'Serious infusion of funds'

DIANNE STALLINGS
dstallings@ruidosonews.com

Promoter of two civic events asks council for financial help

A collective gulp from Ruidoso councilors could be heard throughout village hall as they read the for a $70,000 infusion to help stage two local events.

Millie Woods asked for $20,000 for expenses connected to Military Appreciation Week in 2009 and $50,000 toward the Festival of Lights to help pay for the electric wiring of more poles.

"I'm asking for a serious infusion of funds," she told councilors at their meeting last week. "I've done about everything I can until we get a new power line."

Initially, she estimated the cost of that line at about $50,000, but the price from PNM came in lower at $28,000 for 35 poles between Country Club Drive and Hickory Street.

"We need financial help until we become self-supporting," she said.

After the item was placed on the agenda, Woods said she was informed by Village Attorney Dan Bryant that the council can't donate money to the events. Some service must be performed and a contract signed for an entity to receive money or the action would violate the state's anti-donation clause, he said.

But Woods said she's exhausted and spent $6,500 of her own money for the first MAW event this year. "I need some help," she said. "I can't keep this up."

She said MAW received $5,000 in lodgers tax money for the 2009 event, and FOL was given $2,500 for the Calendar of Events and $2,500 for the Electric Light Parade in 2008.

She didn't envision the new request, which she reduced to $50,000 as annual, it would be more of a one-time boost, she said.

Lincoln County receives PILT funds

DIANNE STALLINGS
dstallings@ruidosonews.com

Lincoln County came in eleventh out of 32 counties receiving federal dollars under a program designed to reimburse them for non-taxable land within their borders.

The county is designated for $1,051,288, down slightly from $1,061,254 last year.

New Mexico at top

New Mexico counties again received the largest award under the federal Payment in Lieu of Taxes program for Fiscal Year 2008, with 32 counties to share more than $22.4 million, according to U.S. Senator Pete Domenici (R-NM).

Domenici, who serves on the Senate Interior Appropriations Subcommittee that funds PILT, reported that New Mexico's FY2008 award, while the largest in the nation, is slightly lower than $22.7 million the state received last year.

Program supported

"I like the PILT program, and our counties like PILT payments," he said. "They rely on them as an important source of income to support basic needs and services. I am disappointed that PILT payments continue to slide some, and am dedicated to ensuring the health of this program. It is only fair that our counties be compensated for all the federal land ownership within their borders."

Only Curry County does not receive PILT funding, because it contains no eligible federal land.

Designed to help

PILT payments are intended to help counties and local governments make up for revenues they lose on tax-exempt federal lands. The Bureau of Land Management bases PILT awards on tax-exempt fed-

Rico renaissance?

Post-mining economy threatened by proposed moly mine

MARTY DARLIN
High Country News

Editor's note: As the spectre of mining in the Capitan Mountains remains a possibility, the Ruidoso News periodically presents the experiences of other Western communities impacted by mining.

RICO, COLO. — A snowstorm is pounding this little town in the San Juan Mountains of southwestern Colorado. But inside the Rico Hotel, it's packed and warm, and chef Eamon O'Hara is serving up chicken-fried steak, mashed potatoes and collard greens.

The patrons on this January night are a mix of Rico residents and a few hotel guests: people of all ages, including several babies. With only 200 year-round residents, Rico is a close-knit community — more of a family, really, according to JoLynn Heil.

After 10 years in Rico, JoLynn and her husband, Eric, have moved to Denver, so that JoLynn, a pilot now on maternity leave, can be closer to a major airport. Their home in Rico is for sale, but real estate isn't moving right now. Locals blame more than just the U.S. economic downturn. They point to an issue that looms like the mountains over the picturesque town.

For more than a decade, Eric Heil, who served as the town's manager, planner and attorney, worked with Rico's government to create a "new post-mining economy." They engaged in negotiations with real estate developer Rico Renaissance and its associates, owners of 2,000 acres in and around the town. After years of studies, community surveys and meetings, the town adopted a master plan in 2004.

The developer promised to work with Rico to create a water treatment facility and sewer system, and also agreed to "the prohibition of all mineral rights exploration, leasing and development." It came as quite a surprise, then, when Rico Renaissance revealed in November that it was selling its land to a Canadian mining company. Bolero Resources plans to extract some 1.2 billion pounds of molybdenum from the Silver Creek property above Rico, perhaps "the richest grade molybdenum deposit in North America."

The abrupt announcement of the sale caught townspeople off guard. "I was deeply disappointed," says John Kornbluh, a member of the town board of trustees and the owner of Bluecorn Naturals, one of Rico's few businesses.

Perched in the San Juans at an altitude of nearly 9,000 feet, Rico was incorporated in 1876 following the discovery of a rich silver lode. By 1892, the town had a population of 5,000 people and was home to 23 saloons, a red-light district, two newspapers

Recycling program

Newspaper recycling just got easier for local residents living near the lower portion of Ruidoso and on Highway 70 with placement Friday of a new newspaper recycling container next to the Community Youth Center, 222 Junction Rd.

The container is marked as newspaper recycling only for the general public. Working with the Lincoln County Solid Waste Authority, Keep Ruidoso Beautiful and Keep New Mexico Beautiful, the Youth Center provides residents and tourists a convenient location for newspaper drop off recycling.

The project used a Keep New Mexico Beautiful Solid Waste, Recycling and Litter Control grant to increase the number of newspaper recycling locations in Ruidoso. The KNMB grant purchased the outdoor recycling container and signage. Parent, teen, and general community training about newspaper recycling is now underway as part of the project. Youth Center teens will receive one cent per pound for collected newspapers.

LCSWA initiated the buy-back program last year as an incentive for youth clubs and other non-profit organizations in Lincoln County to collect and recycle old newsprint.

Office-quality school paper is also accepted in the Youth Center recycling container.

Other drop-off locations for newspaper include behind Compass Bank in the Sierra Mall and on the north side of the Auxiliary Gym at Ruidoso High School. Both locations are.

According to the Federal Trade Commission, nine million Americans last year experienced some form of identity fraud.

New Mexico is ranked number 10 on the list of highest number of victims in a state.

In 2006 in New Mexico, 1,621 victims were reported per every 100,000 population. Chances are that if you have not personally experienced identity theft or fraud, then you probably know someone who has been a victim of identity thieves.

On Wednesday, June 25, at noon, a spokesperson from the New Mexico Attorney General Office will be in the Ruidoso Public Library upstairs to present ways to guard ourselves from identity theft and to answer any questions we may have. Since this is during lunchtime, you are welcome to bring your sack lunch to eat while listening to the program.

For information on the program, contact Sharon Stewart at the Ruidoso Public Library, 258-3704, email: sharonstewart@ruidoso-nm.gov.

HEAL board retreat

Help End Abuse for Life (HEAL) recently hosted its inaugural Board Retreat at Hennington's Grill.

The event allowed the volunteer board to thank departing charter board members, welcome five new board members and celebrate the accomplishments of opening the Nest, Lincoln County's first and only shelter for victims of domestic violence.

Eighteen board members attended the retreat.

The Board Retreat was facilitated by Kathleen Oweegon, owner of Bridges of Peace in Santa Fe. The agenda included a review of the agency Mission Statement, milestones and accomplishments, discussion of incoming Board President Susanne O'Malley's goals for the coming year, assignment of board mentors to new board members and a lengthy discussion of board roles and responsibilities.

OUR OPINION

Capitan water rate hike has no supporting facts

Just take the mayor's word for it

Capitan Mayor Sam Hammons says not to worry — the village is awash in plenty of water.

This might be true. Or not. How do we know? How does the mayor know?

Hammons, whose background is not that of a hydrologist, made his remark during a public hearing last week over a proposed rate hike that subsequently was passed unanimously by the Board of Trustees.

The problem in Capitan is that the mayor has established himself as the sole authority on practically any issue. He has successfully silenced any semblance of independent thought.

The water and planning boards are comprised of yes-men who defer to the mayor. The Board of Trustees hasn't had a dissenting vote on a serious issue in about two years, and there is a widespread perception in town, true or not, that many decisions are cut and dried beforehand.

Indeed, the rate hike vote had originally been scheduled for a "special meeting" without the required nicety of a public hearing — before the public clued Village Hall in.

Percentage-wise, the new rate structure rewards commercial taps at the expense of residential customers, and it appears to remove incentives for conservation. But not to worry. Capitan has the water. The mayor says so.

Allow this word jockey to explain the price of gasoline

Your average word jockey is about as quick coming down the "how money works" homestretch as Big Brown in the last two furlongs of the biggest race of his life.

How are guys who sell words for a penny a piece supposed to figure out the intricacies of a world economy where the fat cats who own oil choke the working types who need a tank of gas to survive, where politicians and punsters pontificate about how we must seek alternate sources of energy but no one lifts a finger to do anything about it?

We are as confused as the poor fellow who just sunk his life savings into a large RV dealership.

Here are some of the things that torture our simple journalistic minds.

Why doesn't anyone listen to Senator Pete Domenici? Everyone in the state is looking for ways to honor the retiring Senate icon. Here's a thought. Take his advice. Back when you could still buy a gallon of gas for less than three bucks, Senator Pete wrote a book warning us we need to rethink the possibilities of nuclear energy.

A Brighter Tomorrow: Fulfilling the Promise of Nuclear Energy argues we could be set free if nuke energy naysayers would stop spreading misinformation and fear tactics.

You have to wonder why that doesn't make sense. But you have to wonder, also, why Pete is so quick to jump to the defense of the oil fat cats. Last week, Domenici helped defeat a proposal that would have imposed a 25 percent tax on any "unreasonable" profits of the five largest U.S. oil companies which together made $36 billion during the first three months of the year.

See, now, your average word jockey looks at the words "$36 billion" and says, whoa, I got into the wrong business. And while we stand there at the pump watching the meter spin past $75, we get mad as hell and want these companies penalized.

Then, though, in a sober moment, we look at the word "unreasonable" and we get nervous. Who decides what is "unreasonable" and is this something we want government deciding?

Say, for instance, a guy has the only store in a community isolated by some natural disaster. Turn on the faucet and get nothing. This fellow has the only bottled water in town. He raises the price of a $3 bottle to $4. Does that make him an astute businessman? What if he jacks the price to $5 a bottle? Price gouging?

But why did the Republicans also give their blessing to $17 billion in tax breaks to oil companies, money that would have otherwise been directed for tax incentives to develop wind, solar and other alternative energy sources? It stinks.

It's too much for me to comprehend. I read about unemployed folks trying to scrounge up enough money to buy gas so they can go look for a job. Other stories talk about thousands and thousands of people losing their homes. Stock market indexes plunge while the price of food at your supermarket has never been higher and isn't likely to soon level.

In the midst of all this economic carnage, who would you figure is doing well? No one, right? Wrong. New Mexico racinos, that word describing race tracks with casinos, have never done better.

Go figure. Perhaps a desperate gamble on hope?

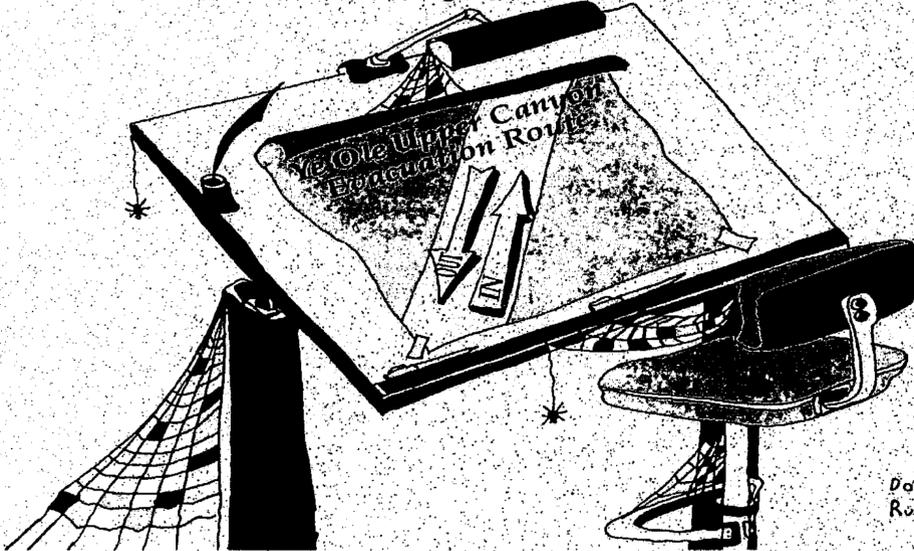

This word jockey doesn't know much but he does know this. A bank robber in Albuquerque sped away on his getaway bike. Talk about tough times.

YOUR OPINION

Alto Crest resort: Citizens weigh in

To the editor:

LAST WEEK the council voted down the improvement project of Swiss Chalet. This project would reduce current water use at the Swiss Chalet by 12 percent a year. This project would reduce natural gas and electric use by 90 percent.

Remember folks, the Swiss Chalet is not going away, and the current owners have no plans of putting in these state-of-the-art water and energy conservation technologies.

They also intended to design it so they would educate anyone and everyone on the water and energy-saving technologies. Most importantly, this project would have set a precedent for all future building in Ruidoso.

The developers bent over backwards to not only meet but exceed building requirements. They addressed all the concerns of local residents as far as water, noise, lighting, traffic, foliage and even the "view" concerns. However that fell on deaf ears!

I worked for a major corporation back East in the Research division and we would have to put on presentations at each milestone of the project before advancing to the next phase. This group of professionals not only had all their I's dotted and T's crossed, they went over and above in researching [how] every aspect [of] this project would affect the community. Everyone was impressed, impressed so much that even the naysayers applauded the energy conservation specialist.

As a small-business owner, I rely on tourism, the majority of businesses here in Ruidoso rely on tourism, and our only industry is tourism. Unlike manufacturing, where NAFTA has destroyed cities because manufacturing has been sent overseas, tourism cannot be farmed out. So why would a project that is linked to our major industry be turned down?

I suggest you write or call your councilors who denied this project and ask them.

To the editor:

I JUST WANTED to take a minute to congratulate our heroic majority of councilors for their courageous vote to preserve our view of the Swiss Chalet Motel. How anyone could envision tearing down this candidate for historic preservation status is beyond me.

I know every time I view this scenery, I can't help but wax nostalgic over the old Central Avenue/Route 66 hotel schlock of which Albuquerque is so strangely proud.

Maybe we could designate the Swiss Chalet, the storage sheds, and the ski rental shop down the road as a "historic, scenic highway" and get a write-up in New Mexico magazine. It just warms the heart at the possibilities.

How these developers could ever plan for an underground parking garage, or designing state-of-the-art water re-use facilities is beyond me. Why, the nerve of these guys to bring these revolutionary thoughts to our urban planning vocabulary. Run 'em out of town on a rail, I say. We don't want their money, their potential jobs in planning, designing, construction and operating such a facility. Or their property taxes. Or the first-class owners who would be moving to Ruidoso as well.

Jeez, what a thought. More smart people. What a turn-off. No, I have no vested interest in this matter. I just happen to have spent my youth loving this place and growing up in Southern New Mexico. I sure don't want some "foreigners" coming into town and doing it right. Keep it wrong and we'll discourage these "foreigners" from moving in.

To the editor:

FOR OVER TWO HOURS I sat outside the public hearings over the Artista meeting. Bringing more tourists to the area by just about any means would be good for local businesses, restaurants, etc., that are hurting financially.

I don't like seeing a community hang itself without giving something a try, compromising for the benefit of all and spreading the tax burden.

Hopefully Artista will be back with a compromise. Otherwise, look for more declining tax revenues and tourism dollars. Everything we do here is related and although we may not profit from a project now, it will surely lead to profit further down the road, diversify our economy and lead to a better quality of life.

Edward Greenlee
Ruidoso

To the editor:

THOUSANDS OF YEARS ago the Ice Age moved slowly through what is now our Midwest. It carved out five massive areas that are now the Great Lakes. It also buried billions of cubic feet of cold, clean water in aquifers in Michigan, Illinois, Wisconsin, Indiana, Ohio and Minnesota. How lush and green those Midwestern states are.

Now, in 2008, a very slick, well-oiled developer-machine comes to tiny Ruidoso to build condos and a water park, not at all unlike the others they have built in those water-rich Midwestern states. What? Here we are, in high desert with limited amounts of water available to us to just maintain our way of life and they want us to say, "Gee, a green facility that will use all its own grey water, will be self-sustaining, will use less water than the Swiss Chalet now uses because of bad toilets, etc., and will be a green example to the world." Gimme a break.

And if you believe them, I have a beautiful bridge in California that could be yours for just $5.

On top of that, we have a mayor who is not supporting the people who put him in office. Instead, he tried to ramrod and guilt-trip the council into voting for the development. "Da Mayor" (I'm from Chicago so I can't help it) also told everyone they had five minutes to speak. The developer, with approximately 20 associates, professionals, etc. in tow, spent two-plus hours trying to make their case. Da Mayor never did hold any of them to five minutes. So many citizens, who put him in office, who expected him to support our community, did not have the opportunity to offer their input.

We are in such extreme conditions right now that "Da Mayor" began the meeting with an announcement that we may be going to Phase V. That really chaps my hide. I am paying for 4,000 gallons per month, all the while conserving as much as possible and using approximately 2,500 gallons for two persons to bathe, flush toilets, wash clothing, do the dishes and hand-water outdoor plants.

I even have two 100-gallon tanks on my eaves to catch any water runoff during the year. I am paying for 4,000 gallons to support any other projects that the city has approved and needs the money for. That's fine, but this asinine water park idea makes me wonder how this ever came about.

I am not accusing but am suggesting that there may possibly be some high dollars that have already been exchanged. Perhaps promises have been made that simply cannot be kept, at least promises that do not represent the best interests of the citizenry of Ruidoso.

There have also been discussions that local business owners are disappointed in the council's decision. They think that it would be a boon to this town and especially to the business owners. Well, phooey. That debacle that is sitting in the middle of downtown right now ought to indicate the boon those condos are to their businesses. So how would the Swiss Chalet development be any better?

FUNDS

that would be a big hit on the general fund.

But Hardeman said although the events are successful and bring people into the village, he opposes using village dollars toward an expense councilors didn't sanction.

"I had no input on going all the way down Sudderth Drive," he said of Woods' description of a five-year lighting plan for FOL to wire with a better voltage and decorate poles to the intersection of Sudderth Drive and U.S. 70. "I think that may be taking away from Midtown. I'm sorry, I can't support this amount of money."

Woods said the decision doesn't have to be all or nothing.

Village Manager Dan Higgins agreed that if village money is involved, the council should have input on the plans.

Councilor Greg Cory said the parks and recreation department also would take a hit from added duties.

Bad timing

The department already is operating the municipal pool "with baling wire," he said. "I just don't see the money is there this year."

Councilor Michele Rebstock agreed the timing isn't good. She said lodgers tax would seem to be the logical source for any additional money.

Woods said she asked PNM officials if they would consider a payment plan for the poles, but they responded the power company wanted some up-front money as well as full payment.

"We have seven more poles and we're through as far as money," Woods said.

Rebstock asked for a letter to be written from the mayor and the council asking PNM to cooperate. She said the company shouldn't be "such a stick in the mud for the fees they're charging us."

Bryant said he would get together with Woods to explore some other private sector avenues of funding.

Councilor Don Williams, who's been associated with FOL since 2004, said the event has grown as far as it can without assistance, and would not even be able to maintain the current level without Woods.

It may be time for the village to be more involved to get maximum punch for the dollar, he said.

"It's kind of unfair to think the businesses of Ruidoso should continue sponsoring this every year and one or two people should go out and hustle up the money," Woods said.

Economic impact

Cory asked about the economic impact and if the FOL accomplished its goal as a tourism event to bridge a seasonal gap.

"It's done that and more," Woods said. "The FOL parade brought in 10,000 people last year and was named one of the top 10 events in the United States and Canada. It's providing tourism and economic growth."

"MAW is doing the same thing. It's created a bond between the military and the community more than anywhere else in the country."

Rebstock asked if Woods could be provided some assistance from the village grant writer to try for tourism grants. Woods said she didn't have the time or expertise before and missed some chances.

Bryant said that service can be supplied.

Hardeman said he didn't want to deny or approve the request at this time, because he didn't want to close the door on assistance.

Rebstock offered a motion for staff to research grants and other sources of revenue for the events and for the letter to be written to PNM. The motion passed unanimously.

In another issue, Mayor L. Ray Nunley said it's about time Ruidoso established an official weather station to give tourists and others more accurate readings about temperature, precipitation and wind in Midtown.

The closest official station now is located at the municipal airport about 10 miles northeast of the village, he said.

"Sometimes the temperature there is higher and the wind stronger," Nunley said. He asked staff to check on available grants or other revenue sources.

Rebstock said a weather station used to be located at White Mountain schools, but Nunley said it is not considered an official station that can be monitored by the National Weather Service for data.

RICO

and a theatre. But in 1893, Rico fell victim to the Silver Panic, and seven years later the population had dropped to about 800.

Then followed more cycles of boom and bust, as mining companies — including Argentine, Anaconda and Atlantic Richfield Company — came and went. In 1984, ARCO sold its land to the Rico Development Corporation. The property included about a third of Main Street, several hundred lots in the historic town site, and 1,800 acres of mining claims.

Ten years later, it changed hands again, and Rico Renaissance and its associates announced their plans for development. Some of the resort glitter of Telluride, about 30 miles to the north, was rubbing off on Rico. New homes were built, and property values rose far above what they had been back when the mines were open.

Meanwhile, tons of mining waste lay just outside the town limits, leaching zinc, mercury, cadmium and manganese into the Dolores River. The real estate speculators disclaimed responsibility, saying the settling ponds and a lime plant were not part of their property.

Prodded by the Environmental Protection Agency, ARCO has been cleaning up mine tailings and removing topsoil from town property for the past three summers.

For many Rico residents, the idea of a mining company in town to mine — not just clean up — seems like a giant step backwards.

Crowing over Bolero's proposed land acquisition in a Canadian radio interview, CEO Bruce Duncan exulted over "the capitalist government in the U.S." that "is keen to develop." The decline of the U.S. dollar, he said, gave Bolero a "25-cent swing" since the company originally budgeted.

And the price of molybdenum, driven mainly by the construction of Chinese nuclear reactors, has soared from $2 per pound in 2000 to more than $35 this year.

Duncan said that as many as 1,000 miners could be employed at the mine, quadrupling the population of Rico and even spilling into Telluride. But Kornbluh believes that, economics aside, Bolero has a rough road ahead. First, the Rico Renaissance property represents less than half of the Silver Creek molybdenum source; and second, the Colorado Legislature is working on legislation that would give municipalities the right to maintain local control over mining activities.

Long-time resident Susan Robertson seems to express the uncertainty felt by many. "I can't say I'm against the revenue that mining would bring to the town, but when it goes bust, where do we go from there?"

Third, the mine could impact the town's drinking water source.

Rico resident Susan Robertson, who served on the town board back in the 1980s, expresses the uncertainty felt by many townsfolk: "I can't say I'm against the revenue that mining would bring to the town," she says, "but when it goes bust, where do we go from there?"

Other townspeople echo her thoughts. Postmistress Connie Cannon's dad and husband were miners, and she's not against mining, but says, "I don't want it to hurt our town. If it's open-pit, there are a lot of effects."

Judging by documents on its Web site, Bolero does not yet know how the moly will be mined.

An agreement for the $10-million sale was signed in November, but the deal is still pending, hung up by the divorce of one of the Rico Renaissance partners, and perhaps other issues.

Says Kornbluh, "They have no idea of the fight ahead of them."

eral land within state jurisdiction. The federal government owns about 33 percent of the land in New Mexico. With more than 22.5 million acres of federal entitlement lands in New Mexico, the state traditionally receives the highest payment of all 50 states and territories.

In reporting the allocation to Lincoln County commissioners, County Manager Tom Stewart said while he's glad to know the money that is an essential part of the budget arrived, it was less than last year's receipt of $1,061,254, and from the 2006 receipt of $1,070,567.

Bad trend

"Based upon what we are hearing at the federal level, and these actual receipts, this is not a good trend," he told commissioners.

"We had budgeted to receive at least the 2006 amount this month. I will have to analyze the impact on this year's budget as we close out in the coming weeks and should adjust next year's preliminary budget, because I went back to the $1,061,254 based upon last year's receipt."

"While Congress plays budget games, and taking into account the trend, I should probably reduce our 2008-2009 preliminary budget in final submission next month to an anticipated $1,041,250 in June of 2009."

New Mexico's $22.4 million award led all other states in FY2008, with California receiving $20.7 million, Utah gaining $20 million and Arizona at $19 million. This year, a total of $228.5 million was distributed.

Domenici previously stated his opposition to the Bush administration budget request to provide $195 million for PILT next year. Instead, he requested $267 million for PILT in FY2009, which is $34 million more than the $228.9 million provided by Congress last year.

PILT is paid in addition to revenue from oil and gas leases and sales of minerals, timber and other materials to compensate for certain tax-exempt federal lands.

Payments are made directly to local governments, usually counties, in areas with substantial acreage of federal lands like national forests, national parks, national wildlife refuges, lands used for federal water programs, some military installations and lands managed by the BLM.

The 10 counties receiving the highest payments are:

- Eddy at $1,881,564, down from $1,906,665 last year
- Otero at $1,860,100, down from $1,883,272
- Chaves at $1,699,454, down from $1,718,133
- Doña Ana County at $1,682,118, down from $1,703,334
- Grant at $1,375,619, down from $1,391,934
- Sandoval County at $1,342,356, down from $1,367,086
- Rio Arriba County at $1,578,940, down from $1,597,763
- San Juan County at $1,219,606, down from $1,234,023
- Cibola at $1,106,274, down from $1,117,504
- Luna at $1,051,730, down from $1,064,297.

Wirth bids farewell at his final board meeting

toddf@ruidosonews.com

It was an evening of comings and goings at the June 10 meeting of the Ruidoso School Board, as the district said goodbye to an outgoing superintendent and hello to a new board member.

The meeting began with an impromptu "roast," at the behest of board president Susan Lutterman, of outgoing Superintendent Paul Wirth, who marked his last regular board meeting before his retirement.

Among the many who came to the meeting to relive their memories of Wirth's service to the district — who was the Ruidoso High School principal before stepping into the superintendent role — were former Superintendent Mike Gladden, his wife and former director of Region IX Education Cooperative Sandi, and former board president Danny Sisson.

Following that, the board got down to business, beginning with the swearing in of Kerry Gladden as the newest board member by Judge Karen Parsons.

As it was the last school board meeting before the start of a new fiscal year, several budgetary and curriculum items were taken care of — the topmost being the approval of the Ruidoso Schools' salary schedule.

Under the approved schedule, teachers — depending on level of education, classification and number of years they've taught — can make anywhere from $30,000 to $65,717. The schedule also lists salaries for teaching assistants, technology specialists, office and maintenance personnel and administration.

The board also approved the district's operating budget, with estimated revenues of $51 million and estimated expenditures of $42 million.

"This budget is in the black because we made some difficult decisions in August based on our enrollment figures," said Wirth, referring to a drop in enrollment as some parents transferred their children to Mescalero schools. "We have to stay vigilant this August as well."

According to enrollment figures collected at the end of the school year, Ruidoso had lost 10 students as of the 180th day, but the gains and losses throughout the year had remained consistent.

The board also approved final budget adjustments for the 2007-08 year and budget adjustments and cash transfers for the upcoming fiscal year.

Among the curriculum and policy issues facing the board was the first reading of the district's amended extra-curricular activity policy, as presented by Activities Director Todd Garelick.

Garelick pointed specifically to a change in Section IV, which deals with punishment of students found with illegal drugs or alcohol while on school property. A first offense would result in a 90-day suspension from extra-curricular programs and an intervention program, as opposed to a year's suspension that was in the previous policy.

A second on-campus offense would result in the student's expulsion from extracurricular activities for the remainder of his or her high school career.

In other business, the board:

- Approved a new Chevy Suburban purchase from Sierra Blanca Motor Company. The bid of $31,947.05 was the only one submitted;

- Approved Miller and Associates of Roswell as the district's independent auditor for an additional three years;

- Approved the track remodeling contract and resurfacing contract at Ruidoso High School to Atlas Track Cooperative for $440,171;

- Approved the 2008-09 Open Meetings Act; and,

- Approved a lease assistance application for Gavilan Canyon School and an IDEA application to supplemental funding for special needs students.

Smith named VP of student learning

Michael Elrod, President of the Eastern New Mexico University Ruidoso Campus, has announced Chad Smith has been appointed Vice President of Student Learning.

The change in title reflects organizational restructuring that has occurred the past year.

"Vice President Smith is well qualified for the position," Elrod said. "He assumed leadership responsibilities for both academics and student service functions this year and has done an outstanding job working with students, faculty, staff and the community."

Smith's title change follows action taken by the ENMU Board of Regents in April. Regents unanimously approved a change in title for Elrod.

ENMU system President Steven Gamble recommended the title change from Provost to President to better reflect the leadership role of the campus executive officer.

Mescalero students to benefit from grant

Students and families at Mescalero Elementary School will benefit from a $325,031 grant from the Department of Education to improve the student counseling program.

U.S. Sen. Pete Domenici said Monday money was dispersed to expand the range, availability and quality of counseling programs at Mescalero Elementary School by hiring qualified counselors, social workers and psychologists.

"A host of mental and developmental issues can prevent students from fully benefiting from their educational environment," the Republican from New Mexico said. "I am pleased students at Mescalero Elementary School will benefit from better access to student counseling services."

Grants will benefit the Education Department's Elementary and Secondary School Counseling Demonstration Program.

Domenici is a senior member of the Senate Appropriations Committee, which determines funding priorities related to federal programs and agencies, including the Department of Education.

Community education classes available at ENMU-Ruidoso

ENMU-Ruidoso Community Education is offering Intermediate Photoshop. In the two-session, six-hour course you will learn the secrets of professional image editing. Students will explore the sophisticated layers features that allow users to combine images in amazing ways. The class meets June 21 and 28 from 9 a.m. to noon. Cost is only $89.

The university is also offering the AARP Driver Safety Program, developed by the AARP in 1979. This program is a driver refresher course especially designed to meet the needs of older drivers. It covers such issues as: age-related physical changes, declining perceptual skills, local driving problems, license renewal requirements, and much more.

Max and Marilyn Roberson, AARP instructors, will be teaching the course at ENMU-Ruidoso. They look forward to "reminding seniors of the skills and techniques that they may have once learned," and to "give them an update on the rules of the road." This 8-hour course is being offered in two 4-hour blocks of instruction on June 20 and 21, starting at 9 a.m. AARP charges $10 for the program that is payable at the time of class. Seniors successfully completing the course may be eligible for a 10 percent reduction in automobile insurance premiums. # Study shows benefits of Pre-K

SANTA FE — Gov. Bill Richardson today applauded a new study that shows students participating in New Mexico's Pre-K program continue to show considerable academic gains. The study found that, during its second year, the Pre-K program had substantial impact on vocabulary, math and early literacy skills. These positive impacts are likely to lead to increased school success.

"This is proof that this investment we've made in our children is paying off and that we are fulfilling our commitment to give all New Mexico kids the opportunities to succeed," Richardson said.

This is the second consecutive year the National Institute for Early Education Research at Rutgers University studied the effectiveness of New Mexico's Pre-K program. In both years, researchers found the impact of Pre-K on children's learning was both substantive and meaningful when they entered kindergarten.

"I'm gratified to see the gains we anticipated are happening. That's good news for children who might otherwise fall behind," Lt. Governor Diane Denish said. "It's also important that we've established a way to track these students and measure their performance. That's the strongest argument for providing Pre-K to even more children."

Fire station mosaic project restarted after Foley defeat

dstallings@ruidosonews.com

The effort to raise money to create a mosaic on the blank wall in front of the main Ruidoso Fire Station in School House Park was jump-started again this week.

Josie Powell told village councilors last week that $27,217 was collected through donations toward the total cost of $50,000, but she needed an extension on the deadline to meet the goal.

The money will pay primarily for materials to create the mosaic depiction of firefighters designed by artist Brian Sarinova of Artwerks.

The project is being promoted by the Ruidoso Regional Council for the Arts and no village money is involved.

Arts council members and Mayor L. Ray Nunley thought the goal was in the bag after State Rep. Dan Foley, a Republican from Roswell, said he would work to secure $15,000 for the project.

The arts council already received a pledge from the R.D. and Joan Dale Hubbard Foundation that if $40,000 were collected, the foundation would donate the last $10,000.

The project appeared to be assured, although a May 31 deadline date for reaching the financial goal came and went.

Then Foley lost his primary race.

Nunley apologized to Powell for announcing on the radio that Foley would bring in the remaining dollars needed, because that statement apparently stopped donations.

"It's not your fault," Powell said. "We all got caught up with representative Foley's promise that he could make it happen, but now we are looking at time constraints."

Councilors could not take action last week because Powell brought up the issue during the public input portion of the meeting and the item was not on the regular agenda. But they said a time extension would be scheduled for action at the next meeting June 24.

Foley said the possibility of state money is not dead, but unless a special session of the state legislature is called before the end of the year, he cannot be the one to push for the allocation.

"We were up there on the radio few weeks ago and a guy came in to give a report (on the mosaic)," Foley said last week. "I said

I thought it was a good idea, but I can't help if I'm not there, if I was not elected. But it doesn't mean the issue is dead. I think (State Sen. Rod) Adair said he would help as well."

Foley said he contacted Stuart Ashman, cabinet Secretary for the Department of Cultural Affairs, and he seemed interested in the project.

"He walked me through the process," Foley said. "If I go back to a special session, I will try for sure, but otherwise, they will have to talk to the guys coming in and see if it is a priority for them."

The wall at the intersection of Sudderth Drive and Paradise Canyon originally was designed to be covered with decorative rock, but money ran short on the new $4 million fire station project.

Flagstone was donated by developers of the River Crossing condominium-retail complex, which still could be used on a portion of the wall. But at the urging of the arts council and many in the community, councilors took a chance on the money-raising effort for the mosaic as an alternative to a free earth-tone application that would have covered and sealed the wall.

Mescalero Boys and Girls Club set to receive a Gold Level Award of Excellence

dstallings@ruidosonews.com

The Mescalero Apache Boys and Girls Club, in partnership with Sierra Dove Global Association, will receive a "Gold Level" Award of Excellence Tuesday.

The award comes from the Washington, D.C.-based Food Research and Action Center that created the awards initiative in 2006.

Through the award program, FRAC recognizes superior standards at summer food sites throughout the country. FRAC has identified three levels of quality summer food sites: bronze, silver and gold. The Mescalero Apache Boys and Girls Club will be the first Gold Award presented in New Mexico.

The Awards ceremony is set for 11 a.m., Tuesday, at the Mescalero Community Center. Awards will be given to Robyn Simmons, Director of the Mescalero Apache Boys and Girls Club, and to Julia Price, Director of Sierra Dove and the Eating Smart summer food program, on behalf of their organizations.

Members of the hunger advocacy organization selected the Mescalero Boys and Girls Club and Sierra Dove, a local nonprofit agency, for their highest level of award, because (program organizers), "have gone above and beyond the call of duty to encourage children to participate in their summer food program and have offered quality sites, nutritional guidance and healthy, kid-friendly food," said Crystal Fitzsimmons, FRAC Programs Manager for New Mexico.

The Mescalero Boys and Girls Club provides breakfast and lunch, along with sports, recreational and literacy activities to 150 to 200 children, ages five to 18, at two locations during the summer months.

'Eating smart'

This summer the nonprofit organization Sierra Dove partnered with the Boys and Girls Club, offering an enrichment portfolio including visual arts, music, dance, community gardening and nutritional education.

Sierra Dove's summer meals program, "Eating Smart," is funded through the PNM Resources Foundation, as part of a state-wide summer food program initiative spearheaded by Diane Harrison Ogawa of the PNM Foundation.

Having raised $230,000, PNM is funding 37 2008 summer food sites in New Mexico, feeding more than 5,600 children and recruiting about 230 volunteers to help pack weekend backpacks and to help the children with gardening and other enrichment activities.

The PNM-funded initiative is a linchpin activity of the New Mexico "Plan to End Hunger." With more than 23 collaborative partners, the large-scale initiative is headed by Nancy Pope, Director of Governor Richardson's Office of Faith-Based and Community-Based Initiatives in Albuquerque.

In partnership with Albuquerque's Roadrunner Food Bank, Sierra Dove is providing the Boys and Girls Club fresh, organic fruits and vegetables from the Wild Herb Market, and weekend take-home food through the "Backpack Program."

Ruidoso police officer Jamie Urban patrols an area near St. Eleanor's Catholic Church after a tree being cut down hit a main power line along Junction Road just after noon, Monday, causing a small grass fire and power outages to much of the village. The Ruidoso Fire Department's main station was among the buildings affected. Ruidoso Fire Chief Tom Gavin stated that a backup generator had not yet been installed when the outage occurred, but that the generator is in the process of being brought online. Gavin reported that fire trucks were already out of the building and on Sudderth Drive when the call came into the station. "When the power went out, we knew we'd get the call from somewhere, so we went ahead and sent the truck out," he said. Firefighters were on the scene in minutes and extinguished the fire, which burned about one acre, almost immediately. A crew from PNM shut off power to the line, which is a primary power source coming from Mesalero into the village. As a result, residents along a wide swath of town from Highway 70 up to the intersection of Mechem and Cree Meadows were without power for up to six hours, and a traffic light at Paradise Canyon went out, resulting in a traffic back-up (inset).

County aims to preserve authority

dstallings@ruidosonews.com

Three resolutions to federal agencies with the aim of preserving the Lincoln County Commission's input on any decisions impacting the county were approved recently.

The first resolution requested appropriate and early cooperation and cooperating agency status in Travel Management rules being formulated by the U.S. Forest Service for the Smokey Bear Ranger District of the Lincoln National Forest within the county.

Commission Chairman Tom Battin asked what criteria is used in designating different types of roads in the national forest's travel management plan. Buck Sanchez, Smokey Bear District Ranger, said impacts are examined, necessity for access and whether they serve corridors of activities.

Explanations will be given in the environmental assessment of the travel management plan due this month, he said. Cooperators will be given a time period for comment and he will be sure to give the county as early as possible, he said.

The second resolution adopted at the May commission meeting, with a few additions, aimed to give broad recognition to potential R.S. 2477 rights of way roads on official maps created before Oct. 12, 1976, including mining districts. Prior to any closing of roads, the county is to receive coordination and consideration of the recognition.

The additions were requested by members of the RS2477 Subcommittee and Rural Affairs Advisory Committee, presented by Tony Davis.

Commissioner Eileen Lovelace said she thought the resolution recognizing the roads would help with any future argument against closure.

"We're not validating, but it would give someone the chance to show the validation because the county already has recognized the road," she said.

Sanchez with the resolution, commissioners are going on the record that in the future they may want the designation, which is a lengthy legal process.

The third resolution expressed concern for the environmental impact of the proposed mining of El Capitan Ltd; requested a full environmental impact study before exploration or drilling and asked for cooperating agency status for the commission in the National Environmental Policy Act process, for remediation of unauthorized operations and for the involvement of appropriate state environmental department.

Commissioners agreed to some changes proposed by Debbie Higdon of Friends of the Capitans. She asked that a bond requirement be added covering future operations that includes the proposed drilling of 112 holes. She suggested a minimum of $10 million. Commissioners agreed to ask for an Environmental Impact Study on exploration and operation. Water was added into the resolution as part of the focus by state agencies to protect the environment.

In other action, commissioners:

- approved a resolution backing a request by the town of Carrizozo for a separate designation as a colonia, enhancing chances for Community Development Block Grant awards. The colonias designation allows incorporated and unincorporated communities of Lincoln County within 150 miles of the border with Mexico and in need of water, sewer and/or housing to receive assistance under specific programs.

- adopted liquor license tax fees of $250 for a liquor dispenser's license, a retailer's license, a restaurant license and canopy license; and $25 for a club license and special permits.

- heard from County Clerk Tammie Maddox that the first election in November 2007 asking voters to approve an increase in the property tax support for the county hospital, ambulances and health clinics cost $28,668, while the all-mail April election to reinstate the tax at its current level cost $3,000 less. The biggest difference was a substantially higher voter participation in the second election.

- agreed Stewart should write the Office of the State Engineer asking him to exercise specific caution and to take account of "the big picture" when considering a request for a transfer of water rights from Capitan to Ruidoso for the municipal airport well.

LCSWA residential fees to increase

dstallings@ruidosonews.com

Residential customers of the Lincoln County Solid Waste Authority will see a 60 cent increase in their monthly fee for garbage collection and a $1 fuel surcharge will be doubled.

County commissioners Tuesday approved a resolution increasing the monthly fees in various areas. The increases previously were approved by the three municipal governing boards.

Polycart residential service in the county will go up to $17.05, Capitan and Carrizozo residential to $16.70, and Ruidoso Downs residential to $16.30.

Extra polycarts will cost $6.20, commercial per-dumpster charge will be $55.60, commercial per-polycart, $20.60, and dumpsters for cardboard will be $39.85.

Auxiliary services, such as grapple trucks for yard waste collection went up $2 to $12 per yard, miscellaneous waste disposal by $2 to $14 per yard, roll-off container pulls by $25 to $275, entity roll-offs and compactor pulls by $25 to $325 and compactor pulls by $50 to $350.

Rate study

David Parks, who represents the county commission on the board of the Solid Waste Authority, said the increases were submitted as the result of a rate study by Gene Simmons of the Small Business Development Center and consultant Jim Miller.

"Gasoline and diesel costs are going up," he said.

"We had a $1 surcharge and we're asking it go to $2."

The SWA board has jurisdiction over that increase, Miller said.

Parks said he saw a television report that morning about a school bus contractor, who told the school board in Moriarty that because of high fuel costs, he no longer can operate as a business.

"It's definitely a problem," Parks said.

The rate increase was approved 4-0 with Commissioner Eileen Lovelace absent. She is hospitalized in Albuquerque with heart-related problems, but is recovering well, commissioners said.

Shifting jurisdiction?

Parks said the SWA board also is asking the county commission to shift jurisdiction to set commercial rates from the county to the authority. As it stands, rate adjustments can be requested by the SWA only annually and the board needs to be able to respond to changes in the market and local conditions, he said.

The authorization would pass to the authority board, not management, Miller emphasized. The board is composed of representatives from the county and its five municipalities.

At times, the authority's rates are so much lower than independent contractors, the others cannot compete and the coalition does not want an unfair advantage over private enterprise, Parks said.

"For instance, with the demolition of Gateway Plaza in Ruidoso, (the SWA) originally placed dumpsters there, but someone bid lower," Parks said. "I'm afraid he's going to lose money and we don't want to be in competition with private enterprise."

Commissioners agreed to table discussion on commercial rate-setting until SWA Operations Manager Debra Ingle can be present. She is involved in a state-mandatory training session this week.

County Attorney Alan Morel said the transfer will require a public hearing to change to the county's solid waste ordinance.

Commission Chairman Tom Battin said he'd like to hear more details before Morel works on a draft amendment to the ordinance. "I'm not ready until we discuss this," he said.

Hondo compactor

In a related issue, Commissioner Jackie Powell asked Miller when Hondo residents may see a compactor stationed permanently in their area. Miller said the commitment was made, but the compactor hasn't been purchased and the pad hasn't been poured.

Miller said a contract will be issued July 1 to finish the last phase of construction at the new SWA recycling center on U.S. 70 east of Ruidoso Downs. The work should be finished by January and then the authority can completely vacate the property it now uses on Second Street in Ruidoso Downs.

Neighbors are anxious to see the operation move, Powell said.

Yard waste fees to double cost to village

dstallings@ruidosonews.com

Ruidoso councilors expressed hesitation to approve a new contract for the collection of yard waste that amounts to double the price-per-cubic-yard in last year's agreement with Sierra Contracting Inc.

Councilor Ron Harde-man, who served on the contract review committee, said during the council meeting last week that Sierra was the only bidder and has a long history with the village with an outstanding performance.

"But we need to keep that (the price increase) in mind," he added. "We used to have a citizen who recommended two men and a truck."

His motion to approve the contract passed 5-1 with Councilor James Stoddard voting against it.

Purchasing Agent Vicki Eichelberger pointed out that the contract expanded the amount charged under the higher price of $6.85 per cubic yard from 40,000 pcy last year to 50,000 pcy. After that mark, the charge decreases to $6.16 pcy.

The contract is for one year but contains an option to renew for three years. The estimated monthly cost to the village was listed as $28,541.66.

The company uses the compost sold to many entities, including the state Department of Transportation for use along reconstructed highways. The company also produces erosion control "socks."

The round-trip mileage to the company's 10 acre site east of Ruidoso Downs is a maximum 12 mile trip for village collection trucks.

In another contract issue, councilors sent a proposed contract renewal with TKO Advertising Inc., the village's marketing firm, back to the village Lodgers Tax Committee for a recommendation.

Councilor Greg Cory noted that the previous action of the committee was to approve the budget, but did not specifically mention the contract.

The new $359,538 budget represents an 8.7 percent increase over last year and 2.5 percent more than the first year, according to village officials.

Cyndi Davis, who serves on the committee, said no vote occurred on the renewal of the contract.

"It came to us as an automatic renewal," she said. "We thought we were approving both."

Councilor Angel Shaw said Village Tourism Director Steve Tally is supposed to help manage all of the village contracts and the document needs a thorough discussion.

Cory offered the successful motion to send it back to the LTC.

In other action, councilors:

- extended a discussion and review for 90 days of the solid waste department's business plan and associated rate structure. Public Works Director Randall Camp said to save money and eliminate redundancy, village officials and the manager of the Lincoln County Solid Waste Authority are discussing ways each entity can help the other save gasoline and mileage.

- postponed until June 24, a public hearing on an ordinance amending the Fire Prevention and Protection rules and fee schedule.

- upheld a denial by the village Planning and Zoning Commission of a variance request for a carport within the front yard setback requested by Ken Curry at 113 Sunny Slope Dr. Curry appealed the zoning commission decision, but no representative was at the council meeting to speak on his behalf.

- adopted a resolution to pay $2,155 for annual dues as a member of the South Eastern New Mexico Economic Development District/Council of Governments.

- approved a $13,000 grant agreement with the state Tourism Department for litter control and beautification.

- approved a professional services agreement with EcoServants, Inc. a youth program, for $3,000 to work on village projects.

- approved an agreement with Janitorial Maintenance for services at Village Hall through June 30, 2009.

- approved the mayor's appointment of Ben Mason to the Short Term Rental Task Force.

- approved the mayor's appointments to the new Affordable Housing Task Force: Joan Zagone, Devon Marshall, Chuck Duncan, Maggie Malay, Steve Dunigan, Todd Blue, Bob Russell and Rick Albers.

- approved a joint powers agreement with the Energy, Minerals and Natural Resources Department to provide for the use of inmate crews to perform natural resources improvements to village property.

Two valiant boys team up with a racehorse to battle leukemia

MIKE CURRAN

What does a nine-year-old thoroughbred racehorse have in common with two-year-old twins Sean and Ryan Friberg?

You might never guess this mature but spirited racer literally runs for their lives.

Every time he places in the money, five percent of the winnings go directly to both siblings.

No, it's not an allowance, a trust fund allotment or a share of the monies because they're related to the owner, Joe Michael Welch — they're not. This gallant horse is running for the physical well-being of these special young brothers — pure and simple. And when you come to know the full story you, too, will root for Ninety Nine Jack to wind up in the money. To date, this racer has won $650,000 in his career, but you have to hope he has enough left in him to win some more.

At the age of four-months, both brothers were diagnosed with childhood leukemia (acute lymphoblastic leukemia). For the parents, Andrew and Jennifer, it was obviously a devastating, traumatic blow to the family.

Normally, chemotherapy is given in intermittent bursts, but the twins were subjected to this treatment on a near-constant basis.

After a year-and-a-half of consistent, intense chemo, Ryan's illness has been in remission now for the past seven months. His brother Sean's case is another matter.

The 6-Man North/South football All Stars took center stage Friday evening at Horton Field. A tight, bruising defensive struggle took place all the way down to the last 17 seconds of the contest with the South leading, 7-6.

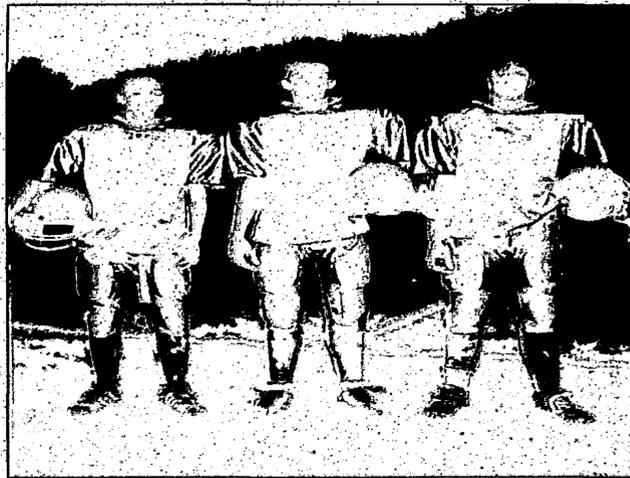

At that point, the momentum of the game suddenly changed as the North's Dustin Moulder ran for a 40-yard score off right tackle. The PAT was unsuccessful and they unexpectedly took the lead, 12-7.

With 8.5 ticks left on the clock, things looked bleak for the South. The North made a short kickoff, which

Coronado captures Silver Medal in NCAA

With the way Katie Coronado is throwing the javelin these days, don't be surprised to see her in Beijing later this summer.

The college junior from Ruidoso, capped an outstanding performance for the University of New Mexico at the 2008 NCAA Outdoor Track and Field Championships by finishing second in the javelin finals with a school record throw of 179' 6" (54.71m) June 14, at Drake Stadium.

Coronado, who will compete at the USA Olympic Trials in two weeks, recorded the highest NCAA Championship finish in UNM women's history.

After finishing 16th in her NCAA debut last year, Coronado improved three spots on her seed to turn in the best finish by a Lobo — man or woman — at the NCAA Championships since 1985 when Gary Kinder finished second in the decathlon.

Her eight points gave the UNM women their highest score at the NCAA Championships.

Women did not compete at the NCAA Outdoor Track and Field Championships until 1983.

The AIAW organized the women's national championship meet prior to 1983. Susan Vigil had the highest finish the Lobos at the AIAW Championships with her victory in the 800 meters in 1979.

Coronado joined fellow New Mexicans Robert Caldwell (pole vault) and Jeremy Johnson (10,000 meters) to give the Lobos three All-Americans at the meet — the most for UNM since 1989 when three men were recognized.

Coronado is the first women's All-American at New Mexico since 1996 and the fourth to earn NCAA All-America honors, joining Lavern Clarke (long jump/triple jump — 1990), Tangi Galloway (10,000m — 1996) and Sara Nicholson (javelin — 1996).

Jess My Moon Dominates Bayer Legend Derby

TY WYANT
For the Ruidoso News

Jess My Moon, bet down to 19-10 favoritism, dominated the Grade 3, $47,970 Bayer Legend New Mexico Derby Challenge at Ruidoso Downs on Saturday afternoon.

Ridden by Freddie Martinez for the first time, Jess My Moon pulled away from his nine rivals for the length win over Panther Rio in :19.688 for 400 yards.

Martinez took over the mount after Sam Thompson, who rode the colt to a third-place finish in the trials, was sidelined with a fractured foot.

It was another length back to 5-2 second choice Getting The Cash.

"The race went perfect. He broke on top and went on," Martinez. "I galloped him in the morning and watched video of his trial race. The trial was his first start since the All American Derby trials (Aug. 16), so I thought he would improve and we'd have a good shot."

Jess My Moon, a son of Mr Jess Perry and 2001 champion two-year-old filly Your First Moon, was purchased for $52,000 from Scoop Vessels' Vessels Stallion Farm in the 2006

Los Alamitos Equine Sale by Billy Smith and Pat Guthrie. The Vessels Stallion Farm stands champion FDD Dynasty, who was raced by Smith, Guthrie and Vessels.

"It's the same as FDD Dynasty," Smith said. "Pat and I bought him at the sale and Scoop asked if he could buy back a piece of him."

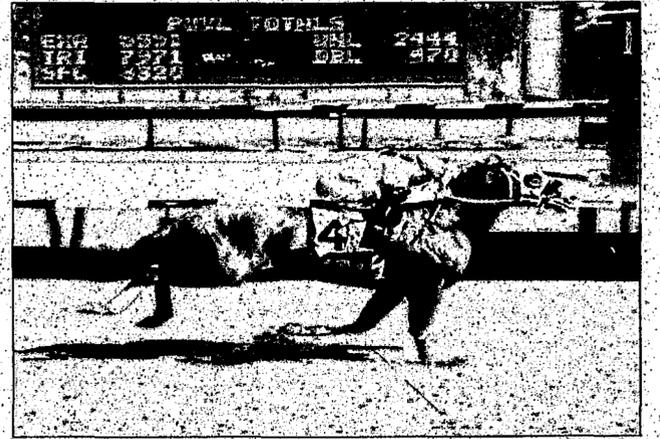

The victory gains the Mike Joiner-trained Jess My Moon eligibility to the Grade 1, $200,000 Bayer Legend Derby Challenge Championship at Evangeline Downs in Lafayette, La., on Nov. 8.

In the meantime, Jess

My Moon could point to the Grade 1, $600,000 (est.) Rainbow Derby and the Grade 1, $800,000 (est.) All American Derby at Ruidoso Downs. The Rainbow Derby trials are on July 4.

Runner-up Panther Rio, trained by Oscar Carrete for owner Norberto Lozoya, was overlooked at 10-1 odds despite winning the first of two trials. He was ridden by leading rider Ricky Ramirez.

Third-place finisher Gettin The Cash won the second trial with the fastest-qualifying time of :19.842. He was third in the West Texas Derby on April 5.

Coronado got off to a bit of a slow start, throwing under 160 feet on her opening attempt. Her third throw, however, propelled her into fourth place, where she remained until passing Nebraska senior Kayla Wilkinson (179' 3" - 54.60m) and SMU senior Andrea Kvetova (178' 8" - 54.47m) on her sixth and final attempt.

Oregon Junior Rachel Yurkovich won the gold medal with a throw of 185' 7" (56.58m) as she became the first collegiate athlete to defeat Coronado in 2008.

Coronado entered the finals round with a 9-0 head-to-head record against collegiate competitors, including Mountain West Conference and NCAA Midwest Regional Championship titles, and a 9-1 mark overall on the season.

Former UTEP All-American Erma Gene Evans handed Coronado her only other loss in early May in Albuquerque.

Coronado broke her own school record for the fourth time in as many meets and will enter the Olympic Trials in Eugene, Ore., as one of the hottest javelin throwers in the country.

Earlier in the day, Junior Sandy Fortner's All-America push in the women's heptathlon came to an end when an injury forced her to drop out of the seventh and final event of the competition - the 800 meters.

Fortner had moved up to 12th overall through five events, but was unable to complete the grueling two-day competition in her NCAA Outdoor Championship debut.

MSU athlete Coronado, left, will be going to the Olympic trials. COURTESY

BATTLE

On the last day of his chemo in Albuquerque, Sean went into a relapse. During a spinal tap, leukemia was found again in his young body.

He was moved to the University Medical Center in Tucson and has since had three bone marrow transplants — none of which have taken.

A younger brother, Aaron, who is now seven months old, contributed stem cells at birth as the initial treatment for recovery. Along the way, he contracted a fungal infection and was sent to the pediatric intensive care unit.

Almost three-fourths of his right cheek had to be removed and he developed acute respiratory distress syndrome (ARDS, a stiffening of the lungs).

He was put on a ventilator and put into a chemically induced coma for six weeks.

Three or four times doctors said he wasn't going to make it.

"We dug deep and had faith that Sean had more fight left in him," the father said.

Since then, the stricken boy has had bone marrow contributed to him, again from Aaron, and the same from his twin, Ryan. Unfortunately, they were not successful.

He is currently undergoing chemotherapy in preparation for another transplant, this time from an outside source. The procedure will take place Wednesday.

In the meantime, Ninety Nine Jack, will be stepping into the starting gate for both boys.

This gelding may be nine-years-old, but he has won some glory in his past.

He is co-holder of the six-furlong track record at Ruidoso Downs Race Track, which he tied in July 2004. And the other six-furlong co-record holder?

It's his father, Jack Wilson, who originally set the mark in August, 1992.

Monday, Ninety Nine Jack contributed $1,000 to the Friberg (pronounced, Freeberg) family. And at the presentation he looked spirited and ready to accept the challenge that lay ahead of him.

"Ryan and Sean are the brightest boys you'd ever meet," the elder Friberg said.

"Everything they have gone through hasn't got them down. They keep smiling through the rain. It blows my mind."

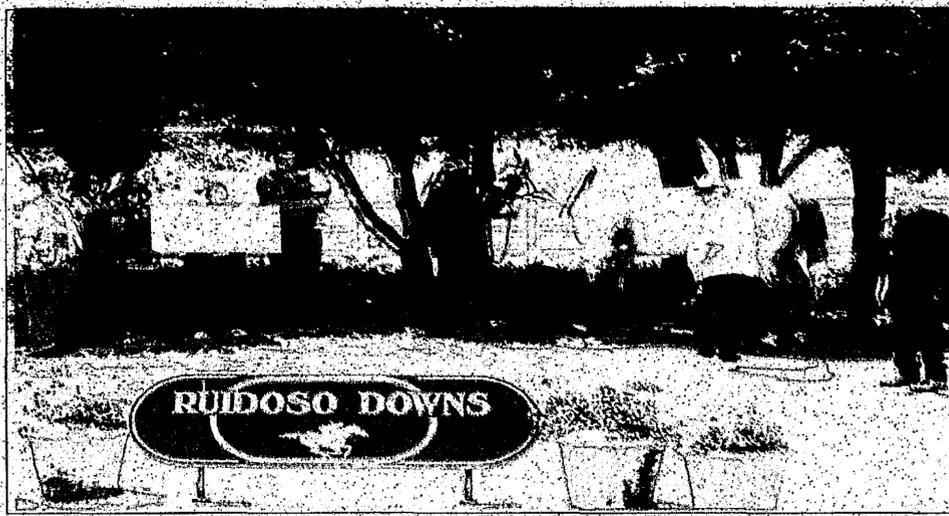

Jack's owner/trainer, Welch, was approached a month ago by a friend, Tom McElligott, a member of the Ruidoso Optimist Club, with the idea about contributing a portion of the horse's winnings to the Friberg family.

"The high cost of gasoline, to and from Tucson, can be monetarily draining," McElligott said. "Maybe we can help."

While Sean is in Tucson, one of the parents must always be there.

This presents additional financial burdens to the young family. Food and housing these days are not trivial expenses. Not to mention the medical bills.

It's uplifting to know there are organizations who act as the corner-peple for these courageous boys. The Ruidoso Noon Lions Club and the Optimist Club are all committed to the fight and have matched Ninety Nine Jack's donation.

Jennifer and Andrew Friberg are most appreciative of the efforts on their sons' behalf.

"We truly thank all of those who have taken up the fight on behalf of our boys," their father said. "The community response has been overwhelming, including the parents, ours and others. They have all aided immensely."

Welch and Ninety Nine Jack will be doing their part on their given field of battle — the race track. Not only here in Ruidoso, but also at Hobbs and Sunland.

If you happen to see them in a race, you might want to yell, "Go, Jack, go."

It couldn't hurt a thing — and who knows — it may help.

was quickly pounced on by the South. Only 5.1 seconds remained.

The offense lined up in a spread formation and No. 24, Patrick Gonzalez of Hondo, fired a 40-yard pass to Stewart McNeil, downfield on the five-yard line.

Pass caught — then fumbled — as he was pulled down from behind.

From out of nowhere, No. 86, Lawrence Gonzales, a stellar Hondo athlete, scooped it up and ran it in for the stunning, game-winning, 13-12, victory.

The third Hondo player on the All Star squad, No. 81, Gilbert Salcido, came through with flying colors, too — co-offensive MVP along with the standout North player, Moulder, who played for the New Mexico School for the Deaf during the regular season. Not a bad evening's work for the trio from Hondo.

Defensively, No. 50 for the North, Phillip Archuleta of Roy, grabbed top defensive MVP honors.

Patrick Gonzalez, Lawrence Gonzales and Salcido are 2008 Hondo graduating seniors and contributed mightily to the North's spectacular win.

"All three of the Hondo boys acquitted themselves well," South Coach Brendan Devine said.

"It was a team effort the whole way, however. Every player put 100 percent into the contest."

This was the 13th Annual New Mexico 6-Man

All Star game and, until Friday night, the overall record was deadlocked at 6-6.

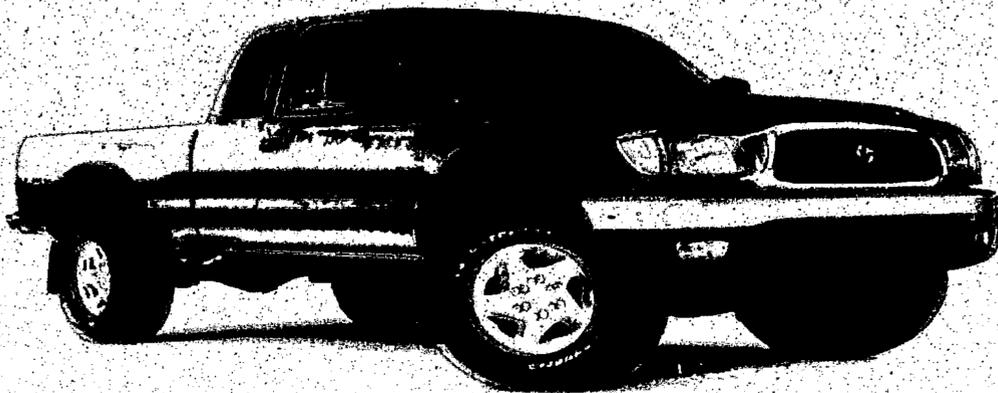

With the South's recent win, they've now earned the primary bragging rights for the most victories.

In addition to the three Hondo players, five others comprised the South roster. Kedal Hardt, Stewart McNeil and David Chavez hailed from Lake Arthur, Justin Archibeque came from Vaughn and Mark Allen was a House stand-out.

The Dunlaps are home

Father's Day was a very busy day in Lincoln. The shops were busy and the coffee shops and hotel were very busy. Gene and Carolyn Cris-tain have returned to Lincoln to stay. Welcome.

LINCOLN TRAILS ROSALIE DUNLAP

It has been a hectic three weeks for the Dunlaps. The contractor finally finished the remodeling job. They spent nearly two weeks at the Mayo Clinic in Scottsdale, Ariz. Ralph has some problem with the left side of his heart and I have general problems with diabetes. They really run you through the mill and leave nothing to chance. We spent the first weekend with our granddaughter and family in Gilbert. We all are anxiously awaiting the birth of our first great-grandchild who is named Tristan. It was hot there but not the wind we heard about here. We met lots of people from New Mexico. Ruidoso-area people will remember Marvella Thorp who worked for Sierra Blanca Motors. Her husband Bob, who has passed away, was the chief mechanic for years at Sierra Blanca. Marvella now lives between Tularosa and Alamogordo. Also, an old NMSU employee and friend, Jack Wallace and wife. They now live at Mayhill. And then people whom we would have mutual friends. Lois Coleman, Portland (Corpus), Texas, arrived to visit with her parents, Ralph and Rosalie Dunlap. She is staying until our granddaughter has her baby.

'Zozo water rates up a dollar; sewer unchanged

jcarter@ruidosonews.com

As the new fiscal year rolls around, Carrizozo's budget will be eased with a $1 increase in the water rates. A public hearing for a new water ordinance was held during the monthly council meeting, June 10, followed by approval of the new water rate schedule. Water will increase for residential from a base of $14.50 to $15.50 and for commercial from $15.50 to $16.50. The base rate covers the use up to 4,000 gallons of water per month. New rates begin on July 1 and will be reflected on the Aug. 1 water bill. Dan Dattola of New Mexico Land and Ranches informed the council that Phase III of the Valle del Sol subdivision would be presented to the Planning and Zoning Commission June 17, and then brought back to the council for approval at the July 8 meeting.

A disposal fee guideline policy was adopted by the council that requires persons not receiving Carrizozo water and able to present a water bill, would be charged 1 1/2 times the regular rate to dump at the roll-offs at the sub-station or at the McBride location. Carrizozo Police Chief Carrie Spencer asked for and was approved to advertise for full-time officers. Spencer's department report showed seven citations and a total of 13 cases logged including five felonies, four misdemeanors and two accidents. Three arrests were made in the month of May. Municipal court had two cases docketed and disbursed $793 to the town. In other business, the town:

- approved the creation of a return check fee;
- announced the grant approval for Rocking Horse Day Cars; and
- approved advertising for RFPs for a town attorney.

FSA County Committee nominations start June 15

WASHINGTON, D.C. - Agriculture Secretary Ed Schafer announced farmer and rancher candidate nominations begin June 15 for local Farm Service Agency (FSA) county committees.

The nomination period continues through Aug. 1, 2008. Elections take place this fall.

"I encourage all producers to participate in the county committee election process by nominating candidates by the Aug. 1 deadline," said Schafer. "We are counting on as much participation as possible, because county committees are an important link between the farm community and the U.S. Department of Agriculture. We have seen a trend in recent years of increased nominations of minority and women producers and we hope that will continue."

To be eligible to serve on an FSA county committee, a person must participate or cooperate in a program administered by FSA, be eligible to vote in a county committee election and reside in the local administrative area in which the person is a candidate.

Producers may also nominate themselves, and organizations representing minorities and women may also nominate candidates. To become a nominee, eligible individuals must sign form FSA-669A. The form and other valuable information about FSA county committee elections are available online at: www.fsa.usda.gov, click on News & Events, then County Committee Elections.

Nomination forms for the 2008 election must be postmarked or received in the local USDA Service Center by close of business on Aug. 1, 2008.

FSA county committee members make decisions on disaster and conservation programs, emergency programs, commodity price support loan programs and other important agricultural issues.

Members serve three-year terms. Nationwide, there are more than 7,800 farmers and ranchers serving on FSA county committees.

Committees consist of three to five members who are elected by eligible local producers.

FSA will mail ballots to producers beginning Nov. 3. The voted ballots are due back to the local county office either via mail or in person by Dec. 1.

Newly elected committee members and alternates take office Jan. 1, 2009.

Between 2003 and 2006, the number of minority and women farmers and ranchers nominated as candidates to FSA county committees nationwide increased 35 percent. Additionally, the number of African American producers nominated as candidates tripled during the same period.

Troylina Marie "Rustie" Holland Lott

Miss Rustie Lott, age 37, Sullivan, Indiana, passed away at 6:30 PM, Saturday, May 24th, 2008 in Lawrence County, Indiana. She was a passenger in a car that was involved in a head-on car accident.

She attended the University of New Mexico, Eastern New Mexico University, and Hobbs junior college. She was employed by Allomatic in Sullivan, Indiana. She most enjoyed catching fish; big fish, little fish, all fish!

Her last act of giving was that of tissue and organ donor, her tissues benefiting in excess of seventy recipients. Of that she would have been grateful. As requested, she was then cremated.

She is survived by her parents Lindy and Linda Lott of Alto, New Mexico, her grandfather, Glenn Schrader (Joan) of Alaska and her aunt and uncle Don and Yolanda Schrader of Alaska; her cousins Yvonne, Ida and Dana of Alaska, and cousins Doris and Shirley of San Antonio, Texas, and Donna of Hobbs, New Mexico.

She was loved and will be missed.

Gaining Access Into Nature

Growing program opens more wildlife areas

By Dan Williams

From hunting and fishing to bird watching and photography, wildlife-associated recreation has never been so good in New Mexico.

This spring, thousands of acres of the state's wildlife areas opened to activities other than hunting and fishing for the first time with the expansion of the Department of Game and Fish Gaining Access Into Nature Program. For a modest fee, visitors now can enjoy activities such as hiking, mountain biking and horseback riding in some of New Mexico's finest wildlife areas.

The idea behind GAIN is to allow more people to enjoy and support properties across the state that were purchased specifically for wildlife using funds provided through excise taxes on hunting and fishing gear. GAIN opens gates to these areas while allowing all visitors to help fund wildlife research, habitat improvement, maintenance, development and operations.

The foundation of GAIN emerged from Governor Bill Richardson's Summit on Wildlife-Associated Recreation in August 2004. That foundation was later set in statute by action of the 2005 Legislature

New Mexico's wildlife takes center stage in the Department of Game and Fish program, Gaining Access Into Nature, which opens thousands of acres of land to wildlife-associated recreation. GAIN activities range from self-guided hiking, biking and horseback riding to special tours of wolf country and chances to participate in surveys, bighorn sheep trapping operations and guided elk-bugling trips.

Department gains White Peak area access

The New Mexico Department of Game and Fish has signed a lease agreement with the ABC Land and Cattle Company to allow hunters to cross private land to access State Trust Lands in the Aspen Hill area of Game Management Unit 48, part of the area commonly known as White Peak.

The Department annually leases the rights for hunter, trapper and angler access to State Trust Lands from the State Land Office. The agreement with ABC Land and Cattle Company provides vehicular access to approximately 26 sections of State Trust Land that would not otherwise be accessible by vehicle. Entry to the area from N.M. 120 is near mile marker 5.

The access road crosses approximately one-half mile of private land and all users must stay on the roadway. Access to the private lands off the road is not allowed.

The agreement signed March 12 allows licensed hunters and up to two guests access to the area from April 15, 2008, through May 10, 2008, for spring turkey season, and from Aug. 15, 2008, through March 15, 2009, for bear and all other big game seasons.

The White Peak area now can be accessed via the Red Hill Road and the ABC gate from N.M. 120. Other access points will need written permission from the private property owner.

The lease agreement was funded by the Department's Open Gate Program, in which landowners can lease hunting areas or access to closed areas. Landowners who are interested in the Open Gate Program are encouraged to call a Department office in Raton, Albuquerque, Las Cruces or Roswell.

Funding for the program comes from the Habitat, Access and Management Validations that all hunters and anglers are required to purchase.

If you have questions about hunting, fishing or trapping in New Mexico, please contact the Department of Game and Fish at (505) 476-8000 or visit www.wildlife.state.nm.us.

Be bear aware at home, in camp this summer, fall

Summer and fall in New Mexico usually means bears are on the move and looking for food in the mountains, foothills and bordering communities throughout New Mexico. Often, young bears away from their mothers for the first time are looking for new territory -- and food.

Residents and visitors in bear country statewide are reminded to take appropriate precautions to protect themselves, their property, and the bears.

The Department of Game and Fish publishes a booklet, "Living with Large Predators," which is available on the Department website, www.wildlife.state.nm.us, or by calling (505) 476-8000.

If you see a bear and consider it a safety threat, please contact your local Department of Game and Fish conservation officer, police or sheriff's office. You also can call the Department office in Santa Fe at (505) 476-8000, or area offices in Albuquerque, Raton, Roswell and Las Cruces, from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Here are some suggestions about safely coexisting with bears:

If you live or camp in bear country:

- Keep garbage in airtight containers inside your garage or storage area.
- Place garbage outside in the morning just before pickup, not the night before.
- Occasionally clean cans with ammonia or bleach.
- Remove bird feeders. Bears see them as sweet treats, and often they will look for other food sources nearby.
- Don't leave pet food or food dishes outdoors at night.
- Clean and store outdoor grills after use.
- Never feed bears to attract them for viewing. If you feed a bear -- intentionally or unintentionally-- and the bear becomes a nuisance, you could be cited and fined up to $500 -- and the bear eventually may have to be killed.

- Keep your camp clean, and store food and garbage properly at all times. Use bear-proof containers when available. If not, suspend food, coolers and garbage from a tree at least 10 feet off the ground and 4 feet out from the tree trunk.
  - Keep your tent and sleeping bag free of all food smells. Store the clothes you wore while cooking or eating with your food.
  - Sleep a good distance from your cooking area or food storage site.
- Store toiletries with your food.

If you see a bear:

- Stop, and back away slowly while facing the bear. Avoid direct eye contact, as the bear may consider that a threat.
- Never get between a mother bear and her cubs.
- If the bear has not seen you, stay calm and slowly move away, making noise so the bear knows you are there.
- Do not run. Make yourself appear large by holding out your jacket. If you have small children, pick them up so they don't run.
- Give the bear plenty of room to escape, so it doesn't feel threatened or trapped. If you are on a trail, step off on the downhill side and slowly move away.
- If a bear attacks you, fight back using anything at your disposal, such as rocks, sticks, binoculars or even your bare hands. Aim for the bear's nose and eyes.

Don't miss Department exhibit at 2008 State Fair in Albuquerque

Live game fish, raptors, shooting games and information about New Mexico's wealth of wildlife-related recreational opportunities will be featured at the Department of Game and Fish displays Sept. 5-21 at the New Mexico State Fair in Albuquerque.

The Department's always-popular exhibit will be in its familiar spot in the Natural Resources Building at Expo New Mexico, along with State Forestry, Mining and Minerals, and State Parks divisions of the Energy, Minerals and Natural Resources Department.

Conservation officers, wildlife biologists and information and education specialists will be on hand every day to answer questions and supply visitors with information they need to enjoy and help conserve New Mexico's wildlife. The fish pond will be back this year, full of lunkers representing several species of New Mexico game fish. Visitors also will get an up-close look at live animals such as raptors, snakes and other species.

Special activities this year may include:

Rabies cases mount in southwestern N.M.

Fox rabies, a problem for several decades in Arizona, now has spread into western New Mexico.

Rabies is a deadly viral disease that affects all mammals and can be prevented but not cured. Kerry Mower, wildlife health specialist with the Department of Game and Fish, said rabies in foxes probably will continue to be a problem in New Mexico.

"I expect the disease will run its course and eventually wind down in the coming years, and then we will see the disease cycle up and down with the fox population," Mower said. The current fox population in southwestern New Mexico appears to be high, he said.

Mower said the key to controlling the disease is to have a licensed veterinarian vaccinate all pets and livestock. Area residents also can protect themselves and their animals by keeping pet food indoors, putting trash out only on pickup day, and removing bird feeders that may attract foxes and other wild animals to their property.

The Department of Game and Fish collects protected animals that are sick or dead and has them tested for rabies if the animals have been exposed to humans or are considered a potential health risk to humans.

If you see a sick or dead wild animal, or a wild animal acting abnormally, report it to the New Mexico Department of Game and Fish at (575) 532-2100 from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. weekdays, or anytime at (505) 827-9376.

For more information about rabies call the Department of Health at (505) 827-0006 or visit the Department of Health website at <http://www.health.state.nm.us/epi/rabies.html>.

Warmwater hatchery open for business

By Dan Williams

The crew at Rock Lake Fish Hatchery has a message for a few hundred thousand largemouth bass in Colorado awaiting transport to the hatchery near Santa Rosa: "Come on in, the water's fine."

All 11 one-acre ponds are full at New Mexico's new warmwater hatchery in Santa Rosa, and the Department of Game and Fish is expecting its first shipment of tiny bass fry this month.

"The construction process has been challenging, but it looks like we're finally ready to go," said Roddy Gallegos, recently promoted to assistant chief of fisheries from his position as manager at Rock Lake Hatchery. "This is an exciting time for the hatchery and New Mexico anglers who enjoy catching warmwater fish."

The $4 million first phase of the hatchery project was completed last fall. Since then, hatchery crews have been working to create pond environments suitable for raising bass, walleye, catfish and bluegill. Fish will be placed in the ponds once the water is producing enough phytoplankton and zooplankton the fish need for nourishment and growth.

Initially, the Department plans to raise bass, catfish and bluegill from fry to about 1-inch long, rotating species about every 28 days. Eventually, the operation will expand to include walleye and other warmwater fish species. Once the fish are raised to 1 inch or larger, they will be stocked in lakes around the state.

"The biggest challenge will be trying to determine the ideal nutrient load in the ponds," Gallegos said. "All fish-rearing facilities are different, so it will be a never-ending learning process for the hatchery staff."

Each 1-acre pond is sloped to provide the fish with water depths from two to seven feet. Ideal water temperatures of 55 to 75 degrees for bass and 70 to 85 degrees for catfish will be maintained by adjusting water flows. For comparison, the ideal water temperature for raising rainbow trout is 50 to 60 degrees.

The hatchery has the potential to raise three species a year to stockable sizes in each pond, and over time, anglers should notice a difference in the state's lakes as the fish mature. Mike Sloane, chief of fisheries for the Department, said impacts of the new stockings first may be seen in smaller lakes around the state, followed by larger reservoirs.

With its constant flow of 3,500 to 4,000 gallons of cool, clear spring water per minute, Rock Lake Hatchery already is the state's top producer of catchable-sized rainbow trout. Each year, the hatchery produces about 300,000 trout in its 18 raceways for stocking in the state's streams and lakes. The hatchery also raises about 20 million walleye every year, about half of them from eggs collected from Conchas and Ute reservoirs.

Funding for the first phase of the warmwater portion of the hatchery included $2.5 million from the state Game Protection Fund, which comes from hunting and fishing license sales; $900,000 in federal grants; and $300,000 from the state's General Fund, authorized by the 2004 Legislature.

Phase two of the warmwater hatchery project, to begin when funding becomes available, will include seven more ponds, a hatchery building and an educational center.

In operation since 1964, Rock Lake Hatchery welcomes visitors at its facilities two miles south of Santa Rosa along the Pecos River. The hatchery complex is open from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. every day.

Program brings archery to schools around New Mexico

By Clint Henson

Students across New Mexico are learning the basics of the sport of archery thanks to the New Mexico Department of Game and Fish and the National Archery in the Schools Program.

Archery in the Schools is a cooperative program with state wildlife agencies to encourage interest in archery and other shooting sports. New Mexico was the 43rd state to join the program after its origination in Kentucky in 2002. The program quickly spread nationwide and overseas with programs in Canada, Australia and South Africa.

"The kids and the teachers love it," said Brian Guzman, program coordinator and archery instructor. "When the students are finished shooting for PE class, then the teachers and instructors shoot after class. It's hard to get the teachers to stop shooting!"

The equipment used in the program is simple, safe, and easily fits fourth-through 12th-grade students and adults. Everyone uses the same arrows and bows are adjusted from 10- to 20-pound draw weight.

"It's great to see a child who has never shot a bow and arrow to quickly find success in this program," Guzman said. "It is presented in a very positive way, and it makes school a better learning environment. What other school sport appeals to such a wide range of participants?"

Students start the program with only a string to practice their draw, release and follow-through, but soon they have bows in hand, enjoying a new activity.

Guzman said he hopes to see the program expand from the physical education classrooms to after-school archery clubs. The Department of Game and Fish is working to schedule regional tournaments and have a state championship team that can compete in the 2009 National Tournament next May.

Fifteen New Mexico schools started the program in January 2008, and many others have expressed interest.

Southeast landowners open gates

Hunters anglers gain access, opportunities on private lands

Story and photos by Mark Madsen

Looking for a place to chase quail while listening to the breeze blow through the grass and shinnery oak? How about a nice quiet spot to wet a fly in a tranquil babbling brook?

Sometimes those places can be difficult to find, but more are becoming accessible through the Department of Game and Fish Open Gate program, in which landowners earn money through access leases that allow hunting and fishing on their property.

Southeastern New Mexico leads the way in numbers of properties participating in Open Gate. Eight properties currently are signed up, opening more than 32,806 acres of private land to public hunters and anglers. Additional access to more than 23,128 acres of public land also has been secured through the program.

Open Gate properties in the southeast represent a wide variety of habitat and terrain. Some properties south of Portales in the eastern plains consist of open grasslands interspersed with areas of sand dunes dominated by shinnery oak. It's not unusual to see pronghorns or even a lesser prairie chicken or two on these properties. Another property north of Clovis includes part of the "caprock," along with brushy arroyos, grasslands and mesquite flats. Several other properties are along the Pecos River in the Fort Sumner and Roswell areas. These properties contain terrains ranging from small canyons and ridges to extensive wetlands and marshes along the river.

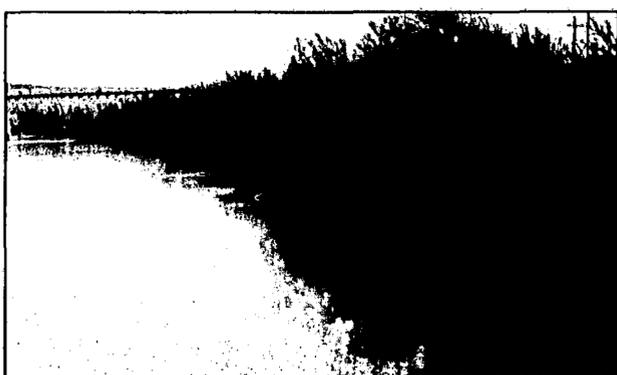

Most of the southeastern Open Gate properties offer ample opportunities for upland game-bird hunting, primarily scaled and bobwhite quail. Many of the same properties also have stock tanks that provide good dove hunting opportunities. Properties along the Pecos River near Roswell offer good hunting for waterfowl and even sandhill cranes.

Fishing access for warm and cool-water species in the Pecos River is available on a couple Open Gate properties. The property just off of the caprock north of Clovis offers hunters the chance of harvesting a Rio Grande turkey. Another Open Gate property offers trout anglers access to the Ruidoso River near Hondo. This property receives regular stockings of rainbow trout and even holds a few small brown trout.

Here are brief descriptions of Open Gate properties in southeastern New Mexico:

- Billy Pat Barnes: 280 acres of grassland and a dirt tank approximately 1/2-mile east of Crossroads on N.M. 508. The property is open for dove and quail hunting during the established seasons.

Alfonzo Caballero: Five separate parcels east of Roswell and north of U.S. 380. Public hunting and angling access has been granted for approximately 4,000 acres of private land and access has been gained to approximately 22,000 acres of State Trust lands. The first parcel is along the Pecos River north of the highway. This parcel is dominated by salt cedar, Indian rice grass, willows and wetlands along the river. The other parcels are farther east and north of the highway and are primarily open grasslands, mesquite and some brushy arroyos. The property is open for dove, quail, waterfowl and sandhill crane hunting during established seasons. The Pecos River parcel is also open for fishing.

Caballero property along the Pecos River

The New Mexico Department of Game and Fish Open Gate program has opened properties statewide to fishing and hunting by offering lease incentives to private landowners.

- Anna Crooks property: 960 acres of deeded property along with two dirt water tanks. The property is located just east and south of Crossroads, NM and consists of open grasslands. Dove and quail hunting are allowed during established seasons.

- Elliott McMaster property: 700 acres of marsh and wetlands just south of Bottomless Lakes State Park east of Roswell. The property adjoins the Overflow Wetlands special management area. The property is open for quail and waterfowl hunting during established seasons.

- Frank Rusk property: Approximately 7,426 acres of private land with access to 1,128 acres of State Trust land. The terrain consists of the caprock, brushy arroyos, open grasslands and mesquite flats. Dove and quail hunting are allowed during established seasons along with the opportunity to harvest a Rio Grande turkey in the spring and fall. To enter this Open Gate property start at Bard and drive south on Quay Road M for approximately nine miles and then turn left onto Quay Road 51. Proceed approximately 1/2 mile, where you will cross a cattle guard entering the Rusk Ranch.

- Wortheim Ranch: Approximately 18,000 acres of private land north of U.S. 60 west of Fort Sumner. Access to the ranch is by way of Beargrass or Big Sky Roads. Terrain varies from the broken topography along the Pecos River and the river bottom to mixed grasslands. The property is open for dove and quail hunting during established seasons.

- Lance Corporal Steven Chavez Fishing Area: This property is along the Ruidoso River a few miles west of Hondo. The landowner, Walt Limacher, allows public angler access to approximately 1 1/2 miles of the Ruidoso River. The property is open for year-round fishing. The Department stocks this stretch of river with rainbow trout. It also contains a few brown trout. To access the Lance Corporal Steven Chavez Fishing Area, turn south off U.S. 70 at mile marker 283, and then turn left at the dead end and drive across a white cattle guard. Parking is allowed anywhere along the road from the cattle guard to the bridge over the river. Anglers can fish upstream and downstream until they reach the posted water gaps crossing the river.

Hunting comes closer to home

By Ross Morgan

If you're looking for a good spot to go dove hunting relatively close to Albuquerque, Belen and Los Lunas, check out the Johnny Chavez property, one of several properties statewide enrolled in the New Mexico Department of Game and Fish Open Gate program.

As a participant in Open Gate, Chavez leases access to his property to hunters. Chavez is paid for the lease through the $4 Habitat Management and Access Validation Access and Validation that is required for all buyers of hunting and fishing licenses. Since its inception in 2006-2007, Open Gate has provided access to thousands of acres of private lands statewide.

"The property owned by Mr. Chavez has been part of our Open Gate program for several years now," said Donald Jaramillo, conservation officer for the Belen District. "With its proximity to Albuquerque, Belen, and Los Lunas, it provides a good place for hunters to come out for the day and do a little bird hunting."

The property is 160 acres that surrounds three separate water tanks and allows access to 33,000 acres of Bureau of Land Management and State Trust Lands that are open to hunting as well.

Most of the roads that access the property are county maintained roads that are graded periodically and usually are in good condition. However, these roads can become very muddy and slippery after a good rain. Although a lot of the property is flat, there are several areas of rolling hills with some deep arroyos that can fill with fast-flowing water after a good rain.

To reach the Johnny Chavez property, drive south on I-25 to its junction with U.S. 60 at Bernardo. Exit at U.S. 60 and head west to a cattle guard, then head southwest, then northwest on County Road B-12, staying on the main road for exactly 4 miles until you hit County Road B-57. Turn right on County Road B-57 and stay on the main road until you reach the first water tank (windmill). From there, follow the road north to a "T" intersection. Turn left and drive to water tanks No. 2 and No. 3. All three tanks are on the Johnny Chavez property enrolled in Open Gate program.

For more information on hunting this property or any other Open Gate property, please visit www.wildlife.state.nm.us, click on the hunt tab and scroll down to Open Gate hunting and fishing access. Information also is available by calling the Albuquerque office of the Department of Game and Fish at (505) 222-4700.

License validation pays off for hunters

By LuAnn Tafoya

Hunters and anglers in southwestern New Mexico have a few more places to hunt and fish, thanks to the Department of Game and Fish Open Gate program and the $4 Habitat Management and Access Validation required on all licenses.

Every time a hunter or angler buys a license, $1 of the $4 validation fee goes toward Open Gate, a program that encourages landowners to lease access to their property for hunting or fishing. The other $3 from the validation fee is used for habitat improvements around the state.

Three landowners signed up for Open Gate for the 2008-2009 season, providing access for dove and quail hunting. The Department, along with the New Mexico Wildlife Federation, hope to increase participation next year and beyond.

"The Wildlife Federation is 100 percent behind this program," said Leon Fager, a wildlife biologist recently hired by the 6,000-member federation to help recruit Open Gate participants. He has been touring the state, talking with landowners who might be interested in the program.

Here are brief descriptions of properties currently enrolled in Open Gate in southwestern New Mexico. All enrolled properties will be marked with "Open Gate" signs:

- Johnny Mounyo property: access to 160 acres of private land and 43,114 acres of public land. Private land contains two water tanks and is accessible during dove season and quail season. To get to the Mounyo property, drive eight miles east of San Antonio on U.S. 380. Turn right at the Fite sign, then drive 14 miles south to the Harriet sign and turn left. Drive another 12 miles to the Harriet sign and turn right. It will be three miles to the Mounyo Ranch house.

- Hurt Cattle Co. property: Three windmills with tanks and access to 2,341 acres of private and approximately 6,000 acres of public land in Unit 21B. There are several access points to the property northeast of Deming off N.M. 26. This property should provide some great bird hunting.
- Leonard Besinger property: Three water tanks and access to 4,000 acres of private land and more than 27,000 acres of public land in Unit 26. This property is approximately eight miles southwest of Hachita. Take N.M. 9 west for 2.2 miles to Little Hatchet Mountain Road. Look for the cattle guard on the south side of N.M. 9. Drive south approximately six miles to a green gate with a cattle guard. The property is open during dove and quail seasons.

Hunters are urged to respect private property when using Open Gate lands. Enrollment by landowners is strictly voluntary and their experiences with hunters will determine their decision to sign up again next year. Access is limited to walk-in, unless a landowner-approved road is listed on the property map. Please leave fences and gates as you found them and do not litter.

Landowners interested in participating in Open Gate are encouraged to contact their local Department conservation officer or the Southwest Area Office in Las Cruces at (575) 532-2100. The area will be evaluated and monetary compensation will be based on the type of access being leased and water sources available.

For more information about Open Gate properties and maps to the areas, please visit the Department website, www.wildlife.state.nm.us or call the Southwest Area Office, (575) 532-2100.

Too close for comfort

Aquatic aliens poised to invade New Mexico

By Reese Brand Phillips

For centuries humans have transported plants and animals around the globe, moving species from their native lands and introducing them to new areas. Many of these "alien" species have been intentional introductions, such as wheat, cattle and roses, while others are hitchhikers, stowing away on our ships and in our cargo.

Most alien species have caused no discernable harm, and many are beneficial, providing food, clothing and enjoyment for humans. Yet a small percentage of these alien species become invasive, spreading rampantly and causing great economic and ecological harm. Researchers at Cornell University in a study in 2000 estimated that 50,000 alien species in the United States caused losses totaling $137 billion a year.

Aquatic invasive species are a particularly injurious subset of invaders because of their impacts on our hydrologic systems and aquatic habitats. They alone account for $9 billion of losses annually.

New Mexico has not escaped these invaders, but so far the state's arid environment and relative isolation have protected it from most of the impacts of aquatic invasive species. Consider Florida, which has 49 aquatic alien plant species, compared to New Mexico's seven species. One single aquatic weed, hydrilla, costs Florida almost $15 million annually to control it in ponds and waterways. Fortunately, hydrilla has not invaded New Mexico yet, but several rivers in Texas are infested with it, and many of those rivers originate in our state.

New Mexico has been invaded by several aquatic weeds and algae, and we are the state in the 1980s and is found in the lower Pecos River and several reservoirs on this drainage. Though not dangerous to humans, golden alga produces a toxin that kills gill-breathing animals and has recently caused the death of thousands of fish in McAllister, Bataan, Brantley, and Carlsbad Municipal reservoirs.

Whirling disease is another recent invader to New Mexico. First detected in the state in 1998, it is now found in many of our rivers. This parasite infects young trout, eventually crippling them. In Montana, whirling disease has caused a 90 percent decline in trout populations in some rivers.

Inspect Everything!

Please follow these simple steps to help prevent alien mussels from invading New Mexico:

- Remove visible mud, plants, fish or other debris before transporting equipment.
- Eliminate all water from your boat and equipment before transporting it anywhere.
- Clean and dry everything that came in contact with water, including boats, trailer, equipment, clothing, waders, dogs, etc.
- Never release plants, fish or other animals into a body of water unless they came from that same body of water.

Although these invaders threaten our wildlife and waterways, potentially greater, more insidious threats, zebra and quagga mussels, are at our borders, poised to invade. Native to Eurasia, these fingernail-sized mussels were first discovered in the United States in the late 1980s in the Great Lakes region. Both likely arrived via ballast water in ships arriving from the Black Sea.

In less than a decade, zebra mussels invaded 19 states in the Mississippi River drainage and are now found in the Missouri and Arkansas Rivers. Quagga mussels are less widespread, found primarily in the Great Lakes region. But in 2007, after a decade of efforts to contain the infestation to the Midwest and eastern United States, quagga mussels were discovered in lakes Mead, Havasu and Mojave on the lower Colorado River.

On our doorstep

In November 2007, zebra mussels were found in Colorado's Pueblo Reservoir, less than 90 miles from the New Mexico border, and in January 2008 they were reported in central California's San Justo Reservoir.

Under natural conditions, quagga and zebra mussels colonize new areas by dispersing larvae (veligers) via the currents in rivers and lakes. But, these three new introductions into our western waters demonstrate the mussels' ability to colonize new areas by overland routes. Larvae and adults can survive for days out of the water on trailered boats. Safe haven for larvae and adults is provided by vegetation clinging on boat hulls and motors, as do live wells, bait buckets and engine cooling systems of boats.

If quagga mussels can survive the almost 1,400-mile trip from the nearest infested waters of the Mississippi River, how safe is New Mexico from an invasion from western Arizona? Zebra mussels made a similar journey from the Midwest to California and are now knocking on Raton's door.

Why should you care?

If you are an angler, boater, farmer, environmentalist, or if you use water in any way, then letting quagga or zebra mussels into our waterways will affect you. Where present, these mussels usually occur in enormous numbers. They produce millions microscopic larvae that float freely on currents and attach to any object or substrate, including boat hulls, buoys, pipes, even other animals such as crayfish and turtles. In one area of the Great Lakes, zebra mussels reached densities of 700,000 individuals for every square meter.

Invasive zebra and quagga mussels can survive for days out of water and hitch rides to other parts of the country aboard boat hulls and motors, and in live wells, bait buckets and boat engine cooling systems.

Both species impact municipalities by clogging water-supply pipes to water treatment and hydroelectric plants and industrial facilities, costing millions annually in prevention and maintenance. Boaters are affected as well, experiencing high fuel cost from increased drag on their hulls. Small mussels also can enter engine cooling systems, causing damage. A 2003 study found that both species cost $1 billion annually in control costs in the United States.

Impacts from the invasive species are not restricted to economic costs. Quagga and zebra mussels filter the water, feeding on phytoplankton-microscopic plants. Due to their huge numbers, they remove enormous quantities of phytoplankton and other particulates, initially clearing the water. Unfortunately, this apparent benefit has significant drawbacks. The increased water clarity allows aquatic plants to proliferate, and the plants eventually die and wash ashore. Homeowners in the Midwest and Great Lakes region complain of rotting, stinking masses of dead vegetation on their shorelines.

Threats to wildlife

Quagga and zebra mussels also impact native wildlife. They compete with native mussels by reducing their food supply and smother them by attaching to their shells. Fish populations may also be affected, as quagga and zebra mussels compete with bait fish such as minnows and shad for food. This in turn may impact game fish, such as bass and trout.

Quagga and zebra mussels appear capable of surviving in most lakes and rivers in New Mexico. However, several bodies of water within the state are high-risk areas.

Navajo Reservoir is a frequent stop for boaters traveling from lakes on the lower Colorado River, making it especially vulnerable to invasion by quagga mussels. Similarly, boaters on Pueblo Reservoir often travel to reservoirs of eastern New Mexico, such as Conchas, Santa Rosa and Ute, making those waters high-risk areas for invasion of zebra mussels.

It is critical to keep the Rio Grande free of alien mussels. The river traverses the entire state and is the physical life blood of New Mexico. If quagga or zebra mussels invade any portion of the river, they could invade the entire drainage.

New Mexico's Department of Game and Fish and the State Parks Division are working with other agencies, including the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, to keep the invaders out of the state. But our enforcement agencies are limited in their ability to keep alien species out of our waters. They need your help to prevent these alien species from invading our waters and threatening our economy and natural resources.

Native Gila trout inspire anglers old and new

By M.H. "Dutch" Salmon

It would seem a stretch of logic that there are trout here at all.

The Gila River mountains of southwest New Mexico are isolated and surrounded by desert. How did they come to raise their own unique salmonid, the Gila trout (Oncorhynchus gilae)?

Well, many millennia ago the climate was cooler and the water more ample. The Gila ran all the way to the Colorado back then, within the historical range of the rainbow trout, including the west-coast mountains and their rivers that drained to the Pacific. Our Gila trout must have shared some ancestry with these rainbows as even today they will readily interbreed and produce fertile offspring.

But the climate changed. Waters receded, became warmer, and the fish that would become known as Gila trout was left isolated in the remaining cool waters of the Gila mountains. There, over many millennia, they would take on their own "look" and behavioral traits sufficient that biologists declared them a separate species.

But before the biologists, there were the anecdotal jottings of settlers who variously called these fish "speckled" or "mountain" trout. One of these was an erstwhile British officer turned frontier rancher named Captain William French.

French was a rare gem among frontiersman in that he was literate and left a very readable memoir of the times: "Recollections of a Western Ranchman." In the 1880s he made an extended jaunt into the upper West Fork of the Gila River, where he documented two species that were already in trouble, though in the case of the trout the captain could hardly be expected to know it. His first encounter was with the rare Merriam's elk.

To this day in southwest New Mexico there are locals who will tell you that the idea of elk in the historic Gila is a hoax. Some say the 20th century introduction of elk into the region put "exotic" big game where they were never meant to be. French remembered differently.

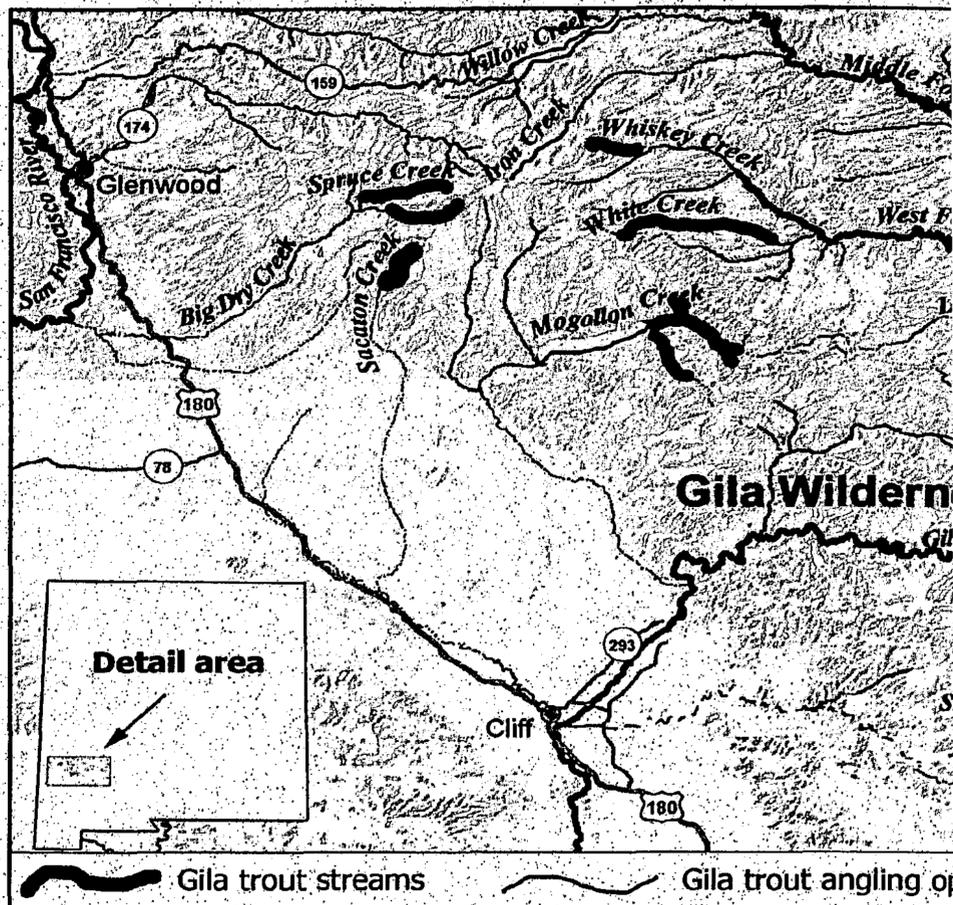

"The next day," he wrote, "we went on to Elk Mountain and actually ran into the herd of elk. There were eleven head of them. From what I could see of them, they appeared to be all does or cow elk which I believe is more correct. This was the only bunch of wild elk I ever saw in New Mexico. A few years later they were all killed by prospectors and others. I never heard of any heads or antlers being preserved.

"From there we drifted over to the West Fork of the Gila where we camped for several days. It was there that we found use for our fishing tackle, for it was swarming with mountain trout."

French reports that they caught their dinner with "tackle" and using grasshoppers for bait (as Hemingway would do, famously, in another story) but he and his partner, Ed Erway, soon came up with a better plan.

"The water was very low and we herded them into a pool which was several feet deep. We then blocked the entrance, so they could not get out. They were so numerous we succeeded in scooping them out with our hats. It would have been more successful if we could only have kept them in our hats till we secured them. Most of them jumped out and finally most of the rocks were so slippery we both slipped into about five feet of water and got thoroughly soaked."

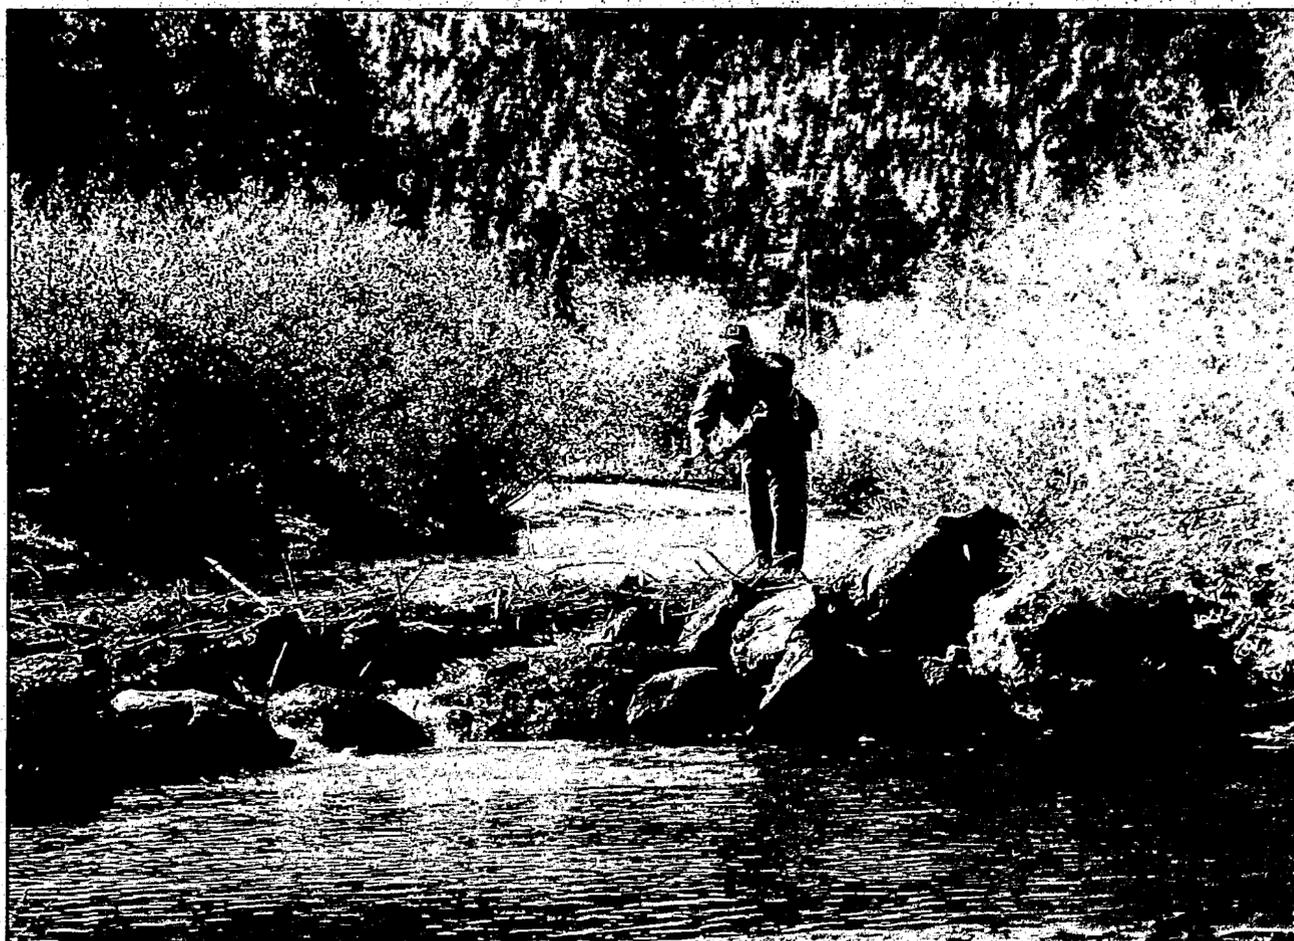

Great sport, that! French could not know that within 15 years these isolate native gems would face the beginnings of steady stockings of rainbow trout by individuals and agencies. The rainbows would crossbreed and "genetically swamp" the native species to virtual extinction. By the 1950s identifiable Gila trout were reduced to at best a half-dozen seminal streams and no more than 20 miles of water. The New Mexico Department of Game and Fish, with help from the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, and Gila National Forest, began a restoration program that wasn't always popular.

Streams were closed to fishing as piscicides were used to eliminate non-native species, and some people complained about the loss of fish and angling opportunities. In the early 1990s, advancing DNA analysis revealed that Gila trout thought 100 percent pure were tainted with a few degrees of rainbow gene introgression and had to go.

Some anglers complained, including me. Ash flows from forest fires wiped out entire streams to the dismay of all. But the agencies were persistent and by 2006 some 60 miles of stream had been renovated and the species was downlisted from federally endangered to threatened. That allowed the State Game Commission to open a few streams to legal Gila trout fishing for the first time in decades.

Gila trout angling opportunities

Limited opportunities to fish for Gila trout are now available in select New Mexico streams. Some streams require a free Gila trout permit, available online at www.wildlife.state.nm.us and over the counter at any Department of Game and Fish office.

Gila trout rules vary by water, so be sure to check the 2008-2009 Fishing Rules & Information Booklet for details. Streams open to Gila trout fishing include:

- Black Canyon Creek and Mogollon Creek: Open to fishing July 1-Oct. 31. Catch-and-release, artificial fly or lure, single barbless hook. Permit required.
- Iron Creek: Two Gila trout, any length. Artificial fly or lure; single barbless hook. Permit required.
- Willow Creek and Gilita Creek: Two Gila trout, any length. Unlimited brown trout. Any legal tackle or bait.
- Sapillo Creek and Gila River forks area: Occasional stockings of Gila trout when hatchery has surplus fish. Regular trout water rules: no tackle or bait restrictions, bag limit of five fish per day and no more than 10 in possession.

opportunities

and I journeyed to Black Canyon Creek to see if this "new" fish was worth all the fuss.

The day drizzled, the creek was low and clear. At the first good pool we could see the yellow-flanked trout fining beneath an undercut bank. Greg's dry fly was ignored. Thinking them spooked, I nonetheless tossed in a beadhead nymph. As it drifted and sank a trout came casually out from cover and just as casually inhaled the fly. Once I tightened up, he went nuts. Lacking the discrimination of the cagey brown, or the leap of the rainbow, he was nonetheless the hardest fighting trout for his size (about 11 inches) I can recall, all the while flashing those yellow-bronze flanks, decorated with black speckles, in his lengthy, desperate, athletic attempt to shed the hook. In the end, I shed the hook for him. As he swam off, I felt he had vindicated his race and 50 years of species renovation conducted by fits and starts.

We only caught about six trout between us that day. They measured up to 13 inches long, but each gave meaning and substance to the fly fisher's ultimate quest for "wild trout." Naïve and unsophisticated, these trout all fought like freedom was in their blood and that capture was a disgrace to be avoided with every possible effort of muscle and fin.

Problems remain. More than 20 miles of the upper West Fork of the Gila have been treated multiple times to bring Gila trout range in New Mexico close to 100 stream miles. But removing all the non-native browns is still incomplete, and even after a successful renovation of a stream, a few rainbows may slip back in by hook or by crook and compromise the 100 percent purity standard of the Gila stock.

We need about 150 miles of Gila trout stream habitat, including several Arizona streams, to achieve a delisting from "threatened" under the Endangered Species Act to return the fish to full state management. It won't be easy, and there is no consensus among the public regarding either the methods or the goals.

Still, the Gila trout has earned some defenders now that a measure of legal fishing has been achieved. Overstocks of hatchery Gila trout are being released in The Forks area of the Gila, among other streams. If you can "swamp" a species close to oblivion, perhaps you can also "swamp" it back to prominence.

Starting July 1, 2008, a portion of Mogollon Creek will open to Gila trout fishing. Like Black Canyon, it will be strictly catch-and-release, artificials only, single barbless hooks, and you need to get the free Gila trout fishing permit. Check the Fishing Rules and Information Booklet for all the details.

I was certainly impressed with the Gila trout as a game fish; they were born and raised for pursuit with a No. 12 Prince nymph and about a 4-weight rod. As for herding them into a pool and scooping them out with your hat, I'd suggest you confine that pursuit of these speckled beauties to a reading of Captain French and his "Recollections!"

Spirit of the woods

How do we measure the value of New Mexico's fish and wildlife?

By Martin Frentzel

For $219.99 you, too, can dress up the den or cabin to make folks think you are a hunter.

You will find the offer for full-sized, European-mount bull elk reproductions on page 124 of the "Spring 2008 Home and Cabin" catalog of a popular outfitting company also found on the World Wide Web and at stores across the nation.

The ad states you don't need to spend "thousands of dollars" on a hunt to "bring the spirit of the woods to your home, camp, or cabin."

With the price of gas these days, everyone wants to save money, but it's a shame we live in an age when people believe the "spirit of the woods" can be reproduced in plastic. It is a shame we live in an era when saving thousands of dollars is more important than having some pride in collecting your own mementos and memories of days spent searching for a bull elk in mountains both breathtakingly beautiful and breathtakingly steep.

Economic impact

Fortunately, there are still more people who want to have a real hunting life, blisters and all, than there are available elk, deer and antelope in the state of New Mexico. The Department of Game and Fish is aware of this because every year there are more elk, antelope and deer license applicants than available licenses.

Those people who apply are the ones who want to gaze at a set of antlers on the wall and remember their days in the Gila National Forest, or a pack trip into the Pecos Wilderness. Those people who are willing to pay both physically and financially for their outdoor adventures and treasures also make very real contributions to New Mexico's economy. In fact, they provide about $32 million just to the Department of Game and Fish in license fees and excise taxes every year.

License revenue accounts for about $20 million annually, and the other $12 million come from excise taxes charged on firearms and ammunition, fishing tackle, yachts and boating fuels. The U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service distributes the excise taxes to the states in the form of aid to Sport Fish and Wildlife Restoration.

Those contributions to fish and wildlife management, however, don't explain the complete wildlife economy picture. To do that, every five years the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service does a national survey of the economic contributions from hunting, fishing and wildlife-associated recreation. In the most recent survey, performed in 2006, the overall economic impact of New Mexico's fish and wildlife resources was estimated at $807,618,000, not counting expenditures by those 16 and younger.

That money comes from the approximately 249,000 anglers, 96,000 hunters and 480,000 wildlife watchers who live in or visit New Mexico. Those are the folks with a real wildlife heritage, not one made of plastic. They buy rifles, shotguns, binoculars, motorhomes, cabins, sleeping bags, gas, meals in restaurants, groceries, gum, more gas, knives, trailers, hay, boots, clothing, gloves, socks and hats. Don't forget the ammo, a box for the range and box for the hunt itself. They don't just visit sporting goods stores, they camp out there.

The Fish and Wildlife survey tells us that approximately 39 percent of New Mexico's residents participated in wildlife activities during 2006. The Fish and Wildlife Service also reports that the survey only reflects individuals who actually participated in these activities, and that many folks who consider themselves hunters, anglers and wildlife watchers don't get to participate every year.

What does it all mean?

After you look at the dollars and cents, what does this mean to you and me? Are we better off because 14 percent of New Mexicans choose to go hunting and fishing? Of course we are.

The money they generate pays for officers to trap and relocate bears when they become regular visitors to your back yard. The money also enables the New Mexico Department of Game and Fish to grow corn and other crops at waterfowl management areas up and down our river valleys to feed all those geese and cranes that spend the winter here. Those state-produced crops keep the birds spread out through the valleys and reduce the potential for deadly diseases.

Several of the properties purchased for fishing access or wildlife areas are managed for camping by New Mexico State Parks, part of the Energy Minerals and Natural Resources Department. Those include Cimarron Canyon State Park, Clayton Lake State Park, and Fenton Lake State Park. Those properties, especially Cimarron and Clayton, are very popular with visitors from other states, and therefore contribute economically to the welfare of communities such as Clayton, Eagle Nest and Angel Fire.

The Sport Fish Restoration Act was passed in 1950 and one of the first things the Department did was build dams. During the ensuing decades, countless children have grown up fishing and playing at Lake Roberts, Snow Lake, Quemado, Charette, and Hopewell Lakes. Today, water in those lakes also plays a critical role in fighting forest fires and protecting communities.

In addition to these economic contributions, fish and wildlife has vastly improved the quality of life for many New Mexicans for many decades. Making jerky from deer and elk is a time-honored tradition that lives on to this day in many families. Catching trout for dinner or breakfast is another.

For many of us, the opportunity to fish high in the mountains for trout during the summer, and chase quail in the desert grasslands in January is what it means to be a New Mexican. Those activities and opportunities are part of our core values, traditions we hope to carry on for generations to come.

So, how much is the "spirit of the woods" really worth? That depends on how much land, water and wildlife you want to see. But for most of us, it's a lot more than $219.99, excluding shipping and handling.

Minnows and more

Revived channel brings new life to urban bosque

By Marti Niman

Water now flows through a winding channel beneath an arc of giant cottonwood trees at Rio Grande Nature Center State Park in the heart of Albuquerque.

Once a dry gulch, the channel is now home to waterfowl, beavers and fish — most significantly, the endangered Rio Grande silvery minnow. Maligned by some, exalted by others, this tiny, unobtrusive little fish has been at the core of many a western water war and has come to symbolize much that is wrong with human manipulation of water sources in the Desert Southwest.

A collaborative effort among several state and federal agencies, the new water channel was excavated in March by the Army Corps of Engineers and runs 3,000 feet long and about 20 feet wide. Its primary purpose is to serve as nursery habitat for the silvery minnow, but it also will provide interpretive and educational opportunities at the Nature Center.

"It will help us teach how humans have changed the Rio Grande and how the damming of the river has changed its natural regime," Park Superintendent Beth Dillingham said. "Now we're trying to change it back again to recreate the natural habitat."

The project was born in 2003 when staff from New Mexico State Parks, the Army Corps of Engineers, City of Albuquerque Open Space, Bureau of Reclamation and University of New Mexico discussed what could be done for the minnow, said Ondrea Hummel, senior biologist for the Army Corps of Engineers. The Corps submitted a proposal to the Middle Rio Grande Endangered Species Collaborative Program, which provided funding in late 2004. Environmental assessments, planning, project design and removal of non-native plants followed and the channel was opened this spring. The project will recreate the historic oxbow-like flows for the endangered silvery minnow spawn.

"When we opened up the channel in March and the water came rushing in, that was pretty exciting," Hummel said.

Because the channel was denuded of vegetation following excavation, staff members from the Army Corps, New Mexico State Parks and the City of Albuquerque Open Space helped volunteers and students from Rio Grande High School and the Rio Rancho High School Environmental Society plant trees in April.

"We're out of school today so we're doing this on our own time," William Wadsworth said. "They announced it at school and we volunteered. I'll continue to be involved with things like this for the environment."

"We were looking for community work at either the Albuquerque BioPark or the Nature Center," said teacher Silda Mason from Rio Grande High School. "I biked over here after work one day and the planting idea just kicked into gear."

Students from Rio Grande High School made their volunteer day at the park a totally "green" one by borrowing bikes from the Bicycle Recycling Center to pedal over rather than take a bus.

Albuquerque Open Space provided the trees, which are native Rio Grande cottonwood, Gooding and coyote willow. The plants will provide cool shade and shelter for wildlife and help slow water evaporation from the channel.

Some wildlife attracted to the channel can become problems. Young tree shoots beckon resident beavers with their salad-like delicacy.

Open Space crews have replaced plastic wrap with chicken wire on the trunks of trees gnawed by a beaver. Some trees have fallen into the channel and are growing algae on them — providing more fish food.

The Rio Grande silvery minnow is a federal- and state-listed endangered species that once populated 3,000 miles of the Rio Grande from Colorado to Texas. Flood control and channelization projects that began in the 1940s have altered the river's natural flow and restricted the minnow to isolated reaches of the Rio Grande. This project helps to recreate the insulated oxbows and shallow pools favorable to the reproductive success of the silvery minnow, which spawns in concert with the spring runoff.

"Silvery minnows need inundated areas to get their eggs to hatch, get the young fish feeding, and out into the river," said Dr. Michael Porter, fisheries biologist with the Army Corps of Engineers. "The first two days after hatching are a critical period for young fish, when they spend the first day or two finding food and eating before the yolk sac reserves are used up."

The new channel replicates the natural flow of the river by flooding vegetated areas, where the water creates a lot of fish food through microbial action. Porter notes that the silvery minnow populations have increased since 2004, after the snowmelt runoff inundated point bars on islands, and increased again by 40-fold in 2005. Warm water provides more food because it breaks down vegetation into nutrients for the fish. Corps biologists will monitor the new channel twice a month from May through September, using kick nets to catch young fish and determine minnow reproduction and survival.

Located on the Central Rio Grande flyway, Rio Grande Nature Center State Park is a winter home to Canada geese, sandhill cranes, ducks and other waterfowl. For more information or to volunteer for the project, please call (505) 344-7240 or visit www.nmparks.com.

Cache ... and don't carry

Geocaching Challenge offers fun, high-tech outdoor treasure hunt

By Marti Niman

Do you want some free "swag?" Is a travel bug another term for wanderlust, Montezuma's revenge or something else? The answers are found in a search where the hunt is more fun than the quarry during State Parks Geocaching Challenge - part of the 75th Diamond Anniversary celebration in 2008.

State Parks invites the public to join the growing cadre of outdoor techno-wizards combing the mountains and arroyos with coordinates and electronic devices in hand, searching for hidden treasures and a chance to win special awards.

Geocaching is an outdoor treasure-hunt adventure game in which participants use Global Positioning System, or GPS units, to track treasures. The caches are waterproof containers of various sizes that contain a logbook and usually some small treasures, called "swag." Each New Mexico state park has one cache in a camouflage ammo can placed by a different cache team.

"The geocache team and park manager decide on a location for the cache, take a reading on a handheld GPS to get the longitude and latitude," said Wrennee Reynolds of New Mexico Geocachers, who helped organize the Challenge.

The Lum family of Los Alamos stashed its cache in a secret tree on a popular trail at Hyde Memorial State Park near Santa Fe.

"The search is the fun part, I really like the hunt," said Ethan Lum, as he consulted the GPS unit coordinates with his dad Russell. "I like finding different animals, like plastic dinosaurs, in the caches."

The five Lums and their dog - named Cache, of course - huff their way up the short, steep trail near the visitor center, periodically perusing their GPS coordinates. Although they were the original cachers at this site, they still need clues to track it down. Is it under that flat rock? No, maybe inside that log? Check those fallen tree roots. There it is! The whole family plays collective sleuth.

"We tend to place hiking caches," said Russell Lum. "It gets a lot of people out to the woods who normally would just go to the caches around town."

Each cache team has its own style and everyone gets to know who hides the urban ones, who hides ammo cans versus nano cans and who hides what signature caches - like Ethan's penny experiments or the Reynolds' barbed-wire prizes. Cachers may trade some of the treasures they find and replace them with their own goodies. Some treasures are called travel bugs and have a bar code with a tracking number to show where they have been. Geocaches can be found near a house in a city park or on a 10- to 20-mile hike into the mountains. The national web page, Geocaching.com, ranks different caches on difficulty of terrain and finding the cache, with a five-star terrain offering a rock scramble for the more energetic and nimble-footed.

"It's a good family activity and also educational," said Katrina Lum, who home-schools their three children, Taylor, Ethan and Zoe. "We print out information from the web on each cache location and it becomes part of their social studies."

Caches may be inside ammo cans like those in the state parks or encased in tackle boxes, plastic tubes or even nano caches smaller than a thimble. Caches are hidden but not buried to minimize the impact on the area. Some caches such as tubes are wedged into a rock crevasse or a tree, forcing the cacher to search above ground level.

"We come back and come back and come back looking for them," Taylor Lum said.

The sport of geocaching is limited only by the participants' imaginations and, given that much of its lingo is based on the Harry Potter series, could prove infinite. There are multi-caches with their coordinates stacked up like electronic Russian dolls - the first cache holding coordinates for the next cache and so on. Puzzle caches hide coordinates inside a text somewhat like an anagram. Some of the more elaborate GPS units have geocache software with games, sightseeing tours or role-playing scenarios with tasks to perform.

Cachers are a social bunch and watch out for one another's caches, replacing treasures or fixing caches if they get wet or damaged. They often have get-togethers with barbecues, campouts and separate kids' events. Cachers watch the online site for new cache postings and there's friendly competition to be "FTP" - first to find.

"We did one at midnight," Ethan Lum said. "It was fun; we had our headlamps on and it was really dark!"

The State Parks Geocaching Challenge encourages cachers to visit each state park to find hidden treasures and learn more about parks in the state. Visitors who locate all 34 75th Anniversary geocaches by Dec. 31, 2008, will receive a free State Park Annual Day Use pass and will qualify to win a State Park Annual Camping Pass.

Geocachers observe guidelines and ethics to ensure safety and minimal impact on natural areas. These include practicing CITO - Cache In Trash Out - and leaving the area as undisturbed as possible. Caches are never buried and are plainly marked. Caches do not have food, which might attract animals; or potentially dangerous items, such as knives or lighters. Once a cache is found, the cacher logs his visit in the logbook inside the cache and also logs the visit and a photo of the park online at www.geocaching.com. New cachers will need to register free online to play the game.

Where are the caches? Curious adventurers can find a list of coordinates for caches in each of the 34 state parks, as well as general information about the State Parks Geocaching Challenge and the sport of geocaching, at www.nmparks.com or www.nmgeocaching.com, or by heading for a nearby state park.

Kids 'N Parks

"It's more fun if it's hands-on, and we learn more if it's fun."

Program puts students in 'outdoor classrooms'

By Marti Niman

"We're doing all kinds of 'unrangerly' things today, like cutting tree branches and starting fires," said Regional Interpreter Sarah Wood to her sixth-grade charges, "but it's all for the greater good of education."

The things Wood described were part of an outdoor classroom program on fire ecology at Hyde Memorial State Park for Gonzales Elementary students from Santa Fe. Students were confronted with several large tin pans filled with a variety of wood fuels - including some freshly-cut juniper sprigs - and the problem of what container was likely to burn and why. Wood stood ready with a bladder pump to quickly douse any stray sparks and also experiment with the effect of "rain" on combustion.

"The hands-on opportunities outdoors and being in the environment brings it closer to home," said Contessa Serna, sixth-grade teacher at Gonzales.

Hands-on in this case meant the students got to "play with matches" by trying to light the different kinds of wood - a more challenging task than it would appear. Only one of the fuel pans actually caught fire enough to provide a little heat on a blustery day in May, sending up a cheer and a cluster of hands around the makeshift campfire.

"Kids are always told, 'Don't do this, don't touch that,'" Wood said. "This is a chance for them to experience their environment first-hand."

First-hand experience with the environment is one of the key components of State Parks' Outdoor Classroom Programs. Studies show that hands-on, outdoor education experiences can improve student academic achievement, increase test scores, build resource stewardship ethics, and increase teacher job satisfaction. One of the biggest challenges to the outdoor experience is getting kids there. Enter Kids 'N Parks, a State Parks initiative that pays transportation costs for student field trips to parks, zoos and other outdoor classroom areas.

The "Kids 'N Parks" program is funded by taxpayers who make voluntary contributions on the annual New Mexico Personal Income Tax form (PIT-D) and also appropriated funds from the Legislature. The funds are distributed through a first-come, first-serve grant application process. Students must participate in a curriculum-based program at the outdoor classroom location and teachers must evaluate the effectiveness of the experience.

"It's great for the kids to learn from the rangers and benefit from their expertise," said Kari Jensen, sixth-grade teacher at Gonzales Elementary. "They're starving for that sort of thing."

May 8, several state officials watched Kids 'N Parks outdoor classes in action at the Rio Grande Nature Center State Park in Albuquerque. Lt. Governor Diane Denish, Energy, Minerals and Natural Resources Department Secretary Joanna Prukop, Assistant Secretary of Public Education Department Mary Rose C de Baca and State Sen. Dede Feldman of Albuquerque braved the dock at the park's Students from Gonzales Elementary School in Santa Fe learned about the dynamics of fire during their hands-on outdoor classroom experience at Hyde Memorial State Park.

Discovery Pond while Park Ranger Karen Herzenberg coached a clutch of kindergarten kids. More than 100 students from Georgia O'Keefe Elementary in Albuquerque took turns swarming around the pond, gathering green stuff in nets and peering at organisms under microscopes. One youngster poked a glob of green stuff chopstick-style with an eyedropper and proudly proclaimed, "It's not slime, it's algae!"

Meanwhile on the Bosque Loop Trail, another Kids 'N Parks class of sophomores from Ramah High School strolled among the giant cottonwoods. They used journaling and reading as a springboard for English studies, species survival and biodiversity as some of their benchmarks.

The students at Hyde Park had their trip paid by a different funding source than the Kids 'N Parks program. The Friends of Hyde State Park raised money to provide transportation for Santa Fe schoolchildren to come to the park. Wood hopes that other Friends groups around the state will follow suit and provide transportation money for their communities as well.

"Lack of transportation is a big obstacle for teachers who want to do outdoor education," Instructional Coordinator Rob Yaksich said. "Many of these students would not get these experiences otherwise."

While some students are unable to visit outdoor areas as part of their studies, others never get to wild areas under any circumstances. Parent classroom aide Melynn Schuyler is the director of YouthWorks, a non-profit organization serving at-risk youth in Santa Fe.

"Some of these kids have no experience with the outdoors," she said. "They get so excited when they come here and say, 'I'm going to tell my parents about this place.' Some have never been on a hike and have to learn to carry a water bottle, for example."

That reality was driven home by one student's comment after a visit to the Hyde Park waterfall: "I learned how to tell if something is a rock or a deer or a bear," she said.

The state Legislature has provided nearly $500,000 for the first two pilot years of the Outdoor Classroom Program and the May 8 official visit to the Nature Center was part of the program's progress review. Students statewide will benefit in 2008-2009 as New Mexico plays a leading role in efforts to connect outdoor learning with academic achievement and increase "children and nature" programs of all kinds. Other components of the Outdoor Classroom Program besides the Kids 'N Parks transportation grants include rural service learning projects and teacher training; online teacher resources, evaluation and assessment materials and locally-relevant curriculum development.

The benefits of all these programs can best be summed up in the words of one sixth-grader: "I love it here," said Katie Frybarger. "It's more fun if it's hands-on, and we learn more if it's fun."

and the governor's approval of Senate Bill 145.

"The Department of Game and Fish is pleased and proud to be implementing GAIN in cooperation with communities statewide, to provide for additional, wholesome wildlife-associated recreational opportunities," Department Director Bruce Thompson said. "These opportunities provide more quality family activities on state wildlife areas consistent with the habitat and wildlife purposes for which the areas were acquired."

The GAIN program began in 2006 with a few special opportunities for winners in lottery-style drawings. Draw winners accompanied Department officers and staff experts in activities such as bighorn sheep trapping operations, elk-bugling tours and electrofishing projects. The most popular GAIN activity was in the Gila National Forest, where participants joined wildlife biologists as they tracked, listened and looked for signs of endangered Mexican wolves.

Those activities are expected to continue while the statewide access program expands to accommodate a growing public interest in wildlife viewing activities. Wildlife watchers spent $45.7 billion pursuing their hobby in 2006, according to the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service's National Survey of Fishing, Hunting and Wildlife-Associated Recreation. They also represent the fastest-growing segment of all wildlife-associated recreationists.

"The future of the GAIN program is to add further opportunities through cooperation among the Department of Game and Fish and other land managers, all of which have positive implications for local community economics," Thompson said.

GAIN at a glance

What is GAIN?

Gaining Access Into Nature (GAIN) is a program offered by the Department of Game and Fish that opens many Wildlife Management Areas (WMAs) to wildlife-associated recreation activities beyond hunting and fishing. Depending on the WMA, wildlife viewing and wildlife photography opportunities are accessible by hiking, bicycling, skiing, snowshoeing and horseback riding.

Who needs a GAIN Permit?

Anyone 18 years or older must purchase a GAIN Permit and a Habitat Management and Access Validation (HMAV) to access one of the WMAs open for GAIN activities. Persons younger than 18 do not need a permit.

If I am hunting or fishing on a WMA, do I need a GAIN Permit?

No. A current New Mexico hunting or fishing license with a HMAV allows holders to hunt or fish on WMAs during any season for which they are legally licensed.

If I have a current hunting or fishing license with a HMAV, can I hike, bicycle, ski, snowshoe or horseback ride on a WMA (if allowed) without purchasing a GAIN Permit?

No. Hunting licenses are for hunting; fishing licenses are for fishing and GAIN permits are for GAIN activities permitted on each WMA. You must purchase a GAIN permit to hike, bicycle etc. The only exception to this is Colin Neblett where, through an agreement with New Mexico State Parks, a person is good to go for any allowable GAIN activity with a GAIN permit or a park permit or a hunting or fishing license, but only for the timeframe indicated on the hunting or fishing license.

Where can I purchase a GAIN Permit?

From any Department office, license vendor, or through the Department's online license system.

How much are the fees?

Each person 18 years or older, must purchase a GAIN Permit and a HMAV to participate in any GAIN activity. Permits available include:

- Annual Permit, valid April 1-March 31, is $15 + HMAV $4 = $19.
- A Temporary (5 consecutive days) GAIN Permit is $4 + HMAV $4 = $8.
- A $1 vendor fee may be charged if you purchase it from a license vendor.
- If you purchase it online, a $4.95 vendor fee will be charged.
- Both types are valid statewide.

What are "Special Opportunity Permits?"

These special GAIN Permits allow participants to become involved in Department-sponsored wildlife tours, bighorn sheep and turkey trapping and relocation efforts, prairie chicken and electro-fishing surveys, etc. Permits are available through a drawing. Please visit the Department website, www.wildlife.state.nm.us, for information and applications.

What are LEGAL activities on a GAIN WMA?

Any person holding a valid GAIN permit and HMAV may, unless specifically prohibited:

- View and/or photograph wildlife.
- Hike, horseback ride, snowshoe, ski, or bicycle if specifically allowed at that WMA.
- Camp (if the WMA is open to camping) for no more than nine consecutive days. Licensed hunters and their guests may camp during their hunt.
- Have an open fire only if it is contained in a metal fireplace or charcoal grill.
- Pets, as long as they are leashed.

What activities are ILLEGAL on a GAIN WMA?

It is illegal for a person to:

- Operate any motorized vehicle or bicycle off established roads or on closed roads within a WMA.
- Deface or remove any rocks, minerals, plants, firewood or man-made features from a WMA.
- Excavate, injure, destroy, or remove any cultural resources or artifacts from a WMA.
- Violate any of the provisions of signs posted on WMAs.
- Use or possess any hay or feed that is not certified "weed free".

Birds In Blue

By Rob Yaksich

There are birds that are blue, and then there are bluebirds. But not every blue bird is a bluebird. There are also blue jays, but not every jay that is blue is a blue jay.

Huh?

When you're out and about in New Mexico, you probably will see many kinds of blue birds. Some of them may be entirely blue, like the color of a New Mexico sky. Others may have only a little blue here or there. Whatever the case, blue is a popular color not only among people, but also with birds.

Blue jays and jays that are blue

New Mexico is home to six different kinds of jays, five of which are blue. It's easy to call them all blue jays, but only one is actually named the blue jay. Found mostly in the eastern half of the United States, blue jays also occur in scattered places across eastern New Mexico. This far west, you're much more likely to encounter scrub jays and Steller's jays.

Scrub jays live in small family flocks in areas where piñon pines, junipers, and scrub oaks are common. Steller's jays, which are close cousins to blue jays, live at higher elevations in the mountains, especially where ponderosa pines are abundant.

If you live near piñon forests, you may find large flocks of noisy piñon jays, which look like smaller, all-blue versions of their close relative, the crow. They travel widely, moving like a feathered tidal wave, seeking and storing piñon nuts. Some of the piñon nuts they bury are never recovered and may eventually sprout into new trees. In this way, piñon jays are feathered foresters!

Look for scrub jays at the Randall Davey Audubon Center in Santa Fe. Steller's jays can be found at Fenton Lake State Park in the Jemez Mountains, and piñon jays can be found at Bluewater Lake State Park in the Zuni Mountains.

Hodge-podge of little blues

Jays are loud and bold, which makes them easy to see. Finding smaller birds can be more difficult, even if they're blue (and not necessarily bluebirds). For instance, lazuli (LAZ yoo lee) buntings are bright blue with rust and white, but in the brushy habitat they favor, they can be very hard to find. Their darker cousin, the indigo bunting, likes thickly vegetated riparian (riverside) areas, so you'll probably hear it before you see it. Look carefully, though, because the blue grosbeak (GROSS beak) lives in the same habitat and looks similar to the smaller bunting. To be sure of your ID, use a good bird guide.

Unlike jays, only male buntings are brightly colored. Why is this? Think about who sits on the nest most of the time, and are bright colors or dull colors easier to hide?

Look for lazuli and indigo buntings and blue grosbeaks at Percha Dam State Park and around the Glenwood State Fish Hatchery and nearby Catwalk.

Western bluebird

Will the real bluebirds please stand up?

Just like all blue jays aren't blue jays, not all blue birds are bluebirds. But there really are blue birds called bluebirds, and New Mexico has all three bluebird species found in North America.

Eastern bluebirds, are found in scattered locations in New Mexico.

But you are much more likely to see western bluebirds here, especially in the middle to high altitudes

Go higher and you'll find mountain bluebirds. This turquoise-blue bird likes to nest in old woodpecker holes in aspen or pine snags (standing dead or dying trees) near large meadows.

You might encounter all three bluebird species at Sugarite Canyon State Park near Raton. See mountain and western bluebirds at the Sargent Wildlife Area near Chama, and eastern bluebirds at the Rio Grande Nature Center State Park in Albuquerque.

Beating the bluebird blues

Not long ago, bluebirds were in serious danger. Their preferred habitat (open fields near woodlands) was being turned into farms or cities, and their favorite nesting sites – snags with old woodpecker holes or rotted-out cavities – were being removed. To make things worse, house sparrows and European starlings, both non-native species brought to America from Europe, were kicking bluebirds out of what nesting places they could find.

Concerned citizens took action and began to erect birdhouses in remaining bluebird habitat. Today, hundreds of thousands of bluebird houses, some of which are part of miles-long bluebird "trails," have helped bluebirds across the continent, including right here in New Mexico. But they need help, especially as growing cities turn habitat into shopping centers and new neighborhoods bring free-roaming house cats, house sparrows and starlings into native habitat. What will you do to help New Mexico's bluebirds and blue birds?

Kimmmel's Guillermo risks a 'Wipeout'

By Kate O'Hare
© Zap2it!

At the end of two long dirt roads in Canyon Country, Calif., near the former sets of HBO's defunct "Deadwood," the sun sets over an expansive patch of dusty earth, surrounded by steep hills covered in live oaks.

John Anderson and John Henson and co-host Jill Wagner.

The centerpiece of the tableau is the "Wipeout Zone," an edifice the size of a small office building that features a tall slide (covered, on this night, with foam), a big pool, a ramp with rolling barrels, a spinning platform, waterfalls pouring out of pipes, curtains of shiny tinsel and jets of flame.

It's the ultimate destination of the lucky few out of each episode's original 24 contestants, who survive a gauntlet of previous challenges, which go by such names as "Dizzy Dummy," "Dirty Balls" and the "Dreadmill," in hopes of winning $50,000.

Tonight, though, the Zone belongs to Guillermo Diaz, the parking-lot guard at ABC's late-night "The Jimmy Kimmel Show," whose job has expanded to include appearing in comedy segments.

"Dancing With the Stars" fans may remember earlier seasons of that show, in which Diaz donned various fancy dresses to help Kimmel "demonstrate" ballroom steps. With his mother, Elba, there to urge him on, Diaz is supposed to complete the Wipeout Zone course for a bit to air on "Kimmel" prior to the premiere of "Wipeout."

Despite Elba's vocal and lengthy encouragement, non-swimmer Diaz lingers at the top of the slide, afraid of the pool below.

He finally goes and, with the help of stunt swimmers and chants of "Gui-ller-moi!" from the crowd, survives. Attempts to go farther seem doomed to failure, but the quick intervention of a stunt double (cheered from the sidelines by Diaz shouting, "Go, Guillermo!") nearly saves the day.

The night ends with Diaz, his mother and the double in a group hug, followed by the apparently unhurt Diaz giving an interview inside an ambulance.

But before Diaz's adventures get under way, executive producer Matt Kunitz ("Fear Factor," "Celebrity Circus") takes a break on the Dreadmill - a truck-sized, high-powered, $50,000 treadmill - to talk about the folks who've signed up for the experience.

"We take all shapes and sizes and ages," he says. "We have 50-plus-year-olds. We have overweight people, male, female."

All the contestants go through physicals and, Kunitz says, "sign a 50-page release."

As to whether it's similar to the release signed by the participants in "Celebrity Circus," airing on NBC, Kunitz says, "It's probably more complete than that."

He also says it's not easy to provide the fun "wipeouts" that give the show its name and still prevent injuries.

Borrowing a baby teaches teens the hard truth about parenting

By Jacqueline Cutler
© Zap2it

Some teenage girls see only how adorable babies are. They see teeny booties and soft blankets, long lashes and gummy smiles, and can't help themselves: They want one.

They do not see the projectile vomiting, sleeping in 90-minute stints or attempts to comfort a squalling baby. As any parent can attest, babies are a complete package, and being able to deal with the tougher aspects requires maturity, grace and wells of patience most were unaware they possessed.

Essentially, it requires being a grown-up. If only babies could be borrowed and starry-eyed teens could glean some real experience, it's likely fewer teens would become moms. But borrowing babies sounds so bizarre (although some parents might give serious consideration to lending out a teenager). After all, who would actually give a helpless baby to a stranger with no sense of mortality?

Those participating in "The Baby Borrowers," NBC's reality show premiering Wednesday, June 25, actually do so for the greater good. No money or glory is involved. Rather, five couples ages 18-20 learn, over the course of six episodes, the valuable lesson that a baby is far more than an accessory.

Before anyone calls social services, the audience should know that the babies' parents were in a nearby house where they monitored the situation via closed-circuit television. Should parents become concerned, they could intervene. If they thought their children were in danger, they could remove them. And a nanny shadowed each couple but would only become involved if she thought there was an emergency.

The first two episodes are devoted to babies. The third week, the young couples learn the meaning of exhaustion as they chase toddlers. The fourth week, they have to take care of pre-teens and their pets, which in one case includes rats and snakes. If that isn't difficult enough, week five has them watching teenagers, and though most of them are well-behaved, one seems to be flirting with a shortcut to juvenile hall.

The heartwarming final episode involves the couples taking care of the elderly. The couples also reveal what they have learned, and this documentary-style show tells the audience who stayed together and what they're now doing.

In the kickoff episode, the five couples move into neighboring houses on a lovely cul-de-sac outside Boise, Idaho. This immediately raises the question of possibly contributing to the escalating birth rate among teenagers. By setting them up to play house for three weeks, is the show abetting their sexual relationships?

Creator and executive producer Richard McKerrow, who had a hit with this program in England, says they considered this.

"When making it for the BBC, we had a whole debate," McKerrow says. "What if they get pregnant?

We can't ban sex, as long as they are above the age of consent. We made sure the parents of the couples all knew, and if they were objecting, we would not let them share a room."

The couples, naturally, are thrilled with their furnished new houses. After a day, the reality of the reality show kicks in. In the first episode, the young women must wear empathy bellies -- vests with enlarged stomachs and breasts intended to give their wearers the feel of being pregnant. The suits do not, however, come equipped with swollen ankles, mood swings, gestational diabetes or any of the other real woes that can accompany pregnancy.

Still, this was more than Kelly Young of Georgia could bear. "It was heavy and it hurt, and I was not going to walk out the door wearing that," she says, crying.

She and her boyfriend, Austin Trizzino, squabble a lot. Kelly discovers early that caring for a baby is hard work.

Kelsey Lapman and Sean Graham of New Hampshire are in love, and she wants children very soon, but he is wary. Soon, Sean must tend to the crying baby because Kelsey can't cope. By night, baby Etta's mom, Natalie Nichols, shows up to tell the couple that the baby is uncomfortable -- she had been wearing the same clothes all day and had not been bathed -- and she reprimands Sean for saying that they should just let her cry.

Nichols is the only mom on the show who volunteered two of her children, the baby and a toddler, Benjamin, in the third episode.

McKerrow sought moms like Nichols when he screened applicants. Among the questions producers asked, he says, were, "Are parents going to be willing to do this for the right reasons and not just wanting to be on television?"

Nichols, 31 and a mother of four, ages 1-13, is perfect for the show. "I was a teen mom and got pregnant on purpose," she says. "I thought I knew it all, and I wanted to show my parents they couldn't tell me what to do."

An honors student, she dropped out of high school to tend to her son. As statistics prove, Nichols' choice is hardly a solitary one. More teens, three percent, had babies in 2006 (the most recent available data) than in any of the past 15 years, according to the National Center for Health Statistics' recent report.

Young mothers and their babies, naturally, are not the only ones affected.

"Seeing Sean will be a great message to the guys out there, who may already be a teen parent and who think they will high-tail it out of there," Nichols says. "It is bad, but if you are in the situation, you just have to go on. That baby needs you, and that is why I went over and talked with them."

Sean Graham appears in "The Baby Borrowers" Wednesday on NBC.

There he stands, helping to Usher in BET Awards '08

By Jay Bobbin
© Zap2it

Life had been quiet for him professionally, if not personally, for some time.

Now it's the summer of Usher. Continuing a media blitz that has taken him everywhere from "Dancing With the Stars" to "Saturday Night Live" -- in service of his latest CD, "Here I Stand" -- the music superstar is among the scheduled performers on this year's edition of the BET Awards. The cable channel televises its eighth annual ceremony Tuesday, June 24, from Los Angeles' Shrine Auditorium.

"There's a lot of grinding that goes with getting your album out," Usher admits. "You have to get out there and talk about it, but it's been very positive. There's been a lot of good feedback, the reviews have looked very good, and I'm very happy that I can move to the next phase now."

The artist born Usher Raymond IV defines that phase as being less promotion and more pure performance, and he's glad the BET Awards '08 coincides. "It's definitely exciting," he says of the plan for him to open the show. "Every time I've had a major hit, it was given a high profile at the BET Awards. Every time I've done it, I've had success."

Others seeking similar results from performing at this year's event include Mariah Carey, Mary J. Blige, Nelly, Chris Brown, Lil' Wayne and Young Jeezy. T-Pain is the most-nominated talent with five bids, followed by the aforementioned Brown with four. Kanye West and Keyshia Cole have three apiece, and Blige, Flo Rida and Alicia Keys are nominated twice each.

The BET Awards, hosted by D.L. Hughley, will also celebrate actors and athletes. Halle Berry, Don Cheadle, Queen Latifah and Denzel Washington are among screen stars up for 2008 honors. Nominated sports figures include Kobe Bryant, LeBron James, Tiger Woods, and siblings Serena and Venus Williams.

"Here I Stand" and its first single, "Love in This Club," made their presence known quickly on the music charts upon their late-May debuts. Usher maintains he isn't completely surprised by the impact they've had, "given the fact that the record was leaked," so to speak. It was basically a No. 1 even before we had edited it."

Fans were primed, then, for Usher to bring the tunes to television. While he's taken full advantage of those chances, he reasons, "Every audience is different and every show is different. I don't do that many (television) performances. I'm very deliberate with my choices. You're not going to see me do the same choreography over and over again.

"If you've created a dance break that works, people are kind of expecting and waiting for that moment, so you give it to them. On an award show, you have the opportunity to add production and wardrobe and lighting and all the other factors that take a performance to the next level."

The concept-album premise of "Here I Stand," which Usher describes as "a boy becoming a man," reflects his life since his 2004 release "Confessions." He is now a husband and a dad, but the initial postponement of his wedding to his former stylist, his father's death and a now-resolved falling-out with his mother -- who had been his manager -- became tabloid staples. He maintains his current CD isn't his own story entirely.

"I think people can tell the difference between real life and inspiration," Usher says. "If I'm inspired by something that happens, I'm going to write about it, but it's not as though this (CD) is autobiographical. Still, why wouldn't I talk about good experiences that have made me a better person and a better man? I make music not only for myself. I think about where we are and what we're talking about, or what we're missing."

Now that the album is out, Usher isn't missing what he knew was "a lot of expectation" about it. "Would it be better than the last one? People expect a lot, period, especially from an artist who only puts out an album maybe every three years. Of course, I need time to live and to get inspiration, but I also want to give people something they'll talk about. Since they've chosen to talk so much about my life and my personal space, now I have the opportunity to clear up certain things."

In achieving that, Usher allows he's still adjusting to being known widely as a family man, an identity some of the "Here I Stand" cuts address directly. Prime examples: "Prayer for You," an ode to son Usher Raymond V (born seven months ago), and a ballad for Usher's wife tellingly titled "Before I Met You."

"I want more people to understand that I'm not a newcomer," Usher explains, "and that I don't have to confine myself to any specific topic. You want growth (in a performer); you want to see that he is comfortable in his skin and in a great place. The music conveys that, and that is why I do it."

Usher is among the scheduled performers on the BET Awards '08, airing Tuesday on BET.

An Inside Look

Spike TV reveals the 'Guys Choice' in flicks, chicks and more

By Kate O'Hare
© Zap2it

On Sunday, June 22, Spike TV aims to increase world peace - or at least reduce the number of arguments in bars.

The second annual "Spike Guys Choice," taped May 30 in Culver City, Calif., offers up an awards show tailor-made for Spike's male audience, with hosts John Cho and Kai Penn, stars of the "Harold and Kumar" movies.

The event features categories that guys care about and leaves out the stuff they don't - and it took a woman to bring it to them.

"I created the show," says Casey Patterson, Spike TV's senior vice president, event production and talent development.

"Not being a guy," as she points out, Patterson relied on research from Spike's core audience, gathered in focus groups, conversations and online.

"Something I learned," Patterson says, "is that awards shows, generally, out there in the masses, have never really been produced with men in mind. It's more about women - clothing, the red carpet, the pageantry, all about grand staircases and long walks in beautiful gowns."

So "Guys Choice" ditched the formalwear - "We really don't tell guys how to dress," Patterson says - and includes categories that Patterson believes reflect the sort of debates that go on among guys every day.

"It's like, 'Dude, who's the hottest woman in Hollywood?' " she says. "Then the other guy will name somebody. 'No way, dude, she's not the hottest!' You hear that debate. It happens in every bar; it happens in every living room.

"They argue about sports plays. They argue about action heroes. They argue about fighters, about cars, about movies, about music.

"What we've seen is guys love to talk about these things and debate them to death."

In this politically correct climate, one might expect some sort of a feminist backlash, but Patterson says, "We don't pretend to be for all people. We really are here just to entertain guys. I certainly hope not. I'm not offended.

"I hope they will embrace and love the Spike point of view. We're just talking about guy-dom."

A Closer Look

By George Dickie © Zap2it

Justine Henin's retirement last month sent shock waves throughout the WTA Tour, but at Wimbledon the news was more likely to have been met with shrugs.

That's because the world No. 1 and seven-time Grand Slam champ had never won a title on the All-England Club's grass courts, despite the fact that, pound for pound, she is considered probably the best women's player of her time.

She'd come close twice, making the final in 2001 and 2006, but others such as Venus and Serena Williams, Maria Sharapova, and Amelie Mauresmo have taken home the hardware in recent years.

So in considering the women's field in this year's championships at Wimbledon, which air on ESPN2 and NBC beginning Monday, June 23, NBC's Ted Robinson looks to those with past success as favorites.

"When Venus Williams walks on that court, it's as if she morphs back in time to 2000 and 2001, when she was the best player in the game," says Robinson of the four-time defending champ. "You know, she knocked (Martina) Hingis off the perch before Serena overtook her big sister.

That's when Venus was the champ, and now when she walks on Centre Court Wimbledon, that's the attitude again. Now she's 28; she hasn't had great results this year. Can she walk back in and once again reclaim that magic at Wimbledon? She'll obviously have to play at least something on some of the outer courts. Can she survive those, which she barely did last year?"

6 p.m. on AMC Movie: Troy

We don't need no stinkin' gods and goddesses! The Trojan War story is retold without the deities of Homer's original in this 2004 adventure. Brad Pitt stars as Achilles, the great Greek warrior who fights more for his ego than for his king (Brian Cox) — to the latter's dismay. Orlando Bloom plays Paris, the Trojan prince whose affair with the lovely Helen (Diane Kruger) sets the war in motion. Brendan Gleeson and Peter O'Toole also star.

6 p.m. on FX Movie: Men of Honor

Cuba Gooding Jr. does fine work in director George Tillman Jr.'s ("Soul Food") 2000 drama, which tells the true story of Carl Brashear, the first African-American diver in the history of the U.S. Navy. He faces various challenges, not the least of which is a no-nonsense commander (Robert De Niro). Later, Brashear has to overcome a physical impairment. Charlize Theron also stars.

7 p.m. on KOBR KTSM The Office

And here everyone seemed so rational at Dunder Mifflin. Jan (Melora Hardin) sues the company, and poor Michael (Steve

8 p.m. on KDBC KBIM CSI: Crime Scene Investigation

Try saying the title of this episode — "The Chick Chop Flick Shop" — three times fast. The CSIs investigate a horror film studio when an actress is killed. The suspects include her boyfriend (Chris Diamantopoulos) and the studio's owners (Matt Gerald, Will Sasso), one of whom is trying to frame the other. Rookie CSI Ronnie Lake (Jessica Lucas) finds herself in a real-life horror scenario when she finds another body at the scene.

FRIDAY

5 p.m. on FX Movie: Joy Ride

Dudes, don't mess with Buffalo Bill! A lean, mean script and superior cast (Paul Walker, Steve Zahn, Leelee Sobieski) crank up the tension in this 2001 thriller about two brothers on a road trip. They put themselves and their companion in danger by using a CB radio to play a cruel trick on a trucker (voice of Ted Levine, "The Silence of the Lambs"), not knowing the man is a dangerous psychopath who isn't inclined to shrug off petty offenses.

7 p.m. on KDBC KBIM Ghost Whisperer

Melinda, you're a ghost whisperer, not a lawyer. In a creepy story reminiscent of a recent real-world right-to-die case, our heroine (Jennifer Love Hewitt) is volunteering at a hospital when she meets the spirit of a young man on life support. He desperately wants to cross over, but he's still trapped in his body ... and between his wife and parents, who are arguing over pulling the plug. Camryn Manheim also stars in "Dead to Rights."

7 p.m. on KOAT KVIA The 35th Annual Daytime Emmy Awards

He's not just a day guy anymore, but that doesn't disqualify talk and game show host Regis Philbin from winning the Lifetime Achievement Award at this year's ceremony honoring the best in daytime TV. "The Young and the Restless" is the leading nominee, up for 18 awards, followed by fellow CBS soap "Guiding Light" with 13. Others that could take home fistfuls of Emmys are "General Hospital" "The Ellen DeGeneres Show" and "Sesame Street."

9 p.m. on KDBC KBIM NUMB3RS

You'll be tempted to root for the killer in this episode. Don and Charlie (Rob Morrow, David Krumholtz) are on the trail of someone who's exacting the ultimate revenge against those who prey on girls via the Internet. These guys may deserve it, but there's that pesky matter of murder being against the law. Larry (Peter MacNicol) is spacing out — literally. He's going on a shuttle mission.

SATURDAY

7 p.m. on KOAT KVIA Movie: Camp Rock

It debuted on Disney Channel last night, but for those who don't have cable — or those with kids who just want to see it again, here's the broadcast debut of what the Mouse House is hoping will be the Next Big Teen Musical. Demi Lovato stars as a girl with dreams of attending a music camp. She gets her wish when her mom takes a job at the camp, and she meets an arrogant young rocker (Joe Jonas of Jonas Brothers fame) who needs an attitude adjustment.

Marcia Cross stars in "Desperate Housewives" Sunday on ABC.

SUNDAY

7 p.m. on NGE0 The Girl With Eight Limbs

In someone else's hands, this new special could have been exploitative — but this is National Geographic. Little Lakshmi was born with an undeveloped twin fused to her body, giving her four arms and four legs. Rather than being reviled as a freak, she's revered as the incarnation of the multilimbed Hindu goddess of wealth and fortune. But her condition could be fatal if it isn't corrected; the special chronicles doctors' efforts to do so.

8 p.m. on KENW Masterpiece

Inspector Morse is gone, but his legacy lives on in the persona of former sidekick Robbie Lewis (Kevin Whately). In the new mystery "Whom the Gods Would Destroy," Lewis and his young partner, Hathaway (Laurence Fox), investigate the death of an Oxford graduate whose body is found aboard his houseboat. The evidence leads them to the victim's former university friends and a complex web of clues from the past and present.

8 p.m. on KDBC KBIM Cold Case

This case is still warm, but Rush (Kathryn Morris) and her team have to dig up some old dirt to solve it. A serial bomber, who appears to be losing his touch, maims someone who wasn't his intended target. To stop him before he gets to his real quarry, they must revisit three previous attacks, in 1999, 2001 and 2003, which killed two people and blinded another.

9 p.m. on KOAT KVIA Desperate Housewives

The marvelous Polly Bergen guest stars in "The Game" as Lynette's (Felicity Huffman) mom, who bakes her a batch of, um, special brownies to help her with the aftereffects of chemo. Some of them end up at a party at Susan's (Teri Hatcher), but everyone's more interested in digging up dirt on Katherine (Dana Delany). Bree (Marcia Cross) does some quick thinking when Susan asks her to recommend an obstetrician.

MONDAY

7 p.m. on KFOX KASA Bones

This is the opposite of a cold case. In "The Secret in the Soil," Booth and Brennan (David Boreanaz, Emily Deschanel) investigate when the still-warm body of a farmer who owned a chain of organic markets is found. They suspect the rival farmers he'd been putting pressure on, but the plot thickens when he turns out to have had a wandering eye. John Francis Daley ("Freaks and Geeks") guest stars as Brennan and Booth's new, very young therapist.

7 p.m. on HBO Hard Times at Douglass High: A No Child Left Behind Report Card

The law is called the No Child Left Behind Act, but it has yet to live up to its name. This new documentary puts a human face on the situation by focusing on a Baltimore high school that is in danger of being taken over by the state unless students' test scores improve. Students and teachers weigh in on the school's negative and positive points — the latter including a music program and basketball and debate teams that are all award winners.

8 p.m. on KDBC KBIM Two and a Half Men

Isn't it the wife who's supposed to run home to Mother? After an argument between Alan and Charlie (Jon Cryer, Charlie Sheen) over Alan's position in the Harper brothers' household, Alan packs up his stuff and his son (Angus T. Jones) and moves in with Evelyn (Holland Taylor). Robert Wagner reprises his role as Evelyn's boyfriend, Teddy, in "Our Leather Gear Is in the Guest Room."

8 p.m. on KFOX KASA House

House (Hugh Laurie) is being literal in this episode when he asks his fellowship candidates to dig up information. He wants them to exhume a dead body for clues to what's ailing their live patient — a funeral home cosmetician (Azura Skye) suffering from seizures and hallucinations. Foreman (Omar Epps) discovers that breaking the rules, House-style, is a liability in the job market.

Charlie Sheen stars in "Two and a Half Men" Monday on CBS.

Ever tried to cross a body of water on a bridge made of enormous red balls? Walked a narrow ledge alongside a wall where boxing gloves pop out at random intervals to knock you off? Contestants brave a series of wacky obstacle courses with a $50,000 prize.

9 p.m. on KRWG P.O.V.

Slavery was a Southern thing. That's what Katrina Browne thought ... until she discovered her own Yankee forebears were the largest slave-trading family in United States history. In the new documentary "Traces of the Trade: A Story From the Deep North," Browne and nine other descendants of this clan retrace the old Triangle Trade route from New England to Africa to Cuba.

9 p.m. on KDBC KBIM Without a Trace

Issuing a death threat to someone who defies death for a living seems like — no pun intended — overkill. Nevertheless, that's what happened to the missing person in this episode — a stuntman who vanishes from a film set after a particularly risky stunt. As Jack (Anthony LaPaglia) and his team investigate, they discover that someone had threatened the man's life shortly before he disappeared. Poppy Montgomery also stars in "Crash and Burn."

7 p.m. on KOBR KTSM The Baby Borrowers

The Baby Think It Over doll has nothing on this new reality series, designed to teach teens that parenthood is more than just cuddling a cute widdle bundle of unconditional love. Teenage couples move in together and in rapid succession are required to care for an infant, a toddler, a preteen, a teenager and an elderly person. Lessons learned? Oh, yeah. And you get to watch. If you have teenagers, be sure they do likewise.

Efficient Landscape Practices Conserve Water

1. Fertilize properly.

Too much fertilizer leads to excessive top growth and unnecessary water use. A pre-measured fertilizer spike like Jobe's® ensures plants receive the proper amount of nutrients.

2. Conserve soil moisture.

Studies show landscape fabric like eco-friendly WeedBlock® Natural covered with mulch keeps soil moist and prevents weeds from germinating.

3. Minimize surface evaporation.

65% of the water sprinkled on lawns during the heat of the day evaporates. A deep root feeder such as the ROSS® Root Feeder delivers moisture directly to the root zone. This eliminates surface evaporation and run-off.

Did You Know?

(MS) — While most adults are aware that they need to get at least 30 minutes of exercise a day, children actually need twice that amount, according to dietary guidelines from the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) and the Department of Health and Human Services (HHS). Children should get 60 minutes of moderate to vigorous exercise every day. While that might seem like a lot, when considering that kids are exposed to exercise during gym class, recess and after school activities each day, it's actually quite easy for children to get 60 minutes of exercise daily. It's also nothing compared to the amount of time children spend doing far less healthy activities. The American Academy of Pediatrics (AAP) reports that the average child spends three hours a day watching television, while the Kaiser Family Foundation reports kids are spending an average of 5 1/2 hours per day involved in all media, including television, computers, etc. While that's an alarming statistic, it points out how easy it could be to get kids more involved in exercise. If time spent in front of the television and surfing the Internet is simply decreased by less than 20 percent, time now becomes available for physical activity — and that's all the time kids need.

Responsible Construction
Ask for concrete when building your home

By J. C. Carroll (MS) — Concrete is king today in the more eco-conscious construction world. For example, an all-Canadian building system is now delivering double the insulation by constructing walls, ceilings and floors with pre-assembled, interlocking concrete forms. This award-winning system by Nudura Corporation creates an entire, energy-efficient building envelope. It is reported to make the job much faster with less construction waste—and unlike wood structures, the concrete forms do not propagate mould growth. In addition to energy savings of up to 70 percent, take a look at these other benefits reported by Nudura. With this concrete system, you'll get a home that is:

- Up to 2x more energy efficient — with technology that evens out the effect of external temperature

- swings.
- Up to 3x more sound resistant. Its double-side EPS panels and insulated concrete core acts as an effective sound barrier.
- Up to 4x more fire resistant since the walls are built with steel reinforced concrete and foam that is manufactured with a non-toxic fire retardant.

- Up to 9x stronger because they allow nine times more axial load resistance, a superior feature in high-wind, tornado, or hurricane areas.
- Resistant to thermal bridging, where outside cold travels easily through walls to create uncomfortable cold spots, drafts, and mustiness inside the home.

Did You Know? (MS) — The term "man's best friend" might nowadays be something of a misnomer. Dogs have long held the distinction of being man's closest pal, but figures from the U.S. Census Bureau note that cats actually outnumber dogs by a large margin. While there are 74 million dogs throughout the country, that figure pales in comparison to the roughly 90 million felines across the nation. Another shift with respect to pets is the absence of dog houses. While backyards were once a dog's place to roam and sleep, dog houses have largely become a thing of the past. In fact, according to the National Pet Owner's Survey, more and more dogs are now enjoying the same sleeping arrangements as their owners, as 41 percent of dog owners admit they share their beds with their dogs.

And the music keeps coming. She continues to perform more than 30 shows each year, and her latest CD, Country In My Heart, features a duet with country superstar and fellow Okie Vince Gill on "Sweet Home Oklahoma." She and her husband, Jerry Filicotto, split time between homes in San Diego and Bath, N.H., where they operate a maple syrup business called Hilltop Farm.

Q Was the original Walking Tall movie a true story, or Hollywood fiction?

—Walter Watkins, Greenville, Miss.

Hollywood took a few liberties with some of the details, but otherwise the 1973 movie was an accurate depiction of Tennessee sheriff Buford Pusser, who almost single-handedly cleaned up rural McNairy County from rampant corruption in the late '60s. His real-life exploits needed little embellishment—he was shot eight times, survived seven knife wounds, fought off six men at once (sending three to jail and three to the hospital), smashed more than 100 moonshine stills and once hopped onto the hood of a speeding car, smashing through a side window and subduing the man who was trying to run him down. He died in 1974 when his Corvette veered off the road, hit an embankment and burst into flames. His amazing story became the subject of the original movie and two sequels, an early '80s TV series and a 2004 Hollywood remake starring wrestler-turned-actor The Rock.

America's Favorite Fishing Buddy

For Outing show
since 1968

Curran • Dance • outdoors

Bill Dance, one of the world's most famous fishermen, always planned to be a doctor like his father, grandfather and three other generations of Dances.

Then, driving home one night while enrolled in medical school in Memphis, Tenn., in the early 1960s, he came upon a horrific motorcycle crash. The grisly encounter changed his life.

"I was the first person on the scene," Dance recalls. "It was very traumatic and it affected me deeply. At that moment I knew I didn't want to be a doctor anymore."

What did he want to be?

"Well," says Dance in his down-home Southern drawl, "I'd always loved to fish."

And fish he did. He began competing—and winning—in bass tournaments and landed a lure manufacturer for a sponsor. The sponsor encouraged Dance to start a TV show to help promote the product. Bill Dance Outdoors premiered on a Memphis ABC affiliate in 1968 and has been growing in popularity ever since. Today the show is televised nationwide and its host has achieved celebrity status among the nation's 45 million anglers.

Atop an empire

From his home and production studio in Collierville, Tenn. (pop. 31,872), near Memphis, Dance oversees a fishing empire that includes his TV show, tackle endorsements, how-to seminars, his own magazine and a series of popular "blooper" videos, hilarious, self-deprecating outtakes from his shows.

Dance helps edit an episode in his production studio...

"I've got to be careful not to let this job turn into work," he jokes.

Dance, 67, and his three-man camera crew may spend as much as four days fishing and filming to get the 25 minutes of edited footage necessary for each of his 26 shows each year. The half-hour programs are broadcast on the Versus network (formerly the Outdoor Life Network) and the original shows are then rerun year-round. Each episode features Dance catching fish and chatting all the while as he explains how he does it. He talks to the viewers, to himself, and even to the fish. "C'mon in here, big boy. Easy, now. Man, what a belly on you! See ya..." All his catches are released.

"Bill has a special knack for connecting with his viewers," says Tony Mack, Dance's TV producer for 36 years. "It's hard to explain, but whatever he does, it works. People love it."

and endorsements. "Bill's never met a stranger, whether it's at some rural little boat dock or at a big outdoor show in Las Vegas. And it's genuine; he likes people, and people like him. That's the key to his success."

No trophies for "top fishing show" or "America's most-watched outdoors program" adorn his office—mainly because no one in Dance's organization has ever pursued such designations. "The only 'award' we care about," says producer Mack, "is seeing the show grow from one small local station to being carried in every state with 18 million viewers."

"I'm truly amazed by it all," Dance says. "I've been very fortunate and very blessed to be able to make a living doing something I love."

A knack for fishing

What age weakens, you can help STRENGTHEN.

ACT NOW WITH ACTONEL TO HELP KEEP BONES STRONG.

(risedronate sodium tablets)

• 1 out of 2 women over 50 will suffer a fracture in her lifetime due to osteoporosis.* That's why if you're postmenopausal you should talk to your doctor about diet, exercise, ACTONEL and osteoporosis. Prescription ACTONEL is proven to not only help prevent bone loss but can also help increase bone strength. And strong bones help protect against fracture. Help protect what's yours with ACTONEL.

ACTONEL is a prescription medication to treat and prevent postmenopausal osteoporosis. Some risk factors for osteoporosis include Caucasian or Asian race, family history, small frame or smoking.

You should not take ACTONEL if you are allergic to any of the ingredients, if you have low blood calcium (hypocalcemia), have kidneys that work poorly, or cannot stand or sit upright for 30 minutes. Stop taking ACTONEL and tell your doctor if you experience difficult or painful swallowing, chest pain, or severe or continuing heartburn, as these may be signs of serious upper digestive problems. Follow dosing instructions carefully to lower the chance of these events occurring. Side effects are generally mild or moderate and may include back, muscle, bone or joint pain, stomach pain or upset, or constipation. Contact your doctor if symptoms are severe. Tell all of your healthcare providers, including your dentist, about all the medicines that you take. If you have questions, talk to your doctor.

*Based on the 2004 Report of the Surgeon General on Bone Health and Osteoporosis.

You are encouraged to report negative side effects of prescription drugs to the FDA. Visit www.fda.gov/medwatch, or call 1-800-FDA-1088. Please see ACTONEL patient information on the following page.

1-877-ACTONEL

www.Actonel.com

Patient Information: ACTONEL® (AK-toh-nel) Tablets

ACTONEL (risedronate sodium tablets) 5 mg, ACTONEL (risedronate sodium tablets) 35 mg, and ACTONEL (risedronate sodium tablets) 75 mg for Osteoporosis. Read this information carefully before you start to use your medicine. Read the information you get every time you get more medicine. There may be new information. This information does not take the place of talking with your health care provider about your medical condition or your treatment. If you have any questions or are not sure about something, ask your health care provider or pharmacist.

What is the most important information I should know about ACTONEL?

ACTONEL may cause problems in your stomach and esophagus (the tube that connects the mouth and the stomach), such as trouble swallowing (dysphagia), heartburn (esophagitis), and ulcers. You might feel pain in your bones, joints, or muscles. (See "What are the Possible Side Effects of ACTONEL?") You must follow the instructions exactly for ACTONEL to work and to lower the chance of serious side effects. (See "How should I take ACTONEL?").

What is ACTONEL?

ACTONEL is a prescription medicine used:

- to prevent and treat osteoporosis in postmenopausal women (See "What is Osteoporosis?")
- to increase bone mass in men with osteoporosis
- to prevent and treat osteoporosis in men and women that is caused by treatment with steroid medicines such as prednisone
- to treat Paget's disease of bone in men and women. The treatment for Paget's disease is very different than for osteoporosis and uses a different type of ACTONEL. This leaflet does not cover using ACTONEL for Paget's disease. If you have Paget's disease, ask your health care provider how to use ACTONEL.

ACTONEL may reverse bone loss by stopping more loss of bone and increasing bone strength in most people who take it, even though they won't be able to see or feel a difference. ACTONEL helps lower the risk of breaking bones (fractures). Your health care provider may measure the thickness (density) of your bones or do other tests to check your progress.

See the end of this leaflet for information about osteoporosis.

Who should not take ACTONEL?

Do not take ACTONEL if you:

- have low blood calcium (hypocalcemia)
- cannot sit or stand up for 30 minutes
- have kidneys that work poorly
- have an allergy to ACTONEL. The active ingredient in ACTONEL is risedronate sodium. (See the end of this leaflet for a list of all the ingredients in ACTONEL.)

Tell your doctor before using ACTONEL if:

- you are pregnant or may become pregnant. We do not know if ACTONEL can harm your unborn child.
- you are breast-feeding or plan to breast-feed. We do not know if ACTONEL can pass through your milk and if it can harm your baby.
- you have kidney problems. ACTONEL may not be right for you.

Tell your doctor about all the medicines you take, including prescription and non-prescription medicines, vitamins and herbal supplements.

ACTONEL can interact with other medicines. Keep a list of all the medicines you take. Show it to all your health care providers including your dentist and pharmacist, each time you get a new medicine.

How should I take ACTONEL?

The following instructions are for ACTONEL 5 mg (daily), ACTONEL 35 mg (Once-a-Week), and ACTONEL 75 mg (Two Consecutive Days each Month):

- Take ACTONEL first thing in the morning before you eat or drink anything except plain water.
- Take ACTONEL while you are sitting up or standing.
- Take ACTONEL with 6 to 8 ounces (about 1 cup) of plain water. Do not take it with any other drink besides plain water. Do not take it with coffee, tea, juice, milk, or other dairy drinks.
- Swallow ACTONEL whole. Do not chew the tablet or keep it in your mouth to melt or dissolve.
- After taking ACTONEL you must wait at least 30 minutes BEFORE:
  - lying down. You may sit, stand, or do normal activities like read the newspaper or take a walk.
  - eating or drinking anything except plain water.
  - taking vitamins, calcium, or antacids. Take vitamins, calcium, and antacids at a different time of the day from when you take ACTONEL.

- Keep taking ACTONEL for as long as your health care provider tells you.
- For ACTONEL to treat your osteoporosis or keep you from getting osteoporosis, you have to take it exactly as prescribed.
- Your health care provider may tell you to take calcium and vitamin D supplements and to exercise.

What is my ACTONEL schedule?

If your doctor has prescribed ACTONEL 5 mg daily (a yellow tablet):

- Take 1 ACTONEL 5 mg tablet every day in the morning.
- If you miss a dose of your ACTONEL 5 mg in the morning, do not take it later in the day. Take only 1 ACTONEL 5 mg tablet the next morning and continue your usual schedule of 1 tablet a day. Do not take 2 tablets on the same day.

If your doctor has prescribed ACTONEL 35 mg Once-a-Week (an orange tablet):

- Choose 1 day of the week that you will remember and that best fits your schedule to take your ACTONEL 35 mg. Every week, take 1 ACTONEL 35 mg tablet in the morning on your chosen day.
- If you miss a dose of your ACTONEL 35 mg in the morning, do not take it later in the day. Take only 1 ACTONEL 35 mg tablet the next morning and continue your usual schedule of 1 tablet on your chosen day of the week. Do not take 2 tablets on the same day.

If your doctor has prescribed ACTONEL 75 mg Two Consecutive Days each Month (a pink tablet):

- Choose 2 days in a row during the month that best fits your schedule and that you will remember to take your ACTONEL 75 mg. Take 1 ACTONEL 75 mg tablet in the morning of your first chosen day. Take the second tablet in the morning of the following day. ACTONEL 75 mg tablets should be taken on the same two consecutive days each month.
- If you miss one or both tablets of your dose of ACTONEL 75 mg in the morning, do not take it later in the day. If the next month's scheduled doses are more than 7 days away do the following: If both tablets were missed, take the first ACTONEL 75 mg tablet on the morning after the day it is remembered and the second tablet on the next consecutive morning. If only one tablet is missed, take the missed tablet on the morning after the day it is remembered. You should then continue your usual schedule of ACTONEL 75 mg on two consecutive days each month. Do not take more than two 75 mg tablets within 7 days. If the next month's scheduled doses are 1 to 7 days away, you should wait until next month's scheduled doses and then resume taking ACTONEL 75 mg on two consecutive days each month as originally scheduled.
- If you are not sure what to do if you miss a dose, contact your health care provider who will be able to advise you.

What should I avoid while taking ACTONEL?

- Do not eat or drink anything except water before you take ACTONEL and for at least 30 minutes after you take it.
- Do not lie down for at least 30 minutes after you take ACTONEL.
- Foods and some vitamin supplements and medicines can stop your body from absorbing (using) ACTONEL. Therefore, do not take anything other than plain water at or near the time you take ACTONEL. (See "How should I take ACTONEL?")

What are the possible side effects of ACTONEL?

Stop taking ACTONEL and tell your health care provider right away if:

- swallowing is difficult or painful
- you have chest pain
- you have very bad heartburn or it doesn't get better

ACTONEL may cause:

- pain or trouble swallowing (dysphagia)
- heartburn (esophagitis)
- ulcers in your stomach and esophagus (the tube that connects the mouth and the stomach)
- pain in bones, joints or muscles, sometimes severe. Pain may start as soon as one day or up to several months after starting ACTONEL.

The most common side effects with ACTONEL include back pain, joint pain, upset stomach, abdominal (stomach area) pain, constipation, diarrhea, gas, and headache. Tell your health care provider if you have pain or discomfort in your stomach or esophagus. Rarely, severe skin reactions may occur. Patients may get allergic reactions such as rash, hives, or in rare cases, swelling that can be of the face, lips, tongue, or throat, which may cause trouble breathing or swallowing.

In rare cases, patients taking ACTONEL may get eye inflammation, usually with pain, redness and sensitivity to light.

Rarely, patients had jaw problems associated with delayed healing and infection, often following tooth-extraction.

These are not all the possible side effects of ACTONEL. You can ask your health care provider or pharmacist about other side effects. Any time you have a medical problem you think may be from ACTONEL, talk to your doctor.

What is osteoporosis?

Osteoporosis is a disease that causes bones to become thinner. Thin bones can break easily. Most people think of their bones as being solid like a rock. Actually, bone is living tissue, just like other parts of the body—your heart, brain, or skin, for example. Bone just happens to be a harder type of tissue. Bone is always changing. Your body keeps your bones strong and healthy by replacing old bone with new bone.

Osteoporosis causes the body to remove more bone than it replaces. This means that bones get weaker. Weak bones are more likely to break. Osteoporosis is a bone disease that is quite common, especially in older women. However, young people and men can develop osteoporosis, too. Osteoporosis can be prevented, and with proper therapy it can be treated.

How can osteoporosis affect me?

- You may not have any pain or other symptoms when osteoporosis begins.
- You are more likely to break (fracture) a bone especially if you fall because osteoporosis makes your bones weaker. You are most likely to break a bone in your back (spine), wrist, or hip.
- You may "shrink" (get shorter).
- You may get a "hump" (curve) in your back.
- You may have bad back pain that makes you stop some activities.

Who is at risk for osteoporosis?

Many things put people at risk for osteoporosis. The following people have a higher chance of getting osteoporosis:

Women who:

- are going through or who are past menopause ("the change")
- are white (Caucasian) or Asian

People who:

- are thin
- have a family member with osteoporosis
- do not get enough calcium or vitamin D
- do not exercise
- smoke
- drink alcohol often
- take bone thinning medicines (like prednisone or other corticosteroids) for a long time

General information about ACTONEL:

Medicines are sometimes prescribed for conditions that are not mentioned in patient information leaflets. Do not use ACTONEL for a condition for which it was not prescribed. Do not give ACTONEL to other people, even if they have the same symptoms you have. It may harm them.

What if I have other questions about ACTONEL?

This leaflet summarizes the most important information about ACTONEL for osteoporosis. If you have more questions about ACTONEL, ask your health care provider or pharmacist. They can give you information written for health care professionals. For more information, call 1-877-ACTONEL (toll-free) or visit our website at www.actonel.com.

What are the ingredients of ACTONEL?

(pop. 5,740), with his grandfather. "I've always had a knack for fishing," Dance says. "I always had good luck."

"There are oodles of good fishermen and lots of TV fishing shows, but there's only one Bill Dance," says Jim Duckworth, a fishing guide and tackle manufacturer who often shares a boat with Dance. "What sets him above all the rest? It's his personality and his sense of humor. Bill loves to laugh—often at himself—and have fun. That comes across to his audience. He makes them feel like they are right there with him, laughing, joking and having a good time."

Dance fishes for every species, and films his shows at locations around the nation. At times he is forced to retreat to private waters.

"Bill has become such a celebrity that it's hard for him to film on public lakes," Duckworth explains. "As soon as word gets out that Bill Dance is there, he gets mobbed. He's that big of a celebrity. Don't misunderstand; Bill loves people, loves to socialize. But when he's filming his show, he has to get away from the crowds."

"He's got a magic touch," agrees John Sloan, veteran outdoors writer. "He's an expert fisherman and he likes to show other people how he does it. He genuinely wants folks to be able to go out and catch fish, just like he does. And he's so darn friendly while he's doing it. There's not a pretentious bone in his body. Everybody who knows Bill likes him. In his business there's often some professional jealousy, but not in Bill's case. Everybody loves the guy."

"I just be myself," says Dance, whose Outdoors outtakes

Dance and wife Dianne have been married for 47 years. include shots of him falling off a boat dock, taking a tumble out of his boat and banging his shin on a trailer hitch—pratfalls and blunders to which every fisherman can relate. "I don't put on airs," he says. "I don't try to be slick and fancy. If you fake it, folks will see right through it. Who they see is who I am."

His best catch

Dance attributes his success to the support of his wife, Dianne, whom he met on a blind date when his original date canceled. They've been married 47 years and have four grown children, including Bill Jr. and Patrick, who help run their dad's outdoors productions from Dance's home and a 5,000-square-foot office next door.

"Back when I was struggling to get started, I had her complete support," Dance says of his wife. "Think about it: A husband comes home one day and says, 'Honey, I've decided to drop everything and try to make a career out of fishing.' How many wives would say, 'OK, I'm behind you?' Well, mine did."

Dance teasingly describes Dianne as "the best catch I ever made." The wife of the world's most famous fisherman doesn't fish.

"I just never got into it," she says, then laughs. "Bill fishes enough for all of us."

Dianne says she "never doubted for a minute" that her husband would be successful with his fishing enterprise.

"I knew it intuitively," she says. "He has a knack for charming viewers, exactly as he charmed me almost 50 years ago."

Dance, like most anglers, believes that luck counts, in life as well as in fishing.

"As I look back over my life and my career, I'm convinced that things happen for a reason, even if we don't understand those reasons at the time," he says. "What if I hadn't come up on that motorcycle wreck that night? I'd probably be a doctor today. What if my original date hadn't backed out that time? I wouldn't have met Dianne. Funny how things work out, ain't it? Call it fate or whatever, I've been very blessed."

What does the future hold for a man who is contentedly perched atop the pinnacle of his profession?

"I'm like every other fisherman," Dance says. "I always want to catch just one more." ★

Did You Know... Tidbits

COLORADO—Theodore Maiman, who graduated with a degree in engineering physics from the University of Colorado in Boulder, is known for creating the first working laser in 1960. Maiman was inducted into the National Inventors Hall of Fame in 1984. He died in May 2007.

The Colorado hairstreak butterfly was designated the official state insect in 1996, mainly through lobbying by fourth-grade pupils from Wheeling Elementary School in Aurora.

MONTANA—The D.J. and Frances Maclay Ranch, homesteaded in 1880, is the only property between Missoula (pop. 57,053) and Hamilton (pop. 3,705) that spans the entire Bitterroot Valley, providing a corridor for wildlife between the Bitterroot and Sapphire mountains. The 3,082-acre ranch was sold last year and renamed the Sapphire Ranch.

NEW MEXICO—Chilili's (pop. 113) cemetery contains dozens of tombstones made of tin sheets mounted on marble pedestals. The tin art is the work of Horace McAfee, who punched names, dates and musings about the afterlife in the metal sheets with a nail. McAfee also installed tin cutouts of angels to watch over the graves.

Flutist Robert Mirabal of Taos Pueblo (pop. 1,264) was presented the Native American Album of the Year award at the 50th Grammy Awards last February. The winning album is titled Johnny Whitehorse Totemic Flute Chants and represents Mirabal's second Grammy in three years.

OKLAHOMA—Stargazers take a shine to Kenton, where each fall astronomers attend the Okie-Tex Star Party in nearby Camp Billy Joe. Located in the sparsely populated Black Mesa area of the Oklahoma Panhandle in Cimarron County (pop. 3,148), the town is billed as having some of the darkest skies in North America.

Jesse Chisholm, for whom the Chisholm Trail was named, is buried near Geary (pop. 1,258). Chisholm, a guide, interpreter and peacemaker, operated several trading posts and his freighting route also was used as a cattle trail. He died in 1868 from food poisoning after eating bear meat cooked in a copper kettle.

TEXAS—U.S. Secretary of Education Margaret Spellings is the first mother of school-aged children to serve in that position. She was born in 1957 in Michigan, and grew up in Houston where she attended public schools.

In 2007, Colt Knost of Pilot Point (pop. 3,538) became the second golfer to win both the U.S. Amateur Public Links and the U.S. Amateur championship titles in the same year. A graduate of Southern Methodist University in Dallas, Knost was selected as Conference USA's Golfer of the Year and made the cut in the PGA Tour's EDS Byron Nelson Championship.

WYOMING—Register Cliff State Historic Site near Guernsey (pop. 1,147) is a sandstone cliff where pioneers traveling west on the Oregon Trail carved their names. Many of the inscriptions were made in the mid-1800s and still are visible today.

Because of its position on the Oregon Trail, Guernsey also is known as the "Hub of the Oregon Trail" and the "emigrants' washtub" because pioneers on the trail stopped at nearby Warm Springs to bathe and wash their clothes. ★

Bill's Lucky Cap

For 40 years, Bill Dance's trademark has been his orange and white University of Tennessee cap. He's always filmed or photographed wearing it.

"Doug Dickey, who was football coach at UT in the late 1960s, called me one day and said he was recruiting a player in Georgia who loved to fish, and was a big fan of mine," Dance recalls. "He asked if I'd drop the kid a note and put in a good word for UT. I did, and a few days later I got a couple of UT caps in the mail from Dickey."

"I was wearing one of the caps a little later when I won a big tournament. I was photographed in the cap, so I wore it on my next TV show. Before I knew it, it had become part of my identity. I've been wearing a UT cap ever since."

Is it his lucky charm?

"Nah, I'm not a bit superstitious," Dance says with a chuckle. "Let's just say if something's working, I like to stick with it."

PREPARING TO MOVE

Moving to a new home is a big undertaking, whether you're relocating across country or across town. To help ensure that your moving day goes smoothly and that you remain relatively stress-free, begin planning several weeks in advance.

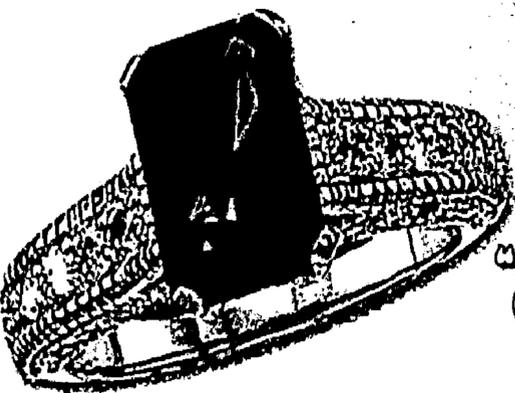

"The biggest mistake you can make when moving is a lack of preparation," says Doug Wilson, a designer, moving expert and host of the TLC program Moving Up. "Just throwing it all together is not an option. Scrambling at the last minute is very stressful. You need to come up with a system that makes sense."

Sort & pack

Hiring a moving company and sorting and packing your belongings are equally important tasks. You'll want to choose and schedule a mover as soon as possible. Likewise, when it comes to packing, the earlier you begin, the better.

"Start with sorting and packing your seasonal things, the stuff you already know you won't need between now and the move, then work toward the present," Wilson says.

To make the sorting process easier, divide your belongings among five piles: things you want, things family members might want, items to donate, items to sell, and things to throw away, suggests Lynn Falwell, co-owner of It's Your Move, a Natick, Mass.-based company that specializes in moving senior citizens.

"Choose a day for a yard sale, and then have family come get what they want before that date," Falwell says.

Wilson advises making a floor plan of your new home, with a number for each room, then labeling packed boxes accordingly. "This way you won't be asked where each box goes a million times, and you won't find yourself blocking passages to rooms."

Attention to details

Make a checklist of the things you need to do during the week leading up to the move, says residential moving expert Lou Gonzalez of Molloy Bros. Moving & Storage, in Old Bethpage, N.Y. These include:

- Defrosting the refrigerator
- Disposing of perishable food
- Putting a copy of important documents in a file box in your car
- Transferring prescriptions to a pharmacy in your new area
- Filing change of address cards
- Packing enough clean clothes and toiletries for the first few days in your new home

You also need to prepare for the emotional side of the move. "If you have children, tell the kids about the move as early as possible and be enthusiastic," Wilson says. He suggests having a party before moving day to celebrate friendships and say goodbye in style. You also could make a photo album of people and places from your old neighborhood that the family can enjoy after you're settled in the new home.

If you're relocating to a new town, consider scheduling a night off. Wilson suggests staying in a hotel room the first night in your new town. "Try to work a relaxing night away from your new house into your moving budget," he says. "Make it a mini-vacation away from all the stress and chaos that goes along with a move. Then you'll be refreshed before tackling the big job of unpacking and settling in." ★

DISHES FOR OUTDOOR DINING

Eating outdoors makes everyone's appetite a bit keener. Food seems to taste better in the open air, especially when you use garden-fresh produce, such as corn and tomatoes. This week, American Profile offers four recipes perfect for picnics and other outdoor meals.

Corn stars in the recipes sent in by Mickey Carlucci of Peralta, N.M., and Ellen Russell of LeMars, Iowa. Carlucci's Corn Scallop uses canned cream corn and whole kernel corn, but when fresh corn is available, try substituting fresh kernels for the canned whole kernel variety.

Tomatoes take center stage in Carole Van Cleave's Fresh Tomato Pie. "This is especially good in the summer with fresh garden tomatoes," says the Concord, N.C., resident.

Vicki Wilder, of Englewood, Fla., also uses fresh garden tomatoes in her Lebanese Summer Salad. The salad includes bulgur wheat, which imparts a nutty flavor. If you can't find bulgur wheat, use cracked wheat or couscous to make this dish.

As always, American Profile looks forward to receiving your recipes and sharing them with our readers. To submit a recipe of your own, send it, along with the story behind it and a color photograph of yourself, to: Hometown Recipes, American Profile, 341 Cool Springs Blvd., Suite 400, Franklin, TN 37067. Please note that recipes and photos will not be returned. ★

LOSING WEIGHT BUT STILL HAVE BELLY BULGE?

Getting rid of stubborn belly fat takes more than diet and exercise... Popular "feel-good" pill may be solution.

Tiffany Strobel

You diet... you exercise... you're popping the latest diet pill... and... you're even losing weight. But take a look in the mirror... you still have that unsightly belly bulge. Twenty pounds lighter and you still look... fat! How in the world can that be possible?

Excess tummy flab may not be your fault. That's the startling conclusion reached by scientists who discovered the likely cause of stubborn belly fat.

Over the past five years, the most popular "Belly Fat" pill has been Relacore® (from the Carter-Reed Company™). Relacore has sold more than 12.7 million bottles worldwide and is affectionately called "America's #1 Selling 'Belly Fat' Pill." Relacore has a great track record... and it wouldn't be America's #1 selling "Belly Fat" pill five years running if people didn't love it.

Let's face it, you not only want to lose weight, you want to look good... and looking good means a thinner waist and flatter tummy.

So if you're ready to go on a diet, or if you're already losing weight and having a hard time getting rid of your stubborn belly bulge, try this exceptional tummy-flattening, weight-control "adjunct," Relacore.

As they say in all the TV ads...

"It's easy... you'll love it."

ORDER NOW!
or visit www.Relacore.com
RELACORE

As it turns out, the same diet that's helping you lose weight might actually be causing you to retain figure-destroying belly fat. That's because dieting is stressful. You worry about what to eat... when to eat... how much to eat. All that worry leads to "diet stress."

Take The Excess Belly Fat Test!

- Do you tend to retain belly fat even when you lose weight?
- Does dieting make you stressed out and anxious?
- Are you accumulating belly fat that just won't go away?
- Do you overeat in response to daily stress?
- Do you suffer "mid-afternoon fatigue" when dieting?
- Do you have difficulty falling asleep at night when dieting?

If you answered "Yes" to one or more questions, your extra belly fat might be due to "diet stress."

And, as we all know by now, stress increases that nasty little stress hormone, cortisol, and cortisol increases belly fat. That's why you can go on a diet, lose weight, but still look thick around the middle.

So what are we to do? Millions of women are turning to weight-control adjuncts or "add-ons." These so-called adjuncts are not really diet pills in the true sense of the word. Instead, they help traditional diet and exercise programs reduce tummy bulge by controlling the cortisol increase generated by diet-related stress and anxiety... the same stress and anxiety that can lead to stubborn belly fat retention

REMEMBER: Your satisfaction is 100% guaranteed. If for any reason you are not totally satisfied with the power of Relacore, simply return the empty container within 30 days for a full, prompt, no-questions-asked refund!
