County bucks state law again

Commissioners refuses flood plain ordinance in favor of private property rights

BY DIANNE STALLINGS
RUIDOSO NEWS STAFF WRITER

For the second time in two months, Lincoln County commissioners decided their way is the right way no matter how the state Legislature changes state law. They told county attorney Alan Morel to draft a flood plains management ordinance that reflects their minimalist approach and to disregard the model proposed by officials with the Federal Emergency Management Agency.

"I know you don't want an ordinance, so what do you want (written)?" Morel asked.

"Our effort to comply," said Chairman Rex Wilson.

"Some blank pages," Commissioner Rick Simpson offered.

Morel said when state legislators changed the word "may" to "shall" in a law governing flood plain management, they mandated that each of the state's 33 counties adopt a flood plains management ordinance and appoint a flood plains manager.

The central focus requires people who build in a federally-recognized flood plain to keep the foundation of their homes above a certain elevation to ensure that water can flow through in time of flood. If people build in a flood plain and follow the requirements, then are washed out, FEMA can help them with federal dollars.

But Commission Chairman Rex Wilson said he's worried about treading on private property rights and he wants to see flood plain maps before adopting a new local law.

Morel explained that the law requires a home be built one foot above the base flood elevation, but insurance rates go down the higher the elevation.

Simpson said the county doesn't need elaborate rules, just a disclosure about areas that fall within federal flood plains, then it should be up to a property owner whether to build.

Morel said FEMA officials in Dallas, after reviewing the proposed ordinance he wrote after deleting sections from a model law, said if any more provisions were gutted, they would reject it.

Smaller Rainmaker gets county's approval

BY DIANNE STALLINGS
RUIDOSO NEWS STAFF WRITER

Nearly three years after submitting the first plans for Rainmaker subdivision off Sierra Blanca Airport Road, developers received plat approval for a downsized version Tuesday from the Lincoln County Commission.

Commissioner Leo Martinez offered the motion, which passed with Commissioner Earl Hobbs not voting because he submitted a personal protest against the use of supplemental wells there. The wells are 50 feet from existing wells.

Approval was tied to the successful resolution by the developer-owned utility of two protests against the well use. That action follows the recommendation from the county Planning Commission on July 22, 2003.

Martinez commended the efforts of CDS Rainmaker – Land LC for tapping into a deeper underground water level to reduce impacts on existing wells in the area, for a planned state-of-the-art sewage treatment plant and for meeting state and county requirements.

Commissioner Maury St. John, who formerly served on the planning commission, agreed that the corporation worked hard to satisfy all rules and regulations.

Attorney H. John Underwood said the development first was proposed in November 2000 with 660 lots, but was rejected. The new plan shows 230 lots, a 66 percent reduction.

"This client has done everything they can to comply with state law and with the requests of the county planning commission," he said. "We feel we have a good project."

Rebidding nets county big savings

Martinez suggests new Construction board

BY DIANNE STALLINGS
RUIDOSO NEWS STAFF WRITER

One Lincoln County commissioner's battle to encourage more local contractors to bid on county projects, with the aim of lowering costs, saved $86,000 on projects at the county hospital in Ruidoso and the county health clinic in Carrizozo.

Commissioner Leo Martinez said Tuesday the county needs a construction committee to ensure that architects don't over-design a project and to receive input from local builders and architects who understand the area.

After arguing last month that the county administration failed to go after local builders to try to save money, Martinez won support from the rest of the board to rebid three projects that came in about $300,000 over budget.

Tuesday, Martinez was steaming again as he found out that the rebid was advertised and closed in three weeks while he still was talking to six contractors. With back-up from local builder Tom Lewicki, in the audience for another issue, the commissioner said contractors he contacted told him they needed four to six weeks to line up subcontractors. He questioned why Tom Stewart moved ahead so quickly with big bucks at stake.

"It's taxpayers money and you're just dribbling it away," he said. "It's sickening."

Officials suggest plugging old wells

BY DIANNE STALLINGS
RUIDOSO NEWS STAFF WRITER

Recent rain storms shouldn't relieve pressure on Lincoln County residents to conserve their water. Drought conditions have prevailed for more than two years and could continue for many more, local water officials say.

People across the county have come up with different approaches and suggestions that go well beyond not allowing water to run while brushing teeth, collecting rainwater from roof gutters to water flowers and trees, and using bathwater for lawn irrigation.

One mountainside resident is putting up a series of berms that will slow the movement of rain water, but not impound, after it hits the ground, giving more time to saturate the soil and possibly percolate into the underground aquifer.

State Engineer John Antonio said berms also prevent erosion in a heavy downpour.

"As long as someone is not impounding the water for any extended period of time, small water checking structures (on slopes) are OK," he said.

BIDS: Local bids are lower

Lincoln County Medical Center came in at $882,700 compared to the lone bid last month of $911,630. The new low bid, one of four received, was from Longhorn Construction of Albuquerque, which was approved for the project. James Gibson, hospital administrator, said Presbyterian would pay for specific parts of the project amounting to about $145,000, the difference between the project budget and the bid.

The county also saw a $56,000 savings from the rebid on the county-owned and Presbyterian Healthcare Services-operated health clinic in Carrizozo.

Last month, Longhorn of Albuquerque submitted the only bid of $335,000. This month, William H. Hall Construction of Pena Blanca came in lower at $279,000. Even then, Martinez and Commissioner Earl Hobbs contended the price per square foot was too high and voted against the award, which was approved 3-2.

Martinez received support from commissioners Hobbs and Maury St. John to try a third time for a better price on a new state public health building in Ruidoso.

He showed the board an estimate by one local builder of about $660,000 compared to the low bid of three received at $874,636 by Williamson Construction of La Luz. Last month, the low bid was $855,977 from the same company.

Martinez said the building's design by the Albuquerque architectural firm on contract with the county was too elaborate, such as requiring metal studs instead of wood.

Stewart recommended awarding the bid, which covers seven examination rooms, three offices, a laboratory, reception area, conference and education room, four bathrooms, two consultation rooms, a children's waiting area and a central medical records room that would comply with federal requirements.

St. John asked why an addition to the existing building wasn't proposed.

Stewart said two architectural firms decided that because of terrain, space and other problems with expansion, a separate building would be better and cause less disruption of service during construction.

"I don't see the feasibility of a second building," St. John said. "It really bothers me." She noted that the architectural firm already was paid $60,000 in fees.

"I'm with Commissioner Martinez, this is way too much money," said St. John, who is a registered nurse. "I know the nurses who work there. They need a place for locked files and another examination room or two. I have a real problem going out on a limb for this much money. I don't think it's necessary."

Jim McNamara defended the architectural firm, saying when the first estimate came in at more than $900,000, the building was simplified and reduced in size by about 1,000 square feet.

Martinez said the price at about $200 a square foot is "unbelievable" for a 4,000-square-foot building with few special requirements.

Commission Chairman Rex Wilson said the public health nurses must have complained about needing more space or the project never would have been started.

St. John said she hears from contractors they're reluctant to bid government projects because they can make more money with less red tape in the private sector.

The four new bids were rejected as being over budget in a 3-2 vote, with Wilson and Commissioner Rick Simpson voting against the new round of advertising.

Martinez, a restaurant owner and stucco contractor, was in Alamogordo Thursday talking to more contractors, none of whom had heard about the project, he said.

"I checked with the county attorney and I'm doing nothing illegal trying to encourage more competition," he said. "I'm showing no favoritism. I'm just trying to get people to bid."

Rescuers find woman after a 12-hour search

BY SANDY SUGGITT

RUIDOSO NEWS STAFF WRITER

A White Mountain Search and Rescue team recovered a lost woman and her four dogs early Wednesday morning after a 12-hour overnight search.

Five members of the team, joined by five members of Chaves County Search and Rescue, found Philo Vischkale, 44, in some of the most rugged terrain in the White Mountain Wilderness Area, said Sharon Lurix, plans section chief and secretary of the local team. After 12 hours of pounding the trail, they returned with her to the base camp set up at the Argentine Canyon campground.

The woman was lost in the furthest west part of the White Mountain Wilderness sometime Tuesday, and the five members of the team mobilized at 9:45 p.m.

"She was in probably the most remote, most rugged, most outback part of the wilderness area," Lurix said.

The New Mexico State Police contacted the search and rescue teams. Vischkale had a cell phone and a Global Position System and was able to call to for help. The team had members with strong technological skills and was able to get an accurate bead on where she should be.

Lurix said it took the team about 4 1/2 hours to get to the narrow ravine at the bottom of Lincoln Canyon near Barber Ridge Trail due to the rough terrain. She was in an area close to Crest Trail, possibly visible from Three Rivers, and not on a trail.

The woman and her dogs were fine, Lurix said, although somewhat dehydrated.

"Because of the remoteness and the time of day they found her — 2:30 a.m. — they had a very challenging time getting her and her dogs out of there, so the team did not return to base camp until 9:45 a.m. Wednesday. It was a 12-hour mission, the toughest one our team has been on in a long time."

Rich Lurix, president of White Mountain Search and Rescue, said Vischkale's location was about five miles from base camp, but getting her out was further because the team had trouble finding the trail in the dark and "wandered a bit in the night," he said. "For safety's sake, we decided to wait until daybreak and waited for the sun to come up."

"It was an area I never considered going to, and I hike a bit," he said. "It was just a long way from anything."

Vischkale has been lost several times in recent years.

Lurix said this has been a quiet summer, with only two searches since spring, but the normal big season is fall when a lot of hunters are in the wilderness.

WATER: New rules on old wells submitted wells.

He recalls that if an oil driller hit a dry well, he had to plug the old one before another could be started. Leaving hundreds of water wells unplugged could disrupt underground pressures, he contends.

State laws only require plugging artesian wells, which bubble to the surface naturally, according to Paul Saavedra, director of water rights in the state engineer's office.

His office has proposed rules and regulations governing old wells, he said.

"We put items in our conditions when people file applications to change the location of a well or to drill a new well,"

Saavedra said. "We ask for plugging data."

"But I'm sure there are lots of them out there and we have no idea they even exist."

Rick Usrey, environmental science specialist with the local state Environment Department office, said he plots abandoned wells or test holes within 1,000 feet of all public wells.

The department requires that they be at least capped, but not cemented and grouted, he said. He estimated fewer than 100 of those types of wells exist in the general Ruidoso area.

Keyes contends capping is not enough. He supplied photographs of some of the abandoned wells he's charted on his own.

Saavedra said while there may be something to Keyes' contention, in his opinion, an abandoned well is more of a threat for possible contamination than a disruption in underground pressure.

The University of New Mexico's Institute of Meteoritics was the first of its kind in the world.

Meet a Member of the Lincoln County Medical Center Board - Alberto Robles, Marketing Committee.

Alberto Robles has worked and volunteered in Lincoln County for over 20 years. A civil engineer by training, Robles founded a local construction company in 1972 and became a licensed general contractor. Since then, he entered real estate and is now a licensed broker.

Robles served seven years on the board of directors for the Ruidoso Valley Chamber of Commerce and three years as the director of the Ruidoso Board of Realtors. He also served five years with Rotary International, through which he has supported two orphanages in Juarez, Mexico.

Alberto Robles believes that one of his most important volunteer roles is with the Lincoln County Medical Center board. "The citizens of Lincoln County need to understand that LCMC is a not-for-profit hospital, we have no stockholders to pay, we own it! Any money made by the hospital is reinvested in the hospital to meet healthcare needs."

Alberto Robles is proud to be a board member.

FEMA: Area residents argue for property rights

"And then we will not be in compliance with state statutes," he said. "I think I've taken out everything I can."

Simpson responded, "So we're going to say the hell with private property rights?"

He said it's the attorney's job to warn commissioners of a risk.

"He gives advice," the commissioner said. "Whether we take it or not is up to us. To challenge would be our decision."

The commission took a stand against an apparent mandate for revisions to the county's indigent ordinance and should take a stand on this one too, he said.

Oscara resident Jerry Carroll contended the New Mexico Flood Plains Association pushed for the mandatory adoptions, yet its members aren't elected officials or registered lobbyists. The action amounts to a conspiracy, he said, warning that the law probably will be challenged in court.

"No one can comply with all state laws," Carroll said. "Personally, in this instance, I think the county attorney is giving you bad advice. Adopt this and you adopt 40 pages of federal rules. It's pure socialism. I hope commissioners get copies and read them."

Carroll said he found errors in the mapping system being used by FEMA and that an engineer or surveyor will have to recheck lines.

Morel said he didn't like the ordinance, but the law mandates counties have regulations. He said he didn't see a problem putting off action another month. County planner Patsy Sanchez is being trained to help people determine if their land is in a federal flood plain.

Commissioner Leo Martinez called the proposed county law, "a crazy ordinance, but if it's been gutted to the least we can do, we have to go for it."

Commissioner Earl Hobbs agreed with Martinez that the commission didn't have much of a choice.

He pointed out that the county is subordinate to the state when it comes to laws. Morel agreed, saying that all laws are presumed to be constitutional until they are challenged in court and proved otherwise.

Tony Seno with the county's Libertarian Party, called the proposed law "an abomination."

"Just tell the feds you're not going to do this and dump this ordinance," he advised, adding that he would protect his private property with a weapon, if necessary. He urged commissioners to fight against the ordinance, adding, "I don't want to shoot anyone."

"Let's challenge this and take it as far as it can go. If it winds up in the Supreme Court, I'll be a character witness for you."

Carrizozo resident Norm Van Gorder said all levels of government are subordinate to the people. He warned commissioners they would be held personally responsible and referred to the inevitability of a "shooting war" if rights continue to be eroded.

RAINMAKER: County praises new plan multi-family units in condominium complexes, plus 31 patio homes.

Rainmaker Utilities has purchased what used to be known as Ranches of Ruidoso Village Water Supply, along with its water rights, the attorney said.

"We have a letter (from the state engineer) saying we do have enough water" with rights dating to 1855, Underwood said.

A consultant reviewed the number of water rights and entities to be served by the new developer, including the Spencer Theater for the Performing Arts.

Underwood said developers expect to spend $24 million on infrastructure and estimated the subdivision could contribute $400,000 a year in property taxes. Substantial build out is expected in about 10 years.

Surveyor Tim Collins said the subdivision covers 248.5 acres of lots and 110.9 acres of green area. Acceleration and deceleration lanes will be installed at the two gated entrances, he said.

Private roads will have 50 foot rights of way and 20 foot of pavement with two foot shoulders. Within six months of plat approval, the developer agreed to pave a road serving Ranches of Ruidoso. The project will be on a sewer system after some initial use of septic as the home building starts, Collins said.

Lawns are limited in size, rainwater systems will be promoted for irrigation and high water-use trees are banned, he said. Lots also will be cleared of excess fuel for fire. A second water storage tank will be built next to the existing one with an office and laboratory for testing.

Hobbs declared his conflict at the start of the discussion.

"I am profoundly opposed to the development and have filed a protest as an individual," he said, noting that he didn't use the county letterhead. He contended he had a right to represent the people in his district. Denying him a vote could disenfranchise them, he said. Underwood said he could withdraw his protest.

Martinez said he wouldn't have filed a protest so that he could "kick butt" and ask questions as a commissioner. But under the current situation, he didn't think Hobbs should be involved in the discussion because if the commission rejected the plat, Hobbs' participation might be grounds for legal action.

Later, Hobbs left the meeting with county attorney Alan Morel to discuss his rights.

Morel said he was concerned Hobbs had become an interested party in the process rather than a representative of his district solely.

When he returned, Hobbs started asking questions about the difference between planning for two people when calculating water consumption and using four people when planning for wastewater, but was told one approach was required by the county and the other by the state engineer.

As Hobbs started on another issue, Martinez asked for a clarification on whether the commissioner was speaking as a resident or a board member. Chairman Rex Wilson asked Hobbs to sit in the audience if he was speaking as a resident and he did.

CHIROPRACTIC OUTLOOK

HIPS DETERIORATE WITH AGE

Avascular necrosis (or osteonecrosis) represents a condition where the body has, at least temporarily, lost the critical blood supply to the ball part of the hip joint. The bone begins to collapse at the weakened site; this can encourage the onset of arthritis.

Avascular necrosis most commonly affects the ends of long bones such as the femur, which extends from the knee joint to the hip joint. Other common sites include the upper arm bone, shoulders and ankles. The condition is very common in individuals from fifty to seventy years of age.

Appropriate care for avascular necrosis is necessary to keep joints from eroding. If untreated, most patients will experience severe pain and movement limitation within two years. Although hip replacement may be necessary in advanced conditions, chiropractic manipulation may be helpful in alleviating associated pain as well as in reducing the degree of progression. Ask your Doctor of Chiropractic any additional questions you may have about this condition.

OUR OPINION

Lack of action has its consequences

An insurer puts the heat on Ruidoso homeowners

To really get people's attention, reach for their wallets. Whether it was the horrific Kokopelli Fire that destroyed more than two dozen homes in Alto two years ago, or the "whole West burning" images on the nightly television news this summer, at least one major casualty insurer - Met Life - has issued this warning in a letter to its Ruidoso clients:

Comply with the minimum (forest fire safety) requirements of the state Forestry Division or send a photograph showing tree-thinning efforts on your lot.

Failure to comply might not mean immediate cancellation of policies, but could bring a refusal to insure at the renewal date, and a search for another, more lenient, insurer.

The Ruidoso Forestry Department's director, Rick Delaco, says he fears, however, that Met Life's letter is the "tip of the iceberg." In neighboring Colorado, he said, State Farm has notified its customers that they must create defensible space around their homes if they want to maintain their insurance. Here at home, no other insurers have been heard from yet.

The U.S. Forest Service has in recent years worked to create wildfire buffers on the village's southwest (windward) side. Ruidoso has been ahead of the curve on creating defensible space through tree thinning. The village has adopted some of the toughest rules anywhere, and a commendable number of homeowners have paid heed by clearing their own property.

But nobody is quite prepared to face owning a home in tree-clad Ruidoso that cannot be insured. Realtors can't sell homes that can't be insured.

Nothing is likely to get faster action in fire-proofing our village than gentle nudges from those profit-seeking, private-enterprise entities we call insurance companies.

Of slush piles, disabled veterans and statistics

"Way back when, we called the unsolicited stuff that the post office delivered to a newspaper's editorial department the "slush pile." We didn't, as people do now, call it "junk mail," because it wasn't. The slush pile - mostly news releases - was where we went when there was a hole in a page and nothing was at hand to fill it. Often as not, we would find something therein of reasonably local interest with which to edify our readers.

Even in this day of junk mail and non-Hormel spam, some stuff actually reaches the mail box worth looking at - something for the slush pile. Delving in that pile this morning turned up a bit of information I wouldn't have known if I hadn't delved.

The U.S. Census Bureau today (Friday) is winding up a week-long survey of the nation's 24.3 million veterans - as of 2001, anyway - of which some 2.2 million had a service-connected disability.

This week's survey seeks to determine whether those veterans with a disability have increased, decreased or stayed about the same.

I'd think, what with the war in Iraq, that the answer is obvious. But then we're talking statistics here, and everybody knows the government eats, breathes and regurgitates statistics. A lawmaker couldn't make a self-respecting speech if he or she didn't have a five-pound load of numbers as evidence that something needs to be done about something or other.

Besides disabilities, the Census Bureau is looking at other things of a veteran nature with this survey - age, sex, race, Hispanic origin, period of service and labor force status - says Susan A. Lavin, the woman running the bureau's Denver regional office.

If all has gone as planned, by the end of the day today, some 2,000 Census Bureau field representatives will have conducted interviews involving 78,000 households across the nation.

From these interviews will come a new report that will presumably help our elected Congresspersons "determine the characteristics of disabled veterans, measure the effectiveness of current veterans' benefits programs, and help plan future programs and facilities for veterans," Ms. Lavin said in her press release about the survey.

I know Lincoln County has one healthy - well, maybe not all are healthy - batch of veterans of a good number of wars, and I know some of them have some uncomplimentary thoughts about how the VA delivers, or doesn't deliver, medical benefits.

A Presidential task force isn't very complimentary either; its finding is predictable - too much demand for service and not enough money from Congress.

But right now I'd simply like to hear from anyone who was tabbed by the Census Bureau for an interview.

No, I don't want to identify anyone by name without permission; the Census Bureau says it can't, by law, reveal personal information, and I sure don't want to break any laws.

But I would like to know whether any of Lincoln County's households was among the 78,000 who were sent letters seeking an interview.

Even one would be a statistic.

Keith Green welcomes e-mail - statistical or not - to kgreen@ruidosonews.com.

Schools need moreland trust money now

To the editor:

Even before New Mexico was a state, our leaders envisioned a state land trust that would provide support for public education. Today's school children benefit from their foresight. Through continued careful management, we can help to guarantee that future generations are well educated in mind, body and heart.

But we have an opportunity in September to do more. By voting in favor of the proposed constitutional amendment to increase the annual payout from the Permanent School Fund, we can make an immediate difference in the lives of our school children.

Last year, our public schools received $256 million from the fund. This contributed to a nearly $2 billion investment in public education in New Mexico. Under the amendment, distributions would increase and could only be used to reform our schools. It is estimated that the constitutional amendment will result in roughly $700 million for public school reform over the next 12 years.

The amendment treats the School Permanent Fund prudently. The State Investment Office predicts that the fund should continue to grow, even with the increased allotment to education. And factors are included in the change that would protect the fund should growth be less than anticipated.

It is a tribute to the Legislature and our governors that public education represents nearly 50 percent of the state's overall budget. While this funding has guaranteed that schools open their doors each fall, there has been very little remaining to support public school reform, including increased salaries for our teachers and other critical initiatives.

The New Mexico State Board of Education, in June, voted to support the Permanent School Fund constitutional amendment. I urge you to join us in passing this instrument of change.

We must ensure a future and a legacy for the children in New Mexico. Through this initiative, we can do both.

That giant water loophole

To the editor:

Talk about loopholes! It was ironic to see ... two front-page articles in the Friday, Aug. 8, Ruidoso News. One article addressed a "loophole" that resulted in a near clear-cut of a village lot. The article directly above it discussed Level 3 water restrictions and the exclusion provided for "private water well" users from these restrictions. In a water-endangered area such as ours that is experiencing severe drought conditions, the "private water well" exclusion is truly the biggest loophole of all.

... I (know a person) ... who lives alone and has a Private Water Well sign posted. I was told by municipal authorities this person is one of the top 10 residential water users in the city. Not subject to restrictions, her sprinklers come on automatically but because her yard is not fully planted, the topsoil and fertilizer covering her yard washes immediately into the river along with the unnecessary and excessive irrigation water. Consequently, the ... policy not only encourages wasting our vital water resources, but also, in this case, contributes significantly to the ongoing pollution of our beautiful river. No wonder the city has to spend $6 million of taxpayers' money for a new treatment plant!

The state government and our own water task force recognize the dire necessity of preserving and protecting New Mexico's precious water resources. Our village councilors must act now to close this giant loophole and apply water restrictions uniformly. Lincoln County's water supply logically comes from the same source, the same aquifer. Each and every citizen who lives here has a duty to use our water wisely and prudently. It is the city councilors' responsibility to enact legislation that will protect our water supply from wasteful, arrogant squandering.

Use the land trust fund

To the editor:

Regarding Ned Cantwell's tongue-in-cheek opinion piece titled "Gee, Can't We Have Some Kobe Exposure, too?" (Aug. 13), while I wanted to smile at his writing, I am more embarrassed for him due to his stereotypical behavior.

While the article smacks of the truth of such heavy media exposure while other issues and policies truly involving life and death matters go unreported because Corporate America OWNS the media, still I found the way he singled out and showed his hatred for women and academicians (at least Easterners) tells me he is just another part of the media problem.

Proposed booking barrier at county jail is doubtful

BY DIANNE STALLINGS
RUIDOSO NEWS STAFF WRITER

Although Lincoln County commissioners wanted an enclosure around the booking clerk at the county jail in Carrizozo to ensure the officer's safety, the project may not happen.

Officials with Correctional Systems Inc., which manages the detention center, claim existing procedures are sufficient, county manager Tom Stewart said Tuesday.

They think "they have procedures which obviate the need for a total enclosure around the booking area," he told commissioners. "They were thinking about elevating the area.

The person is not left unattended."

A cage would cause a problem with access to a storage room where items belonging to inmates are checked in, he said.

But Commissioner Leo Martinez pointed out Sheriff Tom Sullivan has said that in his many years of work in Texas and New Mexico he has never seen open access to the booking clerk.

"If someone was taken hostage, we'd feel pretty bad," Martinez said.

Commissioner Rick Simpson agreed, saying CSI manages the jail, but the county owns it and is ultimately responsible.

Imus starts Ruidoso radio show

BY DIANNE STALLINGS
RUIDOSO NEWS STAFF WRITER

Imus has landed in Ruidoso. While his brother Don continues to split his time between a ranch in northern New Mexico and a New York base, Fred Imus has grabbed the microphone of an afternoon request line show on W105 and KNMB-FM.

"Riding my horse and playing country music songs on the radio - that's all I plan on doing from now on," Fred Imus said. "I just hope that the listeners can think of some good songs for me to play."

Like his brother, who is a member of the Broadcasting Hall of Fame, Fred Imus chalked up 25 years of experience in the fields of radio and country music. Teaming with his brother, they co-wrote the 1977 Music City News song of the year, "I Don't Want to Have to Marry You," and he has worked as a disc-jockey at several different stations across the country.

"Ruidoso is just a great place to live, mainly because of the weather and the mountains," he said. "All I have to do now is get people to listen to my radio show and call in a request for their wife, or their boss, or someone who they want to send a message to on the radio."

Imus' request show will air from 3 p.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday on KNMB-FM at 96.7 and on KWMW-FM, 105.1 on the dial.

KWMW-FM or "W105," is part of the MTD Radio's umbrella of stations located at 1086 Mechem Drive. Its goal, besides a profit, is to promote Ruidoso.

"The station also has been known for years as 'that Maljamar station' by many people who have made the drive to Ruidoso from west Texas," said MTD Radio general manager Tim Keithley. "That's because you can pick up the signal from Ruidoso almost to Midland and all the way over to Pecos, and north practically half-way to Lubbock. Of course, you can clearly hear the W105 signal in Carlsbad, Hobbs, Lovington, Roswell, Artesia and all of the other towns between Lincoln County and west Texas."

The station leans toward regional programming to attract listeners from various areas. That programming includes offering Texas Rangers baseball games, NFL games and popular country music, mixed with the local New Mexico in the Morning talk show, local weather updates, horse racing and snow skiing reports.

Local historian Drew Gomer tells wild West stories daily to give the true flavor of the area, Keithley said. Coverage of the annual Lincoln County Cowboy Symposium is planned for October.

The other MTD Radio stations that serve Lincoln County include KIDX-FM (101.5), which plays classic rock, KNMB-FM (96.7), the newest station in the company which plays classic country music and KRUI-AM (1490), which focuses on local news and tourism information.

Try 'customized training'

This topic is important to anyone remotely associated with any business or organization. So get on this train or get out of the way!

The Ruidoso campus of Eastern New Mexico University, through a statewide initiative, has and is currently offering customized training for any business or organization.

Chamber Chatter
BY BRAD TREPTOW

EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR
RUIDOSO VALLEY
CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

Now, what is customized training? It's a specialized course or courses as designated by an employer to train or educate his or her staff. This can be done either on site or at the university campus.

I think the most important aspect of this initiative is that a course would be designated by the employer and tailored to the specific needs that business has. It can be regarding customer service, computer software training, technology education or the like.

This is monumental because more often than not, employees are hired, shown the bare necessities in order to operate and then turned loose on representing the employer and the business. That just won't cut it.

The bottom line is that we as employers must focus on continuing education for every employee. When we don't, we will fail. Those are tough words to swallow but they will ring true. The best way to implement training for our employees is through the contractor customized training program provided by ENMU Ruidoso.

So begin looking critically at your staffing and training of employees and pursue the program through ENMU Ruidoso. I'm confident you'll see an immediate and positive impact in your business as well as in your employee's attitude and morale.

Next week's column: "Customer Service — everything can be traced back to it."

The Economy and the Markets

Sprint or marathon?

BY SCOTT ANDERSON
WELLS FARGO & COMPANY

Even the bears must concede that the third quarter is shaping up to be a marked economic improvement over the quarter just ended.

And recently released data on retail sales, inventories and the trade balance point to a significant upward revision in the second quarter GDP figures to around 3.0 percent. But with the stock rally now firmly in place and many market participants already discounting a significant rebound in the third quarter, bond yields have jumped. A rapid rise in interest rates spooks the stock market and has the potential to add a significant headwind to the economic recovery, by taking the steam out of the housing market and refinancing activity, and delaying the recovery in business investment.

So is the U.S. economy now poised for a summer marathon of sustained recovery or will it be just a sprint, a short burst of activity soon to be exhausted by rising interest rates and lackluster demand?

It is our view that while the rapid rise in interest rates is not particularly welcome, it is not unprecedented or particularly surprising given the extent to which bonds were overvalued.

A cooler housing market could actually prevent a potential housing bubble. Moreover, it is likely that better job and income growth will easily replace the liquidity lost to refinancing activity, allowing homeowners to begin building their home equity again rather than cashing it out. A much more healthy environment in the long run.

Finally, financing costs are just one of many factors determining business investment. If interest rates were the only factor, businesses would have stepped up investment months ago. The real driver of business investment is the outlook for final demand and earnings forecasts, and they continue to improve.

Finally, it is important to remember that the U.S. economy is immense, more akin to a huge cargo ship than a sleek speedboat. It takes a massive amount of time and stimulus to turn the ship around, but once it's headed in the right direction, it will not be easily taken off course again.

Bonds: What is fair value?

A passive observer of the Treasury bond market over the past month would conclude that all rationality had left the bond market. Clearly, the economic and inflation fundamentals could not have changed so much over the last month to trigger such a rise in interest rates.

Some combination of Fed communication and bond market misinterpretation is probably behind the sharp adjustment in yields. But this explanation ignores the fact that nearly every bond valuation model concluded the same thing — bonds were overvalued — and still investors were buying 10-year Treasury bonds with nominal yields of 3.11 percent and real yields of one percent.

So is the bond market recovering from its own financial bubble? Or are we just in a painful correction phase that will soon peter out, stabilizing rates and doing only limited damage to the economy and stock market? Markets have a tendency to overshoot both on the upside and downside, but tend to revert to their fundamental values. So what do the bond models tell us today?

Well Fargo's bond valuation model currently forecasts a 10-year Treasury bond yield of 5.1 percent by August 2004, based on current forecasts of unemployment and inflation. This likely means 30-year fixed rate mortgage rates of about 7.1 percent by August as well.

Predicted yields trended down as the fed funds target rate and inflation fell and the unemployment rate rose. But going forward, the unemployment rate should begin to slowly improve and short-term rates are likely at a bottom for this cycle. While the bond market has probably gotten a bit ahead of itself on yield increases, it is a forward looking market and is likely to quickly discount a stronger U.S. economy.

In the near-term, rates could stabilize around these levels, but the bond markets reversal isn't done yet.

SWEET LITTLE BUSINESS

BY DIANNE STALLINGS
RUIDOSO NEWS STAFF WRITER

Looking for that special touch on an upcoming party? Tanya Sweeney may have just the thing to appeal to the sweet tooth of guests and provide a memento as well.

The mother of a 16-month-old son, Sean, Sweeney is one of a growing class of stay-at-home female entrepreneurs who are creating new businesses while raising their children.

"All Wrapped Up" focuses on wrappers for Hershey chocolate products that tout businesses, commemorate birthdays, anniversaries and new babies, or mark special celebrations and holidays.

"We moved here last September from Dallas," Sweeney said. "This was our vacation home, but after Sean was born, we decided we wanted a better quality of life for him here and sold our other house."

Her husband, Stan, was hired as general manager of the Eagle Ranch's pistachio operation near Alamogordo, and she started looking at ways to earn some extra income to contribute to the household without putting Sean in day care.

She saw a Cherubs-N-Chocolate advertisement in Parenting magazine. Then she read good things about the company in Small Business Magazine about the same time she saw the company featured on The Food Network.

"We personalize candy bars for all occasions," she said. "That includes weddings and fund-raisers, birthdays and holidays, and business groups, such as hotels and Realtors."

The candy bars can be full size or miniatures. They can be handed out when a baby is born instead of cigars, she suggested. Or they can be attached to floral arrangements for any special event, including mother's and father's day.

Sweeney launched her new business on July 15, joined the Ruidoso Valley Chamber of Commerce and was scheduled to co-host an "after hours" event

'Issues Roundtable' scheduled Tuesday

■ A Ruidoso meeting will allow input for business issues during the next Legislature.

The Ruidoso Chamber of Commerce, the Rotary Club of Ruidoso and the Association of Commerce and Industry of New Mexico (ACT) will co-host an Issues Roundtable lunch on Tuesday from 11:45 a.m. to 1:15 p.m. at Cree Meadows Country Club, 301 Country Club Drive.

The Issues Roundtable luncheon will highlight for Ruidoso area business and community leaders the key issues impacting New Mexico's business climate.

Attendees will break out into roundtable discussions and a member from each group will summarize their findings at the end of the program. ACT, a business advocacy organization, will use the feedback received as guidance in forming its 2004 legislative agenda.

This is one of 24 Issues Roundtables taking place across the state. ACT partners with local chambers of commerce and business and civic organizations throughout New Mexico in order to gather input on the issues they feel need to be addressed in the 2004 legislative session.

Those attending who are not members of the Rotary Club of Ruidoso should register as a guest of Brad Treptow, Ruidoso Chamber of Commerce executive director. Treptow can be reached at 257-7395.

The cost for the luncheon is $10 per person, and payment needs to be made in advance to the Ruidoso Chamber. E-mail reservations may be made to karen@ruidoso.net.

Sponsors include ALLTEL, Blue Cross and Blue Shield of New Mexico, Northern New Mexico Independent Electrical Contractors Inc., DW Turner, the University of New Mexico, AAA New Mexico and Qwest Communications.

BUSINESS BRIEFS

N.M. Builders Trust renews dividend

Builders Trust of New Mexico board members recently declared the trust's seventh dividend, totaling more than $1.2 million. Members of the Lincoln County Home Builders Association who are trust participants will receive dividends beginning in September.

A trust executive said the dividend was possible because of exceptional financial results from 1992 through 1999, driven by excellent loss ratios and internal cost-savings initiatives.

Bob Dolgener, a Ruidoso builder and trust board member, said the trust is committed to providing competitive workers' compensation insurance to its membership. This year's dividend, paid to 2,009 participants, is an example of that commitment, he said.

The trust is a workers' compensation group self-insured fund affiliated with the New Mexico Home Builders Association.

With assets of $39.1 million, surplus of $22.6 million and more than 1,850 participating companies, it is the largest fund of its kind in New Mexico.

Hay hotline set up

LAS CRUCES — Dr. Miley Gonzalez, state secretary of agriculture, has announced that the New Mexico "Hay and Pasture Hotline" is in operation at the New Mexico Department of Agriculture. The hotline was established to help farmers and ranchers in finding feed for their livestock during the extended drought.

"Pastures throughout the state are in poor condition and many ranchers are supplementing feed," Gonzalez said. The "cattle and calves" segment is the state's second largest element, with more than $800 million in cash receipts. "The beef industry is a key element of the economy in rural New Mexico," he said.

Focus on Agriculture

The EU adds a weapon: 'geographic indicators'

BY STEWART TRULSEN
AMERICAN FARM BUREAU

Maybe the American restaurants that changed french fries on the menu to "freedom fries" went too far.

The European Union has a list of almost 40 food names that it wants the World Trade Organization (WTO) to protect from American and other use. French fries aren't on the list but stilton and mozzarella cheese are. For now, the list covers mostly wine and spirits like champagne, port and cognac.

These names are referred to in trade circles as geographic indicators or indications. The EU objects to the names being used on products that do not come from the towns or regions for which they were named. In other words, American consumers would no longer be able to buy Kraft parmesan cheese, unless perhaps Kraft opens a cheese plant in Parma, Italy. If the EU is successful, who knows what could happen next? Parma, Ohio, a city south of Cleveland, might have to be renamed.

Geographic indications are probably a red herring — not the little fish that also comes from Europe — but a ploy that is meant to distract and confuse. Rep. Charles Stenholm (D-Texas) says, "it is very important for the U.S. agricultural community to fully understand the implications of Europe's attempt to enhance protections for geographical indications. It is equally important for Europe to understand that we do not intend to allow the issue to distract us from the real work of the WTO agricultural negotiation, export competition, domestic support and market access."

The EU, however, appears to be serious about this. EU Trade Commissioner Pascal Lamy told a Brussels audience that geographic indicators could be an alternative to export subsidies. "If we do not have financial support for our exports, you might well say, what support could we still count on when necessary?" He then supplied the answer. "I am convinced that the future of European agriculture lies not in quantity of exports but quality, the quality of the European trademark. That is why we are fighting to stop appropriation of the image of our products and improve protection."

Lamy outlined a threefold plan by the EU. The first objective is to get better protection for wines and spirits. The second is to extend existing protection to other food products, and the third is the "recuperation" of some of the protected names that have been appropriated. "You might say that this is a new type of export aid that the EU is trying to develop," he adds.

The real purpose of this export aid seems to be to drive up prices to consumers and subsidize European producers. While the proposal has a certain snob appeal to it, it only seems to work in one direction.

The EU is refusing to recognize Idaho potatoes as distinctive.

The U.S. response on geographical indicators is to point to the trademark system that this country and others rely on. The GI proposal, as it is called, is a whole different approach. Europe might as well get used to the fact that many product names, like feta cheese, bologna and dijon mustard, left port long ago and won't be returning.

Stewart Trulsen is director of broadcast services for American Farm Bureau Federation.

FUNERALS DEATHS

Arthur Coleman

Memorial services for Arthur Franklin Coleman, 71, of Capitan, will be at 2 p.m. today at LaGrone Funeral Chapel in Ruidoso, with the Rev. Bill Jones of Tinnie officiating.

Mr. Coleman died Monday, Aug. 18, 2003, at his home in Capitan.

He was born Nov. 21, 1931, to Ed and Velma Coleman, and was the last of five brothers.

He grew up in the Arch community, he was in the Army from 1950 until 1952 during the Korean War.

He married Katherine Davis on June 1, 1956, at Arch. He moved to Capitan in 1979 from Portales. He worked for the Capitan Schools in maintenance and was a custodian for almost 15 years, then went to work for Swiss Chalet for 10 years, until retiring in 1990.

He was a member of the Baptist Church.

Survivors include his wife Katherine; children Andrew Coleman and his wife, Gladys; Julia Hobbs and her husband, Jerry, and Lee "Shotgun" Coleman and his wife, Susan; a son-in-law, Ron Marr; 12 grandchildren; and two great-grandsons.

He was preceded in death by a daughter, Irene Marr; a grandson, Robert Heard; and a granddaughter, Amber Coleman.

Arrangements are under the direction of LaGrone Funeral Chapel of Ruidoso.

George Cory

Funeral services for George F. Cory Jr., 79, of Angus, will be at 2 p.m. Saturday, at Angus Church of the Nazarene, with the Rev. Garth Hyde officiating. Burial will follow in Angus Cemetery.

Mr. Cory died Tuesday, Aug. 19, 2003, at Ruidoso Care Center.

He was born Nov. 11, 1923, to George F. Cory Sr. and Daisy Mae Backus Cory in Garfield, Okla.

He served in the United States Army during World War II.

He and Vera Johnson married in Fresno, Calif. They moved to the Ruidoso area from Odessa, Texas, 26 years ago. He was a retired gasoline plant processor.

Survivors include his wife, Vera Lee, of the home; a son, John F. Cory Sr., of Lubbock, Texas; daughters Neva Lee Smith of Capitan and Mary Ann Peyton of Colorado Springs, Colo.; grandchildren John F. Cory Jr. of Eielson AFB, Alaska, Michael Dean Cory of Lubbock, Crystal LeeAnn Peyton, G. Wade Smith, Jeffrey D. Peyton, all of Colorado Springs, Faith Ann Smith and Dianna Jean Smith, both of Capitan; great-grandchildren Kay Nichole Cory, Kimberly M. Cory, both of Goodyear, Ariz., Jordan Cory of Eielson AFB, and Naya-Lei Smith of Colorado Springs.

The family suggests donations to Missions to the Angus Church of the Nazarene.

Services are under the direction of Anderson-Bethany Funeral Home and Crematory.

Preston Stone

Services for Preston Lee Stone, 78, of Roswell, are 2 p.m. today at LaGrone Funeral Chapel.

Mr. Stone died Aug. 18, 2003, at Eastern New Mexico Medical Center, with the Rev. Russell Smith of Guadalupe Christian Church Camp officiating. Military honors will be provided by the Roswell Veterans Honor Guard at South Park Cemetery.

He was born Nov. 8, 1924, in Kerrville, Texas, to John E. and Zelma French Stone.

He married Modean Butler on Dec. 24, 1943, in Kerrville.

He had been a resident in Roswell for 17 years and was a member of the Guadalupe Christian Church. He served his country during World War II in the U.S. Army.

He had been a rancher and then became a livestock inspector for the New Mexico Livestock Board in 1996. In his younger years, he belonged to roping clubs and played polo.

Survivors include his wife, Modean, from the family home; a son, Preston L. Stone Jr. and his wife, Willa E. Stone, of Capitan; a daughter, Barbara Gail Brinson and her husband, Kenneth Brinson, of Hillsboro, N.J.; a brother, Robert L. Stone, of Kerrville; and grandchildren Troy and Tracey Stone, both of Capitan.

He was preceded in death by his parents; a sister, LaVerne Joy; and brothers Roy Stone, Floyd Stone and J.D. Stone.

Arrangements are under the direction of LaGrone Funeral Chapel & Crematory of Roswell.

Pat Gowen

Memorial services for Pat Gowen, 65, of Capitan, will be at 10 a.m. Saturday at First Baptist Church in Ruidoso.

Mr. Gowen died Wednesday, Aug. 20, 2003, at his home.

He was born Nov. 17, 1939, in Spearman, Texas.

POLICE BRIEFS

Tunes taken

A vehicle left over the weekend awaiting repairs at Western Auto, 400 Mechem Drive, was burglarized between 5 p.m. Aug. 16 and 8:30 a.m. Aug. 18, according to police reports.

A total of $460 of sound equipment was reported stolen, including a Jensen CD player, Legacy amplifier and Kenwood speakers.

There was no sign of forced entry, the report states, although the employee said the vehicle was locked when the business closed for the weekend. The vehicle was found unlocked when the business reopened on Monday.

Catch that refrigerator

About $8,200 of household appliances and furniture was reported stolen from a vacant house in the 100 block of Robin Road between July 28 and Aug. 15. When police arrived to investigate, the back door was found unlocked and there was no sign of forced entry, the report states.

Included in the stolen items was a hot tub, a Sealy bed, a Frigidaire dishwasher and a toilet.

Kiwanis donates to local schools

One SUV in the long line of vehicles making drop-off this week at Sierra Vista Primary, White Mountain Elementary and White Mountain Intermediate schools was a little more stuffed with pencils and erasers than the others.

A Suburban full of school supplies donated by local residents in a program orchestrated by the Kiwanis Club of Ruidoso was delivered Wednesday, Aug. 20. Rutalee Waters, president of the club, made the delivery on behalf of the club's membership.

The club solicited and received support from Lawrence Brothers IGA, Thriftway and Wal-Mart.

"Each store agreed to partner with us," Waters said. "They helped us collect donations of school supplies throughout the month of August. In fact, there will still be collection boxes at the stores for about the next two weeks."

Items donated thus far include Kleenex, glue, scissors, calculators, paper, crayons and more.

"You name it," Waters said, "we got it."

Waters said this is the first year of the program, which the Kiwanis Club hopes to continue in future years. Club members have supplemented donations made at local stores, bringing their donations to the club's regular meetings. The Kiwanis club's school-related philanthropy is not limited to supplies alone. "A portion of our budget is dedicated to providing underwear, socks and sweatpants for Sierra Vista Primary school," Waters said. The school, which is home to many of the community's first- and second-grade students, is in particular need for those items.

Call 257-2626 to arrange pickup of donations of school supplies or visit Lawrence Brothers IGA, Thriftway or Wal-Mart to contribute to the Kiwanis collection boxes.

The Kiwanis Club of Ruidoso meets Tuesdays at noon at K-Bob's.

'People's Law School' starts Aug. 28

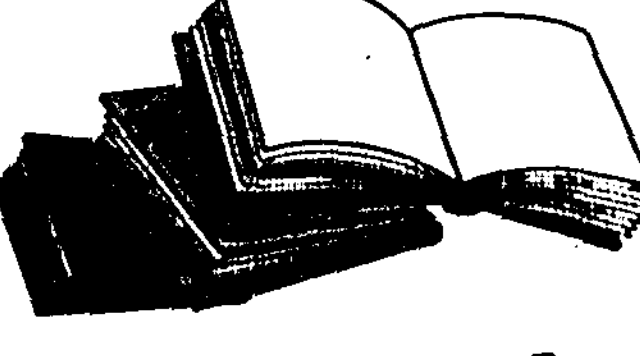

Eastern New Mexico University-Ruidoso and the 12th Judicial District Bench and Bar Association will offer the Sixth Annual "People's Law School" beginning Thursday, Aug. 28. The eight-week course ends Oct. 16.

The People's Law School, a nationwide project of the American Bar Association, gives citizens an overview of state and federal court system and to seven different topics of law such as personal injury, domestic violence, criminal investigations and jury duty.

Cost of the course is $20 and there is no textbook. One credit hour of college credit is available by attending all eight sessions in the eight-week course.

Course registration continues this week with late registration beginning Aug. 25. For more information or to register, call 257-2120 or toll free at (800) 537-5376.

Sanchez starts 'dream job' as forest district ranger

BY DIANNE STALLINGS
RUIDOSO NEWS STAFF WRITER

Only on the job a few weeks before he was called on to tour with a congressman, Buck Sanchez knew that unlike some other areas of the country, he didn't have to worry about protests ruining the visit.

Attitudes about the forest are pretty much in sync in Lincoln County.

The Smokey Bear Ranger District's positive reputation is based on a spirit of cooperation between those who seek to protect the land from wild-fire, disease and infestation and those who seek to protect it from clear cutting, wildlife habitation destruction and soil disruption connected to all-terrain vehicles.

Taking time out for an interview while packing up his household near Albuquerque — including wife, Martha, and children, Forrest, a 5th-grader; Monica, a 7th-grader; and Brandon, a junior at the Colorado School of Mines — Sanchez called his new position as district ranger "a dream job."

Born in Raton 40 years ago, he grew up in several different locales around the state while his father worked as a conservation officer with the Game and Fish Department and his mother taught school.

Sanchez's exposure to outdoor life continued through his grandfather's job as livestock foreman on the Philmont/Scott Ranch, a 137,493-acre spread near Cimarron donated to the Boy Scouts of America.

"I spent a lot of time there," he said.

He decided in college by process of elimination to earn bachelor and master of science degrees in wildlife with a minor in range management and agriculture. While attending classes, he worked for the U.S. Forest Service in Montana, later spent 18 months with the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service in Texas and southern Arizona, and then a short time with the California Department of Parks and Recreation.

In 1990, he joined the Forest Service full time.

DIANNE STALLINGS/STAFF

'Collaboration' and 'accountability' will be the rules under which new Smokey Bear Ranger District Ranger Buck Sanchez will run his operation.

"I've been real fortunate," Sanchez said. "I've worked in every national forest in New Mexico. It's been a great opportunity."

He was at the Gila National Forest in the early 1990s, at the Santa Fe National Forest later in that decade as manager for the Valles Caldera National Preserve, formerly the Baca Ranch.

The situation there was unique, with a government-owned corporation managing the preserve and a board of trustees governing the trust established, to ensure its future.

Time also was spent in the Carson National Forest, and most recently, as deputy district ranger for the Sandia District of the Cibola National Forest.

"For the last 10 years, I've worked on obtaining the experience and knowledge to become a district ranger," Sanchez said. But he wanted to stay in New Mexico, in part because of his wife's teaching career here.

"The window opened on this job at the right time," he said. "It was a great opportunity."

Like his predecessor, Jerry Hawkes, who headed the district 14 years, Sanchez said his style is one of collaboration with accountability.

"Jerry laid a good foundation," he said. "I have a very open style, which should fit well here. The Smokey Bear District and Lincoln County have been blessed by a long-term cooperative relationship. That's not always the case (in other districts)."

"I think you can get a lot more done because of that."

He will continue with the program of reducing the fire hazard in the wildland/urban interface area of the national forest bordering, in some cases, intermingling with the village. Work will continue to be coordinated with the state Forestry Division, the village and the county, he said.

Forest health is the main issue of the community and the agency, he said.

"If some kind of intervention doesn't occur, the forests will burn or suffer from disease," he said. "My core value from the standpoint of the Forest Service is to provide safe and healthy working conditions for employees and to manage the forest for multiple uses in cooperation with other entities."

A pair of Lincoln County teams prepare for a new experience

Eleven-man play in 'Zozo: Blessing or curse?

BY MARTY RACINE
FOR THE RUIDOSO NEWS

CARRIZOZO — They say be careful what you wish for. You might just get it.

In Carrizozo, the citizens wanted 11-man football. They got it, and now first-year head coach Mel Holland is trying to put the pieces together, to see if they do, indeed, add up to 11.

This is no automatic first down. "Participation level is not as high as we'd like it right now," Holland said. "Hopefully we'll pick up some kids when school starts."

The idea behind the move to 11-man football came from former coach Pat Ventura, who wanted to involve more kids and felt the size of the student body warranted it.

"We got it accepted by the NMAA (New Mexico Activities Association), now we can't go back," said the new coach. "We've got large classes of boys coming up. If we get through this year, I think we'll make it."

Holland in fact coached 11-man football at the school some 15 years ago. "We did fairly well.

Carrizozo's got a great football tradition. Most towns don't want to go back to 11-man, but this community seems to think they do. Everybody's real positive to it. Not everybody's come around to getting involved with it yet, but that's part of it."

Holland, who also teaches physical education and coaches track and girls basketball, has had fewer than 30 boys in practice. They are young and younger.

"The kids are basically coming out of the lower level," he said. "Our offensive line will basically be freshmen."

Right now, he needs older, bigger kids. "We've got about 16 older kids. With injuries and the need to have some depth, we're going to need a few more."

The start of school might help. "Hopefully we can get some of these bigger kids, because we have that type of kid in school.

Getting them all involved is our goal, but it's a little different than it used to be: Kids have a lot of different options. Football is hard work. There are benefits, but it's hard work."

For those on hand, lack of experience with 11-man ball will also be a hurdle. The bigger guys, the linemen types, weren't suited to the old six-man game and didn't bother.

If you can't blow people off the ball you tend to rely on a passing game. This year Carrizozo will air the leather.

Hondo Eagles fired up about home field

HONDO — Hey, everybody! Hondo has a field! Seriously, that's the biggest thing to happen to this small community in a while, and Hondo football coach Brandon Devine is quite pleased.

"The kids are more excited. We can shoot for district and state now, and have a full schedule," Devine said.

OK, now the reality sets in. The field isn't completed just yet — in fact, there aren't even any bleachers there yet. Until the turf takes hold, the team has to practice in tennis shoes on the parking lot adjacent to the gym, or in the gym itself.

And Hondo's first game of the year is Aug. 29 at Melrose, the No. 4-ranked team in the state according to SixManNation.com.

See EAGLES, page 3B

Hondo coach Brandon Devine, center, stands with the Eagle six-man football team on their new home field, still under construction. Although the field should be ready for their first home game on Sept. 6, the team still has to practice either in the parking lot or in the HHS gymnasium.

Lady Grizzly coach excited

CARRIZOZO — Pam Allen is enjoying the game again.

"I feel real enthused about this season," said the new coach at Carrizozo High School. "I'm having more fun than I've had in years."

That's saying a lot. Allen is a legend in New Mexico volleyball. In 32 years she has guided four state champions: Dexter in 1974-75, Roswell Goddard in 1980 and Capitan in 1988. That Tiger team went undefeated.

Allen, a Capitan native, coached Capitan High from 1987-1995.

Following a stint in Artesia, she's now in her first year at Carrizozo, where she will also coach track and field and teach a strength and conditioning class.

Her volleyball squad is short and shorthanded — with only nine players so far — but it is quick, intelligent and competitive, she said.

"If you're going to be small you'd better be quick, and we are. And to make up for our overall lack of stature we've got to play really hard, and

Hondo volleyball hoping to stir things up in the valley

BY TODD FUQUA
RUIDOSO NEWS SPORTS EDITOR

HONDO — The biggest story in Hondo this fall is the new football field. But don't think the excitement generated in the community isn't affecting the Lady Eagle volleyball team.

According to coach Julie Montoya, this town spirit is something new.

"Basketball has always been the number one sport here," Montoya said. "We're trying to bring more excitement to volleyball now."

To do that, Hondo will have to be defensive. They're without too much height, so Montoya is working on their ability to dig the ball and keep the ball in the air.

If the Lady Eagles are tenacious enough, they might be able to outlast the other team long enough until their opponent makes a mistake. That type of play becomes even more crucial this year, as the New Mexico Activities Association has instituted new rules which will make the game more compatible with the college game.

In the past, only the team serving could score, with a fifth game necessitating "rally scoring," allowing a point any time a team makes an error, regardless of who is serving. Also, serves which hit the net are still considered in play.

That's how it's done in college, and now that's how it will be in New Mexico high school competition.

About the only difference will be the point system. All games will now go to 25 points, as opposed to the 30 points at the college level.

"The rally scoring brings more excitement to the game," Montoya said. "Being defensive will help us, but we have to make sure we make our serves."

Hondo isn't all that loaded in experience, boasting only three seniors in Josephine Gutierrez, Harmony Haun and Samantha Gomez. But a pair of them — Gutierrez and Haun — were effective hitters last year and Montoya hopes they

Scrimmage to be held in Mescalero

Anyone planning to be at Horton Stadium this weekend for Ruidoso High School's annual football scrimmage will be in the wrong place.

The defending state champions will indeed scrimmage — tonight at 6:30 p.m. rather than Saturday morning — but they won't be on their home field.

Due to continued construction of new light standards at Horton, the Warriors will be heading to Mescalero tonight for a scrimmage against Cibola.

RHS athletic director Ron Wall has also tentatively scheduled the Warriors' first regular-season game against Robertson to be played at Mescalero.

To reach the school, take Highway 70 past the entrance to Inn of the Mountain Gods and turn right at the Mescalero School sign.

the track long. It's the greatest spectator sport that allows gambling. With that in mind, let's look at some things that are basic to winning.

Don't bet your eating money. Only wager amounts you are comfortable with. Today is not the end. How many times have been down and want to catch up? Usually you just dig the hole deeper. There is always tomorrow.

Handicapping, or as I say, selecting horses that fit the conditions of the race, will usually narrow the field down to about five contenders. If the race is written for non winners of three lifetime and there are horses entered that have won more than that, try to find one that fits the conditions.

With the contenders decided, I take the top five. If the top two are being bet down to less than 2-to-1, I look for one of my other three and make the win bet on one that has the best odds ranging from 7-to-2 up to 7 or 8-to-1. You have picked five horses that you think could win. Now it's an odds game. If one of our top two horses looks like he can win, regardless if the odds are lower than 2-to-1, then I might key that horse on top of one or two of my other horses in an exacta.

Look for a horse that encountered prior trouble that was not self-caused. Watch when a horse gets knocked off stride and finishes strongly. Let's avoid getting ourselves in trouble by knowing the difference between the right and wrong trouble lines.

Join us at our seminar race days one hour before post time at the east end of the grandstand on the ground level. We will be happy to answer any of your questions. Hear our prediction show "The Winners Circle" at 8 a.m. and 10 a.m. on KRUI 1490AM, KWMW 105-1FM and KNMB 96.7 FM. Hourly updates and the results at 8 p.m. on KRUI.

'ZOZO: 'Competitive' team ready to take the court

they are profoundly competitive, I believe," she said. "What I've seen of them to this point, these kids want to be good. I think they'll really get after it in a competitive situation."

"They seem to be a very bright group of girls. They're trying to do the things that they're asked to do. That always makes a coach feel really good about what's going on in the gym."

Unless Allen adds some players — "I don't know if we'll pick up two or three more kids or not," she said — lack of depth could hurt Carrizozo. The New Mexico Activities Association restricts players to five games, varsity and junior varsity combined, in an evening. Because of the unknown factor — a varsity match is a best of five and JV is best of three — Allen will have to juggle lineups.

"The problem with volleyball is, you don't know when it's going to end," she said. "If you take the liberty to play a young lady in three JV games because you think you can beat their varsity [easily] and then you get into an extended four- or five-game match at the varsity level, you may be in trouble for substitutions."

There are rules changes this year. Previously, the first four games of a five-game match were "standard score," in which only the serving team can score. The fifth game was "rally score," in which either team can score when a play ends. Now, all five games will be rally score, with the first four played to 25 points and the fifth to 15 points; last year all games were to 15 points.

Rally scoring, adopted at the collegiate and international levels, should speed the game up.

"In New Mexico there's been concern about the length of the matches," Allen said.

Allen's coaching style emphasizes fundamentals. "Volleyball is a very fast-paced game and if your team has fundamentals that are suspect you're in trouble, because your ability to handle the ball breaks down quickly."

Enter her assistant, local product Mandy Baca. "Unlike a number of people with whom I've worked, Mandy has an eye for a technical error," Allen said. "She has a gift in that area. It's hard to correct mistakes when you don't see that a child, for example, doesn't have her left foot in front of her right, or that she's dropping her elbow when she swings on a ball. Mandy sees."

In practice sessions Allen views conditioning as a bi-product of drills. "If everybody in the gym is involved in the drill, then the kids are moving continuously, versus having two kids working with the ball and everybody else standing and watching."

And she harps on team play, declining to single out individuals.

"The fastest way in the world for a bunch of kids to get off track is to start reading about how one of them is the superstar. I think that's more peculiar with girls than it is with boys," Allen said. "Volleyball is the purest of team sports. You don't have an opportunity to be selfish, because you can't hold the ball, and there has to be absolute teamwork, or everything you're trying to do on the floor breaks down."

"The chemistry of the kids on the floor is real critical to success. We're not going to get involved in who is the best this and who is the best that, because our team is only as good as our weakest person. What we all have to do is try to elevate that one individual."

She's working on it. "I look forward everyday to being here and having the opportunity to work with these kids because of the attitude that they've had," Allen said. "They're working hard, and I think we're going to have a great year."

EAGLES: Field of dreams for Hondo boys

Once they get into District 4 play, they face the top-ranked team in the state in Tatum, and last year's state-runner up in Lake Arthur.

At the very least, those are the only two teams they have to concern themselves with in district. Gateway Christian — last year's state champion — won't even field a team this season due to the departure of coach Brent Green and a resulting mass exodus of students to the newly-formed Valley Christian school. Carrizozo makes the jump to 11-man football this season, leaving just three teams in District 4.

"Realistically, we have the talent. If we do the same things in the game as in practice, we can contend," Devine said. "No one is too far ahead of us."

Devine views his pre-district schedule — which also includes tilts against the Corona/Vaughn Wings, Bethel, Evangelical and Clovis Christian schools and House — as a chance to improve his team greatly.

"This is a learning experience for us," Devine. "If we lose, it won't be that discouraging. These kids have everything to gain and they're just getting better."

As always seems to be the case with area teams, Hondo is young, boasting only three seniors on its roster. But those three seniors — Eddi Valenzuela, Saul Acosta and Derek McTigue — can provide quite a punch with their talent.

Valenzuela — who could have contended for the 100-meter dash title at last year's state track meet but for an injured hamstring — will be the Eagles' work-horse in the wide-open sport of six-man football.

Acosta is a versatile player who can play just about any position, while McTigue is a receiver without too much size, but a big heart.

All three were all-district selections last year, and Devine will rely on their talent, experience and leadership capabilities this season.

"They're really excited about this year, but it hasn't hit the newer kids yet," Devine said. "They should catch on when we get to play our first home game. We got great support on the road last year, and we're looking for even more now."

"The community is really hungry for football in Hondo now. The spirit is contagious."

Did we get it right? Do you agree these are desirable changes for Ruidoso?

Increased cultural events in the new cultural arts center. The arts should figure prominently in the future

A state-of-the-art wastewater treatment plant.

A well-designed, safe road network that accommodates all users.

A moderate amount of planned, "smart" growth that complements the natural and cultural landscapes and has a consistent visual character.

A more "walkable" and "bikeable" community.

Quality public schools that serve all students. Educational opportunities are available for lifelong learning, including a wide array of college-level courses.

A healthy community that stresses wellness.

Conservation of the natural mountain landscape and open spaces, including the effective management of the forest and water, mandatory recycling, unobstructed views of the mountains, clean air, and dark night skies.

A "college town" atmosphere.

Housing that is affordable by the full range of the population of the Village. This would include incentives to remodel, replace or remove existing housing.

Assisted living for seniors.

A regional plan for water use, quality and conservation. It should tie development to the availability of water and offer special incentives for homeowners and developers who implement wise water use plans.

A vibrant mid-town.

A variety of new parks, a trail system with a river walk, recreational facilities (including a multi-purpose community/recreation center) and activities for everyone, especially youth.

A more vital, diverse economy that is not so dependent on tourism and provides greater support for local businesses.

Preservation of the Village's historic roots.

Enhanced cooperation with other local jurisdictions, particularly the City of Ruidoso Downs, the Mescalero Apache tribe

A friendly, convenient village-scale transit service that moves residents and visitors within town and to surrounding communities.

Our Process So Far...

1. More than 60 citizens attended a meeting to kick-off the process and to brainstorm ideas. May 2003

2. A "Portrait" of Ruidoso was distributed throughout the community. Then, more than 500 local residents and visitors said what they "treasure" about Ruidoso, how they pictured a desirable future, and what concerned them. June 2003

3. A Vision Statement is being drafted by the citizens and will be approved by the Village Council. September 2003

4. Citizens will say what should be done to achieve the vision. September 2003

5. Experts will build on the citizen ideas to draft preliminary plans. September 2003

6. Citizens will participate in an interactive process to create acceptable alternative scenarios. October 2003

7. A draft of a Comprehensive Plan will be distributed for review. December 2003

8. A final Comprehensive Plan will be presented to the Village. January 2004

'Zozo Schools swear in Ferguson

BY JULIE CARTER
FOR THE RUIDOSO NEWS

■ The new school board member takes over for the resigning Eldon Offutt, who was also honored at Tuesday's meeting.

New school board member Matt Ferguson was officially sworn in to office Tuesday night at the regular monthly meeting of the Carrizozo School Board. Ferguson was appointed last month in a special meeting to replace the resigning Eldon Offutt.

Superintendent Sergio Castañon informed the board that he had special plaque made for Offutt in appreciation of his years of service to the Carrizozo Schools. Offutt was unable to attend the meeting to receive the plaque but Castañon had made arrangements for it to be delivered to him.

Castañon informed the board of two resignations he had accepted from staff members. Bryan Wetzel has tendered his resignation to take employment with the Las Cruces school system. Cissy Gore resigned from the payroll of the Carrizozo School system to work in the Lincoln County Head Start program in Carrizozo Schools.

New teachers on staff this year will be Pam Allen, working as the athletic director and head volleyball coach. Helene Kobelnyk will be teaching mid and high school math and some junior high science. Teresa Burns has been hired as the special education coordinator and high school special education instructor.

The board approved a list presented of substitute and activity bus drivers. Those drivers for the 2003-2004 are, Cissy Gore, Steve Gore, Everett Greer Jr., Sharon Hefker, Mike Gaines, Barbara Roper, Hayden Smith, Buddy Hill, Melody Gaines and Shelley King.

A construction pre-bid meeting for the industrial arts and preschool project will be held Sept. 18 at 10 a.m. in the school administration conference room. Interested parties are welcome to join the meeting. Bids will be opened Sept. 25 at 2 p.m. at the school. A special board meeting will be scheduled to accept the bid for the project.

In other business, the board:

- Approved the 2003-2003 milk bid from Sturgis Venture Market

- Approved of property disposition to the Carrizozo Police Department

- Approved a resolution for sale of a bond.

First day of school for kindergarten through fifth grade will be Aug. 25, with grades 6-12 having started on Aug. 20.

The next regularly scheduled meeting will be Sept. 16 at 6 p.m.

Looking beyond the 'romance' of the cowboy lifestyle

So ya wanna be a cowboy! In today's job market, being a cowboy isn't a very good bet. Ranches that need cowboys are dropping like flies to the pressures of government regulation and environmental restrictions. And if that hasn't nailed them to the bank vault wall, high operating costs and a poor rain distribution plan has.

Still, almost every little boy goes through a stage of cowboy dreams. At one time or another they've owned a stick horse, a set of plastic six shooters and a hat with a stampede string on it. They've pinned on a badge and chased the bad guys 'til sunset and roped wild cows 'til suppertime. That part of the romance will remain alive as long as movies and television keep the dream alive.

And those little boys? Many of them grew up to be boys who still want to be cowboys. They've gotten college degrees, worked in big business, held down suit-and-tie jobs and managed a portfolio that may or may not let them afford to be cowboys.

The cowboy image is a marketing giant. If it's cowhide-covered, cowboy-picture-adorned, silver-trimmed, leather-backed or framed in "barn" wood, it's labeled cowboy and it's surely almost pretty close to authentic. The items are seen everywhere in every kind of store or catalog. But you can bet 99.9 percent of the marketers behind selling the cowboy dream never stepped foot in any real cow stuff!

Back here on the ranch where cowboying means the work we do with the cows in the spring and the fall, the romance isn't so fanciful. Between branding in the spring and shipping in the fall there are many months of that cowboy stuff that Hollywood hasn't discovered.

When was the last movie you saw where they were fixing windmills, digging up pipeline to find the leak and mechanic-ing on a pump jack engine? Hauling fuel to generators, driving a feed pickup, and welding back anything that broke last year are just some of those less than John Wayne kind of jobs.

And did I mention if you are working for cowboy wages you'll be poor enough to qualify for welfare too? Not that any self respecting cowboy would do that. Benefits? That would be the fact there is no time-clock so you are on call 24/7 and a new catch rope is about as exciting as life will get.

Yes, you'll see first hand all those sunsets and sunrises the artists paint. And you'll see the 12 hours on either side of them on many days. I know I can continue to tell you all the things about cowboying you didn't read in the little book that comes in the Wrangler jeans pocket, but you aren't going to let me kill your dream. You still wanna be a cowboy.

And you know what? I don't blame you. It's the reason that those of us that are here, are still here.

Fair board looks to work out kinks for next year

BY JULIE CARTER
FOR THE RUIDOSO NEWS

The Lincoln County Fair Board and the Junior Livestock Sale committee met Wednesday and made additions and changes as needed for next year's fair and sale.

The fair schedule was adjusted to accommodate the difficulties encountered with several of the livestock events. It also freed all exhibitors up to be available for the awards ceremony on Saturday morning. Although the exact week of the fair has not yet been decided until conflicting event dates are determined, the Monday-Saturday schedule was adjusted.

The rabbit show, followed immediately by the poultry show, will be held at 5 p.m. Tuesday the week of the fair. Dairy goats will show on Wednesday at 8 a.m. followed by Pygmy goats. The swine show will be that evening at 5 p.m. Thursday morning cabritos will show at 9 a.m., dairy heifers at 1 p.m. and the lamb show at 5 p.m. Friday's line up starts with the horse show at 8 a.m., breeding cattle at 1 p.m., followed by market steers. The dog show and lead class will be Friday evening as before.

Added to the 2004 fair will be two adult showmanship classes. Named the Poppa Pig and Mama Lamb showmanship event, buckles will be given to the winner of each class. The swine showmanship for men will take place immediately following the swine show. Women will compete the following evening after the lamb show. Board members expect the events to be entertaining for those in and out of the show ring.

The board passed a change in the horse show, awarding buckles to high-point youths in lieu of individual event buckles.

A buckle will be given to the senior, junior, and novice youth who earn the most points accumulated by placing in the horse classes. All horse show entries will be required to include with their entry form a brand inspection certificate. The April 15 deadline is still in effect, but in accordance with other livestock entries, a $50 per head fee will be charged for late entries.

The Ruidoso Garden Club was represented at the meeting and has offered to help promote and oversee the flower and garden show in next year's fair. A unanimous vote from the board set that project in motion.

Three new fair superintendent appointments were made and voted on by the board. Kristen Sultemeier will be the junior inside superintendent. The dairy goat superintendent appointment went to Kim Beauvais. Kortney Hall and Julie Carter will share the responsibilities for the position of horse superintendent.

On the schedule for fair ground use are two upcoming youth rodeos. A New Mexico High School Association sanctioned rodeo is scheduled for Sept. 13-14, and an open youth rodeo for Oct. 2-3.

The next regularly scheduled fair board meeting will be Sept. 17 at 7 p.m.

Improvements for Grindstone OK'd

■ A system that captures leaked water should be better and safer with changes, a water official says.

BY DIANNE STALLINGS
RUIDOSO NEWS STAFF WRITER

Changes to the pump-back system at Grindstone Reservoir that captures water lost from leaks should enhance employee safety and be more effective, Ruidoso's top water official says.

Village councilors last week approved $190,000 already in his water budget for the changes outlined by Larry Grasmick, village water director.

To offset that expense, Grasmick wrote in a memorandum that savings should result by reducing the operational, maintenance and training expenses required when an acid system is used. Under the new approach, employees won't need to store and handle concentrated sulfuric acid, he wrote.

Originally, the plan was to enhance the acid injection pump-back system, repair the pumps and train village employees.

But Ben Mason, associate executive director of the Rio Ruidoso River Association, conducted experiments that showed a simpler and better solution. Mechanical agitation will bring the alkaline-acid balance to an acceptable level to pump the leakage water back into the Grindstone Lake, he wrote.

The level is produced through the natural turbulence of the stream.

Councilors approved constructing a concrete vault and piping system to catch the surface flow near the boundary of village property and pump it back through the existing pipe line to the reservoir. Rip-rap will be placed at strategic locations to increase the turbulence of the stream.

The village receives credit from the State Engineer for leaked water that is recaptured.

In other action, the council:

- Approved a task order for Wilson & Company to provide for the location and property survey and design to build an Eagle Creek Bypass. The automated diversion of high turbidity water will send it directly to the Duck Pond or to Alto Lake, instead of passing it through the water treatment plant to the stream below the dam. About $175,000 is budgeted for the project.

- Accepted the preliminary and final plats for Sherwood Forest Cabins proposed for Yorston Tracts submitted by applicant Bill Yorston. Five lots will each contain less than a quarter of an acre. Another lot will be slightly more than three-quarters of an acre.
- Accepted the recommendations of a DWI Task Force, noting that the first step is to apply for a state grant to help fund the program.
- Vacated a right of way in Alto Crest Subdivision for KEDU-LP Community Radio.
- Granted a license to use a right-of-way at the intersection of Camelot Drive and U.S. 70 to Best Western.
- Ratified a New Mexico Arts Grant agreement for $10,585 for the village Arts Commission.
- Took no action on authorizing a feasibility study on rehabilitating an old well at Ruidoso High School.

Heritage Program can help people with depression

BY JAMES MARTIN
FOR THE RUIDOSO NEWS

This is a continuing series of health-related columns from the Lincoln County Health and Wellness Council.

She came to group complaining of stomach pain, dizziness, weakness, loss of interest, feeling nervous and overwhelmed. Diagnosed with major depression her current medications were reviewed and antidepressants were added.

After a few group sessions she began to talk about the death of her husband and two sons. As she began to open up about her grief, her physical ailments increased, but shortly thereafter diminished. After some progress, other family members became ill. Her ability to manage the crises was greatly enhanced with the aid of group members and a competent staff of caring professionals. At discharge, there was marked improvement physically and emotionally. She has since experienced the loss of her brother without needing readmission.

Clinical depression is far more than the ordinary "down" moods everyone experiences now and then, and which pass after a visit with a friend or a good movie. Depression is also more than a feeling of grief after losing someone you love. Following such a loss, for many people, a depressed mood is a normal reaction to grief. It is during these difficult times that people may find it helpful to join a mutual support group, such as widowed-persons, to talk with others experiencing similar feelings.

However, it isn't "normal" to feel depressed all the time when you get older; in fact, most elderly feel satisfied with their lives. Nonetheless, among people 65 and over, nearly six out of 100 suffer from clinical depression. It can be serious and can even lead to suicide.

But there is good news. Nearly 80 percent of people with clinical depression can be treated successfully with medications, psychotherapy, or a combination of both.

The introductory story is a true story of an elderly woman who experienced success as a result of her participation in the Heritage Program for Senior Adults. The Heritage Program, a professional department of Lincoln County Medical Center, at 101 Raines Road in Ruidoso, is an outpatient mental health treatment program that provides intensive treatment up to three hours per day. It is open Monday through Friday, 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m.

A licensed multidisciplinary treatment team supervised by a psychiatrist provides treatment. Patients are treated in the least restrictive environment and are able to return to their homes each afternoon.

The Heritage Program offers psychiatric intervention with treatment goals of restoring patients to optimum mental and physical health; to alleviate symptoms that interfere with the individual's ability to function; to support the integrity of the family; and to maximize independence. Program components include: group, family or individual therapy; coping and positive living skills; grief and loss resolution; stress management; assertiveness training; medication management; wellness training; daily living skills; nutritional information; and exercise. Lunch and snacks are also provided.

Referrals to the Heritage Program can be made by physicians, health care professionals, human service agencies, clergy or concerned family members or friends. Complimentary transportation to and from the program can be arranged. Vans are equipped with wheelchair lifts. Medicare, Medicaid and most private insurance plans cover cost of services.

If you or someone you know is 55 years of age or older, and are experiencing two or more of the following symptoms: troubled sleep, loss of energy, impaired concentration, low self-esteem, feelings of helplessness, increased irritability, hopelessness about the future, excessive anxiety/guilt/anger or hurt feelings, loss of motivation, or social withdrawal, call (505) 257-0491 or 256-0492 for a free, confidential evaluation.

James D. Martin, M.Div., M.Ed., LPC is the program manager for the Heritage Senior Program and a speaker for professional conferences, civic organizations, and churches.

Fill the Spaces

This young man isn't bothered by the spaces in his life. In fact, he is rather proud of them. In those awkward spaces he will develop "grown-up" teeth. It never occurs to him that in the plan of things, God would not give him bigger and better teeth. As we become older we develop different spaces. Perhaps college is behind us and there are no job offers. Maybe we want to get married, but prospects are few. Sometimes we flounder in the space following a divorce or the death of a loved one. What will fill the spaces? God will still fill the spaces. Just as this young boy has no fear, we must trust God to use the spaces in our lives to develop us into stronger and more mature individuals. It is during those times we must increase in faith or falter. Do you have a space in your life? Let God fill it with faith as you worship at your church or synagogue this week.

All the right moves

To do anything well, it takes a lot of practice. RE/MAX agents average more experience and more sales than other agents. They know the business inside out, back wards and forwards. But to do their job as perfectly as possible, there's one thing they want to know better: your family. Because when you match your particular real estate needs and wants with RE/MAX expertise, the results are sure to be outstanding.

THE SIMPLEST SALE EVER!

Back by Popular Demand

Gateway Nissan announced earlier this month a move to immediately claim a larger segment of the El Paso and Las Cruces market share. "What we didn't imagine is how much the public liked this very simple way of doing business", said Eduardo Cepeda, General Manager of the dealership. This sale was in response of the need for future larger inventory levels required by plans of expansion and facility construction, already in the works.

Cepeda also stated that his management team tried to find a name for the sale but couldn't because it was so simple.

When the immediate need for inventory turn exists, all we can do is quit thinking about "how much" and think, "how many" continued Cepeda, this in essence puts the consumer in control because it now is not a matter of profit to the dealer, the unit just has to be sold! This could be a risky proposition, and severely damage the profitability of the selling cycle, but "it's a chance we are going to take" added Cepeda.

The way it works is almost silly! Do extensive research of all your competitors advertising, make the consumer a substantially better offer, make that better offer clear with a tag on every vehicle, and guarantee that offer in the very unlikely event the consumer found a lower price on an identical vehicle by paying double the difference in cash.

We will even let our customers purchase a vehicle and drive it a week to let them find a better price, if they do, we will cut them a check for twice the amount of the difference!

As incredible as it may sound, all claims made by the dealer are to be put in writing and notarized upon request, stated Jerry Rodriguez, the new vehicle manager. For this second time, word of mouth has already traveled and people know this is a solid offer!

Marty Pelech, finance director, contacted multiple financial institutions to advise them of the expected increase in business volume for this event, many offered to keep a representative on site for on the spot approval, and due to special arrangements with Fresh Start finance, everyone with a job will get a line of credit, and for this second time, those institutions agreed to be on site as well.

Earlier this month Jesse Cabello, General Sales Manager said: "I retrieved a tag from one of the cars thinking it was a mistake" the M.S.R.P. was $15,030.00 on a 2004 Sentra and the tag read $11,495.00* that is $3,535.00 savings! I took it to Mr. Cepeda and he said, "Put it back! I may be crazy, but very serious about this; I just hope the public takes advantage of these prices" The tag also showed a payment of $172.00 for 60 months, Cabello added. Now, we are doing it again due to the number of people asking for the sale after finding from friends and relatives that this time I am not going to ask Mr. Cepeda if it is a mistake, even when this time I see lots of vehicles with similar savings. I have found Nissan Altimas with $4,000.00 savings From the M.S.R.P.* Pathfinders with $6,000.00 off The M.S.R.P.*

It is very important to remember that there will not be ANY new vehicles without a markdown, NONE! While many of the competitors will not even talk to you about the savings on a 350ZX, or a 2004 Quest, these 72 hours there will be NO exclusions and every car, truck or SUV will be marked down.

One more time, If you find any issues with this sale, and don't agree is as simple as I described, please contact me directly! Concluded Cepeda.

Diamonds to sparkle on Spencer outdoor stage

During an age when optimism was endless and the future was sparkling bright, a form of music took hold that America has never let go: Doo-Wop – the great harmonies that inspired rock 'n' roll.

If you go

what: The Diamonds

when: Saturday, August 30, 8 p.m.

where: Spencer Theater for the Performing Arts, 220 Airport Highway, Alto

The historic vocal quartet, The Diamonds, best exemplifies the unique vocal styling of the 1950s with upbeat tempos and harmonies that prompt audiences to swing with happiness. The four-part male harmony group shares its greatest hits on the

Spencer Theater's outdoor stage on Saturday, August 30, at 8 p.m. Excellent lawn seating is available for $38. Call the Spencer Box Office at 336-4800 or go on-line at www.spencertheater.com for information. Tickets will also be sold at the gate the night of the concert:

Singing with a smooth, sophisticated style, The Diamonds will revue their classic songs like "Little Darlin'" and "The Stroll," as well as other favorite hits from the enchanting 1950s and 1960s musical era: Bobby Vinton's "Blue Velvet," The Big Bopper's "Chantilly Lace," Bobby Darin's "Splish Splash," Danny and The Juniors "At The Hop," and Elvis Presley's "Love Me Tender."

Featuring bass singer Jerry Siggins, lead vocalist Steve Smith (who was the solo male voice on "The Lawrence Welk Show"), baritone Gary Owens and and top tenor John Sherburn, these enduring songmen maintain a sweet, sentimental style. In concert halls and theatres across the U.S. and Europe, the four singers joyfully stretch the vocal chords, ushering in warm memories of one of the most buoyant times in American history with some of the most durable hits of the century.

CDs of The Diamonds' music will be sold at the theater following the concert. Patrons are encouraged to bring a chair or blanket for a lovely evening on the Spencer's plush Kentucky Blue Grass lawn. The audience is also encouraged to bring snacks or picnic dinners.

ENMU jazz players pay visit

BY SANDY SUGGITT
VAMONOS EDITOR

Free jazz in the open air is slated for this weekend: the Concert-in-the-Park at School House Park from 2-4 p.m. on Sunday, featuring the Eastern New Mexico University Faculty Jazz Players.

Bring lawn chairs or blankets and plan to hang out to jazz music from the '30s through the '70s, as well as contemporary and original compositions for this concert sponsored by the Ruidoso Arts Commission. If it rains, the concert will move to the Senior Center next to the park.

The Faculty Jazz Players formed in 2000 as a creative outlet for the Portales campus music department faculty. Since then, the group has performed regularly throughout the region and on campus.

Saxophonist Chris Beaty, assistant professor of music, leads the group. John Kennedy performs on trumpet and flugelhorn, Dustin Seifert on trombone and euphonium, Neil Rutland on drums, Jorge Valenzuela on piano and Jim Constantopoulos on bass.

The Portales News-Tribune raved after a recent performance that the ENMU Faculty Jazz Players "alternately soothed and scorched the audience with an assortment of tunes from all sides of the jazz canon."

These concerts are free and great outings for the whole family.

For more information about Concerts-in-the-Park or the Ruidoso Arts Commission, call arts coordinator Mary Lea Lane at 378-4302.

Historic theater brought new art form to Carrizozo

Art, Craft and Such

Practical, creative ways to include fun in everyday living

by Polly E. Chavez

While painting, music dance, literature, theater, poetry, and other arts have been present since the earliest days, the motion picture is perhaps the only new art form to have been developed entirely within contemporary times.

Like painting, motion pictures present a two-dimensional image within the confines of a frame. "Movies," we called them in Carrizozo. As a child I could see a movie for 14 cents. As a teen my admittance fee was 50 cents. My generation has many fond memories of movies at the Lyric Theater, now a private building and residence.

Ed Young has put together the history of this building and the adjoining buildings. It begins in 1916 with Ira O. Wetmore and his construction of the trio building on Twelfth Street. The upstairs of the two-story on the corner of 5th Avenue had rooms for rent. The first floor was the dining room for lodgers. In later years it became known as "El Cibola Hotel." The middle building was the "Western Motors, Inc." and became a Ford automobile dealership. The Sierra Blanca Brewing Company currently occupies it.

The southern-most building was the "Carrizozo Theatre." It was an opera house, complete with an orchestra pit and dancing girls on a curtained stage. Meanwhile in a back room of the Exchange Bank (today's Masonic Temple building and headquarters of Lincoln County Historical Society), George J. Dingwall was showing motion pictures. Dingwall purchased the Carrizozo Theatre, changing its name to the Crystal Theatre, emphasizing the significant function of the crystal lens, which magnified the film's illuminated image onto the silver screen. Young, in his research, learned that on opening its doors on Christmas night, 1918, the first featured film starred Bryan Washburn in "Till I Come Back to You". The theater evolved into the "Lyric Theatre" on June 3, 1931, with the first talking picture shown in Carrizozo. "The Last Parade" starred Jack Holt, with Boris Karloff as a prison warden.

On October 7, 1975, the Carrizozo Association for the Performing Arts (CAPA), under the leadership of its president, Tom C. Ward, bought the Lyric. I was among local residents who served on the association. In a 1979 story, as a reporter for the Lincoln County News, I told about the movie house doors closing for approximately 15 years prior to the forming of CAPA. Young obtained a clipping of the story and learned that CAPA members worked diligently in the restoration of the historic Lyric Theatre. He found out that the Carrizozo Women's Club assisted CAPA in fund raising.

A controversy erupted in 1979 over movie ratings of certain films and the doors of the Lyric were closed. The Lyric was sold by auction on January 6, 1981. Young owns all three of the Wetmore Buildings. He has contributed several items to the Carrizozo Heritage Museum relating to the Lyric's early days.

Western

Rated R for violence.

Following the day-to-day encounters of four cattle herders who roam the countryside without owning a particular piece of land, or "freegrazers" (Costner, Duvall, Luna, Benrubi), living in the final years of the Wild West, this film tells the story of how they eventually team up to rid a burgeoning remote town, Harmonville, from the machinations of a ruthlessly evil rancher, Baxter (Gambon), who forms a sort of "outlaw state" where he makes the laws and rules, and enforces them using scare tactics and brute force.

Rated PG for mild thematic elements and some language.

A tomboy teenage girl, Annabel (Lohan), and her widowed mother, Ellen (Curtis), who are always arguing with each other, simultaneously wish they could be someone else, they somehow exchange bodies, as they both learn (or in the mother's case, remembers) what it's like to be in the other person's situation. As nice as that might be, the duo faces a deadline, as the mother is due to get married soon, and doesn't want to miss the big event (obviously) or for her daughter to get to know her new stepfather (Harmon) a lot better than she had expected... Death comes for Barney Riggs

Past Tense

by Drew Gomer
Historian, The Hubbard Museum of the American West

There were many famous desperadoes and lawmen (frequently they were the same men) in the Old West. Billy the Kid, Wyatt Earp, Jesse James, and a host of others are readily recognizable to most Americans. But what of the lesser-known gunmen?

Sometimes they were every bit the equals of their more famous counterparts, but simply didn't have the right publicist. Barney Riggs is as good an example as any...

Beginnings

Barney K. Riggs grew up at Salado, in Bell County, Texas. Born in 1856, he spent much of his youth working as a cowboy. About 1880, he moved to Arizona to cowboy on the ranches of various relatives who had previously relocated there. Like the rest of us, Barney was a flawed human being, but when he was good, he was very good. Riggs distinguished himself in two of the most remarkable instances of courage on record. Making one of them even more remarkable was the fact that it happened while Riggs was a prisoner at Arizona's Yuma Territorial Prison. He was later known to boast that he was the only man on record to be sent to prison for killing one man and released for killing two.

In February of 1882, Barney married

Vinnie Hicklin at Dos Cabezas, Arizona, and may have worked as a special deputy for Cochise County Sheriff John Behan at about the same time. This is interesting because it makes Barney a peripheral player in the Earp/Tombstone Saga, but details are lacking at this time.

Naughtiness

Richmond Hudson was a step-cousin and good friend of Barney Riggs, which is why many were puzzled when Riggs killed Hudson on September 29, 1886.

The cause, it seems, was the fair Vinnie. To Barney's credit, when he began to hear about and see indications that Hudson and Vinnie were involved in an adulterous affair, he did not rush to judgment and vengeance. But, in a very real sense, Hudson signed his own death warrant. Apparently satisfying his lust was not enough, because Hudson inadvertently began to boast around town that he had seduced Riggs, wife.

Well, that did it.

It seems that Hudson realized - too late, as it turned out - his faux pas in bragging about the "seduction," and elected, in the company of a friend, to leave the area. When Barney got wind of it, he announced that his former pal would never get out of Arizona alive.

On the evening of September 29, Hudson, and another cowboy named Ahearn, were working in a corral about 7 p.m. Ahearn suddenly realized that Riggs had walked up to the corral - in his stocking feet, for stealth - and before anyone could react, opened fire on Hudson inside the corral. Riggs' .44-40 Winchester was used to deadly effect and Hudson went down with bullets in the head, neck and hand.

At the time, most people felt that Barney was more than within his rights, but the law felt differently, as it is wont to do.

Even though most people felt that Barney was entirely justified in killing Hudson, he was tried twice (in Tombstone) and finally convicted of murder in the first degree and sentenced to "the dreaded" Yuma Prison.

The Break

Riggs realized the futility of any escape attempts he might dream up, and decided to try and get himself released through more conventional channels. In less than a year, he was made a trusty, and in 1887, he earned himself a pardon during the bloodiest escape attempt in the history of Yuma Prison.

The prison superintendent, Tom Gates, was seized by some alert and desperate prisoners, and ordered to have the main gate opened. A number of the prisoners were armed with knives and pistols they had secured, but despite that fact, the courageous Gates ordered his guards to open fire. When he did this, and guns began to roar from the guard towers, the prisoner holding him plunged a knife into Gates' shoulder and upper lung. Then, he twisted it. The pain was enough to make Gates lose consciousness.

While this was going on, Trusty Barney Riggs was racing toward the Superintendent and the men holding him. A few feet in front of him, a prisoner dropped with a guard's bullet through his brain. Barely breaking stride, Riggs picked up the fellow's pistol and continued on toward the little group that included the superintendent.

As he got close to them, Barney slowed down and began to raise his pistol. As a prisoner stabbed at him from one side, he brushed the fellow away, sustaining a minor wound to his arm. At the same time, Riggs pulled the trigger twice. The man who had stabbed Gates let the Superintendent free of his grasp, as he staggered backward, mortally wounded by Riggs' fire. When another prisoner lunged at him, Riggs dropped him, too.

Gates, despite the fact that he was losing consciousness during a large part of the few seconds in which Riggs became involved, was acutely aware of the fact that Barney Riggs had saved his life.

As you can easily imagine, Barney Riggs was released from prison in December of that year with a full pardon.

Pecos

After prison, Barney settled in Saragosa, near Pecos, in Reeves County, Texas. For about three years, he lived quietly, ranching. But in 1891, he married Annie Frazer Johnson, sister of County Sheriff Bud Frazer.

Frazer had a deputy by the name of Jim Miller. Now anyone remotely familiar with Western history will tell you, quite correctly, that Jim Miller - "Killin, Jim" - was known as the deadliest assassin for hire that the West had ever known. In the course of his bloody career, he may have killed as many as 50 people, always from ambush, always in a cowardly fashion. No one was safe, either. It has been reported that among his first victims were his own grandparents.

For a time, Bud Frazer was out of town, and Miller was left in charge. Of course, under Miller's less-than-watchful eye, vice began to flourish and by the time Frazer returned, the town was more or less wide open. Frazer immediately fired Miller and the Frazer-Miller feud was born.

The two men met twice and on both occasions, Frazer proved himself to be the better man with a pistol, dropping Miller each time with a bullet to the chest. The reason Miller did not die was simple: He had a metal breastplate sewn into the lining of his coat.

The feud reached its bloody conclusion when, in April of 1896, Miller leaned a double-barreled shotgun across the top of the batwing doors in a Toyah saloon, inside of which Frazer played cards with his back to the door. Bud never had a chance, taking both barrels of the heavily loaded shotgun squarely in the back of the head.

The feud continues

After Frazer's death, Miller let it be known that he wanted all of the Frazers, as well as Barney Riggs, to vacate the county. Barney ignored the request, and a couple of weeks after Frazer's death, Miller dispatched two men of his own mindset, which is to say murderously ruthless, to go and pay Barney Riggs a visit. Big mistake, as it turned out.

Riggs' friend, Dee Harkey, a noted lawman (most especially in his own estimation), heard about the two men - Bill Earhart and John Denson - and sent word to Barney of the impending arrival of the two triggermen.

On October 3, Denson and Earhart confronted Barney in Pecos' Johnson & Heard Saloon in a confrontation that, for once, comes fairly close to a Hollywood-style showdown. When the pair confronted him, Riggs (talk about nerves of steel!) waited patiently for one of them to go for a weapon. When Earhart finally did, he wasn't quick enough, and Riggs put a bullet through his head. He then did the same for Denson, who was fumbling about, trying to get his own gun into play.

Riggs was tried in El Paso and quickly found innocent of anything other than self-defense. Miller never bothered Barney or the Frazers again. After Riggs' death in 1902, a eulogy was written by Reeves County and District Clerk James Gibson. In it, discussing the deaths of Earhart and Denson, Gibson stated that "...thus ended the lives of two as unscrupulous cutthroats as ever smothered an infant at his mother's breast, and for this act alone Barney Riggs deserves at the hands of the law-abiding citizens of Reeves County a monument of imperishable marble..."

The end

For reasons that were never made clear, Barney Riggs began, at this point, to "hit the skids." He began to drink too much and it was rumored that he abused his family. Finally, Annie divorced him, and he began to get a reputation as a bad man to tangle with when he was drinking, which was most of the time. The administrator for the divorce was Barney's step-son-in-law, Buck Chadborn.

On April 7, 1902, Riggs, drunk as usual, approached Chadborn as the latter attempted to transport Annie and Barney's kids in a buckboard "for a visit to my place," as Chadborn stated later. It seems that Buck Chadborn was genuinely reluctant to resort to violence and regretted what happened for the rest of his life. But really, Barney left him no choice.

Approaching the buggy on foot, Riggs stopped them and then approached Chadborn, waving his heavy cane in a threatening manner. Chadborn, scared, noted that Barney's other hand seemed to reach back behind him. Buck shot him. "...I will always think that Barney was going for his gun. I did not go to pick up Annie with the idea of shooting Barney, but I was prepared. I tried my best because of my family to keep peace, but I knew Barney could be very mean when he was drinking and also very violent."

Well, Barney Riggs was unarmed at the time of his death, but it is easy to see how Chadborn could have been mistaken. Riggs was, after all, the killer of five men, two of them in a standup, face-to-face confrontation. He really was a man to be feared.

So, despite certain acts of undeniable valor in his lifetime, Barney Riggs met his death in a stupid, emotional, unnecessary confrontation with a man who wanted no trouble in the first place.

In the words of the Wizard of Oz's Wicked Witch of the West: "What a world. What a world..."

Sculpture with soul

Premiering Saturday at Expressions in Bronze is McGary's most recent masterwork, "Star Gazers," which portrays the Sioux mother, Red Elk Woman, with her daughter. A view from the back is at top right.

McGary to hold reception to reveal two new pieces

BY SANDY SUGGITT

Two new sculptures by Dave McGary will premiere at a reception from 6-9 p.m. Saturday at Expressions in Bronze Gallery, 2002 Sudderth Drive.

In "Star Gazers," McGary seems to have captured a conversation about the stars between Sioux mother Red Elk Woman and her daughter, lying in a beaded cradleboard. Perhaps they're studying the Milky Way, considered by the Plains Indians as the "Pathway of Departed Souls" to the Southern Star, the abiding place of the dead.

The ceremonial dress and especially the quilt look soft enough to rest on — the product of McGary's talent for meticulous detail. A beaded amulet with the baby's umbilical cord hangs from the cradleboard, considered a longevity charm by the Plains Indians.

This piece is the fifth in the Native American Women series, his third sculpture with a Star Quilt, McGary said. He had received three Star Quilts many years ago when he was adopted by the family of Gerald Red Elk, the Sioux tribal historian and descendant of Red Elk Woman at Fort Peck Reservation in Montana.

Stars were an important part of the culture of the Plains Indians and were featured in hide paintings, moccasins and clothing of the Plains Indians. McGary believes it was missionaries who introduced them to quilting.

"When the buffalo robes became scarce because they were forced to be on reservations, they continued the tra-

The other new piece, "Blessing of the Bear," finished in March, honors Oglala Sioux Kicking Bear, Mato Wanartaka, preparing for battle against the United States Cavalry. He holds up his bear headdress with more than 40 honor feathers on the trailer. Next to him is the Holy Man, smudging him with smoke of sweet grass and blessing him with an eagle wing prayer fan.

Thanks to McGary's mastery, the intricately beaded warshirt, bear claw necklace and face paint, along with every other facet of these figures, look like more lifelike than the things they replicate.

McGary came to Ruidoso 22 years ago from Santa Fe. Before that, he was in Italy for two years, one of four high school students awarded a grant to study with the top craftsmen of the world in the art of casting and dying bronze.

"I was in high school in Cody, Wyo. When I was 16, I dropped out of school and went to Italy. What I got to experience abroad was far better than any scholastic situation I could've been in."

He was asked to stay in Italy another year because of his progress, and he also studied anatomy and life drawing.

Returning to the States, he worked in a foundry in Santa Fe for three years, then opened his own studio.

In 1981, he set up a foundry in Nogal.

"I was intrigued by the area and people," McGary said. "I liked the mountains and the attitude of the people. They're very supportive and always have been."

After a few years, he outgrew the space in Nogal and leased one on Gavilan Canyon. In 1995, when he outgrew that, he bought, gutted and remodeled his current studio-gallery on Sudderth Drive. (It used to be a supperclub called Kings, with a bar and drive-through liquor store.) The entire gallery and production facility will be open for visitors to tour Saturday at the opening reception.

McGary began receiving gold and silver medals and best-of-show awards by 1982, and since then, his monuments have adorned state capitals and the nation's capital, and found

Family dog can be part of a family vacation

On the Go with Hank & Ellen

by Hank and Ellen Barone
Travel Writers and Photographers

Did you know that there are 55 million pet dogs in America today? The Los Angeles Times recently reported that more pets are going on vacation. That means more and more families are taking their beloved dog on their summer road trip this year.

According to a study conducted by the American Animal Association, 53 percent of pet owners vacation or travel with their pets today. No wonder pets are welcome at many hotel chains and campgrounds and this trend is growing in the hospitality industry.

Professional dog trainer Duane Overturf shares some important and helpful tips when considering traveling with your dog. "Why leave your dog at home with a pet sitter or in a kennel when they can come along for the fun?" explains Overturf. "With a little bit of preparation, taking your dog along for the ride can be a wonderful experience for the entire family."

Research pet-friendly lodgings and attractions. The AAA can give you names of hotel and resorts that cater to pets or you can look on line at www.takeyourpet.com, www.dogfriendly.com, www.petswelcome.com, and <http://www.pets-allowed-hotels.com>

1. Make reservations in advance and let the management know that you are bringing your dog. Sometimes, you will be charged a nominal fee.

2. Bring your dog's normal pet food brand and stick to its diet throughout your vacation. Changing food can upset your dog's stomach and may bring on diarrhea. Make sure your bring food and water bowls or paper plates and bowls.

3. If you are driving long distances, stop every three hours to allow your dog to relieve itself and drink some water. Many gas stations have dog runs. Bring bags to pick up after your dog.

4. Make sure your pet has on its regular identification as well as your cell phone number in case of emergencies. In a pinch, you can write the information in permanent marker on a piece of duct tape and attach it to your pet's collar.

5. Make sure your air conditioner is working and that your dog stays cool.

6. Bring an old towel with you to clean up after your dog. You can use the old towel to keep your pet cool by getting it wet with cold water and keeping it on your dog. When using water to cool off your dog, only get the underbelly wet.

7. Bring a first aid kit, grooming supplies and medications with you, as well as an extra collar and sturdy leash, just in case.

8. Buy a pet harness or a crate for your dog to make travel in a car safe. If you should be involved in an accident, the harness or crate will prevent your pet from going through the windshield or escaping if someone should open the car door.

9. Bring your pet's bed so they will feel at home wherever you are.

10. Don't leave your pet alone in a vehicle on hot days, even if the windows are rolled down. On warm days, the temperature in your car can rise to 120 degrees in a matter of minutes, even with the windows opened slightly.

Duane Overturf has been training dogs in Los Angeles since 1978. You can get in touch with him at (818) 999-3999 or by visiting <http://www.yourbestcompanion.com>.

RUIDOSO NEWS

Teach your children good, er, well

Dave's World

by Dave Barry
Tribune Media Services

We have come to the time of year when we remove the video-game controls — by surgery, if necessary — from the hands of our children, and send them back to school. And if they complain that school is a boring waste of time, we smack them firmly yet lovingly with a roofing timber and remind them of the words of our first president, Benjamin Franklin, who said: "There is nothing more valuable in life than an education, except of course money, or a nice car."

Those words are every bit as true today as they were in 1935, when "Porgy and Bess" was first performed. Knowledge is our nation's most precious resource, after agriculture and Ray Charles. Yet study after study shows that American children are not learning as well as children from foreign countries such as Sweden and Hawaii. On standardized tests, most American 12th-graders are unable to correctly answer such basic academic questions as:

1. When you wear a baseball-style cap, which part is supposed to go in the front?
 2. What is the difference between "hip-hop" and "music"?
 3. Who is Dick Cheney?
- (ANSWERS: 1. The front part. 2. Plenty. 3. None of your business.)

Why do our children perform so poorly on standardized tests? Does the fault lie with our teachers? With our school administrators? With our political leaders? Can we, as concerned parents, sue somebody over this and obtain millions of dollars?

Or maybe it's time that we parents stopped "passing the buck" on education. Maybe instead of "pointing the finger" at everybody else, we should take a hard look at ourselves in the mirror, and place the blame for our children's lousy test scores where it clearly belongs: on our children. They have a terrible attitude. I have here a letter, which I am not making up, from a teacher named Robin Walden of Kilgore, Tex., who states:

"I teach math to eighth-grade students. This is an unnecessary task because they are all going to be professional basketball players, professional NASCAR racecar drivers, professional bass fisher people, or marine biologists who will never need to actually use math."

This is a sad commentary on the unrealistic expectations of today's students.

Because the harsh statistical truth is that, in any given group of 10 young people, only a third of them, or 22 percent, will actually succeed as professional bass fishers. The rest will wind up in the "real world," where, like it or not, they will need a practical knowledge of math.

For example, I recently found myself in a situation at a bank where suddenly, without warning, I had to add up four three-digit numbers by hand. Fortunately, I went to elementary school in the 1950s, when we were in the Cold War, and American children were forced to learn addition, because the Russians were making THEIR children learn addition. Thanks to that training, I knew that, to get the correct answer, I had to "carry" some numbers. Unfortunately, I could not remember how to do this.

For some reason I COULD remember that "pi" is the ratio of circumference to diameter, but that did not help me in this case. (To be honest, it has never helped me.) But addition had leaked out of my brain, along with subtraction, multiplication, long division, the "cosine," the Smoot-Hawley Tariff, and most of the other things I learned in school, although of course my brain has carefully preserved the following jingle for Brylcreem hair ointment:

"Brylcreem, a little dab'll do ya. Brylcreem, you'll look so debonair I watch out, the gals'll all pursue ya. I love to get their fingers in your hair! Which is a total lie: Touching Brylcreem hair is like sticking your hand into the tail of a sick pig. But I digress. My point is that I finally gave up on adding my numbers and asked the bank teller, who came with a calculator, which uses tiny computer chips, which were invented during the Cold War, which we won. I am saying this was TOTALLY because of mathematics training; I am just saying it was a factor. And that is why we must stress to our children how important education is. We must tell them: Study hard. Learn as much as you can! Because your parents, are getting stupider by day. We're experiencing massive Brain Leakage. Soon even the commercial will be gone, and our heads will actually implode. Before that happens, we need to get out of the driver's seat, and turn the wheel over to you, the younger generation."

Don't ask us what we did with the keys.

Photographer is new chamber artist

Jesse Hofacket is also the director of physical therapy at Lincoln County Medical Center.

The artist through the end of September at the Ruidoso Valley Chamber of Commerce is photographer Jesse W. Hofacket.

Born and raised in Levelland, Texas, Hofacket attended South Plains College, received a bachelor's degree from Sul Ross State University, and a physical therapy degree from Duke University in Durham, N.C. After practicing physical therapy in Lubbock, Texas, for 26 years, he moved to Ruidoso, where he has been director of physical therapy at Lincoln County Medical Center for the last 13 years.

His interest in outdoor photography developed while living in the Big Bend area of Texas and the Caprock area east of Lubbock. Ruidoso and the surrounding areas provide an abundance of beauty to photograph and share with others.

Hofacket offers prints and Giclées as places in many private and public collections.

In 1994, he was chosen as the artist from the United States to have a one-man show in the United Nations Environment Programme's exhibit "Art and the Earth - A Dialogue with Nature."

His sculpture of eight horses was installed at the Hubbard Museum of the American West in 1995, with the park they gallop in designed and engineered by McGary. That same year he received the New Mexican of the Year Award and the Honorary Lifetime Alumni Award from Eastern New Mexico University for his contributions to the arts in New Mexico.

In 1998, "Touch the Clouds," a 30-foot tall monument weighing more than 10 tons, was installed at the Houston Astrodome.

In 1999, McGary sculpted "Chief Washakie," creating three monuments — one for the U.S. Capitol Rotunda and the other two at the Wyoming State Capitol and the joint Shoshone and Arapaho Complex in Fort Washakie. In 2000, after the dedication ceremony in Washington, D.C., the Washakie family donated a masterpiece of "Chief Washakie" to the permanent collection of the Smithsonian, and during that week, an exhibit, "Legacy in Bronze: The Life of Chief Washakie, The Works of Dave McGary" was displayed in the rotunda of the Russell Senate Office Building.

McGary has homes in Nogal and Scottsdale, and his work is in galleries across the country as well as in his own galleries in Ruidoso and Scottsdale.

Carrizozo museum plans holiday display

BY JULIE CARTER
FOR VAMONOS

After an extremely successful summer following its grand opening during Cinco De Mayo celebrations in town, the Carrizozo Heritage Museum is again premiering events to coincide with a holiday.

On Monday, Sept. 1, in conjunction with the Labor Day Street Fair, the museum will open its doors to a new feature inside. A 1930s ranch kitchen, from the board floor up to the milk cooler shelf next to the window, will take up a 30-by-30-foot corner of the main museum room.

Donations for this display have been gathering for months. Some restoration work has been in progress, along with the planning and building of the "room" to house the antiques. Fred English has donated an old Maytag kerosene-driven, wood-tubbed wringer washing machine. A pie safe came out of the Wilson Homestead at Chupadero. The Stephenson Ranch offered a Monarch wood cook stove.

A wood table and assorted chairs, some with cowhide-covered seats, came from the Hightower and Stephenson ranches. And just this week, an old family quilt was loaned to the museum by Marvin and Margie Peacock of Nogal. The quilt has signatures on it dated as early as 1902.

Assorted tins, dishes and the sparse utensils used by ranch kitchens in Depression years will be authentically displayed, right down to the red geranium in the window, planted, of course, in a lard can. The old weathered wood used for the walls and floor was a donation from a benevolent anonymous donor.

For one day only, on Sept. 1, the museum will have on display an original 1951 Divco (Detroit Industrial Vehicle Corporation) milk truck that was for 10 years owned by Jim Miller of Mountain Gold Dairy, an original tenant in the current museum building. Miller bought the truck after Paschall Dairy of Independence, Mo., the original owners, traded it for a larger truck in 1961. Jim painted the truck blue and lettered it with his information.

In 1995, the current owner, Ken Campbell of Albuquerque, bought the truck from J.D. McDaniel, who had it in his back yard in Vaughn for 24 years. The sun had bleached all but the slight traces of the blue away, leaving only the Mountain Gold lettering on it. Today you can see both the Paschall and the Mountain Gold lettering.

New, the Divco cost $2,140.

Forty-four years later and used from McDaniel it was $1,000.

Campbell has modified the truck to make it safe and drivable. He and the Divco were "movie stars" in 1990, in the movie "Hi-Lo Country" with Woody Harrelson.

Sandra Smith of Lincoln will also be at the museum on Labor Day. She will present a program, "What did Billy Look Like," based on the research done to prove the authenticity of images of "Billy the Kid." Sandra will make these images available in note card form at the museum that day.

The Carrizozo Heritage Museum is an affiliate of the Lincoln County Historical Society. Its regular hours are 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Tuesday through Saturday. For the event on Labor Day, the museum will have extended hours, opening at 10 a.m. and closing when guests no longer are arriving.
