Opening weekend pleases skiers

BY DIANNE STALLINGS
RUIDOSO NEWS STAFF WRITER

Although he wasn't offering exact numbers, the manager of Ski Apache said Thanksgiving weekend drew the size of crowds expected for the number of trails open.

"Considering what we had open, we had good numbers," said Denny Grover, who manages the ski resort north of Ruidoso owned by the Mescalero Apache Tribe. "We did pretty much what we projected."

Three chair lifts were operating, each serving a set of trails. Asked to characterize the turnout, Grover said, "I know people had to wait half an hour for dinner at Casa Blanca," referring to the added number of people in town to ski and shop.

Comments received from visitors to the slopes included, "I just returned from an opening trip to Ski Apache. While only a few trails were open, we had a blast."

"We had several e-mails from long-time customers who were pleased with what we had," Grover said. "Of course, they would have liked more, but we had what we had."

Denny Grover

While the weather was great for skiing, he would have preferred some snow, Grover said.

"We're doing business now during the week and making snow daily trying to get more terrain open," he said Tuesday.

"Snowmaking crews were making snow at midnight, then the clouds moved in, the temperature went up 12 degrees and they had to shut down."

Only Taos, Sipapu and Ski Apache opened over the weekend, Grover said, adding, "I'm sure all of them had numbers that were what they expected for what they had."

'Healthy forests' plan should help Ruidoso

BY DIANNE STALLINGS
RUIDOSO NEWS STAFF WRITER

Ruidoso should benefit from the passage of a Healthy Forests bill aimed at communities where homes interface with forests.

The Senate approved a bipartisan bill targeting the reduction of risk of catastrophic wildfires and disease on nearly 5 million acres of "high risk" forests in New Mexico. The Senate passed the Healthy Forests Restoration Act of 2003 Friday following a 286 to 140 vote in the House of Representatives. The bill waits to be signed into law by the President.

The bill authorizes $760 million a year for hazardous fuel reduction work, including projects authorized under the act, which is more than double current funding of $340 million.

The bill is structured to ensure forests in the worst conditions receive the most immediate assistance. New Mexico identified 4.72 million acres of forests designated at the high-

Two federal bills, one pending and the other signed into law by President George W. Bush, aim at easing tax burdens of veterans and contractual entanglements of soldiers fighting overseas.

U.S. Rep. Tom Udall, co-sponsor of a The Contract and Lease Liability for Uniformed Personnel (CALL-UP) Act, says soldiers wouldn't have to worry about penalties for breaking car leases, telephone contracts or home purchases if the bill becomes law.

Glen Loveland with the New Mexico Democrat's Washington, D.C., office, said the bill was referred for a hearing in February to the House Committee on Veterans Affairs, on which Udall serves.

"It's pretty much a bipartisan bill," Loveland said Monday. "I think more and more of the members in Congress understand the problems being created and I think it will garner substantial support."

Udall, a Democrat, said service members should not have to worry about paying for a car or cell phone they can't use because they were called to serve overseas. The Act would allow military members to be released from an automobile lease without a financial penalty, if they are assigned overseas. Other fees related to breaking the lease would be

Attempted-murder suspect caught in Texas

Thanksgiving arrest ends run for local man

BY SANDY SUGGITT
RUIDOSO NEWS STAFF WRITER

On Thanksgiving day, Amarillo, Texas, police arrested a man sought by New Mexico State Police, the F.B.I. and Ruidoso police since June on charges of attempted murder, sexual assault and kidnapping.

A charge of custodial interference by the Ruidoso Police Department was added in September to the charges made against Jose Gerardo Marquez, 30, of Ruidoso Downs, when his 11-year-old son went missing while in an El Paso mall with a friend and his father. An El Paso attorney returned the boy a little over a month later, on Oct. 9. Charges for eluding a police officer are pending through the Amarillo Police Department, according to a Ruidoso police detective. The F.B.I.'s charges against Marquez are for interstate flight to avoid prosecution.

On a routine traffic stop Nov. 26, an Amarillo patrol officer approached Marquez in a vehicle and took his driver's license back to the patrol car to run the information through the National Crime Information Center.

"Jose booked (on foot)," said Ruidoso Police Detective Jim Biggs. "The world came up in N.C.I.C."

Someone at the Amarillo Police Department knew that Marquez had a cousin in Amarillo — and knew where he lived. Police set up surveillance on the house on Thanksgiving day.

"Then he comes out of the house and they recognized him because I sent photos and they had his ID and arrested him," Biggs said.

Currently, Marquez is in Potter County Jail in Texas.

Biggs said he received a tip about six weeks ago that Marquez had a cousin living in Amarillo, with a location where the cousin worked. Amarillo police followed up, found the cousin's residence and interviewed him. He told police he didn't know where Marquez was.

Biggs speculated that a detective saw the traffic report, knew where the cousin lived and ordered surveillance on the house.

The New Mexico State Police had issued an arrest warrant for Marquez for a June 11 incident in which Marquez is alleged to have attacked his now estranged girlfriend by strangulation after taking her to Turkey Canyon, during which she became unconscious. The suspect then allegedly took her to El Paso for several days. When they returned to the area on June 14, she managed to escape and notify State Police.

After the child had been missing for a little more than a month, an attorney returned with the boy to the area.

"My personal opinion is we put enough pressure on him is why he turned the kid over to the attorney," Biggs said.

The basic sentence for attempted murder, a second-degree felony, is nine years, Biggs said. Kidnapping is a first-degree felony and the basic sentence is 18 years. Criminal sexual penetration is a third-degree felony with a basic sentence of six years. Custodial interference is a fourth-degree felony with a basic sentence of 18 months.

If Marquez waives extradition, he could be transported to Lincoln County to appear before the 12th District Court immediately after facing Amarillo's charges of eluding a police officer, Biggs said. If he fights extradition, it could take a few weeks for the governors of New Mexico and Texas to sign the warrant.

"He could be here tomorrow or in a couple weeks," Biggs said Tuesday.

Marquez has a criminal history dating back to 1972.

Erosion control measures among key elements of Ski Run Fire rehab

BY DIANNE STALLINGS
RUIDOSO NEWS STAFF WRITER

Before the Ski Run Fire was extinguished last month, staff with the Smokey Bear Ranger District were evaluating the destruction and designing a rehabilitation plan for the 271-acre wild fire burn north of Ruidoso.

Greg Gray, burned area rehabilitation coordinator with the Lincoln National Forest, said the district is working on a Burned Area Emergency Rehabilitation Project aimed at stabilizing the burned area and mitigating potential impacts associated with soil erosion and run-off.

"This will aid in protecting the Eagle Creek Watershed, an important water source for the village of Ruidoso," Gray said.

Staff is constructing sediment retention structures in the fire area, mostly in Carlton Canyon, which drains into the Eagle Creek watershed and was severely burned, he said.

Trash racks, rock, wire and railroad tie structures are used along with contour felling of burned trees to reduce the flow of sediment. Grass seed was spread by helicopter.

"That's one of the first rehab activities that takes place immediately after a fire," Gray said.

Sediment retention structures are designed to hold back sediment from fine particles to logs and boulders, yet allow water to flow in its normal pattern, he explained. Building the structures is labor intensive, he said.

est risk for stand replacement fires.

U.S. Sen. Pete Domenici, as chairman of the Senate Energy and Natural Resources Committee, was a member of the bipartisan team that crafted the bill to improve forest health and reduce the threat of catastrophic wildfires.

It will give federal land managers more funding and power to carry out projects to decrease fuel loads and control insects and disease in 20 million acres of national forest.

"For too long this work has been stopped by bureaucratic and legal quagmires," the senator said.

"Now this measure will allow managers to tackle the work that needs to be done in New Mexico and all our national forests."

Highlights from the bill include:

- Creating a 1.5 mile zone for each wildland-urban interface

- Mandating that 50 percent of the funding in the bill be dedicated to wild land urban interface areas

- Allowing one environmental review as required by the National Environmental Policy Act of proposed thinning projects within the defined zones around communities

- Requiring the U.S. Forest Service and the Bureau of Land Management to fully maintain or contribute toward the restoration of old growth trees.

prorated. The same would be in effect for telecommunications contracts, such as cell phone or Internet service.

Military members deployed after buying a home could be released from a purchase agreement without penalty, if the assignment comes before closing. Udall pointed out this provision also would help National Guard members.

If signed into law, the protections offered in the legislation would not apply to leases or contracts agreed to after a soldier received notice of an overseas assignment or service extension.

Udall cosponsored the legislation after being notified by the Department of Defense that the 515th Corps Support Battalion based in Springer is being mobilized for an assignment in Southwest Asia.

The guardsmen, 59 from 15 towns and cities in northern

New Mexico, join more than 900 New Mexico National Guardsmen deployed worldwide.

"As always my thoughts are with both the soldiers and families at this time," Udall said. "Our New Mexico troops are part of the best-trained fighting force in the world."

A second piece of legislation, the Military Tax Fairness Bill, was signed into law last month before Veterans Day.

The new law covers a variety of tax provisions relating to members of the Armed Forces, including those serving in the National Guard and Reserves.

"At times, the federal tax code isn't necessarily fair to those serving in the Armed Forces," said U.S. Sen. Pete Domenici. "I believe this is a good way to mark Veterans Day and I'm pleased the bill has been signed by the President."

The Republican from New Mexico, who serves on the Defense Appropriations Subcommittee, said the new bill ensures that families of military personnel called into active duty are not disadvantaged under the capital gains sales exclusion. It ensures that dependent-care benefits, such as child care, provided to families of the uniformed services will not be treated as taxable compensation.

For members of the National Guard and Reserves, the bill allows an above-the-line deduction for travel expenses related to training assignments incurred more than 100 miles from the taxpayer's home. The bill also raises the tax-free death gratuity benefit from the current $6,000 to $12,000 for members of the Armed Services who are killed in action.

The total cost of the new law, estimated at $123.6 billion, is paid for by extending custom user fees through March 1, 2005.

So far, Ruidoso spared region's flu epidemic

BY DIANNE STALLINGS
RUIDOSO NEWS STAFF WRITER

Although doctors' offices and clinics in Ruidoso are reporting excessively high numbers of people coming in with flu-like symptoms, the area isn't experiencing the epidemic occurring in Texas and Colorado.

A spokesman for Dr. Arlene Brown's Family Practice said, "We have a lot of people coming in, mostly kids and teenagers, with flu-like symptoms, but it's not the flu."

Staff at The Immediate Care Clinic reported the same ages stricken and same symptom complaints.

The viral invasion may have started a few weeks ago when one teacher estimated that about a third of the students attending Ruidoso Middle School were out sick.

Bob Sanchez with the state Health Department said 118 laboratory confirmed cases of influenza were reported in the area, but primarily in neighboring Chaves County.

"There are two different strains of flu viruses going around," Sanchez said. "The flu vaccine will work, but it's not as effective with one as with the other. The reason is when the Center for Disease Control looks at viruses coming up, it takes a year to get a vaccine ready. They look at South America.

"The viruses cycle through. We had the swine flu, the Hong Kong flu. They're usually named because they are unexpected. The vaccine may not prevent a particular strain, but it seems to lessen the symptoms, to reduce hospitalization and definitely the number of deaths."

The two strains currently causing the most problems are being called Influenza A and Influenza B.

"It depends on who you talk to which one wasn't anticipated," Sanchez said. "We're seeing more of A, but I understand that's what we vaccinated for. We're seeing fewer B."

"The vaccine is not necessarily 100 percent, but it keeps people from dying and that's what we're trying to do."

"We lose about 36,000 people a year to the flu," he said.

An adult who catches the virus is contagious one day before symptoms show and up to five days after, he said. They can spread the virus by sneezing or through a hand shake among other methods, he said.

Flue shots scheduled for Dec. 8

The Ruidoso Public Health Office will offer flu vaccinations from 8 a.m. to 11 a.m. Dec. 8 at the clinic on Kansas City Street and Cree Meadows Drive.

A spokesman said targeted are adults and children with chronic disorders such as asthma, immune suppression, cardiovascular and metabolic (diabetes) disruptions.

Women in the second or third trimester of pregnancy, adults 65 or older, children six months to 18 years on long-term aspirin therapy, and adults in contact with children less than six months of age also can be vaccinated.

He recommended frequent hand washing and using a hand sanitizer after greeting people. Use a clean tissue to wipe eyes and noses and discard the tissue in the trash.

"We're not as bad as Texas, which is just getting nailed,"

Sanchez said. "I don't know if that state had a good turnout for the vaccinations."

"It could be weather or humidity or a whole lot of things. Viruses are funny and will affect one person, and not another."

County's concerns about FEMA could cost homeowners

BY DIANNE STALLINGS
RUIDOSO NEWS STAFF WRITER

The reluctance of Lincoln County commissioners to join the federal flood insurance program could mean that lenders in the future won't be willing to write mortgages outside of Ruidoso and Ruidoso Downs.

Two local banks and one bank chain already warned they won't lend on homes built in unincorporated portions of the county unless the county joins the Federal Emergency Management Agency's flood insurance program by mapping flood zones and adopting an acceptable ordinance. The two sister municipalities have accomplished those mandates.

In response to a federal executive order, the New Mexico Legislature earlier this year passed legislation that says counties "shall" adopt such an ordinance.

But county attorney Alan Morel has tried repeatedly without success to come up with an ordinance that the commission will pass.

"You asked that I put it on a 3x5 card and I can't do that," Morel told commissioners at a recent meeting. "I don't know what else I can do. If I take anything more out of it, there's no way it will be approved by FEMA."

Commissioner Earl Hobbs urged some action by the board.

"We really do have a problem that's going to rise up and bite us one of these days," he said. "And I don't think I really like where it's going to bite us. This flood plain thing is going to come down to people being able to get insurance (and) mortgages, and I think we're really going to have to seriously address it and probably have to bite the bullet and address it in accordance (with) whatever government agency rules this thing - FEMA or whatever."

"If we let this hang fire until we have a crisis, then we're going to have a problem."

Commissioner Chairman Rex Wilson replied, "If that's the case we have to find out and then write an ordinance that we want, and if it doesn't work, we change it from there."

Oscara resident Jerry Carroll said Hobbs comes from Texas and his attitude leans toward wanting to control the people in the county.

"The fact of the matter is, I don't think he's read the applicable federal flood plain regulations that are implemented. I'd like to see anyone advocating

Lenders concerned about FEMA status

Officials with local insurance and title companies already are receiving warnings.

"It's not so much insurers, it's the lenders who are saying unless the county passes something for FEMA (Federal Emergency Management Agency), it will restrict the kind of loans we can get in this county," said Truman Barnett of The Title Company in Ruidoso.

Jon Crunk, an insurance firm owner in the village, said "If a natural disaster of any type occurs in the county and the county government doesn't participate in FEMA, the federal government won't provide anything but humanitarian aid."

Crunk explained that after several major hits to FEMA from hurricanes, the federal government tired of having to help after natural disasters when local citizens didn't participate in the available FEMA program. Federal officials didn't want to raise taxes to pay for more disasters, so they said if a local government doesn't participate in FEMA, the federal government will limit its help and won't rebuild schools, roads and other infrastructure.

That stance was declared in an federal executive order, Crunk said. The New Mexico Legislature last January passed legislation requiring counties to approve a FEMA participation ordinance, but to date, only Ruidoso and Ruidoso Downs participate in the program and have mapped flood plains, except for a small area around Fort Stanton. When someone wants insurance or to build, officials can then determine what portion if any of the land falls within a flood plain, he said.

"If a financing entity receives any federal loan insurance or handles government subsidized loans, the government requires that all loans on real property in flood zones shall have flood insurance," Crunk said.

But outside of Ruidoso and Ruidoso Downs, home owners can't get "valid" flood insurance, he said.

"I have heard from several lenders who won't loan outside of the city limits," he said. "We could be putting our property values at risk outside of the city. I was told by FEMA officials that Lincoln County has been told since 1978 it's in a high flood risk area. All we need is leadership - somebody to understand."

Crunk sells flood insurance, but to insure within a flood plain, he has to have elevations certified by a surveyor or engineer.

"If the county hasn't mapped the area, they can't do it," he said. If he doesn't have a stamped, certified elevation, he can't sell flood insurance subsidized by FEMA, he said.

goes with the FEMA program, the county needs to move ahead to help its residents and future home builders.

"It's ridiculous to allow someone to build in a flood plain anyway, but this way if a home is washed away, the insurance will pay," he said. "I know it costs about $250 every time you ask for a surveyor to tell you if you're in a flood plain or not."

Morel pointed out that county planner Patsy Sanchez is a certified flood plains manager, but a surveyor still must shoot the elevations.

Wilson told Morel to try one more time on an ordinance. If the board can't approve it or FEMA rejects it, the commission then could appeal the decision.

(FEMA flood insurance) sit down and read the 80 pages of regulations. The advantage of those getting more insurance is outweighed by the giving up of property rights.

"I'm not giving up any - period. I'm putting you on notice, Mr. Hobbs, that whenever it comes to being implemented and costs me a red nickel, I'll have a remedy and you'll be at the top of the list. I want to be paid for loss of rights."

Wilson said Morel should write an ordinance that allows the county to comply without becoming an enforcer of building standards to qualify for loans and mortgages.

If the county passes an ordinance saying something should be done and then doesn't check and a house is washed away in a flood, the county is involved, Morel said.

Carroll likened the FEMA situation to a time when a commission passed zoning in the county in 1988 and felt the backlash at the next election.

"It was political suicide," he said.

Commissioner Maury St. John said Morel should write one version, let the commission make changes and then submit it to FEMA to see where the county stands. She realizes the requirements can be a pain, because she had to go through all of the flood plain identification steps before building along Cedar Creek in the extraterritorial zone around Ruidoso.

Building in a flood plain is not prohibited, but the elevation for the foundation or the first floor may be required to be higher to avoid potential flood waters, Morel explained. The first step is to officially map the county to identify flood plains.

Commissioner Leo Martinez said while he opposes threats to private property rights and doesn't like the hassles that

OUR OPINION

It was a thankful day when Ski Apache opened

Technology helped the local economy in a big way

Thanksgiving was the appropriate day for Ski Apache to open its season — even if Ruidoso and its surrounding mountains were bone-dry.

But a bit below Sierra Blanca and shadowed on north-facing slopes, there was snow, real snow, even if it was man-made with some 150 snow guns. Freezing temperatures allowed snow making on a huge scale, an effort that a sudden warm spell and heavy rain didn't curtail, even if 40 percent of the earlier effort was lost.

Ski Apache was on the front-line for state ski areas this season. The word got out, and the skiers came — thousands using the available trails and lifts at reduced rates on the opening weekend.

Those reduced rates — $37 for adults, $25 for children — will remain in effect until more lifts and more snow is available. That may be a while; the near-term weather forecast isn't good.

But thanks to new area manager Denny Grover and a hard-working mountain staff, snow was made, the Internet reached out to customers — and all of Ruidoso had something extra to celebrate on Thanksgiving Day.

One Hooters of a Domenici energy bill

New Mexico writers come to realize they don't want to mess with Pete Domenici. The Republican Senator of three decades is revered by folks all across I-40, up and down I-25, along the byways of 285.

Some years back I wrote some funny stuff about how Pete's campaign ads showing him reading to third graders were ludicrous. Except the stuff wasn't all that funny. I realized it was not all that funny when people began crossing the street when they saw me approach.

"I was just KIDDING!" I would yell after them.

Pete, himself, spending the day hunting with his buddies in southeastern New Mexico, called me. It was the part of the evening when the fellows, after a long hunt, were, you know, reviewing the day's activities.

"I always thought you were one of the good guys," Domenici said when he heard my voice. "I was just KIDDING!" I told him.

For the record, I think Pete is one of the good guys. Having established that love connection, it must be said that his controversial energy bill was an apparent stinker, an unfortunate toe stub late in so distinguished a career.

To the credit of the bill's scholarly drafters, it did not require government agents to dress in Santa suits when they delivered millions of goodies to Midwestern farmers.

A Wall Street Journal editorial nailed it: "The GOP leadership has greased more wheels than a Nascar pit crew."

The newspapers and airwaves were full of outraged debate on the energy issue. Sen. Chuck Grassley of Iowa, who likes to wax pompous in a most virtuous manner, managed to lobby into the legislation big, big bucks to build an indoor rainforest and a million-gallon aquarium. Way to go, Chuckie.

Among those adamantly opposed to the bill was the other New Mexico Senator, Democrat Jeff Bingaman. "The bill has a lot of defects," Bingaman said. For Jeff, that's like, well, shouting. Jeff is a distinguished guy with a big time intellect and a quiet demeanor.

Bingaman and others argued the energy bill was a financial extravaganza of vote buying. Included were $24 billion — that's billion — of tax breaks for energy industries already getting plump on profits.

As a New Mexican, I will leave it to the good Senators, Bingaman and Domenici, to figure out such weighty matters. In the meantime, though, I have to say New Mexico got the short end of the stick on this one.

Oh, there were plums for the Land of Enchantment, provisions having to do with oil and gas drilling on federal land holdings. That's all well and good, but we did not get a Hooters. That's right, Hooters.

The bill gave incentives for building an energy-rich Hooters in Bossier City, Louisiana. It's just not fair.

Say what you want, opening up a Hooters should be a part of any comprehensive energy bill. When an old guy walks into a Hooters, there is a certain amount of energy stimulation, although most of us couldn't warm up a toaster.

Ned Cantwell — ncantwell@charter.net — is a retired newspaperman living in Ruidoso. He likes Hooters, but only for the food.

YOUR OPINION

Why private wells when Ruidoso has water?

To the editor:

One can only wonder what the village authorities are hiding when they meet behind closed doors in order to discuss water issues so important to all village property owners? Isn't this a blatant violation of open meeting laws? The following is my final salvo on this issue.

I've lived in various towns and cities in my life. But not until Ruidoso have I experienced a municipality that allows anyone to drill their own water well even though a municipal water system exists.

Consider this: The village of Ruidoso has an ongoing program to stop the use of private septic tanks where there is access to the village sewer system.

And yet there is nothing at the moment to stop the drilling of private water wells although the water distribution system is even more accessible.

Every private well means that much less revenue for the village.

Aside from the loss of revenue, there is the problem of unregulated pumping.

Most private wells are currently unmetered and therefore unregulated.

Depletion of water resources is recognized as the most urgent problem facing New Mexicans generally. And yet unregulated wells, as a means of circumventing village water restrictions, continue to be allowed.

Most residents may be unaware that the Hawthorne Suites hotel was permitted to drill their own well last summer. You have to wonder why every other hotel, condominium or developer doesn't drill their own well — or perhaps they do! Every motel and hotel built in the past few years has both a swimming pool and spa to keep filled!

As long as anyone who can afford it can drill their own well within the village limits, and as long as wells go unmetered and unregulated, all of Ruidoso had better worry about just how long the village will have water to supply the rest of us. And then cringe at this thought — what can happen if all the property owners who are now only part-time residents decided to live here full time?

Outstanding Warrior year

To the editor:

I have been watching Warrior football since 1947 as a player, coach, radio broadcaster and fan. The Warriors have nothing to be ashamed of in the loss to St. Michaels last Saturday.

St. Mike's has one of the most impressive groups of players I have seen in class AAA. Their size and speed and depth are outstanding. With the possibility of a couple of Artesia teams, I don't believe we have met anyone better. Remember we almost beat them in their own house during the regular season.

In fact, I believe the Warrior players and coaching staff are to be congratulated upon their fine season.

Think of the several outstanding players from last year's state championship team who graduated. Think of the tremendous improvement the Warriors showed as this season wore on.

Certainly the dedication and determination showed by the players and the skill in teaching and game planning of the coaching staff is evident in getting to the semi finals of the state tournament. The wonderful fan support and loyalty was also a major factor in the success of this year.

So Warrior players, coaches and fans lift your heads high! Be not discouraged by the final loss, but be proud of all the many successes of this 2003 Warrior football team!

Thank you, John McGrann

To the editor:

In 1998, a NASA meteorologist/hydrologist (named John McGrann) released an alarming study indicating that the Southwestern States were entering into a most severe drought that would last at least 15 years — a drought that NASA characterized as "La Mamma."

In a meeting with Robert A. Donaldson in mid-1999, with this writer, Mayor Donaldson indicated that he was familiar with the NASA study, commenting, "... he doesn't know what he is talking about..."

If my tired old memory serves, Frank Cummins, Ron Anderson (and) Leon Eggleston were councilmen and Robert Sterchi was mayor pro tem at the time.

In the summer of 2000, Jalayne Spivey, then with the Water Engineer office in Roswell, told this writer, and a fellow Ruidosan, that "Lincoln County's water supply resembled a Dixie cup (specimen size) with hundreds of straws protruding from it and hundreds trying to get in. Ms. Spivey now can be reached in Santa Fe.

In early November 2003, a release from Santa Fe indicated that our drought was continuing and there would be no appreciable moisture for the foreseeable future.

Councilor Ron Hardeman said, "solutions aren't reached overnight..." but he has faith in the current team of consultants.

"Details on water plan awaited," per Ruidoso News (headline), Nov. 28, 2003.

Thank you, John McGrann.

Program teaches children to avoid strangers

BY BONNIE ROSSITER R.N.
RUIDOSO SCHOOL NURSE

We have all heard it, "Stranger Danger." We tell our children, "don't talk to strangers, don't take anything from a stranger and don't ever get in a car with a stranger," but are these enough? The reality is our children, if ever approached by a predator, will need to have learned to think, and not panic; to react, and not be submissive. They need to know they have the right to protect themselves, yell, scream, kick, and say "no," if a stranger approaches them.

As we have learned, predators are very charming, very engaging and can sometimes encourage your children to forget all that you have told them because their goal, purpose, and sometimes even uncontrollable urge is to get a child, no matter what. Do we want our children to have to decide if this is a trick or not? No! We want our children to have permission, and yes-even encouragement, to not listen at all! Children, as well as adults, cannot tell a good stranger from a bad stranger. We as adults have better tools to determine if we are in danger. We have problem-solving skills, we have experience, and we are better at listening to our instincts. In spite of all these strengths, how many adult men and women are harmed by strangers?

Things every child should know

Children are not expected to know a good stranger from a bad stranger. They should never talk to a stranger unless their parents are with them. They should be taught they do not have to listen to a stranger, not even for a minute.

We must give our children tools to deal with a potentially dangerous situation and we should practice just like we would practice what to do in case of a fire. The more we practice the more confidence we gain when using skills. Our children need to be confident and know exactly what to do if someone grabs them by the arm, tells them they need help finding a puppy, or they (the stranger) was sent by the their parents to pick them up.

They must know a stranger

Lions sponsor 'Stranger Danger' program

Since its inception in 2002, the Ruidoso Valley Noon Lions Club has distributed more than 4,000 sets of brochures describing the "Stranger Danger" program. According to Lion Doris Huskey, the club has also worked to inform the public about the New Mexico sex offender Website, as well as the ramifications of Megan's Law and the Amber Alert system.

A total of 26 volunteers logged 518 hours doing Stranger Danger presentations, which have included work to fingerprint more than 1,700 local children from area schools and daycare facilities.

Huskey said the program was supported by donations of funds or services from the Ruidoso Valley Noon Lions Club, the police departments of Ruidoso, Ruidoso Downs and Capitán, Print Write Now, Wells Fargo, Ruidoso Rotary Club, True Value Hardware, First National Bank, Lincoln County Crimestoppers, Sierra Cinema, Ruidoso Senior Center RSVP and other organizations.

is always a stranger. There are no safe strangers; even familiar faces can be strangers. Predators are known to hang around places children go such as playgrounds, baseball games, and video game rooms. After a while, their faces are familiar and a child sees them as someone they know.

Remember, the purpose of this is not to scare your child, but to make them aware. I am not suggesting for one moment we give the responsibility of being safe as a sole responsibility to our children. We are responsible for their safety. Do not put their names on the outside of their jackets or backpacks. Do not buy them cute license plates with their names on them. This changes the status of stranger to someone who knows his or her name. Never leave them alone at home, in a car, in a store, or with someone in whom we are not completely confident.

The bottom line is that these predators are targeting our children - it is our children who in a split second will have to make the decision to go, to scream, to be rude or "polite" to an adult they do not know. Our children need to possess the skills and confidence that they can help themselves in a potentially dangerous situation. Parents need to empower their children and practice these skills.

Here are ten simple rules to empower your children:

1. If a stranger grabs them by the arm, make a windmill. "Making a windmill" means rotating your arms in a large circle. There will be a break in contact no matter the size of the stranger. Then run and find an adult they can trust.

2. If they are grabbed from behind "make like a noodle," and become totally limp. Slide through the stranger's arms then run and find an adult they can trust.

3. If someone tries to grab them off a bike, hold on to the bike, no matter what. This will draw attention plus it is difficult to put a child and a bike in a car.

4. If a stranger is following in a car, teach them to turn and walk in the opposite direction. Find an adult they can trust.

5. If they are put in a trunk, pull every wire they can find, hopefully disabling brake lights etc., to bring attention to the vehicle.

6. If taken into a car, disable their ability to start the car by any means, possible, such as putting chewing gum or a foreign object in the ignition.

7. Teach them who the adults are they can trust.

8. If they are lost in a store, never go to the parking lot to find you. Find a safe person inside the store (cashier, pharmacist, etc.) and tell them they are lost.

9. Help your children to learn their name, what state they live in, their address, and telephone number.

10. Listen to your child; does someone make them "feel funny?" Encourage them to listen to their feelings and instincts and share them with you.

Familiarize yourself with resources to identify sex offenders in your community. There are 17 known in Lincoln County. Absconders are sex offenders who have run to avoid legal process. Their whereabouts are unknown or address not verified. There are 35 known to be in New Mexico. ## MARS

BY SANDY SUGGITT
RUIDOSO NEWS STAFF WRITER

Eleven students from Ruidoso High School went to Mars in mid-November — at least in their imaginations.

The students participated in the fifth annual Mars Settlement Design Competition, sponsored by NASA and White Sands Test Facility, at New Mexico State University in Las Cruces.

About 80 students were divided into four randomly selected teams to create design and operating proposals for a new Mars base.

They had to do all the research to comply with the request-for-proposal requirements, and give 35-minute presentations and then answer questions from experts in the field for 20 minutes.

This was an industry simulation game for New Mexico high school students set in the 21st century. The orientation was the evening of Friday, Nov. 14. Students worked all day Saturday, and presented their company design proposals at 9 a.m. Sunday. That allowed them about 22 hours to research, design and prepare a presentation of the proposal, said Brian Smith, a junior and a member of the winning team.

Students and teachers got back to Ruidoso about 8 p.m. Nov. 16, and many of the students slept through their classes on Monday, Carla Burns, science teacher at the high school, said.

This year Mathematics, Engineering and Science Achievement students participated, increasing the number of Ruidoso students that were able to participate, Burns said.

Three Ruidoso students were on the winning team. Layla Reyes, a senior, has been on the winning team for the past three years.

That project won, Burns said, because team members addressed all requirements of the Request for Proposals.

The judges of the designs included the director of White Sands Test Facility, director and regional representative of MESA and several from the Kennedy Space Center, as well as an astronaut.

Katie O'Toole, a junior, also on the winning team, explained that their assignment was to design a settlement for the surface of Mars housing 13,000 people — scientists studying life on Mars permanently — with room for 800 guests.

"We paid careful attention to creature comforts. We made sure people saw sunlight with a big dome on the surface for living and industrial and entertainment areas underneath."

Smith said his team's settlement measured .46 km in radius and height. One of the things the judges attacked with another team's design was that its settlement was 1.5 km in height.

"It would be hard enough to build something like that on earth, much less on Mars," he said.

The winning team also impressed the judges with their robots, O'Toole said. One stayed outside the dome and cleaned the surface; another traveled up to the ice caps and brought back water to be purified, allowing for an endless supply of water. One robot had a tail like a squeegee and had sprayers for detergent.

"It impressed the judges to see the creativity we used in our drones," Smith added. "We had to present robots to the judges because the purpose of this expedition and colony is to study Mars, and these robots are ultimately what get the job done."

O'Toole said the underground area had transportation shafts similar to a subway's. The first level was for entertainment — movies and sports arenas — branching off to other shafts for livestock and agriculture. The second level was for storage, a nuclear reactor, science labs, mining and a water and waste treatment plant.

Teeatta Layher, a senior, attended the competition for the third year. She said having the competition at NMSU made it more difficult than in past years, when it was held at Oñate High School in Las Cruces. The dorms where students stayed were a quarter mile from the classroom where they did their work. In the past, they had two classrooms, she said, and this year there was more "cussing, fighting and disappearing" and the projects weren't as in-depth as in the past.

Smith said he realized that the core of the game was "being a powerful leader, getting all of your employees happy and feeling as if they're an influential part. I felt that a lot of these contestants missed the point of the game by arguing and struggling," he said. "I felt the point of the game was to be able to manage a successful corporation."

Julia Gonzalez, a senior, said her team's design was in a valley, making it wind-resistant and less exposed to radiation.

"It was 4 km deep, 100 km wide and 95 km at the base. We had a very in-depth floor plan for housing and building," she said. "We had a mall, fire department, dentists, hospital, housing for doubles and singles, a school and daycare, a lake and pond and a little park. It was pretty cool."

Layher said one team had dirt bikes and four-wheelers that were resistant to Mars soil.

Burns said she particularly liked Reyes' space suits that looked like superhero suits: "skin-tight, shiny and fussed up, and alternative things for the older generation."

"It was interesting to know that we can do this," said Brenda Gonzalez, a sophomore. "Probably one day we can go to Mars ... I'm a person that would like to go to other planets."

Jeremy Landrum, a senior, was president of his company, Vulture Aviation, making sure all his team members knew the requirements and processes.

"I had to reinforce those with the skills and make sure they worked together toward a common goal," he said.

Reyes was one of three presidents on her team — and the only "veteran" of the Mars design competitions.

"We had more of a committee," she said. "Three presidents helping each other get things done. Having more than one person with responsibility helped ease the pressure, and stress because one person in charge is more demanding, more pressure to get everyone to meet deadlines, more people to check up."

"We had a really good team — very cooperative and no bickering."

Julia Gonzalez said there was a French exchange student on her team, and she noted that he dealt with pressure and responsibility in a different way from American students.

"You could tell by the way he acted that this was something he was almost used to even though he was a first-timer," she said. "He was extremely focused and pulled our team together. That was my favorite part."

Reyes said she'd go again if she could: "I'm glad I beat Fletcher Herring, the smartest kid in school for this competition." (Herring graduated last May.)

Reyes added that the students would like to thank teachers Burns and Susan Celusniak.

"I'm impressed with what these kids do," Burns said. "You see them in a different setting and it brings out the best and the worst ... It puts them in a situation they're not used to and teaches them a lot of life skills. They find out how they work under pressure and stress."

EDUCATION BRIEFS

Server class coming

The last alcohol-server training at the Ruidoso Instruction Center of Eastern New Mexico University, fall 2003 Community Education will be from noon-5 p.m. Dec. 12 at the Ruidoso Valley Chamber of Commerce office.

Required by the State of New Mexico, the course covers facts about alcohol, its effect on the body and laws about responsible beverage service. Students must be 19 years of age with a valid photo ID, pass a test with a score of 80 percent or better in order to receive certification, and must bring a valid state or federal photo identification to class. Pre-register at the ENMU Ruidoso Center at least one day prior to class.

Lalene Grogg is the instructor and the fee is $30.

To pre-register, call 257-2120, fax 257-9409, or visit the campus at 709 Mechem Drive or on the Web at ruidoso.enmu.edu.

ENMU registration starts

Registration for spring semester classes has started at Eastern New Mexico University-Ruidoso.

New courses in nursing assisting, geometry, and a new radio station internship highlight the spring 2004 schedule. Eleven online courses, including new classes in hospitality/tourism and food and beverage operations are also being offered. Teacher training in mathematics is available as well as a new portfolio-assessment class option required under new federal legislation for public school and tribal educational assistants.

Considerable amounts of local scholarship assistance, tribal funding and other types of state/federal financial aid are available to finance a significant parts of a college education. "If a student really has the desire to attend college," observed center Director Jim Miller, "there are financial means somewhere to make that happen. More financial aid than ever is available today."

In addition to conventional financial resources, special assistance is available for veterans, single mothers with families, and for GED graduates. Students from other New Mexico universities can also transfer their lottery scholarships to the Ruidoso campus. Academic advisement appointments for students seeking to transfer from other universities should be made as soon as possible.

Registration can take place by phone, fax, or in-person at 709 Mechem Drive between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m., Monday through Friday. Web registration is also available 24 hours a day for continuing ENMU students.

Spring classes will begin on Tuesday Jan. 20.

Cost-share applications being accepted by NRCS

Carrizozo and Capitan NRCS agencies (Natural Resources Conservation Services) are accepting applications for financial assistance under the Environmental Quality Incentives Program. (EQIP) The program is authorized by the 2002 Farm Bill and the application deadline is Feb. 13, 2004.

"Farmers and ranchers in the Carrizozo and Upper Hondo Soil and Water Conservation Districts can benefit from the funds that support installation of conservation practices," said Bob Moorhead, district conservationist. "The program is entirely voluntary, and we work with each farmer and rancher to help them meet their specific needs."

Last year New Mexico farmers and ranchers received more than $13 million in financial assistance through EQIP to put in place conservation practices and equipment on their private lands, and additional funds were granted for ground and surface water conservation on the New Mexico high plains.

EQIP provides cost-share funding to make conservation improvements that impact water quality, mitigate soil erosion, improved grazing land, enhance wildlife habitat, improve animal waste storage facilities, and make other conservation advancements on private land.

"In this drought farmers and ranchers must work harder than ever to conserve resources and maintain their financial viability," said Moorhead. "EQIP is the backbone of the 2002 Farm Bill. It can help this situation."

Additional information about EQIP and other conservation programs is available from the local NRCS office in Carrizozo at 648-2941 or Capitan at 354-2220.

Carrizozo Schools features photographer for December

BY JULIE CARTER
FOR THE RUIDOSO NEWS

The feature artist for December in the Carrizozo Schools board room is an in house resident of Carrizozo Schools. This month the digital photo art of Glenn Hawk, Ph.D., middle- and high-school sciences teacher, is being featured.

Photography has long been part of Hawk's life. As he got his education, he worked for the Forest Service while pursuing his master's and doctorate degrees. In the late 1970s, Hawk traveled with the U.S. Forest Service throughout the western United States on an ecological evaluation project. Hawk was responsible for the photography and took several thousand slides of documentation.

Hawk served in the Air Force in Taiwan as a voice intercept analyst-Chinese linguist. With three years of study at Indiana University, he is fluent in Mandarin Chinese.

That skill led him to be chosen for a cooperative study with the Forest Service and took him back to Taiwan and to a Ph.D. in plant community ecology.

After three decades of 35 mm photography, Hawk went digital this year. His delight is in the ability to take untold numbers of photos, chose only the best and not pay for those that didn't make the cut. He and his wife, Martha, live on their small ranch south of Carrizozo where they raise Egyptian bloodline Arabian horses. Martha is the food services director at the Capitan Schools.

Hawk has spent at least 200 of the last 365 days capturing daily sunsets, sunrises and moon activity with his camera. The results are spectacular horizon silhouettes, cloud patterns and plant life framing the colors provided by the solar activity.

"I've learned a lot more about composition and about choosing what I want to photograph," Hawk said. He has never entered competitions with his photos but is being encouraged to do just that in the coming year.

He has placed postcard size photos for sale at Roy's Gift Gallery - a venture that has proven quite successful for him. He is also experimenting with greeting cards featuring his photos. All his photos are for sale and he welcomes those interested to view the volumes of photos he has available.

Hawk's work will stay on display until the first week in January.

Horsemen bring Ruidoso's season to an end

BY TODD FUQUA
RUIDOSO NEWS SPORTS EDITOR

Santa Fe St. Michael's entered Saturday's Class 3A state semifinal game wanting to send a clear message about the state of northern football.

After their 58-27 decision over Ruidoso at W.D. Horton Stadium, that message was received loud and clear.

"I don't know if it's turning, but when it comes to football, the north has to be accounted for now," said St. Michael's coach Joey Fernandez. "These kids put in the extra work they needed to get the job done."

The Horsemen stuffed Ruidoso's running attack while piling up ground yards of their own in the victory to earn their 12th win in 13 tries, while ending the Warriors' season at 8-4.

St. Mike's had 523 total yards to Ruidoso's 417, but held the Warriors to just 75 yards on the ground. Jess Shendo was the leading rusher for RHS with 28 yards.

"We had our opportunities, we just didn't play to our capabilities," said Ruidoso coach Ridge Bowden. "Good teams will do that to you. A play here, a play there, who knows what would happen."

St. Michael's wasted little time in making their opening argument in the debate over its program's quality, propelled by the legs and arm of Romero in a six-play, 80-yard drive which ended with a 10-yard scoring run by fullback Julio Gomez with 9:34 left in the first quarter.

Romero got loose for scampers of 33 and 25 yards during that drive, and led the game with 143 yards rushing, while throwing for 236 yards. Gomez added 112 yards and four touchdowns in the game — including a 46-yard interception return which drove the final stake through the Warriors' heart.

Romero gave all the credit to the Horsemen offensive line for opening up holes for he and Gomez to run through all day.

"Our line did a hell of a job, they worked their butts off," Romero said. "Now we've got one more game they have to come out and do their job."

"We knew we had to come out here and play a full game against this team," he added. "We knew they could still beat us."

Ruidoso did make things interesting later in the first quarter. After spotting the Horsemen another touchdown — this one on a one-yard gain by Romero — Warrior quarterback Troy Saenz hit Shendo for a 29-yard pass play to set up a one-yard scoring rush by Casey Mirau with 39 seconds left in the opening frame.

Marcus Williams missed the extra point, but the Warriors were within striking distance as the first quarter drew to a close.

St. Michael's made sure that distance increased in the second quarter, as Romero again stung the Warrior secondary with a 27-yard touchdown strike to David Carver with 8:46 left in the first half.

The Horsemen then backed Ruidoso up to its own nine-yard line and forced a punt, getting the ball at the Warriors' 37-yard line.

From that spot, it was just a matter of time before St. Mike's would get back in the endzone, this time on a two-yard run by Ryan Patterson for the 27-7 lead with 40 seconds left.

The Warriors weren't quite ready to quit as the half waned, however, and put together a drive that could have put Ruidoso down by just 12 points at the break.

Saenz connected with Mirau, Daniel Austin and Chance Hooper of four consecutive pass completions to drive from

TODD FUQUA/STAFF

St. Michael's quarterback Thomas Romero (11) is pressured by Ruidoso defenders Jake Telraut (54) and Julian Serna as Horsemen lineman Thomas Sandoval tries to protect during St. Michael's 58-27 victory in the Class 3A semifinal Saturday at W.D. Horton Stadium.

Ruidoso's 17 yard line all the way down to the Horsemen 27 with two seconds left. But that's where the Warriors' luck ended, as Saenz's final pass of the half was almost picked off by Romero and Ruidoso remained 20 points behind.

"We had our opportunities," Bowden said. "We put four touchdowns on the board, but against a team like that, you can't commit turnovers and give them easy points."

Knowing the history between these two schools — the team which trailed at the half had won the last two times St. Mike's and Ruidoso hooked up — Fernandez was still nervous despite the big lead.

New year, same outcome: Lady Warriors lose in final seconds

BY TODD FUQUA
RUIDOSO NEWS SPORTS EDITOR

SOCORRO — In a game that was strikingly similar to last year's meeting, the Ruidoso Lady Warriors lost a close basketball game to Socorro Monday night — a game they really should have won.

"We just stopped ourselves, we lost focus," said Ruidoso coach Greg Marez. "That's one of the things that hurts us."

Ruidoso opened up a 29-18 halftime lead and looked unstoppable against their namesakes, but the Socorro Lady Warriors got the ball repeatedly to Audra Major and Emily Armijo, and the duo sunk Ruidoso with a 48-47 victory.

The pair combined for 40 points — they were two of only five Socorro's players to score — but it was a free throw by Brittany Braton that put Socorro ahead for good with 25 seconds left.

"These girls lost 23 games last year, and lost seven of those girls," said Socorro coach Joseph Garcia. "We did have five girls back, and two that were key members were the ones we found to be shooting down at the end."

"We were down by nine at half, and you only get so many possessions in the second half," he added. "We were going to limit it to two or three girls that could take the shot. It wasn't going to be a democratic situation in the game."

Ruidoso (1-1) had a chance to win the game near the end, but Christine Brown — who again led her team with 14 points — was called for traveling with five seconds left.

The local Warriors eventually tipped the ball out under their own basket, and were working to keep Socorro from inbound the ball — hoping to get the ball back on a five-second call and hope for a final miracle shot.

But Socorro (1-1) did get the ball in to secure the victory.

Ruidoso took their early lead thanks to some strong inside play by everyone involved — Brown, Dusti Franklin, Beth Robinson and Samantha Serna. Almost all of the Lady Warriors' baskets were scored from about five feet away from the basket.

Ruidoso's defensive pressure created a number of those shots, as the Lady Warriors were able to force 26 Socorro turnovers — 12 of them steals.

Franklin had 13 points for Ruidoso, while Robinson led her team with eight rebounds and Clarissa Silva had six steals.

"We had a good press and good offensive series," Marez said. "We knew what we were looking for, but I have to give this coach (Garcia) credit. He knew how to change it up and come back in the second half."

"I was worried at the half. Even if we had a nine point lead, it should have been a 10

BRAVE FOOTBALL

The Ruidoso Middle School football teams finished their seasons a combined 5-7 recently, and head coach Pat Ventura was full of praise for both squads.

"The kids worked very hard and were very positive the whole year," Ventura said. "They came a long way from last year, a season in which they didn't win any games.

"Both teams have some talented individuals and, if they continue to work hard, will be a good feeder group for the high school to work with," he added. "Thanks to all the parents, boosters and fans for all their support."

Ventura was assisted by Herman Fox, Gordon Thompson, Trevor Rabourn and Rusty Wilcox on the year. A total of 23 7th-graders and 20 8th-graders came out for football this season.

FOOTBALL: No state title defense for Ruidoso Warriors

"There's always a thought that, if you beat them once, it's easier to beat them a second time," Fernandez said. "But our kids have worked hard and got what needed to get done."

"We reminded them at half that they still have 24 minutes left of football," he added. "But the kids knew that they had to get a couple of drives going — at least score a touchdown or two, and they did that."

Fernandez's fears seemed justified, as the Warriors took advantage of a rare Romero fumble and converted seven plays later on a 15-yard pass from Saenz to Rene Villareal.

The Horsemen answered with a touchdown by Gomez, then Ruidoso got another touchdown from Mirau to get within 16 points, 35-19.

Ruidoso then executed a masterful inside kick, in which Auston Beier came from the Horsemen's weak side to recover the ball. The Warriors squandered the opportunity, however, when Romero picked off a Saenz pass at the St. Michael's 43-yard line.

The Horsemen put the hammer down after that, scoring four times in the fourth quarter to bring the game to a close.

"Our kids wanted to put the game away early, but with a team that has guys like Hooper and Mirau, we have to make sure we don't get too high and think the game's out of reach," Fernandez said. "They can make some plays and hurt us. It was never out of reach until there were triple zeros on the scoreboard clock."

Despite the big season-ending loss, Bowden was full of praise for his team.

"I can't say enough about how proud I am of these Warriors," Bowden said. "A lot of people weren't expecting much from them after the group of seniors we lost from last year, but we were one game away from where we needed to be."

Aggies drop Greyhounds

BY FELIX CHAVEZ

FOR THE RUIDOSO NEWS

For the second straight game, the New Mexico State Aggies had to use a strong second half to pull away for a win.

Saturday, the Aggies scored 46 second-half points, held Division II Eastern New Mexico to four of 24 shooting and won 78-44 at the Pan American Center to improve to 3-0 on the season.

Monday, the Aggies had to use a big second-half run to pull away for a 72-62 win against Texas-Arlington.

Eastern New Mexico made just 12 of 56 shots on the night, turned the ball over 19 times and made just one of nine three-point field goals. The Aggies also had eight blocked shots, five by senior James Moore. The team also had five steals.

NMSU also had balance on offense on the night, although the team feels it can still improve on that part of the game.

Moore led all scorers with 19 points to lead four Aggies in double figures. He was 8 of 13 from the field and had 13 of his points in the second half.

Jackson added his second straight double-digit scoring night for NMSU. He had 18 points and added nine boards, followed by senior forward Kelsey Crooks with 11 points and junior guard Allen Haynes with 10.

defenders. It paid off, as Ruidoso forced numerous passes inside which were either deflected or stolen outright.

The Socorro Warriors gave Ruidoso the outside shot all night long, and the local Warriors were unable to capitalize. Silva — normally deadly from beyond the three-point arc — had but eight points, none of them gained from outside.

Ruidoso's only three-pointer was a remarkable shot by Franklin, who banked the ball in off the backboard.

"We were giving them the outside shot," Garcia said. "That girl banked in the shot, and we would have given it to them again. We took Silva out and forced somebody else to beat us."

"All their shots were from under the basket and we were trying to take that away," he added. "I thought we did a decent job of that in the second half."

If Socorro was shutting down Ruidoso's scoring threats, they were just getting started with their own in the second half.

Things really started turning around for Socorro when Major was fouled on three straight scores, and scored the free throw on all the three-point plays to bring the S-Warriors to within four points at the end of the third quarter.

Major was a terror all around for Socorro, as she had 10 rebounds to go with her 22 points to lead the S-Warriors.

The fourth quarter was a combination of Major's scoring inside and Armijo's scoring from the outside — Armijo had four 3-pointers on the night — as Socorro pulled to a 40-all tie with 4:56 left.

Ruidoso guard Clarissa Silva, right, drives against Socorro's Vanessa Baldonado Monday in Socorro.

It was the first time the game had been tied with it was 2-2 at the very beginning of the game, and the momentum was on Socorro's side from then on.

"We've still got to work on our shooting," Marez said. "There were a couple of times we could have made some easy shots that wouldn't go in."

Ruidoso gets back in action Thursday when they play Levelland, Texas, in the opening round of the Levelland Tournament at 7 p.m.

Junior varsity

It was a bad night all around for Ruidoso, as the junior varsity also fell, 22-13. Katie Coronado was the leading scorer in a low-scoring game with just six points for Ruidoso, while Johanna Vergara and Carrie Reasner had four points each to lead Socorro.

Valley of Fires closes; improvements ahead

BY DIANNE STALLINGS
RUIDOSO NEWS STAFF WRITER

Improvements scheduled for Valley of Fires Recreation Area west of Carrizozo prompted the closing of the popular camping spot Monday.

The area previously shut down for several months in the summer of 2002 for a massive paving project and shelter construction.

This newest effort is part of an on-going program of improvements at the recreational site situated on a 40-mile long bed of lava about four miles west of Carrizozo on U.S. 380.

"We don't know the length of time it will be closed this year," said volunteer Ramona Payne Wednesday. "It depends on how much time it takes to tear down the old restrooms. Campers will love the new design, which will include showers."

Local contractor Anthony Sanchez of ACS Fencing is building the new restrooms and showers. The Bureau of Land Management, which operates the site, also will upgrade the park dump station to accommodate recreational vehicles with larger holding tanks.

Other improvements include completing an existing nature trail, installing vault toilets and constructing a cold storage building connected to the existing visitors center.

The camping area in Lincoln County receives about 98,000 visitors a year. Started as a state park, it came under BLM management in 1989 and offers 25 camp/RV sites and numerous trails. For more information about the temporary closure or recreational opportunities at Valley of Fires, call (505) 648-2241 or the BLM Field Office at (505) 627-0220.

Standby generator at airport assures operation in disasters

BY DIANNE STALLINGS
RUIDOSO NEWS STAFF WRITER

A new standby generator for Sierra Blanca Regional Airport completes a system that will ensure the airport stays operational during a disaster, says manager Tim Morris.

He explained that two different fires in the last three years threatened the power lines that carry electricity to the airport and to the village of Ruidoso. Before generators were purchased, the airport could have been stranded without fuel, without water and without communication.

"This is the last of the three generators we needed," Morris said during a village council meeting last week. Ninety percent will be paid through a federal grant. The state and village each will match 5 percent, he said. The generator will supply the power to pump water, which would be needed for aircraft responding to a fire, he said.

Councilors also approved a bid award for two new Class A pumpers for the village fire department to AAA FirePro, the lowest bid submitted that met specifications from five responses. The bid amount was $265,496.

Staff was authorized to submit an application to the New Mexico Finance Authority to obtain a low interest loan to pay for the vehicles. The loan will be repaid with money from the State Fire Fund.

In other action, 16 lodgers were selected for random audits to ensure compliance with state law on the collection and reporting of lodgers tax.

Two bids were submitted, but the submission from Nunn Electric Supply Corp. didn't comply with bid requirements, according to village staff. The council awarded the contract to Cummins Rocky Mountain for $31,499. Councilor Frank Cummins clarified that he is not related to the owner of that business.

BUILDING FROM THE BOTTOM UP

DIANNE STALLING/STAFF

Digging into the earth to the side of the existing Lincoln County substation in Ruidoso, a bulldozer cuts out the shape of a new state public health building close to The Links Golf Course. The $875,500 project is being handled by Longhorn Construction out of Albuquerque. Completion is scheduled by June 27, 2004, and will thereby release the older building for other uses.

Now it's the Regional Council for the Arts

■ The Ruidoso Arts Commission is becoming a non-profit to access lodgers' tax money.

BY DIANNE STALLINGS
RUIDOSO NEWS STAFF WRITER

With a successful track record under the mantle of the village, members of newly transformed Ruidoso Regional Council for the Arts are crossing their collective fingers that the community rallies behind them.

Village councilors last May urged the then-Ruidoso Arts Commission to break out on its own as a separate not-for-profit entity, which could apply for promotional money for art projects from the lodgers' tax. The village council last year approved a quarter of a cent increase in the tax dedicated to the arts in the promotion of tourism-related events.

During budget sessions, village councilors said they'd like to see an independent, non-profit entity instead of a village-appointed arts board.

The transformation would remove legal questions about paying the salary of the arts coordinator, they said at the time. It would clarify what arts projects are for local consumption and those that aim to draw people into the village from other areas.

Speaking last week, Councilor Bob Sterchi said the group "succeeded beyond any body's expectations. But they reached a point where it was cumbersome for them to come to the village for every little whim. This way they can do their own fund raising. They can branch out into some things we wouldn't necessarily sanction from a village standpoint."

But the regional arts council can apply for a portion of the one-quarter of 1 percent lodgers tax for tourist oriented events, Sterchi said.

"I think they are on track," he said. "Obviously, there will be some bumps in the road switching from one to another."

The transformation should speed up the identity of Ruidoso as an arts destination, he said.

Even before the village council suggestion, arts commission members had been considering the move, Ed Spurr, chairman of the new group, said.

He appeared Tuesday at the village council meeting to update members on the progress of the group, which is putting aside money generated from projects such as the Great Bear Hunt for the creation of a cultural arts center.

All that is needed is a place for the center, said Frank Amigo, who handled the Great Bear Hunt project with his wife, Elizabeth. As soon as a center is created, classes will start in various art techniques and disciplines for all ages, he said. Summer week-long classes will be taught, drawing people to the community, he said.

Examples of a mailer sent to generate membership were distributed at the meeting, pointing out that the purpose of the arts council is to develop and promote Ruidoso, Lincoln County and Mescalero as an arts community.

Articles of incorporation were filed July 18, and the group received its charitable designation from the IRS.

From 1996 until professional staff was hired in 2000, one project each year was developed with funding support from the village and New Mexico Arts. Arts commissioners were appointed by the mayor.

Financial support increased each year and programming expanded.

The RRCA will continue a series of five concerts in the park, five gallery walks, performing and visual arts in the downtown streets, temporary and long-term exhibits of outdoor sculpture and Private Art in Public Places.

The Great Bear Hunt, a public art project of 23 larger-than-life bears based on maquettes by local sculptors and painted by area artists, culminated with an auction that raised about $54,000 dedicated to a new cultural arts center.

Some of the council's goals include an affordable classical music series, another major public art project and classes taught by area artists when the arts center opens, along with exhibits and performances there.

"We also are pursuing another exhibit in the Governor's Gallery in Santa Fe, similar to our 2001 exhibit that featured works by 32 area artists," the brochure states.

Membership opportunities range from $25 for students to $5,000 for the Diamond level.

Councilor L. Ray Nunley said he received the membership mailing from the group.

"I applaud anyone who wants to get out from under the government," he said. "I think there's a lot of opportunity out there for them and they are doing a lot to help the community. Government can be a hindrance. I think they're moving in the right direction."

A CC podium too far

BY DIANNE STALLINGS
RUIDOSO NEWS STAFF WRITER

With an agenda full of problems behind her, Lincoln County Commissioner Maury St. John turned her attention recently to an issue that really was irritating her — the location of the second podium in the county commission chambers.

"I would like to discuss doing away with that podium," she said, motioning to the lectern at the rear of the chambers in the county courthouse in Carrizozo.

"I sit here and most of the day I cannot see who's there," the commissioner said. Her chair is next to the county clerk, who takes minutes of the meetings and block's St. John's view of the podium. "My concentration may be lax at times and it's sort of a dark corner, so it's very difficult at times to keep up with what the person is talking about."

"It's much easier to follow if they are down here," she added, indicating the podium in front of the commission semi-circle dais.

"It might lengthen the meetings a little because people would have to share the microphone. It's not the height, it's the position of it," she said.

Poking a little fun at St. John, Commissioner Leo Martinez asked, "Didn't we already change the time of the meetings for the commissioner?"

At St. John's request, commission meetings were moved from 8 a.m. to 8:30 a.m., although St. John asked for 9 a.m. to accommodate people coming from Ruidoso and other areas an hour's drive away.

"Put it right next to the door," St. John suggested.

Chairman Rex Wilson agreed a change might do some good.

"In all honesty, you're more effective speaking from here," he said of the podium closer to the commissioners.

County manager Tom Stewart said he would look at the cost of changing.

Martinez said a simple alternative would be a microphone that operates without a tether such as the extra one used at meetings of the Ruidoso Village Council.

Oscura resident Jerry Carroll suggested moving the clerk. Another spectator recommended a brighter light bulb.

Carroll, who videotapes each commission session, said the up side for St. John is that because he stand next to the podium, his camera can't capture her on tape well either.

Martinez volunteered to exchange seats with St. John, but she said that doesn't solve the problem.

Stewart will look at options.

Controlled burn starts

BY DIANNE STALLINGS
RUIDOSO NEWS STAFF WRITER

A fuels reduction project on the Sacramento Ranger District of the Lincoln National Forest started Monday.

Originally planned for October, the project was postponed on the forest around Mescalero, southwest of Ruidoso, because of unfavorable weather conditions.

The controlled burn will target the Lick Ridge/Pinon Draw area in the southeastern portion of the district and covers 4,200 acres. Conditions may allow for only a portion of the project to be completed this time, according to Beth Wilson of the U.S. Forest Service office in Alamogordo.

The project is designed to remove excess ladder fuels in Ponderosa pine and mixed conifer stands. Ladder fuels, which include brush and small trees, allow ground fires to climb into the boughs of older, taller trees.

Residents in the designated areas should expect to see and smell smoke during the course of the burn, Wilson said. Signs will be posted along the highways affected by the smoke when the fire starts. Motorists are urged to use caution.

For additional information, contact the district office in Cloudcroft at (505) 682-2551 Monday through Friday.

RAT Pack PATROL

Capitan resident Mark Forlano recalls career as security officer for some of Hollywood's brightest stars.

BY MARTY RACINE
SPECIAL TO THE RUIDOSO NEWS

Mark Forlano points his walking cane to a photo. Two uniformed men are escorting a man in a blindfold. "This is (silent film star) Harold Lloyd's house. I caught this guy. He was snooping around."

In his plush ranch-style home outside Capitan, Forlano lives in a house full of memories. Photos. Certificates. Letters. Autographed mementos — recollections of glamour days working security for the stars: Sinatra, Brando, Jack Benny, Jim Neighbors, Farrah Fawcett, Steve McQueen, Natalie Wood, Elizabeth Taylor, Neil Diamond, Lana Turner.

"I can't name them all," he says in his Brando-esque Godfather whisper. "There were so many."

In 1914 Forlano missed by four months being born on Italian soil. His mother, Maria, was carrying him when she arrived in America and settled in Los Angeles.

During World War II Forlano joined the Navy and served for 30 years. After decades at sea he returned to L.A. and, in 1963, following a whirlwind courtship, married Bonnie Giesler, the ex-wife of high-powered attorney Jerry Giesler, whose clients included Errol Flynn and Lana Turner.

Four years later Forlano, licensed to carry a gun with the power of arrest, hired on as a security guard with Well Fargo Alarm Services. He was assigned to the Bel-Air Patrol, for which he served 13 years.

"His knowledge, attitude, and competency resulted in him being requested for security at all celebrity functions," his supervisor, Cal Crenshaw, wrote in a 1982 reference letter.

"He was one of my top guards, a great asset," Crenshaw confirmed by phone from New York, where he now is an actor in TV commercials. "He was impeccably dressed. He made a good-looking patrolman, and he was honest to a fault. You could hang your hat on whatever he said."

When Elizabeth Taylor requested a guard at her estate, Forlano volunteered. He then guarded Bob Hope's property.

Mark and Bonnie Forlano moved to Capitan in 1990.

"He gave me these. Let me show you," he tells a visitor, producing gold-etched highball glasses reading, "Thanks for the memory."

His reputation spread. Though he was paid by Bel-Air Patrol the stars tipped him well, Forlano said, noting they "slipped me hundred-dollar bills."

Often, he wore civilian clothes while accompanying stars in public. "They would say, 'Mark, I want you to wear a blue suit,' and if I didn't have it they'd send me to their tailor. I went with them everywhere just to keep people away."

"Like Rock Hudson, he called me up, said, 'Mark, you got to take me to Palm Springs.' I said, 'Sir, can I take my wife?' He says, 'hell yeah.' So, while she was doing some shopping and stuff I was protecting him."

One day the wife of a movie star, who was in Lake Tahoe for an engagement, called him in the house "to meet another Italian." Frank Sinatra.

"Frank was a good guy. I used to patrol around Sinatra's house, his garden."

Forlano worked for Dean Martin. "He told me one night, he says, 'Mark, I want you to go and spy on my girlfriend.' I said 'OK,' went up there in civilian clothes, had my gun and all that. At 9 o'clock this limousine pulls up, the driver comes out and he opens the door for her and he pushes her against the car and just kissed her."

"The next day Dean Martin, he says, 'Anything happen, Mark?' I says, 'No sir, nothing happened.' See, if I'd-a told him about his girlfriend he woulda got a gun and killed him. 'Everything's fine.' I'm no dummy, you know."

"One day he says, 'Mark, I don't want no one coming around the house, I don't wanna be bothered.' He had a girlfriend. So then Glen Campbell drives up. I stopped him, said, 'I'm sorry, Mr. Martin don't wanna be bothered tonight.' He said, 'Do you know who I am?' Said it in a loud way. I said 'Yes sir, you're Glen Campbell.' Dean Martin comes out of the house with a gun: 'Who's that, Mark?' I says, 'Glen Campbell.' He said, 'See you tomorrow, (expletive) you!'"

Once while patrolling Jack Benny's home,

Benny asked him to stay for the night. "He said, 'OK, when I go up the stairs, that's my bedroom, my wife's bedroom's there. When I go up there I'm gonna put a switch on. If you step on that step it's going to go to the Beverly Hills Police Department.' So I knew that was loaded. I just stayed in the kitchen."

Forlano was a bodyguard for California Gov. Ronald Reagan and patrolled the compound of O.J. Simpson before his fall from grace. "He was quiet, he was nice, didn't bother nobody."

He never had to use his .357 Magnum but it took an act of fate. One of his posts was at a jewelry store in Beverly Hills, and one day he asked his brother Frank to stand in for him.

"He went at 9 o'clock. At 10:30 that morning, two men came in and stuck up the place. He didn't have a chance to do nothing; they made them all lay down. The man that owned the jewelry store, he says, 'Mark, if you were here I bet you would have killed those two men.' My brother says, 'I'll never work for you again.'"

Mark and Bonnie moved to Capitan in 1990, building their home on 21 acres across from Bonnie's sister's place. Forlano joined the Lincoln County Sheriff's Posse but quit because of a bad back.

On Feb. 1 Bonnie died of a stroke. She was 80. They'd been married 40 years.

He lives with a bodyguard's sense of security, with his yapping housedogs Gigi and Tosca and two Shepherd yard dogs. At the front gate visitors press a button and announce themselves on the intercom.

In the spacious living room, with the fireplace, piano and wet bar, you can almost hear the echoes of glamorous parties. There's a wall of autographed photos. "To Bonnie, you are the hostess with the mostest. Enjoy Capitan," Phyllis Diller wrote.

"Nancy and I are delighted to send you our warmest birthday wishes," reads one from the Reagans.

He turns to the Harold Lloyd photo. "They sent me there just to walk the premises. That's when I caught this guy. I radioed in to the Beverly Hills Police Department and we folded him so he wouldn't know his way out. And that's me, see?"

Ratliff station sold

Allen Barrilleaux of Houston, Texas., last week purchased the interest of W. D. Ratliff in the Navajo Service Station here.

The Ratliffs, Dick and Maxine, are at present visiting friends and relatives on extended tours of Texas and California.

New Miss Ski-O-Doso

The second annual Ski-O-Doso held last Friday night at the Ice-O-Rama brought out a fun-loving crowd of about 400 ski enthusiasts ranging in age from 5 to 85 ... There were a few mechanical difficulties, but nobody seemed to mind.

The climax of the evening came when Carol Lynn Wright was crowned Miss Ski-O-Doso for the 1963-64 season. Placing the crown was Mrs. Pat Rooney, last year's Miss Ski-O-Doso.

Light sacrifice for holidays

Ruidoso has new Christmas decorations this year — and by the sacrifice of at least 120 local citizens will be able to light them for the first time.

The Ruidoso Chamber of Commerce, after discussing the power crisis with Jerry Wood, manager of Community Public Service Company, decided to ask residents of the village to turn off their lights so the decorations could be lighted from Dec. 14 to Jan. 1.

Capitan over Carrizozo

The Capitan High School varsity basketball team moved their record to 2-0 with a 64-53 decision over visiting Carrizozo Tuesday night.

Capitan got a 26-point scoring effort from 6-2 Eddie Davis in the victory. Davis scored most of his points in the second half. Junior Dewey Keller added 12 points.

Pay hike OK'd for county

It took two votes on amendments and a threat by the county manager to look for another job, but the Lincoln County Commission finally approved a 6 percent pay raise for employees. Merry Christmas.

The package will cost the county about $60,000 for the six months left in the fiscal year, but will come out of already approved budgets for each department.

Seasonal flu bug an unwelcome Thanksgiving gift

LINCOLN TRAILS
ROSALIE DUNLAP

Not much news this week as I really have the flu bug. Others are also down with various bugs. So the news will be short.

I hope everyone had a great Thanksgiving before the bugs attacked so many of us.

The McArthur's and daughter and family spent the holiday in Arizona with Mac's brother and family. They took the old Highway 66 in celebration also of Mac's 66th birthday.

He told his grandchildren stories of when he worked on a ranch and about driving a herd of 3,000 cattle across Highway 66.

Patricia Coleman visited her grandparents, Ralph and Rosalie, over the holidays.

They took Rosalie's mother to the Sally Port in Roswell for dinner.

We also had a short visit with Bessie Jones. She was staying at the retirement center. She didn't want to go to Texas with her family.

Also saw Marjorie Eldridge.

The Freeman-Anderson Museum had their annual Christmas activities. It hurts so to talk — but I am sure everyone had a great time.

Due to so many out with illness there was just a small attendance at church services at San Juan on Sunday.

The Freeman-Anderson Museum is building a new building at the back of the museum property. I understand it will be for storage
