Ruidoso Fire Chief Tom Gavin addresses the public at Thursday's unveiling of the Wall of Courage. This perspective shows the wall's enormity.

Wall of Courage dedicated

A vision becomes reality

Sometimes it takes courage of a very personal nature for the diverse members of a community to come together to achieve a common goal.

And now, that kind of collaboration and dedication has produced an outstanding work of art that will last for generations of Lincoln County residents and visitors.

On Patriot Day, Thursday, Sept. 11, a ceremony at the gateway to Midtown Ruidoso celebrated the product of vision, dedication and community support. The Wall of Courage, a 75-by-20-foot mosaic mural honoring firefighters on the massive wall at Ruidoso's new fire station, was unveiled. The mural includes an American flag, the shield of the Ruidoso Fire Department and depictions of both urban and wildland firefighters, and is believed to be the largest mosaic mural in the United States.

The beginnings

Artists Brian and Summer Sarinova, of Lincoln County Artwerks, provided the inspiration for the project. The wall originally was slated to receive a decorative rock facade, but cost of the station project ran high and that option was deleted to save dollars.

Developers at the nearby River Crossing condominium-retail complex donated flagstone, and the station contractor and architect agreed to apply a protective coating with coloring to avoid allowing the wall to become an eyesore.

But a new idea surfaced March 11 during the public input portion of a Ruidoso Village Council meeting, when Brian Sarinova offered village officials a real deal on a colorful mosaic.

"We're offering (to install) this at a lower cost to contribute to the community," he said of the proposed mural.

If money could be raised in the community within the following 90 days, the mural would take about four months to finish, he said. "It's a beautiful canvas and I expect it will have a long life beyond ours and our children's."

Village councilors voted unanimously to approve the project with the stipulation that the Ruidoso Regional Council for the Arts (RRCA) raise the funds – $50,000 – to cover the cost of materials. At this point, the RRCA became the fiscal agent for the project, with an original date set to raise the needed funds of May 31.

From the start, the project was to be totally community-funded.

Financial finish line

While the RRCA and community members were working diligently to raise the necessary funds, a substantial pledge fell through due to the failure of a well-meaning New Mexico politician's pledge that proved to be contingent on his re-election. When his nomination bid failed, the RRCA successfully secured a $6,000 loan from Compass Bank.

That loan met the requirement to collect at least $40,000 toward the cost of materials that was set as a threshold for a pledged $10,000 contribution from the R.D. and Joan Dale Hubbard Foundation.

"We were $6,000 short and covered it with the loan," RRCA Board of Directors President Josie Powell said.

Councilor James Stoddard, Hubbard Foundation director, said the foundation committed to deliver the final $10,000 toward the project within one week of the June 4 council meeting.

The physical work began in earnest the first week of June.

At the old fire house

Work commenced at the original 1948 Ruidoso Fire Station at Eagle Drive with a dedicated team of volunteers in place.

Paul Adamian, Marilyn Bennet, Alan Miner, Pete Schiavone, Theresa Montez, Paul Garcia and several others, including students from ENMU-Ruidoso, joined the Sarinovas in tackling the task.

Helping with everything from breaking the tiles to sorting them according to color and then pasting them onto the flexible transfer material, hundreds of volunteer hours went into the making of the mural.

More than 750,000 pieces of tile in 30 different colors were employed. The total weight of the tiles was about two tons.

The brightly colored porcelain tiles were applied to a mesh, then cut into sections, numbered and stacked. When all the sections were completed, they were transported to the Sudderth Drive site for installation.

During the March 11 village council meeting, Mayor L. Ray Nunley spoke about the old fire house. "It's a good downtown location to have people involved," he said.

He then suggested that

Fall burning operations set to begin

The Ruidoso Fire Department, with cooperation from New Mexico State Forestry and the U.S. Forest Service, will begin its fall prescribed burning operations the week of Sept. 15.

Hand crews from the Los Lunas Correctional Facility have been in Ruidoso clearing underbrush and digging fire lines to make ready the prescribed burn.

Burning will begin in the Eagle Creek watershed along Ski Run Road in Township 10 East, Range 13 West, Sections 33 and 34. Burning will be initiated during the early morning hours and will persist all day while favorable weather lasts. it is possible that burning may also continue into the evening.

Residents of Sierra Vista, Sun Valley and Alto Lakes will likely see and smell large volumes of smoke at times. The burns will be heavily staffed and they are surrounded by fireline or physical barriers on all sides.

Burn plans are on file for public review at the main fire station, 541 Sudderth Dr., in Ruidoso, from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday-Friday.

Questions can be directed to Ruidoso Fire Chief Tom Gavin, 575-937-3107 or 257-FIRE.

— Flood Update —

The Flood Update, furnished by the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA) in conjunction with the Village of Ruidoso, will be published on The Community Page as events warrant.

FROM THE VILLAGE OF RUIDOSO

Sewer, water

• In the last week, water service was returned to the following areas: River Trail, Upper Canyon, south side of Main Road up to 1015 Main, north side of Main Road up to 804 Main.

The following areas do not have water: south Side of Main Road from 1017 Main Rd. to the reservation Line, including Pinky Road, Hill Road and Bear Claw; north side of Main Road from 806 Main Rd. to the reservation line, including Malone, North Loop, Riverside Drive, Mountain View Drive, Martin, Bradford.

• Some residents on Main Road that have water may experience low pressure.

• In the last week, sewer service was returned to the following areas: north side of Main Road up through 930 Main with the exception of 822 Main Rd. along with all of Fox Drive.

• All homeowners connected to the Village of Ruidoso sewer system on the north side of Main Road from 934 Main to the reservation line still do not have sewer. Damages are being assessed in this area along with the south side of North Loop Road and the south side of Main Road.

Next week, we are receiving bids from contractors to help expedite the reconstruction of our very complex water and sewer systems throughout the Upper Canyon and various other locations within the Village of Ruidoso.

Until those contracts are awarded, we will continue to repair sewer main lines along with service laterals, and manhole repairs.

Homeowners throughout the Upper Canyon connected to the village sewer system should contact a licensed plumber to assess their service line to the mains.

Solid Waste

VOR Solid Waste responded on July 28 to assist in immediately removing debris that impeded traffic flow. Commencing on July 30, every available staff was brought in on their days off and worked additional hours with the prime focus being Upper Canyon. Employees used a grapple truck assisted full-time by two crews.

They completed the emergency work on Aug. 26, which yielded 3,000 cubic yards of debris removed from the area. Three other grapple crews spread out through the village from Camelot to the areas along the river starting at Mechem to the VOR limits bordering Ruidoso Downs removing 5,000 cubic yards of debris in that same time period.

Roads and Bridges

Within days after the flood an earth bridge, where the second bridge was located, has been built using materials that we had stockpiled. We then continued our efforts restoring egress across McDaniel Bridge in much the same way we did the second bridge.

Our crews are focused in a couple of different areas including working on Main Road washout in Upper Canyon, along with repairing the Country Club Bridge.

To date, the street department has made temporary repairs to the following: Coyote Bridge, Country Club Bridge, River Trail Bridge and Parker Road Bridge (in Ruidoso Downs).

These bridge structures are temporarily repaired, but are passable for light civilian traffic and should be good through the winter until a more permanent fix can be designed and implemented. We also completed many street patches that were washouts due to the flood. For this week and the next couple of weeks, we have been focusing and will continue to focus on public-requested work orders to clean out and repair drainage area and culverts in various regions around the Village.

Wastewater Treatment Plant

The WWTP has had continuous high flows since the time of the flood indicating massive amounts of river water going through the system. The plant has, on average, seen flows of 1.8 million gallons a day compared to average this time of year of 1.3 million gallons a day. This has caused no adverse impact on the safety or quality of treated water going back into the river.

• For further utility information, please visit the Village of Ruidoso Web site, www.ruidoso-nm.gov.

• For flood-related individual assistance not involving village infrastructure, call Shirley Foster at The Ruidoso Flood Coordinating Committee (a faith-based non-governmental service organization) at 973-4669.

• For flood-related issues, call 937-2572, or appropriate village department.

FROM THE STATE OF NEW MEXICO

• NMDHSEM has approved nine project work-sub grantee applications. The applications are being reviewed at FEMA's regional office.

• NMDHSEM is continuing to coordinate recovery efforts with local, state, tribal and federal government.

• NMDHSEM is working with the Ruidoso Flood Resource Coordinating Committee to ensure the public's needs are addressed.

FROM FEMA

• A contract is in place for the removal of the Eagle Street Bridge debris. The removal will start today. Folks in Midtown will have a visual reference of ongoing work.

• Community Outreach and Education personnel from the Mitigation section are providing 11 multi-faceted Outreach products to community officials in the two declared counties, who in turn provide them to community entities.

Greigo account

On Aug. 24, Jake Greigo, a friend and coworker at the Swiss Chalet Inn, suffered a near-fatal heart attack. After being flown to Albuquerque and treated, he was released Sept. 6 to return home.

He has lost wages and has no medical insurance to cover his treatment. The staff at Swiss Chalet Inn has set up a donation account at City Bank to help cover his medical expenses.

Donations can be made at any of the bank's three Ruidoso locations, under the name Jake Greigo. Donations can also be mailed to City Bank, 1096 Mechem Dr., Suite 103, Ruidoso, NM 88345, account No. 80364533.

Correction

In last Friday's edition of the Ruidoso News, Rick Albers was incorrectly identified in a village council story as a real estate developer.

He is not. We regret any inconvenience this may have caused.

New Downs pumper truck loaded with features

TODD FUQUA

It's every firefighter's worst nightmare.

In the face of a devastating wildfire in a remote area, you run completely out of water.

That's always a danger, particularly in a rural county like this one, but the Ruidoso Downs Fire Department has just received a truck that it hopes will reduce the chances of something like that happening to almost zero.

A new pumper truck, with a water payload of 1,800 gallons, was delivered to the city Aug. 31, culminating an almost two-year quest for a more state-of-the art truck that can deliver water to areas cut off from traditional water supplies in the event of a remote wildfire.

Lieutenant Justin Shaw showed off some of the features the truck has to offer local firefighters.

"The idea is to keep a continuous stream of water on the fire, wherever it happens to be," Shaw said. "With an 1,800-gallon-capacity, this will come in handy."

The department also has two canvas tanks, one at 2,100 gallons and another at 1,500 gallons. By filling one of those and placing it on a rack on the fire truck, the new vehicle can deliver as much as 4,000 gallons to a site at once.

That's critical in Lincoln County, where some fires can threaten structures and private property in an area where there simply aren't any fire hydrants or readily available water sources for pumping.

Additionally, the truck can pump water from just about any water source – be it a river, lake or stock tank. This means the truck can deliver a canvas tank to a fire sight, leave to refill at the nearest water supply and return with more precious fire retardant.

Check out www.ruidosonews.com for video on this story

While the truck may be parked in the Ruidoso Downs Fire Department building on Downs drive, the truck is available to any area fire department that needs it.

"We're all in this together," Shaw said. "We have agreements with Ruidoso and the U.S. Forest Service, and any department that might need this truck's capabilities will have access to it."

"The ability to move 1,800 gallons to a fire means a lot," said Ruidoso Downs Mayor Tom Armstrong. "Usually, you get about 50 gallons per minute in some sections, so having this truck is an extra cushion that's needed when you fight a fire.

"I won't say we'll never run out of water on a fire, but with the right training, this truck will give us a 99 percent chance we won't."

The Wall of Courage: Why stop now?

The arts are Ruidoso's sustainable future

An emotional day nationwide brought a tear or two to Ruidosans for another, more local, reason: The Wall of Courage was unveiled, with the final tile placed into the mosaic mural, at the new Ruidoso Fire Station on Sudderth Drive.

That the unveiling occurred on 9/11, on what has become known as Patriot Day, was no coincidence; the mural honors our nation's true heroes, firefighters – and, by extension, all their brothers and sisters in the life-and-death field of emergency services.

We can think of no better, no more majestic way to honor those personnel who selflessly serve in Ruidoso and throughout Lincoln County.

Beyond that tribute, a village on Thursday came full circle in its sometimes-stormy relationship with the arts. After several other options for the fire station wall had been scrapped, Ruidoso Village Council and the Ruidoso Regional Council for the Arts (RRCA), which have sparred previously over funding requests, worked as a team with artists Brian and Summer Sarinova of Lincoln County Artwerks. That, in turn, attracted the services of additional artists and volunteers.

Their collective vision generated financial support from private donations, a loan from Compass Bank and a gift from the Hubbard Foundation.

This community-based effort for an "art project" stirs the imagination for what might be accomplished as Ruidoso takes its rightful place as an art destination.

With its natural beauty as a backdrop, and with physical and psychological space available for the creative process, the arts stand to be a major sustainable player in the area's economic growth.

Why stop here? We should encourage all forms of public art, from sidewalk chalk art to sculpture, murals and live music flowing out of Midtown.

Use the old fire station as a public studio for artists. The world needs more color, more melodies and objects of mirth and inspiration that transform the ordinary into a place that seduces us all.

Seeing eye to eye...

Oh, so many thanks from Oso Art

To the editor:

THIS LETTER IS ONE of thanks to the community of Capitan (and many others in Lincoln County) who helped me realize some events that took place there in 2007-08.

These events include: Taste of Capitan, the Pozole Contest, several specially-themed shows at the Oso Gallery, the twilight movies, the art auction held to raise funds for Friends of the Capitans, the Flowerfest, and others.

The success of these events is owed in great part to such folks as George and Pearl Tippin, Rebecca Judd, Lee Arnone, the Capitan Library board, Ricky and Annmarie LaMay, Janelle Ware, Lyn Shuler and the children of Capitan.

Also, thanks to those who contributed with great wit and humor to the "curious containers" seen at Flowerfest: Mike Lagg, Raynene Greer, Jeannie Adams, El Paisano Restaurant, Calamity Jane's Restaurant, Fort Lone Tree, the Capitan Library, Larry and Lorene Caywood, Gary and Jo Lanning and grandchildren, Big Brothers and Big Sisters.

Others who helped with that event immensely include: Camp Sierra Blanca, Civigenics at Ft. Stanton, Rachel Bertrand and her Girl Scouts, Sue Burke, Mary Ann and Bob Morrisseey, Kay McNeer, Shirley Pavlovic, Karen Pritchett and Todd Shelby.

Plants, flowers and containers were generously contributed by Walmart, Seasons Nursery, Ziascapes and Beverly Wilson. Also, thanks to Capitan Mayor Sam Hammonds, the Capitan village trustees and the village employees for their help in making these events a success, and a lot of fun.

I apologize in the event that I have excluded anyone who helped; you're in my heart! Capitan is a great community, and I am very happy to be living and working with such great folks, and plan to continue to do so in the future.

Towards a rational, national energy policy

TONY DAVIS
Lincoln County

"One of our most urgent projects is to develop a national energy policy. The United States is the only major industrial country without a comprehensive, long-range energy policy. Our program will emphasize conservation ... solar energy and other renewable energy sources. We must face the fact that the energy shortage is permanent. There is no way we can solve it quickly. But if we all cooperate and make modest sacrifices ... we can find ways to adjust."

Timely and important ... sounds like a quote from the current political campaigns, right? Or perhaps what might be heard from the next president at his inaugural address? No, this was from a speech by President Jimmy Carter given 30 years ago.

Carter was concerned about U.S. dependence on foreign oil. Gas prices then had more than doubled in the last two years. Sound familiar? Carter was the president who put solar panels on the White House (President Reagan tore them down.)

Carter did succeed in reducing the country's dependence on foreign oil by 50 percent, but a lasting national energy policy did not happen. And that's too bad; it would have made things a whole lot easier today.

What might have been can be seen in the current situation with wind power generation. Those wind farms you see in eastern New Mexico and West Texas? Many use Danish wind turbines and generators. Denmark invested in research and development of wind power in the 1970s and is now a leader in both the use of wind power and the manufacture and export of wind power systems.

The Danish Island of Sams has the distinction of not only producing more energy than the community needs (they sell it back to the mainland), but is the only community in the world, so far, that is carbon-neutral.

As for solar energy, the U.S. share of global panel construction has fallen from 20-25 percent about four years ago to about 8 percent now, while Japan and Germany have increased their output. China has increased its market share from about 1 percent four years ago to 8 percent now. The wealthiest man in China now makes solar panels.

New Mexico and the West have ample renewable energy. The solar energy falling on New Mexico in a year is 16 times what the whole nation uses in that same time.

Yet, because that energy is so spread out, and we have not yet mastered the engineering problems of collecting and distributing that energy, the nation as a whole only gets less than 1 percent of what it needs from solar power.

Wind power is one way of collecting solar energy, but we need more and better distribution lines to get the power to where it is needed. (For more information on this subject, see T. Boone Pickens' plan: www.pickensplan.com/theplan).

So, after 30 years, what's happening today? Despite both major political parties saying something should be done, and both saying they support steps toward alternative energy strategies, it appears that the political "noise" of the campaign has preempted any serious discussion. On the national stage, the two parties are deeply divided over how to best solve the nation's energy challenge, and they both want to use gas prices as an election issue. The Republicans are hoping voters will punish Democrats for opposing offshore drilling, while the Democrats hope to paint the Republicans as the party of Big Oil.

Locally, the two candidates vying for Pete Domenici's Senate seat both say they're for investing in alternative energy and better conservation/efficiency. U.S. Rep. Steve Pearce says, "I have been a consistent advocate for developing renewable energy such as solar, wind, and biofuel." U.S. Rep. Tom Udall says, "We need to invest in alternative energies, promote greater vehicle and appliance efficiencies, and enact a comprehensive energy policy."

Beyond what they say, if one looks at the voting record, (available at a number of sites, notably, www.ontheissues.org/-Senate/Senate.htm#nm) they have voted almost completely opposite on energy and oil bills that have come before them.

Rep. Udall has more consistently supported a position away from oil dependence and towards alternative energy. He has introduced, and secured, passage in the House (the bill did not get past the Senate), bipartisan legislation to require electric utilities to produce at least 15 percent of their electricity from alternative sources and energy efficiency measures by 2020.

Rep. Pearce has voted against incentives for alternative energy, (and indeed has voted for subsidies to Big Oil). He opposes taxing oil and gas companies to pay for alternative energy subsidies.

Somebody tried to inspire us 30 years ago. We yawned.

The oil and gas companies themselves have invested in alternative energy, although not as much as they would have you believe (see: http://dpc.senate.gov). They know that oil and gas are not long-term solutions; that these are finite resources; that no one is pumping oil and gas back into the ground.

The domestic supply of oil peaked in the 1970s; world oil supply may be peaking now. So is it any wonder that a legendary oilman, T. Boone Pickens, is investing and promoting wind power?

America is now in the midst of an energy crisis, which we like to ignore. Half a trillion dollars a year are going to foreign oil producers. An additional 250 billion dollars goes to domestic producers, and in 10 years it will be $1 trillion a year. Economically, our nation is bleeding and we must stop the hemorrhage. Even with prompt action, positive change will take 20 years, and no single solution will suffice.

We need a comprehensive program that includes:

- Development of green energy, wind and solar power, geothermal and tides as non-polluting sources of energy. This could reduce our use of fossil carbon by 20 percent.
- A nationwide conservation program: 50 mpg vehicles; a 60 mph speed limit; updating our homes and buildings with much higher insulation values. A savings of another 25 percent.
- Development of modern nuclear power plants. This will save another 40 percent.
- Increased use of biofuels, but not corn-based ethanol which uses energy to produce energy. Currently, other sources such as sugar or switch grass are economically available and more efficient.
- Yes, more drilling – but carefully chosen and with the recognition that this can only be short-term. It merely allows us to transition to cleaner, more permanent solutions.

"If we wait, and do not act, then ... we will feel mounting pressure to plunder the environment. We will have a crash program to build more nuclear plants, strip-mine and burn more coal, and drill more (oil and gas) wells ... Intense competition will build up among ... the different regions within our own country."

– Again, President Jimmy Carter, speaking 30 years ago pointing toward that which has come to pass.

We desperately need a comprehensive national energy policy. We must do this with much foresight and care, even if the crisis is hard upon us. As Tom Udall has stated, "If we take care of the land, the land will be here to take care of us."

"If you will join me so that we can work together with patriotism and courage, we will again prove that our great nation can lead the world into an age of peace, independence and freedom." ... "This difficult effort will be the moral equivalent of war – except that we will be uniting our efforts to build and not destroy."

– President Jimmy Carter

maybe a good plan for the village would be to rent the old station to artists as a studio where the public could watch them create pottery and other items.

Councilor Michele Rebstock chuckled and said, "That would be coming full circle," a reference to a previous effort to use the building as an art council cooperative that had been was rejected.

Sarinova, an RRCA board member, hopes the location might still serve as the village's permanent cultural center. "It would be an ideal use for the building, and the mayor and many of the village councilors are in favor of it," he said.

"Ruidoso has now seen what artists are capable of, and the artists have seen what the community can do. I sincerely hope the council pursues it."

The ceremony

First, the Ruidoso Fire Department Color Guard presented the flags, as the Ruidoso High School 24-Karat Gold Band performed the "Star Spangled Banner."

Also on-hand were Mayor Nunley and RRCA Board President Powell, who both delivered remarks focusing not only on the auspicious day, but on the importance of honoring the heroes of our community and our nation.

"Proud is how I describe my feelings today," said Powell. "I am proud of the artistry, creativity and hard work of Lincoln County Artwerks, the artists of the Wall of Courage. I am proud of the Ruidoso Village Council for their trust and faith in the Ruidoso Regional Council for the Arts in voting unanimously to allow the Wall of Courage to be created. I am proud of the donations made by so many ... (and) I am very proud of those for whom this wall was created – the firefighters of Ruidoso and Lincoln County."

Powell also indicated the need for additional funds to help pay off the loan used to complete the project.

After the Wall of Courage was unveiled, Brian Sarinova gave his thanks to the community and the fire department, then introduced Johanna Montez, 8, and Ezra Anderson, 10, who ceremoniously placed the final tile into the mural.

Fire Chief Thomas Gavin then spoke in memory of the lives of Americans and firefighters lost in the World Trade Center terrorist attack. "However," he continued, "as we remember today, our spirits should be lifted as we view this magnificent Wall of Courage and its tribute to the very human qualities that make America great – patriotism and pride in our flag – and the need to help our fellow man throughout life. More specifically, it will be a pleasure for me to report to work each day and be visually reminded of my membership in the club of many great men and women and their families that are willing to sacrifice it all, as they did on 9/11/2001, in their efforts to protect the public."

He then expressed gratitude to the village council, the mayor, the RRCA and the artists for making their vision a reality.

Tourism money awarded to state organizations

Approximately 145 New Mexico non-profit organizations and local and tribal governments will share in the more than $1 million awarded this fiscal year through the New Mexico Tourism Department's annual Cooperative Marketing Program.

Included is $1,000 awarded to the Billy the Kid Scenic Byway, $500 to the Carrizozo Chamber of Commerce, $8,000 to the City of Ruidoso Downs for the Hubbard Museum of the American West and $7,000 to the Village of Ruidoso for the Ruidoso Convention Center and Texas Outreach.

Cooperative marketing funds are made available through the program to help these community outreach organizations promote their areas as a visitor destination. It is a matching program and reimburses a percentage (either 33 percent or 50 percent, depending on the applicant's total marketing budget) of the organization's direct costs associated with the placement of advertising, including print, broadcast, billboard and online advertising. Eligible costs also include the printing of promotional brochures, Web site development, trade show participation and costs associated with public relations.

"The communities that market the State of New Mexico have the knowledge and experience to promote their respective attractions and events," said Michael Cerletti, secretary of the Tourism Department. "The cooperative marketing program is an effective way of partnering with the people that have put together solid marketing programs to help them increase tourism in their area in particular and to the state overall."

Funding was based on the proposal's score and available monies, and was reviewed by a committee of marketing professionals from the public and private sectors.

Ike not expected to impact New Mexico

Ike, a huge hurricane brewing in the Gulf of Mexico, is expected to make landfall early Saturday on the central or upper Texas coast, west of Houston. From there, a low pressure system is forecast to drag it to the north and east, well away from New Mexico. This track forecast, from mid-day Thursday, shows Ike to be a Category 2 hurricane with sustained winds of 100 mph. It could strengthen before landfall.

Council approves one subdivision, denies another

TERRY FITZWATER
tfitzwater@ruidosonews.com

Sometimes you win. Sometimes you lose.

That's the message Ruidoso Village Councilors sent to two developers at its regularly scheduled meeting Tuesday.

In two separate matters, councilors voted to override the recommendation of the Planning & Zoning Commission on one proposed commercial property and upheld a recommendation to deny the other application.

The first matter before the council was an issue involving the final platting of a commercial piece of real estate in the Young Heights Subdivision owned by Leif Younger along Mechem and Grove Drive. The parcel contains up to three separate lots, and Younger asked Planning & Zoning at its Aug. 5 meeting to approve the commercial subdivision, noting the property has always been zoned commercial.

At that meeting, commissioners expressed concern that the western part of one unit intruded into a residential subdivision and that a residential street would be used for additional commercial activities.

By a 4-3 vote, planners recommended that the subdivision be approved with the caveat that the proposed lot bordering the residential neighborhood be rezoned residential.

At Tuesday's council meeting, a representative from D.T. Collins and Associates asked councilors to reject the planning commission proposal, stating that the property has always been zoned commercial; and that neighborhood residents had been notified of the planned subdivision and no one objected.

"You are asking the applicant (Younger) to do a lot ... this has always been a commercial lot," said the representative. "It would be unfair to him."

City Attorney Dan Bryant said that, due to New Mexico real estate law, denying Younger's request would be tough for the city to enforce or defend legally.

"The tests we would have to meet are not present in this situation," Bryant said. "There are no changed circumstances in the neighborhood, and the levels of proof we have to meet are not present in this case."

Councilors unanimously voted to override planners' recommendation and approved the subdivision.

In a second matter, Burl Peterson asked councilors to override a P&Z recommendation that would have allowed him to subdivide 6.334 acres into seven small lots and one large undeveloped lot in Tract A of the Green Meadows subdivision.

Earlier, planners in a 5-1 vote had denied the subdivision, citing numerous drainage issues and neighbors' complaints.

"This application has generated more letters of protest from the surrounding neighbors than any other issue I've dealt with," said Village Planning Director Bob Decker. "Drainage and other issues really make this proposal a difficult one to accept."

Mayor L. Ray Nunley queried: "Haven't we dealt with this proposal before? It's time to put this one behind us."

After discussion, councilors voted unanimously to deny the application.

In other business:

- the Council approved a tentative infrastructure capital improvement plan that includes $500,000 for Upper Canyon sewer extension, $250,000 to renovate the solid waste service/office building, and $75,000 for two 4-wheel drive patrol cars with equipment;
- agreed to hold a workshop to discuss possible appraisal and selling of Village-owned property;
- approved the placement of health awareness signs along the Sierra Blanca Walking Trail provided by Lincoln County Medical Center pending approval by legal counsel;
- appointed Eric Dow to the Parks and Recreation Board of Directors, replacing Susan Lutterman.

LCSWA board to set service rates in unincorporated areas

DIANNE STALLINGS
dstallings@ruidosonews.com

In the future, commercial and special solid waste services rates in unincorporated areas of the county will be set by the governing board of the Lincoln County Solid Waste Authority.

The authority board has set commercial rates for the municipalities served by the LCSWA since its inception. They approve their own residential rates. But two years ago, the County Commission reclaimed jurisdiction over all rate setting in areas served by the LCSWA outside of municipalities.

The agency, a coalition of the county and its municipalities formed in 1991 to develop a regional landfill and provide solid waste collection and disposal, was selected most recently as the county collection entity on May 23, 2006.

The Village of Ruidoso pulled out of the coalition in 1998, except for use of the landfill south of Alamogordo. Representatives on the LCSWA are elected officials from each of the entities.

Debra Ingle, LCSWA operational supervisor, told commissioners at their meeting last month that residential rates for unincorporated areas are controlled by the commission and recommended by the LCSWA board based on increases in the Consumer Price Index every year.

But LCSWA board members wanted commissioners to relinquish the rates for commercial service and for large roll-off containers to speed up reaction to changing market conditions, possibly as often as monthly.

"In my eight years, the authority set the rates for six years and then the commission took them back for unincorporated areas of the county," she said.

Commissioner Jackie Powell, who with Commissioner Eileen Lovelace voted against the motion by commissioner Dave Parks to relinquish commercial rate setting jurisdiction, said, "I'm not ready to turn over carte blanche commercial rates."

Lovelace asked why, if a change in rates was needed, Ingle didn't come to the commission previously to ask for an increase. Ingle said the first year, the authority absorbed fuel cost jumps, but this year an increase was part of a package of rates approved in May by the commission.

Parks, who represents the commission on the authority, pointed out the LCSWA board would set the rates, not Ingle, although they rely heavily on her recommendations and figures.

"Her concern when she brought it up was our roll-offs were way underpriced and about to bust the other entities (providing similar services) and messing around with private enterprise, and I don't think that's what we should be doing," Parks said.

"Why do we have to remove it from the county commission?" Lovelace pressed.

"We could ask for monthly adjustment, if necessary, but it would be cumbersome to do that at the commission level," Parks said.

"We need a public hearing at the authority level and you would too," Ingle said. "We couldn't get back to you on time. It would be a 60-day cycle instead of a 30-day cycle to include the commission."

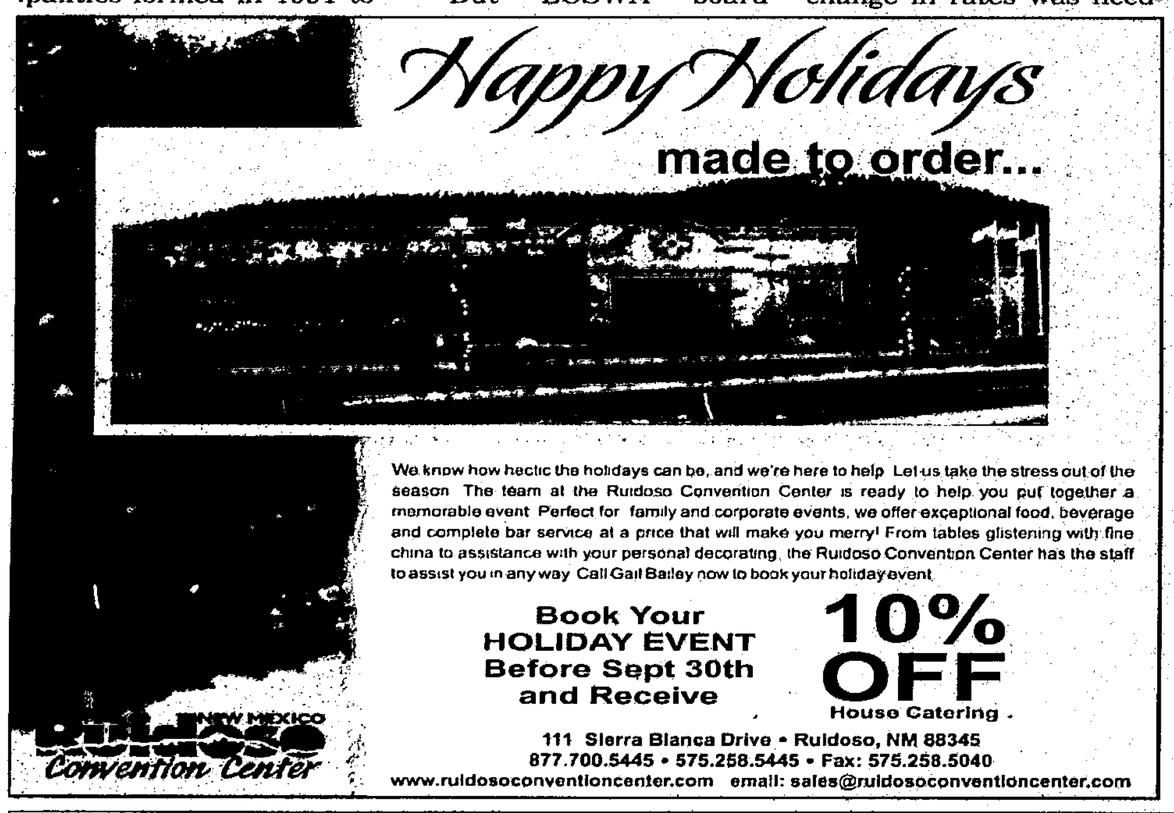
Parks, after being told by Ingle that no problems occurred with the authority setting commercial rates in municipalities, offered a motion to amend the ordinance to allow the LCSWA to set the unincorporated commercial rates. It passed 3-2.

Ingle said she would return after the authority attorney consults with the county attorney on more changes to the ordinance to comply with new state environment rules handed down last year that took effect two months ago.

"Has the law changed on the exemption (that allows) owners of 300 contiguous acres to handle their own garbage?" Lovelace asked. Ingle said it was changed and would affect several landowners in the county.

She also told commissioners that the LCSWA worked with landowners and other entities to properly dispose of material cleared from the Ruidoso River after the July 27 flood.

She waited to schedule some community cleanup days until after Labor Day, she said.



County OKs loan for Glencoe-Palo Verde

DIANNE STALLINGS
dstallings@ruidosonews.com

In a continuing effort to improve equipment for volunteer fire departments in Lincoln County, commissioners approved a $200,000 loan for the Glencoe-Palo Verde Fire Department.

County commissioners at their meeting last month approved a resolution to allow the department to obtain a loan through the New Mexico Finance Authority, which carries a lower government interest rate, to buy a two-door chassis Challenger pumper.

The department has no other indebtedness, said County Manager Tom Stewart. The state fire marshal also approved the loan.

In another financial action, commissioners agreed to allow the Bonito Volunteer Fire Department to pay off a $150,000 December 2002 loan, scheduled to be retired in 1012.

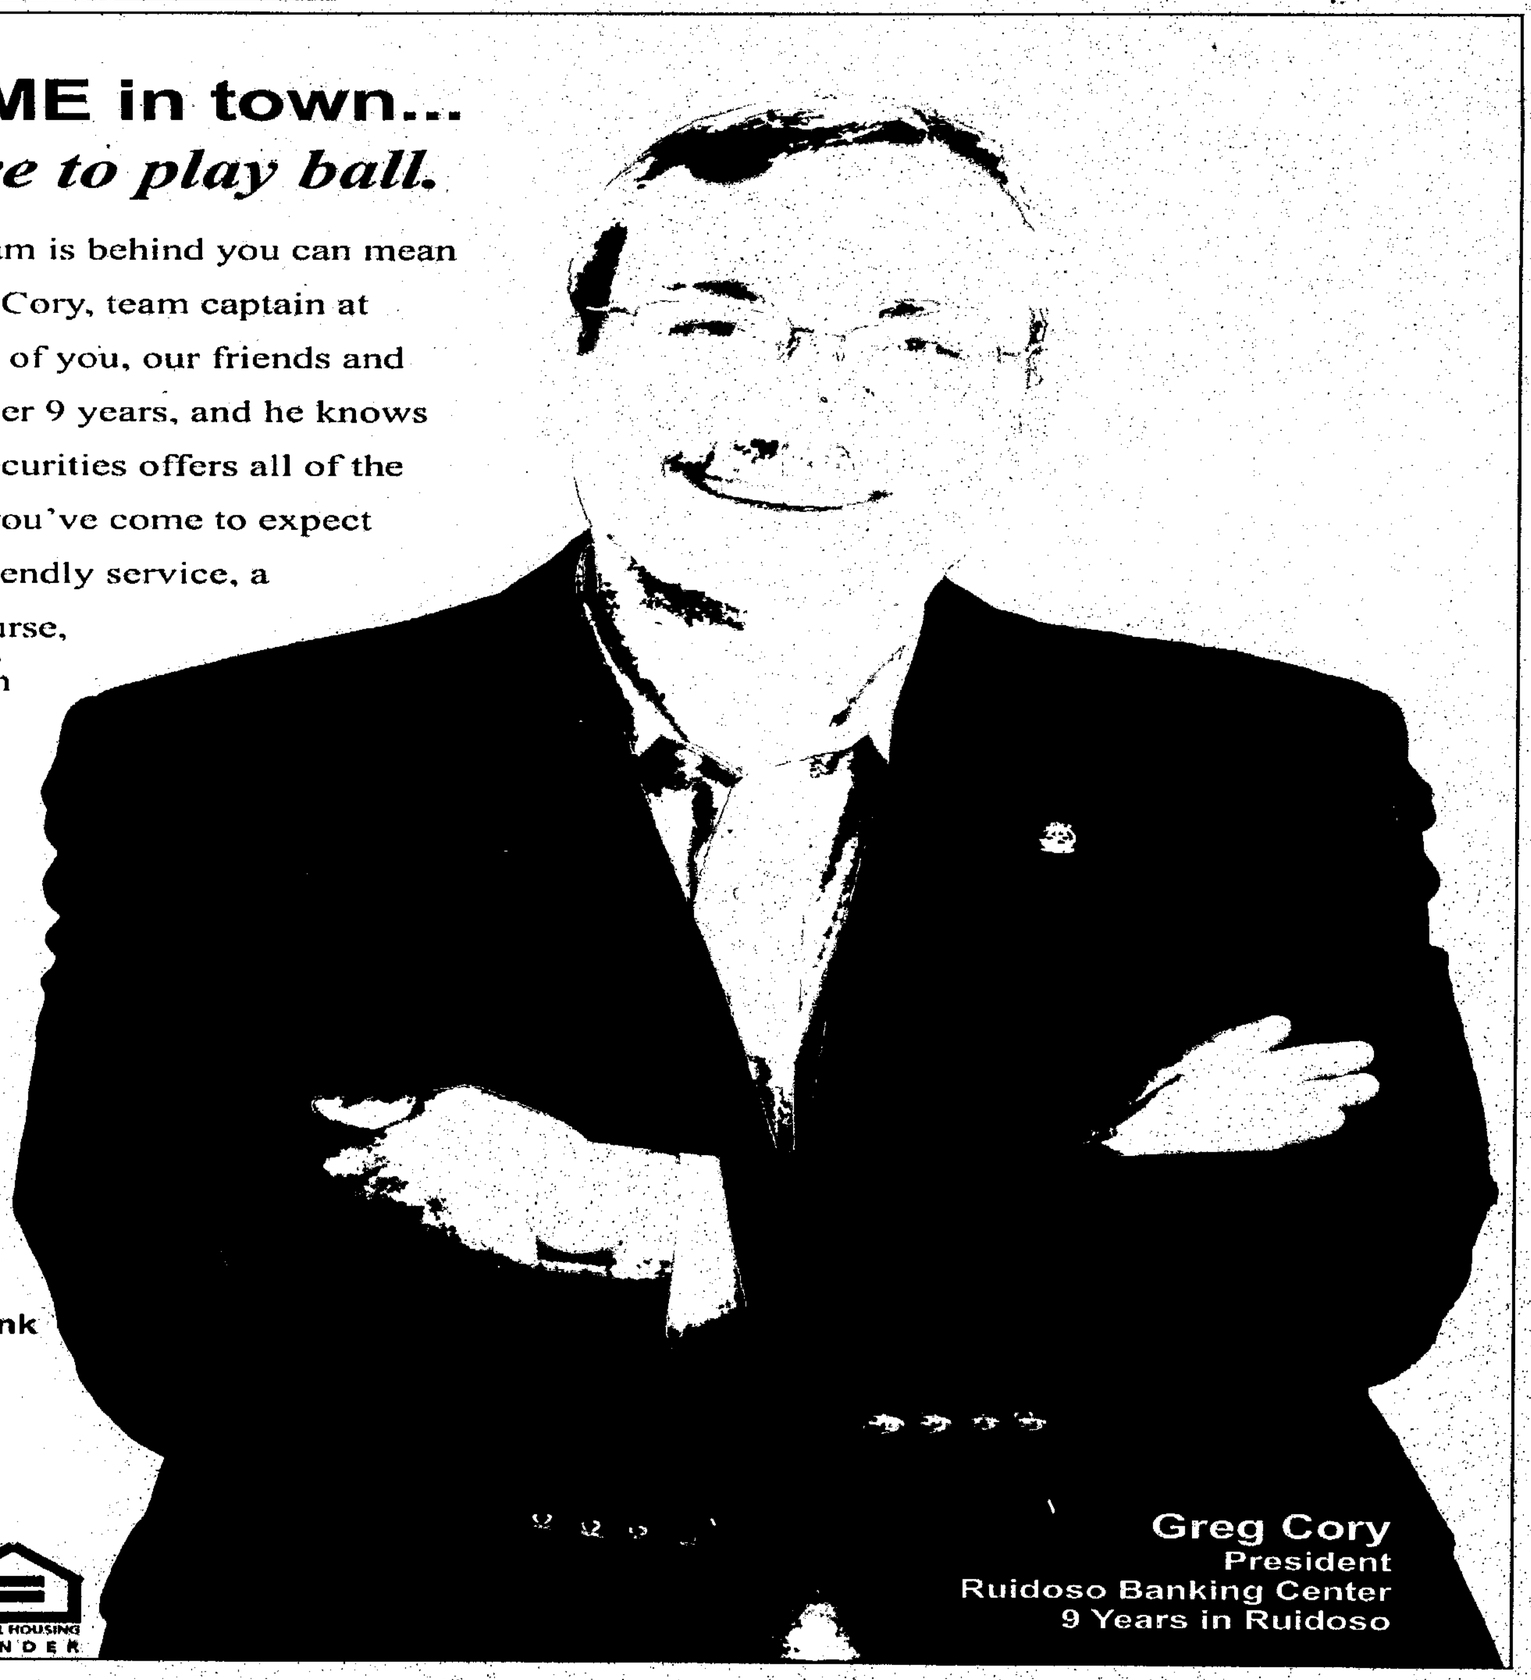
By paying off the loan early, interest money will be saved and the amount of money that must be reserved to guarantee annual loan payments, called an intercept, will be reduced from $43,562 annually to $25,489.

The reduction will leave the department about $143,000 each year from state firefighting distribution money gleaned from a percentage of insurance premiums paid statewide.

The department's annual expenses are running about $73,000, Stewart said. The payoff will put them in a better position to purchase a new fire truck with the NMFA loan in the near future, he added.

The payoff amount is $63,959, and the action was requested by Bonito Fire Chief Carl Bartley, who also is a bank president.

The department carries two other loans, $144,312 in November 2004 for a tanker/pumper to be paid off in 2015, and $90,000 in September 2006 for a quick attack truck to be paid off in 2015.



DA to 'Zozo: Guilty! So don't do it again

JULIE CARTER
jcarter@ruidosonews.com

A letter from District Attorney Scot Key addressed his findings and conclusions regarding the investigation into violations of the Open Meetings Act by the Carrizozo board of trustees.

The closing paragraph of the letter summed it up.

"While I obviously find and conclude that the former mayor and trustees have violated the Open Meetings Act, I also find that no further rehabilitative, retributive or education purpose would be promoted by filing a District Court action at this time. I will, however, warn you that any future violation of the Open Meetings Act will be met with an appropriate and timely filing in District Court. Additionally, excuses and stories of negligence or oversight will be met with great skepticism by this office."

The letter was read in its entirety to the public at Tuesday's Carrizozo Town Council meeting by Mayor Bob Hemphill.

Key said he knew the letter was long-awaited by citizens, but that the delay was necessary to monitor the town's efforts to correct the violations, follow corrective recommendations from the Department of Finance Authority (DFA) and the auditors.

"I have noted that those efforts have been successful and those efforts mitigate the necessity to file a formal complaint in District Court for the violations I have found," Key wrote.

Key recognized that Hemphill was not the mayor at the time of the actions, but acknowledged Hemphill's acceptance of the responsibility for the corrective measures, criticisms of Carrizozo government and the job of assuring that violations would not recur.

In breaking down the decision, Key addressed the limitations of the inquiry.

"The town received its annual audit from a reputable CPA for the year ending June 30, 2006," he stated in the letter. "In that audit, there were numerous reportable conditions concerning the financial health and well-being of the Town. While many of the reportable conditions seem to illustrate the lack of financial control in the town finances, none of those reportable conditions have criminal implications.

"One reportable condition that does, however, have criminal implication is condition 06-D Open Meetings Act Violation. I limit my inquiry and comments as to this condition only. The condition as described by the auditor is this: 'The Town Clerk [Leanne Weihbrecht] and Deputy Clerk [Margaret LaBelle] received additional compensation payments over and above their established pay rates. Per a letter received from the then Mayor and Town Trustees, all of the additional compensation being approved in a public meeting prior to the payment being made. The additional compensation was considered to be bonuses and additional pay even though the compensation rate was computed at overtime rates (1.5 times their normal pay rate).' "

KEY

In that condition, Key found the following facts:

- At the relevant times of the audit, the Town Clerk was not eligible to receive overtime pay.
- The Town's personnel policy did not provide for additional compensation for the town clerk.
- A letter was provided to the auditor and others that suggested that the additional compensation to the Town Clerk was approved by the Town Trustees.
- The compensation to the Town Clerk and Deputy Town Clerk was paid. The approximate amount was $18,816.29, which may have included unused vacation time which also was not authorized by the personnel policy at the time.
- All records, minutes, agendas and recordings of trustee's meetings have been reviewed and no mention, motion, vote or detailed minutes can be found indicating that this action was discussed or approved in an Open Meeting.
- The only record in the town's open meetings regarding these monies was a year-end budget adjustment which was moved and passed by the trustees.

There was neither discussion nor comment of the specifics contained in the adjustment nor any mention of the intent behind making the end of the year adjustment.

- The additional compensation was apparently awarded because of the belief that the Town Clerk was providing additional services to the Town above and beyond her duties. The accuracy of this contention is questionable. While it appears that some work may have been provided on a particular project, that project has not been completed and this writer questions the veracity of this contention.
- While the adoption of the year-end clean up resolution to make budget adjustments and hence, the ability to provide additional compensation to the Town Clerk was approved by the trustees, this general resolution (by design or by negligence) hid the specifics of the proposed action from the citizens of Carrizozo. This methodology prevented input, criticism, questions or support from the citizens of Carrizozo as to the reasons behind such actions.

Key said that since the matter had been reported by the auditor with intervention by the state auditor and the DFA, the town had made efforts to assure authorities and citizens that violations of the Open Meetings Act would not occur in the future.

An apple a day

MARSHA PALMER

You've heard, "an apple a day will keep the doctor away."

While it will certainly take more than a daily apple to keep you healthy, it is a step in the right direction.

Apples are delicious, easy to carry for snacking, low in calories, a natural mouth freshener, and they are fairly inexpensive.

Fall is the perfect time to try the many varieties of apples.

This year why not experiment with some specialty varieties.

Apples are a source of both soluble and insoluble fiber.

Soluble fiber such as pectin actually helps to prevent cholesterol buildup in the lining of blood vessel walls, thus reducing the incident of atherosclerosis and heart disease.

The insoluble fiber in apples provides bulk in the intestinal tract, holding water to cleanse and move food quickly through the digestive system.

It is a good idea to eat apples with their skin. Almost half of the vitamin C content is just underneath the skin.

Eating the skin also increases insoluble fiber content.

Most of an apple's fragrance cells are also concentrated in the skin and as they ripen, the skin cells develop more aroma and flavor.

There are hundreds of varieties of apples on the market today, although most people have only tasted one or two of the most popular such as Red Delicious or Granny Smith.

Apples can be sweet, tart, soft and smooth, or crisp and crunchy, depending on the one you choose.

There is an apple to suit almost everyone's taste, so why not choose one.

Selection

• Select firm apples, free of bruises, decay, broken or shriveled skin.

• Fruit should be ripe when picked to have good flavor, texture and storing ability.

Storage

• Keep your apples in the refrigerator; 32-35 degrees F is ideal.

• Store in a perforated, plastic bag.

• Check fruit often for any signs of rotting and discard spoiled apples.

Nutrition

• Apples contain small amounts of vitamins A and C, thiamin, iron and calcium.

• The pulp and skin provide dietary fiber.

• A medium, raw, 2 1/2" apple contains approximately 75 calories.

Yield

Due to the many variables such as moisture content, size and variety, it is impossible to give specific recommendations as to quantities to buy.

The recommendations below are approximations only.

• 1 pound = about 3 medium apples

• 1 pound = approximately 1 1/2 cups applesauce

• 2 pounds (6-8 apples) = a 9 inch pie

• 1 bushel (48 lbs.) = about 16-20 qts. canned or frozen sauce. (An average of 2 3/4 pounds per quart)

Tasty apple ideas

• Add apples to pan-grilled or baked dishes with pork, chicken, potatoes and onions.

• Pair raw apple wedges with cheddar cheese for a quick snack.

• Toss unpeeled apple chunks with pecans or walnuts into a green salad and top with your favorite dressing.

• Liven up your favorite coleslaw recipe by mixing in crisp, chopped apples.

• Layer thin slices of apple in turkey or ham sandwiches for extra flavor and crunch.

Dinner in a pan

4 pork chops, about 3/4 inch thick
1 onion, sliced
2 cups sliced mushrooms
2 tablespoons Balsamic Vinaigrette dressing
1 1/2 cup brown instant rice, uncooked
1 can chicken broth
1 broth can water
2 red apples, sliced
1 teaspoon dried thyme leaves

Spray large nonstick skillet with cooking spray. Add chops; cook on medium high heat 4 minutes on each side or until browned.

Add onion, mushrooms and dressing; cook an additional 3 minutes.

Stir in rice, broth, water, apples and thyme. Reduce heat to medium, simmer until rice is cooked.

Makes 4 servings.

Downs votes 3-2 to not reconsider transit contract

TODD FUQUA
toddf@ruidosonews.com

A simple question of agenda approval opened a full-blown discussion over the city's contractual obligations during Monday's regular meeting of the Ruidoso Downs City Council.

As the council prepared to approve its agenda, councilor Gary Williams asked to remove reconsideration of a memorandum agreement between the city and the state's Department of Transportation regarding a proposed transit system in Lincoln County.

"This has already been signed and approved by the city, so why are we reconsidering it?" Williams asked.

Mayor Tom Armstrong stated he felt the agreement needed to be revisited, due to questions raised by some city officials over the amount of liability posed to the city.

City Attorney W.T. Martin weighed in, stating the agreement was signed by city officials Aug. 11 and by the DOT on Aug. 22, making the agreement legal.

"There is no provision for the city to voluntarily terminate the agreement," Martin said. "The state can if the city breaches the contract, but there's nothing explicitly written that gives the city a chance to withdraw.

"The only way for the city to get out voluntarily is to purposely breach the agreement, and I don't think you want to do that."

Upon hearing there was no escape clause, councilor Dean Holman spoke up.

"I remember, in our last meeting, that Mickie Compton (the likely administrator of Lincoln County Transit) told us the city could withdraw from this agreement at any time we didn't feel comfortable," Holman said.

According to minutes from the Aug. 25 council meeting, Compton said the state would have to be given 30 days' notice of the city's intent to exit the agreement and that all capital purchases would have to be returned.

But Martin stated he's read the signed agreement and did not see anything like that.

"If that language is in there, it's very well hidden. But I don't think the DOT would have a problem if the city wanted to pull out. The 30-day notice may be procedural, it's just not in the agreement."

Williams reiterated his belief the city should honor its obligation

"This agreement is the first step to becoming a viable municipality in this county," Armstrong said. "I don't think the DOT would purposely put us in a position which would be harmful. We just have to make sure the funds are used properly.

"Let's just try this for a year. "I think we're responsible enough to do what a we as a council should do."

Armstrong said he has other concerns that might be impacted by the agreement.

"My fear is, within one year, what will happen to our other projects? We've got sewer pipes going in, water going to Agua Fria, flood abatement and so on."

Holman agreed.

"It this doesn't work, we are gambling with the city's money. If we're the responsible fiscal agent, what will happen? I've spoken to other municipalities that will be served by this and when I brought up the idea of them taking on some responsibilities, they immediately said they weren't interested in that."

The vote to remove the agreement from the agenda, thus keeping it in effect, was 2-2, with Williams and Tommy Hood voting aye and Holman and Rene Olivo voting nay. Arm-strong cast the deciding vote, removing the item from the agenda and honoring the agreement as written.

In related business, the board also voted to discard a proposed joint powers agreement that would divide responsibility for the transit system among Ruidoso, Ruidoso Downs and Lincoln County.

Martin stated the document, as written, was completely incompatible with the agreement approved by the council between the city and the DOT.

"I'm not usually in a position to recommend how the council should vote, but as the DOT has stated they would not approve this document as it is, I would suggest there's absolutely no need for a joint powers board," Martin said.

"The fewer authorities we have to answer on this, the better," Holman said in his support for killing the joint powers agreement. The motion was passed unanimously.

The council also approved a resolution authorizing the city to begin consideration of an independent contract employee to administer the transit program. Martin stated Compton would be the likely choice, as she founded a similar program in Carlsbad.

"That's been in place for the past 13 years and has been exceedingly successful," Martin said.

The council authorized the drawing up of a contract without making any decision on who the contractor will be.

As Ruidoso Downs is the primary authority in the Lincoln County transit system, the council also considered the possibility of a name change to the system to better reflect who will actually be running it.

"I realize there are other partners in this, but we are the top dog on it," Williams said. "The name should reflect that we are responsible for a lot."

Holman suggested the topic be tabled until the next meeting, in order to cull ideas for appropriate titles.

Costs to vacate a right-of-way in village expected to increase

DIANNE STALLINGS
dstallings@ruidosonews.com

The next time a property owner tries to buy a sliver of municipal land through a vacation of right-of-way action, he may pay significantly more.

Ruidoso village councilors haven't increased the fees for acquiring vacated municipal rights-of-way since 1998.

Calculating a Consumer Price Index annual increase for each of the 10 years could push up the prices by more than the 25 percent initially penciled in by Village Planning Director Bob Decker.

Members of the Ruidoso Planning & Zoning Commission Tuesday approved proposed changes to the vacation procedure and recommended that councilors set new fees in line with today's land prices.

Commissioner Bill Hirschfeld, a real estate agent, said even with Decker's hike, "The price is way off for (major road) frontage property."

Decker told commissioners that one of the changes in the proposed ordinance amendment requires that only parcels over a set threshold be appraised.

"I changed the language to appraisals being required for everything $2,500 or above (under the adopted per square foot fee schedule), which is the trigger for those that have to go to the state," he said.

Commission Chairman Glen Barrow reminded commissioners they don't have "power over the purse," and the fee levels will be up to the council.

Decker said the ordinance states that fees should be reviewed every five years, but automatically would increase annually July 1 based on the CPI, a method the council also applies to increases of water and sewer rates.

Commissioner Don Dutton wondered if the village received enough requests to vacate rights-of-way to justify spending the money to pay for a land value update. The last one cost $7,000, but included a few other items in the assignment, Decker said.

Jennie Dorgan, who owns several businesses and is in real estate, said some previous rights-of-way vacations occurred in "pretty tight areas."

A transportation study of the village is being conducted by the state Department of Transportation, she pointed out. Although that may take years to complete, she suggested either postponing future vacations or blacking out certain areas for action until village officials can determine if some of the property others want to buy could be used to provide more parking spaces or alternate traffic routes. She offered, as an example, a side street that cuts from Wingfield Street to Sudderth Drive between a satellite dish service and an office building.

"They may want to vacate it to provide more parking," she said. "But we may need it if we develop public transit, because it would be hard for a bus or van to make the sharp right turn at the intersection."

Dutton said the ordinance as revised contains few changes, most significant being a proposed update of prices.

Decker said by the time the schedule reaches councilors for a vote, the prices will be adjusted upward. Those currently listed by Decker as 25 percent increases from the existing rate include $2 per square foot in most residential zones; $2.80 psf in the Gateway and Hull/Cree Meadows areas; and $5 psf in Upper Canyon in C1 neighborhood commercial zones.

The price in C2, community commercial zones, was listed as $3.15 psf for Gateway Sudderth frontage, $4.40 psf for Skyland Sudderth frontage and $6.25 psf for Uptown Sudderth frontage.

The top amount was $18.75 psf in the C3, Midtown commercial district.

Open season on winter warmth

Cowgirl Sass & Savvy

BY JULIE CARTER

Since winter seems to be just around the corner, the subject of "meatier women" has frequently begun creeping into the cowboys' vocabulary.

It has to be a throwback gene to the cave man days and the survival of the guy with the "warmest" wife.

Dan the team roper is reminding his friends that he lives alone and has an old, drafty trailer house which is conducive to, and an incentive for, snuggling for winter survival. He is clear that, under those circumstances, the anorexic-type woman is completely out of the question.

With all his good friends, you are sure to know they will fix him up better than he could ever have imagined.

One idea was that he troll the buffet lines in town for the love of his life, but that scared him speechless when a photo preview was included with the email suggestion.

Another offered herself up with the caveat of considerable age, an extremely accurate cowboy B.S. detector and a large cast iron skillet.

Dan thought it might be OK, but she had to bring her own microwave. You ll recall he recently blew his up in the tater tot explosion.

Not long ago, Dan's ole buddy Donnie called him and said he was moving back to the area. Dan began recalling "the best of Donnie" stories.

Dan and Donnie were working on a ranch, but not living there. In money-saving mode, Donnie rode a Moped to and from his job.

A Great Dane on the route liked to chase the motor-scooter cowboy.

One morning, Donnie came limping into work, somewhat bloodied up. "You know, I have no idea if that Great Dane is still in the ditch underneath that Moped," he said.

At lunch, they took a ranch truck down to the crash site and sorted everything out. Dog 1, Moped 0. Donnie got a truck.

Donnie invited everybody over to eat one night. He was going to cook it up himself. The gang showed up and he handed them each a bowl teeming with unidentified ingredients. Someone finally asked.

Ranch Style Beans and tuna fish.

When he called, Donnie told Dan he had been shopping in the horse trading magazines because as soon as he moved back, he wanted to take up roping again with Dan and his pals.

He said, as he understands horse ads, there are two categories, "He's a good'un," and "He has a world of potential."

"Don't want none of them potential ones, that sounds like work," Donnie said. When Dan asked him if he was looking for heading or heeling horse, Donnie said it didn't matter, he had decided to get the cheapest "he s a good 'un" he could find.

Dan reminded him that he never was very good at roping and Donnie's response was, "Don't matter. I'm mostly in it for the beer drinkin' . I figure six or eight 12-packs and I'll have this team roping thing down."

When Dan asked Donnie how many times he'd been married, he said, "Four and half."

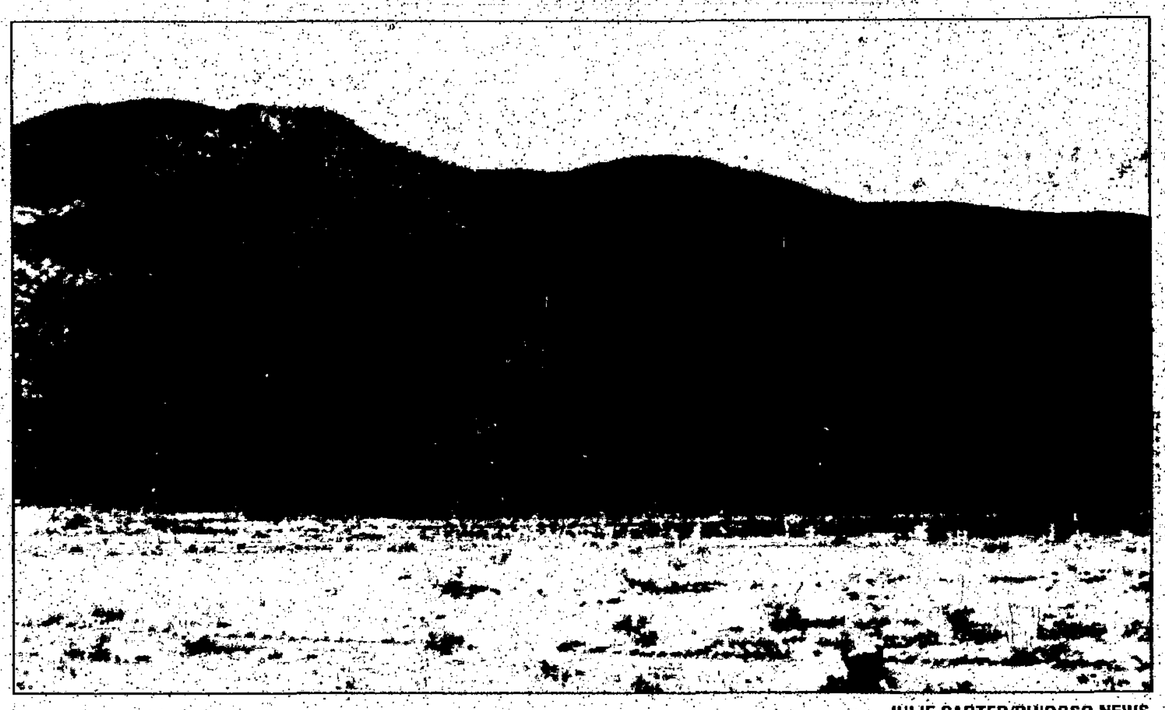
"How do you figure to have been married a half a time?" Dan asked.

"Well," Donnie explained, "I've been married four times in a church building. Then one time I got drunk in Oklahoma and had some sort of Indian ceremony with a fat woman. I might have been getting married then."

Likely, it was close to winter when that happened. Wonder if she had a microwave? Dan, perhaps, could give her a call.

Julie can be reached for comment at jcarter@ruidosonews.com. She has already put in an order for firewood. It's just simpler.

MILLION-YEAR SCAR



JULIE CARTER/RUIDOSO NEWS

A new set of "scars" appeared on the face Carrizozo Peak after the flooding rains that hit Lincoln County the end of July. One observer said, "You have to wonder what happened different in that rain storm to make it mark the mountain like that. The mountain and rain have been around a million years. What happened this time?" If anyone has hiked up to explore or has any scientific suggestions, call the Ruidoso News and enlighten us.

Capitan goes to four-day work week

JULIE CARTER
jcarter@ruidosonews.com

A 3-1 vote sent a motion to close the Capitan Village Hall on Fridays into the approval column at Tuesday's Capitan council meeting.

With Diane Riska casting the only "no" vote, the board agreed to try the four-day work week on a trial basis, starting Oct. 3 and running through January 2009.

The Village Hall offices and all departments, except the police department, will be off on Friday's. A water department employee will be on call to handle any emergencies.

Larry Miller gave a presentation to the council updating them on the Capitan Public Library and the Not 2 Shabby Thrift Shop. Miller has taken the position of "liaison" between the entities and the village.

A resolution for a budget adjustment was approved involving LEPF funds for a new police vehicle. Another resolution was approved as application to the New Mexico Department of Finance for the vehicle.

Shirley Pavlovic was approved as the Village Finance Office. Pavlovic said the scope of the job includes much of what she had already been doing, it just gave the work official status.

Gannett Flemming West was approved to do the environmental surveys for the Village of Capitan's Grip II and Alternative Trails projects.

A memorandum of understanding between the Village of Capitan and Lincoln County was presented by Code Enforcement Officer Kevin Kennedy. The council approved the MOU which outlined a cooperation between Capitan and the county in not duplicating road and street names in deference to the 911 addressing system and any confusion duplication causes emergency personnel.

In other business the council approved:

- resolution for support of cooperative agreement with the Department of Transportation for the Capitan Alternative Trails Project;
- agreement with the Humane Society of Lincoln County – a $6,000/year contract;
- to begin contacting landowners and making property purchase offers for a cul de sac at the end of Main Road.

A cooperative agreement with the Department of Energy, Minerals, and Natural Resources – State Parks Division and the village regarding the old train depot was tabled.

The next regular meeting of the Village of Capitan will be Oct.14.

RHS soccer girls roll on

Lady Warriors have seven straight victories

MIKE CURRAN
mcurran@ruidosonews.com

On Aug. 22 the Ruidoso Lady Warriors lost to 4A Belen, 2-0, but have since reeled off seven straight wins, including Tuesday's 4-0 victory at Santa Teresa where they had more than 12 total shots .

With a 7-1 overall record to date they have far exceeded last year's .500 mark at this same time. Kerbi Miller and Aimee Vasquez set the pace, scoring two goals apiece, and Vasquez is the leading Ruidoso scorer with 23, not only on the team but in all of 3A.

"Santa Teresa is a very physical team," head coach Sigurd Schmitz said. "There was a lot of pushing and shoving and we got fouled three times in the box. We also had a couple of goals called back for being offside."

Schmitz has put together a very good soccer team this year and there are pertinent reasons for this. First and foremost, this is the most senior-heavy team within memory; consequently, many of his girls have been with him, and with each other, for four or five years.

They know his philosophies and they are well-versed with his techniques.

A total of 37 girls came out for soccer this year. Schmitz now carries 17 players on his varsity squad and 18 on the JV team.

"We should have a good year, all things being equal," he said. "But in the meantime, we have to take it one step at a time and improve with every game before we reach districts. And that's what the regular season games are – warm-ups for district play."

Ruidoso soccer boys win

Warriors hold a sizzling 8-1 overall record

MIKE CURRAN
mcurran@ruidosonews.com

The boys Ruidoso soccer squad traveled three hours to Santa Teresa Tuesday and shaded the 4A Desert Warriors, 1-0, in a tough physical contest that saw the village boys emerge victorious in the last period of play and give them an overall season mark of 8-1.

It was a bruising contest which saw Ruidoso miss some key shots, including penalty kicks. As unlucky as the Warriors appeared to be, Mario Varela scored the lone goal of the game with 10 minutes left to play in the match. Santa Teresa pushed hard to get the "equalizer" and had one good opportunity, but the Warrior defense repelled the onslaught. The Desert Warriors made 17 total shots with 11 on goal.

Friday they journeyed to Roswell to participate in the Coyote Classic and throttled 4A Goddard, 4-1, in a very physical night game to give them their sixth consecutive win for the year.

With little rest, they came out Saturday morning to face their arch-rival, Socorro, who had played the previous afternoon, and suffered their first loss of the year, 3-1. Head Coach Craig Washnok gathered his troops in a late afternoon contest with Clovis and silenced the Wildcats, 2-0, for a third place finish in the tournament.

"The boys were tired after that night game with Goddard and even though we won they had to turn around and face Socorro

NM high school rodeo kicks off

JULIE CARTER
jcarter@ruidosonews.com

Another high school rodeo season is upon us, with four fall rodeos on the schedule. One down, three to go.

Santa Fe hosted the season opener last weekend, bringing back the veteran upper classmen and introducing high school rodeo to the rookie freshman, some of whom scratched pay dirt in their first rodeo.

Mescalero's East Padilla, a junior at Mescalero High School, rolled in and tied up the second go round of the bareback riding in the two day, two rodeo weekend. Padilla split first and second with a 61-point ride on Sunday. There were five bareback riders competing.

Ruidoso Downs' hometown rodeo hero, Chon Miranda, showed that he had maintained his mojo over the six weeks of summer since the National High School Finals in Farmington.

Miranda, continuing his saddle bronc riding career, in which he debuted last season, placed a third on Sunday with a 59-point ride.

Indicating there were some tough broncs in the Real Estate Agents can provide both closed sales and active price market information as "comparables", but it takes a Professional to accurately interpret the data.

In our market, few of our homes are "cookie cutter". It takes a lot of education and experience to understand how comparables, along with many other factors must be combined to determine real value. (The start of a successful marketing plan).

What's their secret?

CURRAN EVENTS

BY MIKE CURRAN
SPORTS EDITOR

In Wednesday's edition of the Ruidoso News I wrote an article about the recent winner of the New Mexico Open at the Inn of the Mountain Gods Golf Course. His name is Brian Kortan and his story is heart-warming. At 5-foot-3 and 150 pounds he has to be one of the smallest PGA players on the Tour. Couple that with some other pertinent personal facts and you, too, might find yourself rooting for this diminutive golfer.

He watched his father die of cancer in 1996, witnessed his mother's bout with breast cancer and subsequently experienced his sister's fight against ovarian cancer (they both won their battles). You would think the universe might have taken a time-out and refrained from heaping tragic circumstances on him, but, oh no, there was more to come. In August 2006, while playing on the South Dakota Tour Kortan suffered a heart attack, and although he survived, he lost 40 to 50 percent of his heart function.

After his recuperation he went back to the PGA Tour and has achieved some successes.

What motivates people like Kortan to continue on and give maximum effort towards being the best they can be?

Another study in courage (to me) is the football coach and Athletic Director of Mescalero Apache School Rodney Wright. So far, this season, the 2-1A Chiefs have lost both of their first two games, each by the same score, 60-0. Initially, only 13 kids came out for the squad. This is Wright's eighth year there and his ensuing persistence at helping students realize their self-worth is duly noted. Especially in the face of such adversities as a small school enrollment, student drop-outs and other similar problems. His commitment seems to remain undeterred.

Many kids in this state, out of necessity, are three-sport players. They have to be in order to fill the sports programs. The participation numbers, especially at the smaller schools, are low much of the time and therefore reflect the talent level.

How some of these coaches maintain a positive outlook in the face of such difficulties is encouraging. Football coach Kief Johnson of Ruidoso High School is always upbeat, as are Jason Hightower of Capitan and Pat Ventura of Carrozozo. Hondo's Brandon Devine is consistently positive and helpful.

As you know , I'm originally from Pittsburgh and up there the high school sports programs, for the most part, have no problems fielding good competitive teams. That area, for some reason, is rich in talent and has a large pool of participants to draw from. So much so, that by the age of 10 or 11 a few kids specialize in one given sport and practice that sport year-round. They, and their parents, are charting a course for college, with a given sport as the vehicle to help get them there in the immediate years ahead.

New Mexico's population just about equals Greater Pittsburgh and doesn't normally have that luxury.

So, it amazes me even more when schools in the area field strong teams laden with talent – like Ruidoso's soccer and volleyball teams.

For me, it's a whole different mindset just as it would be for someone to experience the opposite.

To me, it takes more fortitude to continue to compete in this region than it does, say, in the Steel City. I admire people like Kortan and the many coaches in this area who make a strong commitment to their jobs and players. But it's sometimes perplexing to me. What makes them endure adversity? What's their secret? If I ever find out I will let you know.

GIRLS

Saturday 3A Robertson comes to the village at 11 a.m. and brings a respectable 7-3 record to the field of play.

So far, of their three common opponents, Ruidoso blasted Deming, 4-1, got by Goddard, 4-3, and took down Silver High School Saturday, 3-1. Robertson also beat Deming, Goddard and Silver, 9-0, 3-2 and 1-0, respectively. And they also boast a winning streak – six consecutive games.

On the down side, Ruidoso will be missing three of their four top defenders for the contest. Another defender went out earlier in the season with a broken foot and won't be back until sometime in October.

"We'll fill in the best we can," Schmitz said. "Some of the girls will be playing out of position but they have a lot of heart and will give Robertson all they can handle. We'll see what happens."

Between games the coach keeps an eye on the future. He has the Lady Warriors continually working and improving on three parts of the game – supporting other positions, keeping control of the ball and making more combinations, such as passing, moving without the ball and beating defenders.

"We're trying to get to our optimum performance by the time district action commences," he concluded.

the very next morning," Washnok explained. "We came out flat and didn't play our game. Socorro did, and to their credit they passed the ball well and retained possession 60-65 percent of the time. In short, we showed them who we weren't."

Washnok believes their game against 5A Clovis was somewhat off the mark even though they won.

"We hadn't sufficiently recovered from the Socorro loss and then had to take on the Wildcats four hours later at 5 p.m.," he said. "And believe me, it was the hottest part of the day. But that game showed me the mettle of our team as the squad not only prevailed, but preserved the shutout."

New goalie, Beto Fernandez, saw 14 shots on goal and collected five saves.

Rising star, Elisha Martin, formerly of Liberia, West Africa, garnered four goals for the weekend to give him eight for the year.

"Socorro is the best team we've faced this year," Washnok stated. They're ranked No. 2 in 3A, but believe me, they're right up there and on par with No. 1 Sandia Prep.

Ruidoso is currently ranked No. 4 and has only played two 3A teams, Socorro and Portales, to date.

"The team is in good physical shape," Washnok said. "They have to be to run two 40 minute periods on a non-stop clock."

Washnok estimates that any player who plays all 80 minutes runs the equivalent of three miles.

Next up for the Warriors will be 1-3A Robertson Saturday at 1 p.m.

"The Cardinals will probably run a wide-open game, try to spread the field and look for breakaways," Washnok said. "It should be interesting."

pen of stock contractor Guy Winters, of the eight bronc riders entered, there was only one qualified ride on Saturday and three on Sunday.

Miranda came back strong in his feature event, the bull riding, by winning the round Sunday. He topped a field of 23 bull riders to win with a 74-point score.

The team roping saw Ruidoso senior James Sanchez nail ninth place on Saturday with a 15.54 second run with partner Tee Baker. Rookie high school rodeo hand Cade Passig and partner Bo Simpson, spun their steer in quick 7.80 seconds and picked up a third place on Sunday, besting a field of more than 40 teams.

Capitan's all-around athlete and cowgirl Kersti Davis broke into her rookie year with a tie for ninth place in the breakaway roping Sunday with a 3.50-second run.

Davis, in all-around style is also entering pole bending, goat tying and team roping. She'll be one to watch.

Next up is Grants this weekend, followed by Artesia, Oct. 3-5, and Moriarity on Oct. 10-11.

Author's note: If you are a Lincoln County/Mescalero rookie rodeo competitor this season, please contact me with your name and contact information. I have no way of tracking who is rodeoing out of the county and often I don't recognize the names on the result sheets. I don't want to miss anyone in the articles and truly want to feature each one as they move through the coming season. In addition, photos and any "story" help is always appreciated. I can be reached at jcarter@ruidosonews.com or call the office and leave a message at 257-4001.

First Shoes

A great king, so the legend goes, once stepped on a thorn in his garden. In a furious rage, he ordered his prime minister to cover his entire kingdom with leather. "Your majesty," replied the wise prime minister, "let me cover your feet with leather, and wherever you go, you will be protected." And so the first pair of shoes was made.

A child's first pair of shoes is special, safeguarding tiny feet as first steps are taken. But, the journey through life will not be free of thorns, and more than shoes will be needed to provide protection along the way.

A child will need to develop moral fiber to protect his character just as those first shoes protected his feet. We can't carpet the whole world, but we can acquire the faith and courage which will enable us to walk life's rocky paths.

Our house of worship can help us develop character. God points the way to happy, wholesome living – both for the adult with the burdens of life on his shoulders – and for the little child in her first pair of shoes.

Love is the key word

Clary-fications
BY CHARLES CLARY
RUIDOSO PASTOR

In the Christian faith, love is a key word ... love God with all your strength, mind and spirit and love your neighbor as you love yourself.

Jesus told the young rich man that obedience of those commands fulfills the Law and the Prophets.

We are to love God because He first loved us. And, if God loves me, I should do no less, I should love myself.

And if God loves my neighbor, and He does, I should love my neighbor, too.

Two results of God's never- ending, overwhelming love are mercy and grace.

God's mercy is extended to us in Jesus Christ, as He does not give us what we deserve.

God's grace is extended to us in Jesus Christ, as He gives us what we do not deserve.

My breaking of God's commandments should result in punishment and eternal death.

It is in God's mercy through faith in Jesus Christ that I do not experience the punishment that I deserve.

My failure to do God's will should result in no gifts or blessings. It is by God's grace through faith in Jesus Christ that I receive forgiveness and the gift of eternal life that I do not deserve.

The way God works is really confusing, because it is not at all the way things work in the world.

In the world the rule is: Break any law you want, to get you want.

Because, when you get what you want, you will be happy.

A corollary to that rule is that the world owes you what you want, so go for it, any way, any time, anyhow.

The result of God's love, mercy, and grace, when received by faith in Jesus Christ, is that I want to demonstrate my love for Him by obeying His commands and doing His will.

I want to show my love for my fellow man. And lastly, I will love myself, not in a preening, egocentric, hedonistic way, but the way God loves me.

God's love always seeks the best for those He loves. And He loves you and me.

That should give us help for today and hope for tomorrow.

William Henry (Bill) Schweitmann, Jr.

Passed away in the early morning on Tuesday, September 02, 2008, at the Good Samaritan Society Nursing Facility in Las Cruces, New Mexico, after a long battle with prostate cancer.

Bill was born in Brooklyn, New York on June 13, 1924 and attended public school until he graduated high school in 1941. Bill attended Virginia Polytechnic Institute for one term prior to entering WWII. Bill enlisted into the army from the Queens Induction Center on February 12, 1943, completing Basic Training at Camp Wallace, Texas. Out of Basic Training, he was sent to New Mexico State University (then NM A&M) for 9 months Army specialized training. Completing that assignment and earning the rank of Private First Class, he was transferred to the 80th Infantry Division and Patton's Third Army, which was soon deployed to France following General Bradley's breakout from Normandy. The Third Army followed up on the success at Normandy with a great dash across France, only to become bogged down at the border of Germany due to the logistics problems that halted Patton's forces. Shortly before the Battle of the Bulge, Bill was sent back to the States with severely frostbitten feet. After several months of recuperation, Bill was finally discharged from the service in July of 1945, earning the rank of Corporal.

Bill's discharge from the service was, as it happened, to be back at New Mexico State University (A&M). Bill enrolled in the Civil Engineering program at NMSU, earning a Bachelors' of Science degree in Civil Engineering in 1950.

Prior to graduation from New Mexico State, Bill began working for Bunn Construction Company of Las Cruces, where he stayed until his retirement in the mid 1980. He consulted with other firms in the Las Cruces and El Paso area for several years after retirement.

Bill and his wife, Kaki, moved from Las Cruces to Alto, NM in 1990 where they stayed until Kaki's death in 2005. Bill returned to Las Cruces for the remainder of his time with us, enjoying the climate and friends he had in the area.

During his time in Alto, Bill was elected a Lincoln County Commissioner in 1992, and held that position for the next ten years. Bill was also an active member of the Alto Lakes Golf and Country Club and served on the State National Bank Board.

Bill was preceded in death by his parents, William H. Schweitmann, Sr. and Louise (Schlouter) Schweitmann, and the true love of his life, his wife of 60 years, Katharine (Hower) Schweitmann. He is survived by sons, John A. Schweitmann, William H. Schweitmann III, and David S. Schweitmann, their wives, and 8 grandchildren.

A graveside service will be held at the Fort Stanton Cemetery on Saturday, October 4th at 9:00 A.M. The family requests that in lieu of flowers and cards, contributions be made to the American Cancer Society.

Services have been entrusted to the care of La Paz- Graham's Funeral Home 555 West Amador Las Cruces, New Mexico 88005. To send condolences visit www.lapaz-grahams.com

Arrests made in Capitan burglary investigation

JULIE CARTER
jcarter@ruidosonews.com

Five Capitan men were arrested last Sunday and Monday in connection with a burglary at a residence on the 100 block of Smokey Bear Boulevard in Capitan.

Justin Smith, 20, Dillon Kvamme, 22, James Thomas, 19, James Shelby, 22, and Cody Landry, 19, were booked into the Lincoln County Detention Center. All but Smith were placed under a $50,000, no 10 percent, bond. Shelby and Kvamme remain in incarceration while the other three have bonded out.

The reporting call came in at 12:20 a.m., Sept. 7, when the victim arrived back home to find his front door smacked in, a 4 foot by 6 foot window broken and his house ransacked. Witnesses to the crime helped officers identify the five men alleged to have done the damage and the arrests were made.

The five are charged with aggravated burglary, conspiracy to commit criminal damage to property and conspiracy to commit to a crime. They face preliminary hearings before Ruidoso Magistrate Judge William Butts on Sept. 18.

More break-ins

Burglaries were reported Monday and Tuesday at Jake Wolfhart Leather Company and at the Capitan County Emporium, both located on the 100 block of Smokey Bear Boulevard. Because the businesses were not open over the weekend and Monday, the burglaries were not discovered until Tuesday morning.

Capitan Police Chief Randy Spear said they time frame for the break-ins runs from 5 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 6, until 10 a.m. Tuesday, Sept. 9.

Wolfhart's back door had been kicked in but the perpetrators had closed the door upon leaving, making it appear to be normal from any visible direction. Wolfhart is doing an inventory to determine what exactly is missing, but Spear said it appeared to be a considerable amount.

The Emporium's large storage trailer was ransacked and most notable to be missing was the food taken that was stored by Windy City Dog in a Garden. Spear said more than $100 of foodstuffs was taken from the storage.

The burglaries are under investigation.

RUIDOSO POLICE BRIEFS

Weed possession

Upon finding a car parked at Grindstone Lake, Aug. 24, after hours, police also found four female occupants and an odor of an alcoholic beverage and marijuana.

Only one of the car's occupants, Sidonia Comanche, 21, was of age to drink alcohol. Also in the vehicle were Breanna Comanche, 18 and two 16-year-olds, all of Mescalero.

Sidonia was charged with contributing to the delinquency of a minor and possession of marijuana. The others were charged with minors allowing self to be served.

More delinquency

Officers dispatched to a fight at a hotel on Highway 70, Sept. 6, arrested a 16-year-old juvenile male for minor allowing self to be served. Following his booking, the youth was released into the custody of family members.

Some neighbor

A resident of a cabin on the 100 block of Upper Terrace who left her key with a neighbor while she was out of town returned, Sept. 2, to find her front door unlocked and several items missing.

When she went next door to ask what might have happened, she immediately recognized her television and game console in the neighbor's living room.

The neighbor, Shawna Sanchez, 38, told police she had put those items in her home "for safe keeping," and she and her 16-year-old son were returning the items when police arrived.

A surround sound system was also reported missing, and Sanchez responded it was at her daughter's house. Further investigation revealed the system had been sold to a different party by Sanchez's son.

Sanchez and her son were both arrested for burglary and taken to the Ruidoso Police Department for booking.

Bad license

After being stopped for having an expired license plate, Sept. 2, Robert Herrera, 30, of San Patricio, was found to have a methamphetamine pipe. He was cited and released.

Combative patient

A woman at the Lincoln County Medical Center was arrested for battery, Sept. 1, after she attacked a nurse while being restrained. The woman, Patricia Mirabal, 23, of Alamogordo, had been brought in with a high blood alcohol level and repeatedly broke out of her restraints while on her bed. During these struggles, she scratched a nurse on the arm. Mirabal was taken to RPD for booking and later to the Lincoln County Detention Center.

RUIDOSO DOWNS POLICE BRIEFS

Domestic violence

After a woman reported she had been in a physical altercation with her husband, Sept. 1, Dale Silva, 49, was arrested for battery of a household member.

DWI stop

Police arrested Thomas Mirelez, 41, for driving while intoxicated, Sept. 1.

Tools taken

Several thousand dollars' worth of tools were reported stolen, Sept. 3, from a home on the 300 block of North Central. There are no suspects at this time.

Tools and a gas can were also reported stolen, Sept. 4, from the Ruidoso Downs Fire Department.

Warrant arrests

Doris O'Keefe, 51, was arrested, Sept. 2, on a warrant issued by Adult Probation. Sean Rankin, 20, was arrested, Sept. 3, on a warrant out of the Ruidoso Magistrate Court, while Pamela Zamora, 43, was arrested on a Lincoln County Sheriff's warrant, Sept. 4. George Polaco, 44, was also arrested Sept. 4, this on a warrant issued by District Court.

Convenience store crime drops

SANTA FE – A recent study of convenience store crime rates by the New Mexico Environment Department shows those rates dropped substantially after new regulations went into effect in 2004 providing greater protections for convenience store workers.

The study compared rates of crimes from police logs in Albuquerque, Farmington, Hobbs, Las Cruces, Santa Fe and Taos before and after the regulations went into effect.

Murders dropped by an annual average of 44.4 percent, assaults decreased by an annual average of 92.5 percent, and robberies dropped by an annual average of 92.1 percent between 2005 and 2007 after the state Environmental Improvement Board adopted new regulations to protect convenience store workers and residents from violence at those establishments.

"This study shows the regulations saved lives and helped reduce crime while providing greater protection from harm for convenience store workers and customers," said New Mexico Environment Department Secretary Ron Curry. "There were many critics who said the regulations were too costly and would not work. This study proves the effectiveness of measures that were badly needed."

The convenience store regulations that went into effect in 2004 required convenience store owners to have at least two employees working between 11 p.m. and 5 a.m. or provide bullet-proof enclosures, install video surveillance systems, improve lighting and provide safety training to employees.

Today's Birthday (9/12/08). The competition will keep you motivated this year, and that's good. You'll be forced to express yourself well, and quickly. Don't worry, you'll do fine.

Aries (March 21-April 19) — Today is a 7 — Launch new projects, especially ones that involve other people. Don't wait, even until the first of the week. You'll do better if you start now. Make the decision.

Taurus (April 20-May 20) — Today is a 7 — Take on more responsibilities and get more benefits. It'll be worth the extra trouble, even if it means more work now. Take the long-range perspective.

Gemini (May 21-June 21) — Today is an 8 — Passions are easily aroused, so be responsible. If you want to get wild and crazy, pick your own time and location. Stay more or less in charge.

Cancer (June 22-July 22) — Today is a 6 — Fixing up your house increases its value, but that's not why you do it. You love to take care of your family. Get them to help, too.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22) — Today is an 8 — Don't be shy about asking questions. These are things you need to know. Find out how much things are going to cost, and who's going to pay for it.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) — Today is a 7 — Once you get into your routine, the job will go quickly. It'll be a great relief to have it done, and you can sure use the money.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) — Today is an 8 — Your plan needs a little more work before you put it into effect, but not much. Fine-tune it and get started.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) — Today is a 6 — Take time to do the planning to minimize confusion later. This might take longer than expected, but it's energy well spent. You already know that.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) — Today is an 8 — Your friends are crazy. Well, some of them are. You'd better go along and make sure they don't hurt themselves. As frightening as it seems, you're the one with the common sense.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) — Today is an 8 — Take charge of the situation to make sure everything gets done. Promises are more likely to be kept now, under these conditions. Also, get good collateral, of course. Don't be a goofus.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) — Today is an 8 — Delegate one of your jobs to a person who will be better able to do it. This is like passing the ball to the teammate who's more likely to make a basket. Or whatever metaphor works for you.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20) — Today is a 7 — Figure out what you really need. Then estimate how much this will cost. Remember, it's just an estimate. Costs are hugely variable. This is just to get you started.

THIS WEEKEND

Run for the BEACH

Run or walk through beautiful Midtown Ruidoso, and join with others in the yearly event to raise funds to defray mammogram costs and expenses for Lincoln County residents.

Sponsored by First Christian Church, the 11th annual Run for the BEACH will be held this Saturday, Sept. 13, starting at 8 a.m. in the parking lot of Dave McGary's Expressions in Bronze Gallery, 2002 Sudderth Dr.

As a reminder, BEACH stands for Breast cancer Education, Awareness, Cure and Hope, and through the previous 10 years, funds have been raised for well more than 1,000 mammograms.

To continue this much-needed project, the members of the Run for the BEACH committee are seeking not only participants, but sponsors and help from the community.

Donations of cash, prizes, food or assistance are welcomed. The organization is a 501(c)(3) non-profit, and all proceeds go to defray mammogram costs in Lincoln County.

The entry fee is $20, and registration and T-shirt pickup will be at the Village Buttery, 2107 Sudderth Dr.

Late registration may also be made the morning of the race, from 7:15-7:30. An aerobic warm-up follows at 7:30, with the 5K race commencing at 8.

Awards will be given out at the finish line, which include 1st, 2nd and 3rd place for both male and female runners in the various age categories. Refreshments will be provided.

Come out on Saturday to experience the wonderful feeling of community effort during this yearly event.

Out of the heartland of America – the stomping ground of Truman and Twain – Dana Cooper was playing his music in Kansas City clubs by the age of 16. Leaving behind a college art scholarship, Dana toured the country and landed in Los Angeles.

In 1973, Elektra Records released his self-titled debut solo album featurning luminary players Russ Kunkel, Leland Sklar and Jim Horn. Cooper later moved to Texas to join forces with longtime friend Shake Russell. Their collaborations produced five highly successful folk-rock albums, including one on MCA in 1981.

The two became one of the most popular acts throughout Texas and the Southwest, appearing together on Austin city Limits. Cooper and Russell continue recording and performing together to this day.

Cooper has wowed audiences throughout the U.S. and Europe recently with tunes from his newest album, Made of Mud, to be released on Sept. 13 on King Easy Records. Ingenious guitar work and gutsy harmonica continue to augment his passionate voice and insightful lyrics.

Cooper has been named Best Songwriter in Houston, was nominated Best Male Vocalist by the Kerrville Music Foundation and nominated for their Hall of Fame.

MUSIC & CONCERTS

Win a mandolin

Have you ever wanted to own a fine musical instrument, but thought you couldn't afford it? Well, a $5 bill might make you the lucky owner of a handmade mandolin, valued at $2,400.

This exquisite music-making work of art will be raffled off at the First Annual Pickamania! Pickamania! is the newest Silver City, N.M., music festival produced by the award-winning Mimbres Region Arts Council.

The two-day event will feature 10 bluegrass and folk music groups from across the country, appearing at Gough Park on Saturday and Sunday, Sept. 13-14. Admission is free.

The mandolin to be raffled was handcrafted over an eight-month period by Bill Bussman of Caballo, N.M., from his Old Wave Shop next to Animas Creek. Bussman donated the instrument to Pickamania! "to create a buzz." He said he hopes it will be won by a young musician who aspires to improve his or her music skills.

"I'm really happy with the sound of the mandolin," he added.

The instrument is made of several woods. The carved top is of Colorado Engelmann spruce, collected in 1999. The sides are of Mexican black walnut, which Bussman harvested near his home. The fretboard is of Ziricote, also known as Mexican ebony, and the nut comes from the femur bone of a bison. The entire mandolin is stained with what might be described as the residue from the beer brewing process.

Raffle tickets cost $5 each, and can be purchased through the Mimbres Region Arts Council and Pickamania! Web sites, the MRAC office inside the Wells Fargo Bank in Silver City, and at Pickamania! The drawing will take place at 4:25 p.m. on Sunday, Sept. 14, just before the final act.

Free admission to Pickamania! is made possible by support through a generous gift from First New Mexico Bank of Silver City.

For further information, contact MRAC at 575-538-2505, or 1-888-758-7289, or visit www.mimbresarts.org.

HISTORY

What's so funny?

Past Tense

by Drew Gomber
Historian

Thanks in part to the photographs taken during the 19th century, it has become a common misconception to assume that life was so terribly difficult in those days that no one was in the mood to smile. As is often the case when we make assumptions about the past (often, but not always), we tend to be wrong.

As far as people not smiling or laughing in the Old West, that could not be further from the truth. What follows, is a few anecdotes that people found humorous at the time, and a few more that I find humorous today.

Yes, life was hard, and the humor would be considered naïve and crude by modern standards (make no mistake, a few decades from now, people will consider us to be just as crude and naive!)

Here are a few anecdotal examples:

Morgan Earp

Morgan Earp, one of Wyatt's younger brothers, was targeted for assassination after the legendary "Gunfight at the OK Corral." The gunfight was really only the beginning of the violence that spread over half of the Arizona Territory during this bloody vendetta.

Morgan was always known as the "most affable" – or friendliest – of the Earp brothers, all of whom were somewhat dour. In fact it was Morgan, not Wyatt, who was Doc Holliday's carousing buddy. Make no mistake, Wyatt and Doc were certainly friends, but it was Morgan with whom Doc drank.

On the night of March 18, 1882, Morgan was shooting pool in Campbell and Hatch's Billiard Parlor when gunshots roared in the alley behind the place. Wyatt had been sitting in the raised "kibitzer's" chair, watching Morgan play. One of the bullets slammed into the wall just over his head. The other round crashed into Morgan's back, shattering his spine.

Nevertheless Morgan, who was as humorous as his brothers were not, had something to say. They are among his last few words, for he died within the hour. As he was being picked up off the floor and carried to a couch to make him more comfortable, Morgan looked around at the men conveying him and cracked his last joke. "That's the last game of pool I'll ever play," he said, Rodney Dangerfield-like.

Wes Hardin

The West's deadliest gunfighter, bar none, was Texas' John Wesley Hardin. The Texas Rangers had mounted an ardent pursuit of the elusive gunman and finally caught up with him at a train station in Pensacola, Florida. They had posted about 20 riflemen around the platform, insuring that if Hardin were to escape the train, he certainly would not escape the platform. Then, a couple of them walked into the car in which the gunman sat. Hardin recognized them immediately for what they were, and going for his gun, he exclaimed, "Texas, by God."

Up until that moment, it was pretty dramatic stuff. But it was at that point that Hardin gave the Rangers something to chuckle about all the way back to Austin. The West's deadliest killer, one of the few of the true "fast guns," got the hammer of his pistol caught in his suspenders! One of the lawmen later commented that they thought Hardin was going to "pull his trousers clean over his head."

I feel obliged to point out that Jim Mann, Hardin's 19-year-old companion, who was unaware of his friend's true identity, managed to draw clean. Undoubtedly thinking he was being attacked by lunatics, Mann managed to jump out the window, where he was cut down by the riflemen mentioned above, more or less ensuring that his last thoughts were not of a humorous nature.

Wyatt Earp

Wyatt Earp had his share of moments that certainly did not make him smile, but with others, that was not necessarily the case. In the 1920s, Wyatt mentioned to his biographer that it was a good safety practice to leave the hammer of a revolver on an empty chamber. His memory being a tad selective, Wyatt failed to mention that he learned this particular lesson the hard way. Back in 1877 in Kansas, Wyatt's pistol had slipped from his pocket and discharged when it impacted the floor, causing the other card-players in the game to seek immediate shelter through doors, windows and in fact, any opening in the wall. In a moment, Wyatt found himself alone. He did not bother to mention this particular incident to his biographer.

In 1882, Wyatt was hunting down the men who had killed his brother Morgan and crippled his brother Virgil. Wyatt's posse was scouring the mountains around Tombstone for the "Cowboys" (synonymous with outlaws in Tombstone). At one point, near a place called Iron Springs, Wyatt was riding some distance ahead of the rest of his men. Not expecting trouble, Wyatt loosened his gunbelt for comfort. He came around a bend in the trail and suddenly found himself face-to-face with a number of the Cowboys, whose acknowledged leader, Curly Bill Brocius, was in the forefront.

Leaping from the saddle, Wyatt went for his guns, but they weren't there. They were down around his knees, where they had immediately slid when he straightened up. Alternatively, Wyatt went for the shotgun he had on his saddle, nearly cutting Curly Bill in half with it. It is a safe bet to assume that Curly did not get the opportunity to chuckle over Wyatt's guns being down, shall we say, a tad low.

The Daltons

Unfortunately, I'm running out of space for this particular topic. But there is so much more to tell, I may just make this more than a one-part story.

The Daltons were another bunch who always gave me cause to grin, which is definitely not the way they cared to be remembered.

Bob Dalton, it seems, had delusions of grandeur. Apparently, taking mere money from banks and trains was not enough for Bob's ego. He wanted the gang to be remembered. Sorry Bob, but I personally remember you for being God's Own Idiot.

To achieve his goal of bringing the gang to mythical proportions, Bob intended to rob two banks simultaneously in the same town. So what town did he pick? Why, his and his brothers' hometown, of course. But was Bob worried about being recognized? Nope. He had ithat one covered with the less-than-brilliant idea of wearing false whiskers.

Consequently, what the citizens of Coffeyville saw that October morning was five heavily-armed men, all dressed to the nines, with three of them sporting false whiskers and all of them carrying rifles. A group of three peeled off and went into the Condon Bank and the other two strode confidently to the First National.

As one might imagine, the citizens, unlike the Daltons, did not have to be hit over the head with the obvious. In no time the entire gang, perforated by numerous bullets, were laid out dead. If you look at the photos closely, you will see that their pockets were turned inside out. It appears that the robbers' intended victims robbed the robbers.

GOOD TO KNOW

'It's all good'

Dining Out

with Ivana B. Diningwell

Now that all the little horsies and their accompanying entourages have gone elsewhere, we've got the Lincoln County Grill to ourselves again, at least for the moment.

"We've got great local support," owner Pat Martin said. "We couldn't make it if we didn't."

Pat and Paul Martin opened the restaurant in August 1993 in a building that had once been a real estate office and then an outdoor shop. The first restaurant was tiny, with only a few booths, and the couple had no sooner gotten it open and running when the motorcycles came to town. "We didn't know what hit us," Paul said. "But it was fun."

They've expanded twice, adding a deck, then enclosing it, then adding another deck in 2005. The last deck was getting close to a stand of aspens. Paul said he thought some of them might have to go. Pat said she didn't think so, which explains the deck's slightly irregular shape, and the lovely shade that the trees provide.

The motto on the menu is "It's all good" and it is. If you like pancakes for breakfast, you have a choice of buttermilk or sweet potato. The green chile chicken fried steak is served with jack cheese, two eggs and their red potato home fries. You can also have your CFS with cream gravy. If you want it all, go for the ranch hand breakfast with pancakes, eggs, potatoes and bacon, ham or sausage, and then come over and mend Ivana's fences. They serve breakfast until noon, a perfectly civilized time for this lovely meal, in Ivana's opinion.

Unusual sandwiches include a green chile blues burger, with bleu cheese crumbles and bacon nestled alongside the green chile. There is a catfish poorboy sandwich, minus the customary olive salad but with red onion and cole slaw on a French roll. Then there are onion straws – like lightly breaded onion rings but not in a circular form. If you can't quite imagine this, just try them for yourself.

Catfish appears as an entree and on the seafood platter with shrimp and clams. Pat is from South Carolina and is undoubtedly getting back to her roots with all this catfish, and the light, crumbly breading on the filets is probably why they sell so much of it.

There is a long list of Mexican favorites, including a New Mexico combo with a beef taco and two enchiladas – green chile chicken and red cheese and onion.

The marinated chicken salad has every vegetable under the sun keeping company with the grilled chicken and the raspberry walnut vinaigrette. (Half orders are offered, and advisable.)

You did save room for dessert, didn't you? There are freshly baked fruit cobblers and homemade brownies in the brownie avalanche, where said brownie is topped with vanilla ice cream, chocolate syrup, nuts and whipped cream. Banzai!

There are also old-fashioned milk shakes, made with ice cream and real milk. Pat says they sell more of them in winter than summer – go figure. They also have a wine and beer license.

The restaurant is rustically furnished with wooden furniture, vintage tin signs and carved bears. There are framed cartoons that a wandering "starving artist" made for them in exchange for meals. Pat's generous like that – she responded to the recent flood by sending 90 breakfast burritos down to the shelter in the wee morning hours. And if the conversation lags, you can always talk about golf. Be sure and ask Pat about her hole-in-one at last year's Kachina Doll tournament.

Austrian kitchen notes

Culinary Adventures

with Perry Champion
pchamp@ wildblue.net

It took some time the other day to review my notes from a stage I did in Austria. A "stage" is an agreed-upon kitchen time where you learn from a master chef.

This stage did not have much of an agreement, as I was actually on vacation and had had a rather ugly skiing incident that prevented me from doing just that.

I cut a quick deal with the help of the hotel manager to get into the hotel kitchen. Why not?

It was not very difficult to do, and with someone who is willing and barely walking (me at that time) yet wants to learn more about his vocation, it was an easy arrangement.

I was assigned to a young pastry chef for two days. He was very nice and spoke passable English and, with my limited German language skills, we made the thing work.

Imagine being assigned to a part of the kitchen you are not fond of – the bakery. (I do not like to bake – never have.)

I was given the task that first morning of preparing 500 crepes for evening service. That was some major fun and I don't recall if it got better that first day.

You see, the restaurant kitchen life is about repetitive tasks – lots of them – and absolutely boring preparation of recipe ingredients.

The glamour in restaurant cooking is just television stuff.

It is a funny thing, though, about time – your memory, wrecked bloody blistered ankles and sheer drudgery. It doesn't seem that bad many years later.

Day Two did not start out much better as I was asked to bake 2,000 butter cookies. That boring task was just a part of the pastry day.

We produced amazing bread, brioche, buns, exquisite desserts and more from the hotel Konditori. The pastry kitchen had four big binders with recipe after recipe of baked goods.

The art of baking includes annual training for the pastry people. They are very serious about their craft.

I kept walking and working the line with clogs on, no socks, and some gauze taped to my legs. Ugly yes, not an issue really, as we had pastry kitchen things to do and it was really busy.

I now recall that the view of the Austrian Alps from the kitchen windows was amazing. Not a bad place to toil for a few days to learn more about baking.

Sometime during the second day and well into the butter cookie endeavor, I ventured near the cooking line and there was Chef working on the evening meal.

He saw me and told me not to look at what he was doing. He was blending the evening's soup. His English was not very good so I mumbled a comment to the effect, "Must be some State secret ..." and I made it sound respectful.

You see, much of the kitchen life is boring and sometimes it gets to you. How many times can you bake butter cookies and still be thrilled?

Some of us need a lot going on all the time to keep our heads in the cooking game.

The life is not all about wonderful recipes, cool white coats, beautiful China and a great location. Though the creation of new recipes and menus is so much fun that it almost makes up for standing on your feet for 12 or 14 hours a day.

After my mumbled words, Chef told me I was to prepare dinner for the hotel staff. What would I require?

I did a quick pick of something they would not have experienced and it was off to the preparation of dinner and working the endless butter cookies.

The recipe required chicken – they arrived whole, and the recipe I used calls for breast meat. (That brought a comment from Chef about my knife skills. I broke those birds down fast and he left me alone for a bit).

Then bacon (glorious and locally produced), heavy cream (like nothing you will see in the U.S. – fabulous!), onions, olive oil, garlic, tomatoes, salt and pepper.

And I needed some tequila for the recipe. Chef laughed at that request and went off to see if he could find some.

Envision this: preparing dinner for a hotel staff from all over the world, in a hotel in Austria, with a Chef that has pushed me hard, and I must shine.

No pressure.

We go to the staff dinner early. They eat, they smile, say thanks, and then go to work. Chef remains and I know that I am going to be ripped apart for this meal.

He plays with what is left on his plate, and says, "It vas different, und okay. You will work the plating station tonight."

It was something of a small honor to work that station, and really intense. As we wrapped up the dinner, Chef brought me a clean white coat.

Why?

"You will go with us to the dining room and be presented." That was a big honor.

Someday, I'll share my Austrian stage graduation party story.

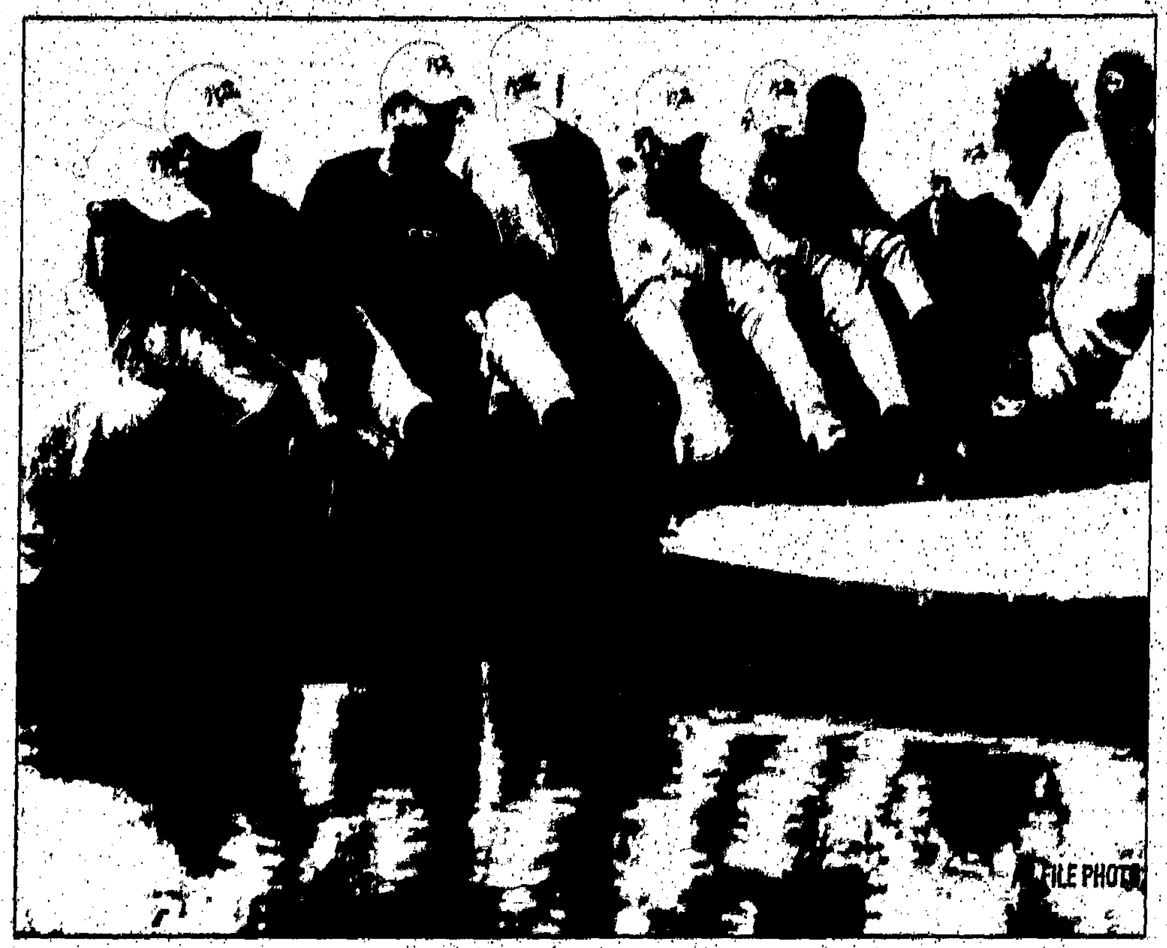
Whole Enchilada Fiesta



FILE PHOTO

The Whole Enchilada Fiesta is a three-day celebration of southern New Mexico's traditions, people and great food.

The celebration is centered around the making of the largest enchilada around. Chef and founder of the Fiesta, Robert V. Estrada, combines Southwest ingredients to make the crowd-pleasing enchilada. For the past 27 years, the three-day fiesta has been attracting the area's finest artists, businesses, organizations and community members, and each year, more than 40,000 people attend from 20-plus states.

The 28th annual Whole Enchilada Fiesta promises to be the best ever, and organizers emphasize it is very much a family-oriented event. The Fiesta has been recognized as one of the top 100 events in the U.S. and the third-largest in New Mexico.

The Fiesta provides a quality experience for people of all ages. The many activities, crafts booths, carnival, New Mexico's largest parade, and cultural and headliner entertainment fill the three-day schedule, Sept. 26-28.

Each year, Chef Estrada (of Roberto's restaurant) makes the world's largest enchilada. Recognition of Estrada's World Record Enchilada by the Guinness Book of World Records in England has further brought a high level of visibility to The Whole Enchilada Fiesta.

Everything for the enchilada is prepared at the fiesta, allowing it to be watched. Free samples of the enchilada are served after it's cooked.

The making and ingredients of The Whole Enchilada

Ingredients: • 750 lbs. of stone ground corn to make the masa tortillas • 175 gallons of vegetable oil, heated to cook the tortillas • 75 gallons of red chile sauce • 175 lbs. of grated cheese • 50 lbs. chopped onions

Special equipment used in the making of The Enchilada was designed by Chef Estrada. The equipment includes the press, the carrying plate, the cooking vat and the serving plate.

Technique: First, they place the carrying tray on top of the press, then put 250 lbs. of the masa dough on top of it.

The dough is then pressed to make the tortilla.

From here, the tortilla is carried by about 14 men to the cooking vat that contains vegetable oil, which has been heated to 550 degrees (this is a difficult procedure).

The tortilla is then cooked and, when done, it is carried by the same men and laid on the serving plate (this is another difficult procedure).

Chef will ladle on some of the chile sauce, then he will spread some of the cheese and some of the chopped onions. This marks the completion of the first layer of The Enchilada.

The second and third tortillas are done in the same manner. Then The Enchilada is ready to be served.

It takes approximately 2 1/2 hours, from start to finish.

Spectators may then enjoy free samples of The Whole Enchilada.

Schedule

On Friday, the Fiesta is open 6 p.m. -midnight and on Saturday, from 10 a.m. until midnight.

Saturday's Fun Run starts at 7:30 a.m. and the parade starts at 10 a.m.

The making of The Enchilada starts at 11 a.m.

Admission is $2, except Saturday morning until the parade is over. Beer Garden admission is $5 (21 & older).

Two stages are set up all three days for a wide variety of non-stop musical entertainment featuring blues, funk, Latin jazz, rock, Tejano, mariachi and much more. Opening ceremonies kick off on the Main Stage with special guest Gov. Bill Richardson at 6:30 p.m. on Friday, and headliner WAR performs Saturday night, 9:30-11.

Visit www.enchiladafiesta.com for more information on events, bands, and great photos of last year's event.

ASTRONOMY

The quest for everything

In Our Skies

by Alan Hale
ahale@nmsu.edu
Astronomer

In its broadest and truest sense, science is the study of the world around us and how it operates.

There are many different facets of this, which in turn correspond to the various branches of science; for example, astronomy is the study of the objects in our surrounding universe, biology is the study of life and how it operates and evolves, geology is the study of the processes that shape our Earth (and other planets), and so on.

Perhaps the field of science that can be considered as unifying all of these is physics, which at its most basic level is the attempt to understand the very building blocks that make up everything in the universe, and how the interactions between them in turn contribute to all the various processes we see in nature.

The fundamental building block of all matter with which we're commonly familiar is the molecule, which in turn is made up of one or more atoms. The basic structure of the atom, which was worked out about a century ago, is that of a central nucleus containing one or more positively charged protons and an accompanying number of neutral-charge neutrons, around which orbit a corresponding number of negatively charged electrons in various energy levels. In addition to these, there are numerous other types of "sub-atomic particles" as well, which are grouped into various classes depending upon their particular characteristics.

For example, protons and neutrons are members of a class of particles known as "hadrons," which are those particles that are made up of smaller, fractional-charged particles known as "quarks."

All of the processes that we see going on around us fundamentally depend upon the interactions between the various particles at the sub-atomic level.

There appear to be four fundamental "forces" operating in nature: These are gravity and electromagnetism (the two with which we're most familiar in everyday life); the strong nuclear force, which holds together the positively charged protons within an atomic nucleus; and the weak nuclear force, which controls certain aspects of radioactive decay (specifically, those involving the emissions of electrons from atoms).

These four forces operate over differing distances and vary widely in their relative strengths. Gravity, which operates over the entire universe, is by far the weakest of the four, whereas the strong nuclear force operates only over distances typical of an atomic nucleus but is some 100,000,000,000,000,000,000,000,000,000,000,000,000,000,000,000,000,000 times stronger than gravity over those distances.

Under very extreme temperature and energy conditions, such as those which existed a small fraction of a second after the Big Bang that started the universe, these four forces are very likely all one force, which "decouples" into the separate forces under more normal conditions.

A great deal of effort in modern physics has been spent in trying to determine how this "unification" of the forces might take place. There has been some success in the so-called "unified field theories" in showing how the electromagnetic, strong, and weak nuclear forces are in fact different manifestations of one single force. But so far the inclusion of gravity into these theories has not been successful.

A major step in our understanding of these forces and the various sub-atomic particles is about ready to take place. This week a giant particle accelerator known as the "Large Hadron Collider" (LHC), which has been under construction for the past 10 years, is being turned on.

The LHC is located underground near Geneva, Switzerland (straddling the border with France), and is a large hollow metal ring some 17 miles in circumference. Through the use of more than 1,600 large superconducting magnets, opposing beams of protons within the ring will be accelerated to almost the speed of light and then crashed into each other, briefly creating over microscopic distances the high-energy conditions that existed very shortly after the Big Bang.

Once the LHC is fully operational – the first proton beam collisions are actually planned to commence within a few weeks – there is much hope among the world's physicists that many of the fundamental questions about matter and energy will be answered.

For example, there is hope that the high-energy collisions will produce a type of particle known as the "Higgs Boson," a hypothetical and so-far-undiscovered sub-atomic particle that is believed to be responsible for giving all the particles we do see their actual mass. Among other things, there is hope that results from the LHC will shed some light into the nature of the so-called "dark matter" and "dark energy" that studies over the past decade have shown constitute the overwhelming majority of the universe.

The LHC may also show why gravity is so much weaker than any of the other forces, and perhaps indicate how it might eventually be included with the other forces in some comprehensive "grand unified field theory."

One constant of scientific research has always been that, once we've managed to answer one set of questions, an entirely new set of questions opens up that requires still further research.

There is little doubt that the LHC will follow this same process, and already, even before the LHC is officially turned on, plans for modifying the LHC into an even more powerful accelerator in about 10 years' time are already under development.

But in the meantime, we can expect some very fascinating results to come out of the LHC experiments, and in the words of one scientist, "with luck, today's physics textbooks will start to look out of date by the end of 2009."

Sweeney premieres

"He'd seen how civilized men behave

He never forgot and he never forgave

Not Sweeney

Not Sweeney Todd

The Demon Barber of Fleet Street.."

BY KATHLEEN MCDONALD
FOR VAMONOS

Sweeney Todd, The Demon Barber of Fleet Street is a musical thriller based on a bizarre tale of stolen love and injustice, butchery and tragic revenge.

Featuring one of the most audacious serial killers of lore, the brilliant revival of Stephen Sondheim's 1979 masterpiece is packed with lush melodies and gutsy humor.

The fiercely inventive 2006 Tony Award-winning John Doyle revival, which premieres in a multi-city national tour at the Spencer Theater at 8 p.m. Thursday, Sept. 18 and Friday, Sept. 19, streamlines the hypnotic tale into two hours of spine-tingling excitement. Or as theatre critic Ben Brantley of The New York Times suggested, this thrilling version "burrows into your thoughts with the poisoned seductiveness of a campfire storyteller who knows what really scares you."

Excellent seats are available to both performances; call the Spencer Theater at 575-336-4800 or visit www.spencertheater.com for tickets.

The tale

In a nutshell, the macabre tale is about an infamous demon barber who becomes so after his true love is ripped away from him. His life is further stolen away as a crooked, avaricious judge wrongfully imprisons him. Ah, but Sweeney does eventually escape, and upon his return he is compelled into a bloody rampage of revenge. As he takes up with his crafty neighbor, Mrs. Lovett, the two embark on a delicious plot to slice their way through London's upper crust. Justice is served-along with dramatic intensity, symphonic beauty and plucky humor.

In Doyle's ingenious redesign, the actors are also the musicians whose very instruments help to conduct the horrifying and heartrending action on stage. In fact, by consolidating the performance in such an artful way, the actors actually possess total control of those watching them in a way seldom afforded actors in musicals, says Brantley. "They own the story they tell, and their instruments become narrative tools."

Man or Myth?

Audiences new to the story of Sweeney Todd will ask if it is based on fact or fiction. Was he maniacal, depraved, sinister? Yes! But is the horrifying saga true?

According to historical researchers with NETworks Presentations, the acclaimed company producing the tale for this mega-tour, the story of Sweeney Todd has been well documented over the past two centuries: The Demon Barber has gone from a madman reported in an 1840s London gossip tabloid to the macabre murderer in Stephen Sondheim's intricate musical masterpiece.

The redesign of the musical features actors who are also musicians, affording them total control over the musical numbers, as shown here in a prior staging of Sweeney Todd, the Demon Barber of Fleet Street.

Controversy, however, surrounds whether the tale of the razor-wielding psychopath is grounded in fact, or if Sweeney Todd is nothing more than a bogeyman created by the colorful imaginations of the Georgian (late 1700s to early 1800s) London populace.

For many people, the story of Sweeney Todd is just that: myth and tall tales. Critics assert that there is no reliable record of the murderous barber, who first appeared in folklore in 1400s France. However, crime historian Peter Haining exhaustively researched the available evidence for 25 years and claims that he can prove the existence of Sweeney Todd in his 1993 book, Sweeney Todd: The Real Story of the Demon Barber of Fleet Street.

By Haining's account, Sweeney Todd was born in 1748 – a time when London was known to be brutally poor and excessively violent. Todd's parents were alcoholics and one night when he was 13 years old, his parents left the house in search of gin and never returned.

Todd was turned over to the local parish, where he was taught a trade as a cutler, a person responsible for sharpening knives and razors. At age 14, Todd was found guilty of theft and sentenced to five years in Newgate Prison. It was here that he learned his skills as a barber, shaving prisoners for a small fee.

When he was released from Newgate, Sweeney Todd opened up his barber's shop on Fleet Street. According to Haining, his first reported victim was a "young gentlemen from the country" who fell into conversation with the barber on a street corner. The two gentlemen began to argue and soon after, Todd took out a razor, slit the throat of the young man, and disappeared into the alleys of the London streets. As evidence, Haining quotes the April 14, 1785, issue of The Daily Courant, which reported the murder with terror and fascination.

It was soon after that Todd supposedly began to use the legendary trick barber's chair. Customers unlucky enough to find themselves on the second floor of Sweeney's dark shop met their end beneath the floorboards. Todd pulled a lever, which tipped the victims headfirst through a revolving trapdoor onto the cellar floor (there was an identical chair bolted to the other side of the trapdoor to dispel the suspicions of passers-by). He would then descend to the cellar, cut their throats, and strip them of their valuables.

Haining affirms the cannibalistic trait of the legend as well as Todd's accomplice to the horrific murders. Her name was Margery (some say Sarah) Lovett. She was soon to become Sweeney's lover, and her pies were soon to become famous around London.

After Todd slit his victim's throat, he would dismember their body, strip away the human meat and deliver it to Lovett's shop through a series of underground tunnels. It was the victim's body parts that allegedly gave Lovett's pies the delicious taste that London loved. The remaining carcass would then be dumped in the tunnels underneath the parish church.

The smell from the parish crypts soon became unbearable (the odor must have been repugnant to be noticed above the festering stench of Georgian London) and the police were called in to investigate. The searches led to the decaying bodies piled on top of each other, supposedly reaching the roof of the tunnel. Haining says that as many as 160 people were slain at the hand of Sweeney Todd.

Sweeney Todd was tried at the Old Bailey in 1801, and his trial is said to have generated feverish excitement around London. Todd stood accused of just one murder – enough to hang him, if convicted. The victim's name was Francis Thornhill. The murder occurred while Thornhill was delivering a string of pearls when he decided to stop for a shave.

The jury deliberated for 10 minutes and Sweeney

THEATRE

Shakespeare on the ROCKS

Imagine spending an evening under the stars with William Shakespeare. In September of each year, El Paso's Shakespeare on the Rocks presents several of the bard's plays, as well as a Renaissance Faire featuring entertainment, arts and crafts, food and drink, and faire-goers in period costume.

As they enter their 20th season, all are invited to attend a performance of one or, better yet, of all four of their productions, which are being performed every weekend through Sept. 28.

This season, Shakespeare on the Rocks is reprising productions of the romantic tragedy Romeo and Juliet, the ever-popular A Midsummer Night's Dream, the timeless political drama Julius Caesar, and magical The Tempest.

The festival has now been rebuilt to its full complement of four shows, which are being performed in repertory from the outset. They will also host the Renaissance Fair on the final three nights, Sept. 26-28.

Shakespeare on-the-Rocks is special because the productions are produced in an intimate outdoor setting, feature scripts edited for modern audiences, integrate music and dance into the play, and feature some of the best local talent, both young and young at heart.

All performances are at the Ysleta ISD Fine Arts Amphitheater located at 8455 Alameda, one mile east of Yarbrough, with the Faire in the adjoining Fine Arts Complex.

All seating is general admission, with ticket prices at $10 for adults, $8 for students, seniors and military. Box office opens at 7 p.m. Group tickets are available at $6 each for groups of 10 or more (tickets must be purchased at least 48 hours in advance). Call 434-9715 to make a reservation and arrange for pre-payment.

Advanced sale tickets are available at the Ysleta ISD Fine Arts Department offices, 8455 Alameda, (Monday-Friday, 8 a.m.-4:30 p.m). and at all EPCC Campus Cashiers during business hours

During the Renaissance Fair, Sept. 28-30, there will be a wide variety of arts and crafts as well as food and drink. Patrons are encouraged to come in Renaissance period costumes.

Sweeney (continued from previous page)

Todd was found guilty. He was hanged on Jan. 25, 1802, in front of a crowd of 1,000 people. Margery Lovett escaped the hangman's noose by confessing to the crimes. She then took her own life by poisoning herself while in jail.

Gruesomely thrilling accounts, to be sure, but some say that Haining's findings are completely false. Playwright Christopher Bond, whose 1973 play was the source material for Stephen Sondheim's musical, began his work by telling readers: "Sweeney Todd is pure fiction. No one has ever succeeded in finding a shred of evidence as to the existence of a Demon Barber thereabouts."

That little evidence exists of Sweeney Todd may be the result of how easy it was to get away with murder in violent Georgian London and not because he was the product of lively imaginings. What Mr. Haining imparts as truth is perhaps the result of the tabloids of the era — the popular 19th century "penny dreadfuls." Alongside vivid descriptions of the decomposing human remains, these newspapers were the first to seize the story of Francis Thornhill's murder and zealously report Todd's trial and execution as fact. The strong likelihood is that these accounts were exaggerated in an effort to boost sales.

To add to the confusion, news stories commonly traveled by word of mouth as most of the London commonwealth were illiterate. While these stories were asserted as fact, it is probable that news accounts were grossly embellished along the way.

Two centuries into the debate, it is doubtful that whether Sweeney Todd is truth or legend will ever be known.

However, it does seem certain that human nature's appetite for the unthinkable will always be satisfied by the Demon Barber's ability to thrill, repulse and entertain.

Don't forget: the thrill is live at the Spencer Theater Thursday, Sept. 18, and Friday, Sept. 19, at 8 p.m.

Pesky toritos

Polly's Potpourri

by Polly E. Chavez

"Ouch!"

"Owwww!"

This time of the year these are outbursts heard in my neighborhood, a signal that pesky Goat Heads hitched a ride into my house via shoe soles. The Goat Heads reside in my carpet or on the linoleum in the kitchen and bathroom. I come along barefooted, which results in painful injury and near obscene language. We Hispanics call Goat Heads "toritos" (little bulls).

During the Labor Day Carrizozo Street Fair, I observed an intriguing announcement. Street Fair committee member Ray Dean took the microphone during a pause in the musical entertainment. In his hand he held a 5-foot vine-like plant. He challenged the crowd to bring him a larger one in exchange for a prize of four golf passes at Valle del Sol Golf Course.

Dean was holding a robust Tribulus terrestris, a flowering plant of the Zygophyllaceae family. Tribulus terrestris can thrive in desert climate and poor soil. The plant that Dean was dangling was the dreaded Goat Head plant of Lincoln and Otero Counties. The rain has produced an abundance of weeds, including Tribulus terrestris with its tiny, beautiful, yellow 5-petal flower.

The plant has many names, among them Puncture Vine and Caltrop, but Goat Head is the common name. A week after each flower blooms, a "fruit" follows. This seeded "nutlet" bears spines that resemble goats' (or bulls') heads. The Latin name "tribulus" meant "caltrop," a spiky weapon.

Mowing is not an effective method for getting rid of Goat Heads (toritos) because the plant grows flat against the ground. Herbicides on the hardy plants are not as successful as yanking them out by the roots by hand or hoe.

I learned that Tribulus terrestris has been used for homicidal weapons in southern Africa. The murderer smears them with poison and places them where victims will step. I read about a study that showed that Tribulus terrestris increased testosterone levels in primates, rabbits and rats. Those annoying nutlets should be recycled.

Carrizozo 5th grader Miccah Hamilton was the winner of $160 worth of golf passes. Dean said he had advertised via radio spots but had not been taken seriously. I suggested to Dean that at next year's Street Fair that a queen should reign over the festivities wearing a crown of yellow Goat Head blossoms. Another contest idea: Guess the number of Goat Head nutlets in a jar.

Chautaqua at Hubbard Museum

Retired scholar Gabriel Sahd will present the first program in the fall edition of the Echoes of the Past Programming Series on Sunday, Sept. 14, at 2 p.m. at the Hubbard Museum of the American West, with a presentation titled, "Oscar Huber: A Young Man Becomes Owner of Madrid, a Coal Mining Town".

The "Echoes of the Past" programs are dedicated to bringing the American West to life through Chautauqua-style performances, song, multimedia presentations and lectures. The program is possible through a grant from the New Mexico Humanities Council.

"We are excited to bring Dr. Sahd to the Hubbard Museum," commented Jay Smith, director of the museum. "Madrid is a very interesting community, one with a history of being a company town as well as an experimental community during the 1970s after the coal mine shut down.

"Oscar Huber directed the town for several decades including through the Depression, and Madrid was well known for many things including its community celebrations and baseball team. This will be a very interesting program, and it goes very well with the current mining display."

Bevy of balloon photo tips

"You can't take a bad balloon shot."

A spectator snapped picture after picture, seemingly paying no attention to Photography 101 rules.

But you go for the "Oh, wow" balloon shot. How?

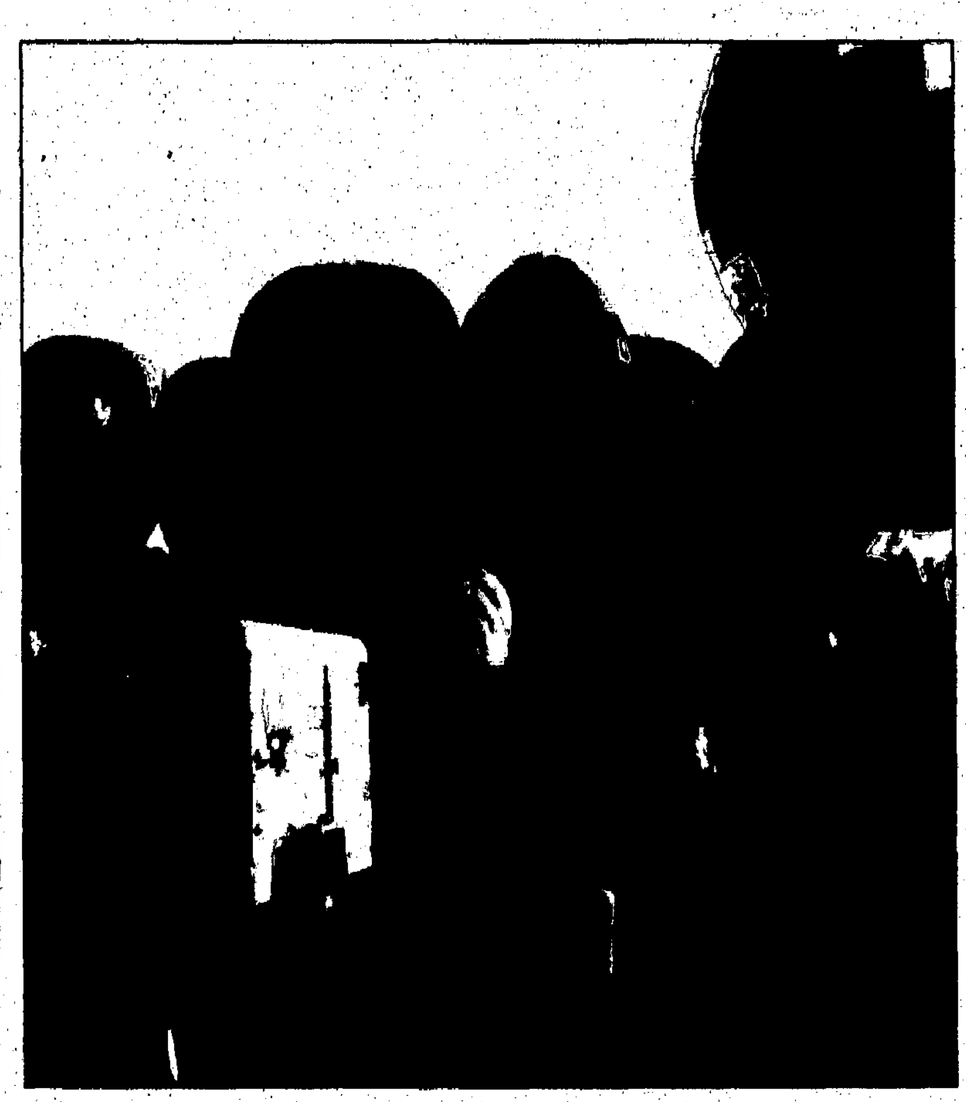
FOLLOWING THE RULES – SOMETIMES!

1. Keep it sharp. Perhaps the most basic rule: Shoot in focus. Blur ruins the best composition or subject.

2. Rule of thirds. Mentally divide your view screen into vertical and horizontal thirds. Place your subject in one of those thirds (below).

3. Diagonal lines are more pleasing than horizontal or vertical ones. If shooting a row of balloons, for example, line them up so that they begin in one corner and end in the diagonal opposite one.



4. Include people for human interest. A candid shot of an open-mouthed child propped on Dad's shoulder, a photographer or videographer hunkering for the best angle, spectators pointing to their favorite balloon, the crew readying the balloon for flight are all eye-catching opportunities.

5. Landscape is as dramatic as close up. Naturally you'll shoot close-ups of the most colorful or unusually shaped balloons.

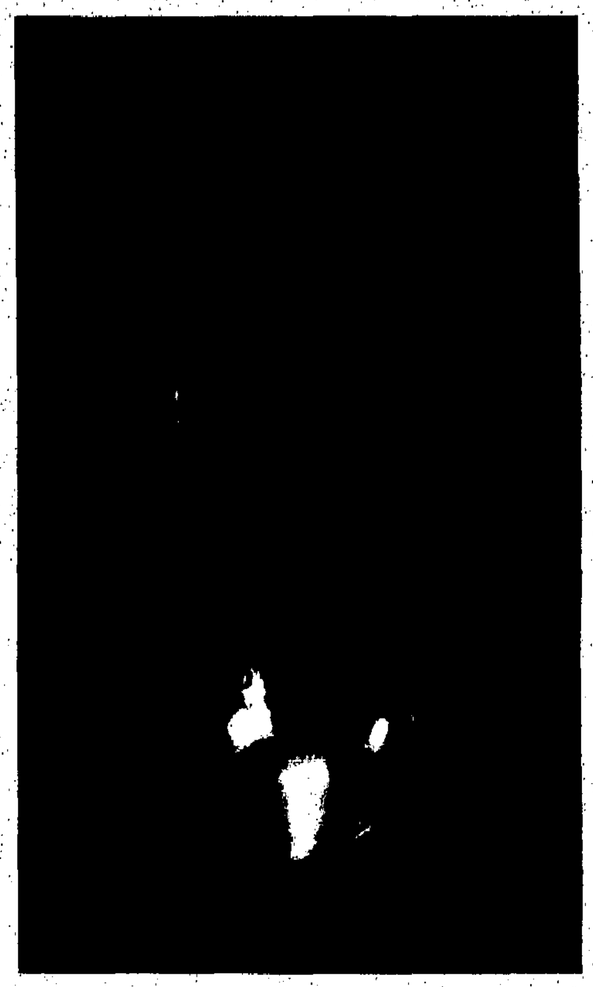
After you've shot that bright rainbow-striped balloon, pull back with a wide angle and put the balloon in perspective. A second shot of it surrounded by dozens more colorful balloons tells more of the story.

6. Get the sun behind you. Early morning sun brightens a gray dawn. The balloon you shoot before sunrise will appear dramatically different after.

7. Remember the vertical. Balloons lend themselves easily to a vertical format, so turn your camera 90 degrees. See the difference?

LET'S MAKE OUR OWN RULES!

1. Go for special effects. Sometimes this means shooting out of focus, as I did of this Dawn Patrol balloon (at right). I wanted the effect of the bright balloon lit against the still dark sky. Lacking time for a slow exposure speed, I pointed and shot when the burner fired for one or two seconds. (Had I been smarter about my new-for-the-first-time camera, I would have chosen Aperture Priority over Auto-Focus.)



2. Fill the frame. A balloon can easily fill the entire frame, rendering the Rule of Thirds useless.

3. Go for the unusual angle. Why not shoot straight up instead of straight ahead?

4. Do your homework. Check out the Invitational's and Fiesta's Web sites (next page) or watch an early morning TV show broadcast from Balloon Fiesta Park to get an idea of some of the balloons you especially want to look for, such as the twin bee balloons that are hook-and-looped together as if they were holding hands and that separate when airborne. Or Airabelle (tm), the largest special-shape balloon (below left).

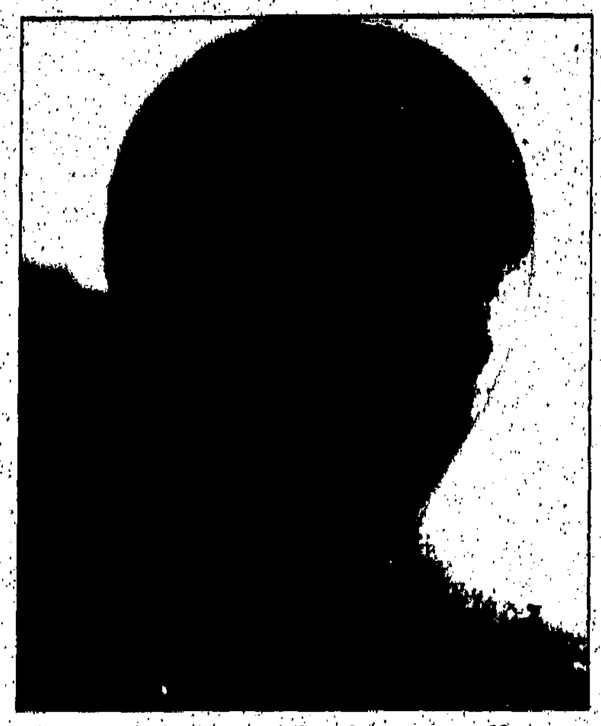
5. Get airborne! If you're fortunate to hop a ride, sling your camera around your neck and shoot from your 360-degree view! You'll shoot balloons beneath, beside and above you, as well as on the ground below.

6. Shoot into the sun! Just-risen sun peeking over mountains or behind an inflated balloon creates an artistic effect.

7. Bright balloons look brighter against a contrasting background. Sure, a clear blue sky highlights that bright balloon, but so would a scattered cloud or, if airborne, the dusty brown city below.

8. Make your own rules! Get as creative as you wish. Remember, you won't take a bad balloon shot, but you will take spectacular ones!



Shoot into the sun for dramatic effect.

Balloon Photography Etiquette

When walking among inflating balloons, be very aware of where you walk. Look down and avoid stepping on the balloon's envelope or any ropes. Look up and mind ropes being held by crew as the balloon rises.

Balloonists love to answer questions about their craft, but pilots and crew focus on dozens of details to ensure a safe lift-off. Save your questions for the ground crew after the balloon has lifted.
