th again.

Sunday was a new day, and Lynch was ready for the slopes. He earned his second silver medal of the weekend in Sunday's morning run with a time of 51.04. Jasinsky pushed it hard to finish fourth with a time of 52.19. After claiming two silver medals, Lynch was ready to taste gold, and his afternoon time of 52.98 guaranteed him the top spot. Jasinsky finished in the Top 10 with a sixth-place finish in the afternoon run.

Joining the successful Ruidoso Ski Team this year is 8-year-old Lexie Doth. In the first races of her career, Doth brought home two silver medals and posted one fifth place. Taking a tentative line, Doth placed fifth in the morning race on Saturday. In a much more aggressive run, she grabbed her first silver medal in the afternoon race with a time of 1:16.48. Sunday proved to be another winning day for her as she posted her second silver-medal time of 1:15.70 in the morning. In the afternoon race, a third silver medal was just out of her reach when judges found that Doth had missed a delay gate during her run, disqualifying her.

The Ruidoso Ski Team competed in Durango, Colo., on Jan. 12 and 13 at the Jesse Scott Memorial Super G. Results were not made available at press time.

The team is preparing for the upcoming Junior Olympic qualifying races to be held in February. Full results follow.

'ZOZO: Grizzlies off to good district start

6 in the first quarter to 22-6 early in the second.

The Cardinals found themselves behind by as many as 33 in the fourth period before Carrizozo brought in its reserves. Corona narrowed the gap from 57-24 to the final score of 60-44 once the Grizzly bench was in.

The Cardinals had just six players available at tip-off, and that number was reduced by one when Keith Shafer aggravated a knee injury he had suffered before the holiday break. He was unavailable for much of the second half.

"I knew (Corona's depth) was down," Holland said. "We had to take care of them."

Carrizozo's

Langley had 21 points, while teammates Lane Dixon and Joseph Samora chipped in with 17 and 11 points, respectively.

Cardinal Victor Perez led his team with 21.

Corona hadn't played since Dec. 18, a fast which may have led to its poor shooting, Cardinal coach Ronnie Dunsworth said.

That cold shooting carried over Saturday, when the Cards fell to Vaughn at home, 85-39, to make their district record 0-2.

Dunsworth said he was proud of his effort, though. "The kids always hustled, never gave up and kept fighting," he said.

Zozo's boys are off to Vaughn on Friday, while the Corona boys host Tohajiilee Thursday.

"They were just more aggressive..."
