House burns;
forest spared

At one point, flames were 'rocking and rolling through the tree tops'

DIANNE STALLINGS
dstallings@ruidosonews.com

Although a home in Raven Ridge was destroyed Tuesday, firefighters were able to contain the flames to one acre of wildland and bring the blaze under control in about one hour.

A quick response and a reduction of forest fuel by property owners helped the firefighters contain the fire.

The rental house in the upper end of Cedar Creek Drive couldn't be saved, but about 40 firefighters from the Bonito Volunteer Fire Department, the U.S. Forest Service and the Ruidoso Fire Department prevented the fire from spreading to nearby homes as it raced up the mountain behind the house, fueled by wind.

As one of the first firefighters on-scene about 9:10 a.m., Bonito Assistant Chief Robbie Hall called for backup, saying the fire was "rocking and rolling through the tree tops."

As a precaution, an officer went door-to-door to warn people in surrounding homes an evacuation might be needed. But by 10:10 a.m., forward progress was stopped, although some flames still were on the ground.

The state fire marshal was onsite investigating the cause of the fire, said Kathryn Minter, public information officer for Bonito.

Two trucks each responded from Ruidoso and the Forest Service, and six from Bonito, she said. Although an emergency medical services vehicle and crew stood by, no one was injured and only two firefighters were checked for exhaustion. Two people reportedly were in the house at the time of the fire.

Lincoln County Emergency Services Coordinator Travis Atwell confirmed that the homeowner's lot and the property behind it were treated to reduce fuel for wildfire by thinning trees, eliminating lower branches and ground cover.

"That really helped us, even though the fire went up the hill," Minter said.

Village increases classification to 'very high fire danger'

dstallings@ruidosonews.com

Lack of rain and consistent winds wicking the moisture that remains in forest vegetation moved the village of Ruidoso into the "Very High fire danger" classification this week.

Based on observations and measurements collected from 14 U.S. Forest Service automated weather stations, the Smokey Bear Ranger District readings reached an Energy Release Component of more than 75, the break point to move into Very High fire danger.

In a memorandum, Village Fire Chief Tom Gavin noted the district reached 76 Monday and more wind could aggravate drying conditions and push the rating to 79 ERC, which is an indicator of how a fire will burn and measures the available energy at the front of a fire.

"The Fire Severity Plan approved by the Village last year prohibits us from doing any burning in Very High or Extreme fire danger," Gavin reminded. "I doubt that we will get another window to burn before monsoons. I will not try to burn again until we get snow or the monsoons set in. As of today, the clock starts ticking towards fire restrictions. If we stay in Very High fire danger for nine more days, we will begin to put restrictions in place."

Ruidoso and the Ruidoso Downs fire departments use the USFS Smokey Bear district's readings from its RAWs, because it is the closest to the village and is at the same elevation.

But the fire danger level posted on the sign by the Smokey Bear district headquarters entrance to the village reflects the danger for the entire forest, not just the area around the village.

"That's why the fire danger level may be very, very different than our actual fire danger here in Ruidoso," Gavin said. "Their rating also reflects fire danger at elevations much lower than (Ruidoso), such as at Mayhill. The USFS rating posted in front of the Smokey Bear Ranger Station is an average of all their stations on the forest, not just at Smokey Bear."

Many factors are used to measure the level of fire hazard and the formula is fairly complex, he said.

"The important thing for the public to know is that our fire restrictions are driven by mathematical indices, not seat of the pants guesses," Gavin said.

County approves Stone Mountain – with conditions

dstallings@ruidosonews.com

Under time pressure to take action, Lincoln County commissioners voted 3-2 Tuesday to approve the preliminary plat for a 61-acre Stone Mountain subdivision above Eagle Creek. They attached eight conditions.

Twenty-two lots are planned by H&M Development LLC, ranging in size from 2 acres to 5.6 acres. Attorney Mike Runnels, agent for the developer that includes R.D. Hubbard as a principal, said he tried unsuccessfully more than a year ago to convince the developer to reduce the number of lots and increase their sizes.

County Attorney Alan Morel said commissioners were required to take action within a time frame and if they denied the preliminary plat, denied the rules in the 2006 subdivision ordinance with which the developer has not complied. "You can't kick it down the road," he told commissioners.

The application was filed under an older ordinance, which was amended last year with stiffer requirements. One item that must be included in the disclosure statement to prospective buyers is the caution that as a result of the Mimbres Water Basin lawsuit, the Office of the State Engineer may not issue permits for domestic wells in the future, or the amount of water allowed to be pumped from a domestic well may be reduced.

Stone Mountain proposes buyers use shared domestic wells, individual drainage structures and liquid waste disposal systems for each lot. The developer is not putting in that type of utility infrastructure.

Commissioner Don Wilhams offered the motion to approve the preliminary plat, the official layout of the development, with the eight conditions recommended by members of the county Planning Commission.

"If I owned that mountain, I definitely wouldn't subdivide it, but the attorney is right, we must follow the ordinance," said Commissioner Dave Parks. The motion passed with Commissioners Jackie Powell and Eileen Lovelace Sedillo voting against. Sedillo said while she recognized why the majority voted for approval, "For the health, safety and welfare of our residents in the area, I had to vote against."

Parks said he hoped to see the developer accept the offer of Buck Buchanan, who owns eight acres below the proposed subdivision. Buchanan said he would contribute a portion of his land for a drainage structure such as a detention pond that could alleviate the runoff impact on himself and other neighbors. To date, Buchanan said the offer was ignored.

"I'm disappointed they didn't consider larger tracts," Commission Chairman Tom Battin said. "That would have alleviated

OUR OPINION

Dialing for dollars

Hands reach out to Santa Fe, Washington

The numbers and the assortment of agencies and governmental layers involved are enough to make your head swirl and your eyes glaze over.

Amid the federal stimulus package and the annual session of the New Mexico State Legislature, Ruidoso, not to mention neighboring entities, awaits its fate on a smorgasbord of funding requests and legislative decisions. At stake are a few million bucks here and a several hundred thousand dollars there; a request here and a priority list there, all filtered through state and federal bureaucracies, various politicians, lobbyists, a few committees and even a court.

Right now, it's a waiting game for a system that takes taxpayers' money and sends it up the chain, where officials elected and not-so-elected decide how to parcel it back to the source — the people and their communities.

It's rather like groveling — not altogether pretty — and the fate of politicians, officials and municipalities rests on it.

Only now, in this economy, it's getting serious. It's survival of the fittest, smartest and best-connected. In the coming weeks and months, the answers will trickle in.

Overturning the last vestige of discrimination

The domestic partnership bill gained traction with surprising speed this year after defeats in years past.

The controversial measure would provide all the legal benefits married couples enjoy to unmarried couples, both homosexual and heterosexual, provided they file an application and pay a fee. New Mexico would join eight other states in recognizing domestic partnerships or civil unions.

Notice that churches are still free to determine which unions they will bless or not bless. And it's still not gay marriage.

Critics say it threatens and denigrates the traditional institution of marriage. This is one objection I just don't get. I've been in one of those traditional marriages for 20 years; the threats and challenges we faced on the marital path did not include gay people. They did include differences over money, work commitments and individual foibles — the usual stuff — and the occasional bout of insecurity.

On vacation recently, there was the attractive blonde in a tour group coming on to my husband. Now, that's a threat!

All those people who really want to protect marriage should pass some bills that would prohibit economic downturns, long work days and blondes making conversation.

But seriously, at the heart of objections to this and similar measures over the years is an assumption that being gay is a lifestyle choice. Let me offer my own family, again, as Exhibit A.

My youngest brother is gay; his three older brothers are straight. From the time he was little, we knew he was different. When scientists suggested in 1993 a genetic predisposition to homosexuality, it triggered a debate among scientists, therapists and clergy that continues still. To my family, it explained a lot, like the time he wanted a doll for Christmas. They gave him a Snoopy instead. He made little outfits to dress Snoopy. All his friends were girls.

More studies since then suggest our sexual orientation is hard-wired at birth. The Religious Right insists homosexuality is a product of environment, but that doesn't explain my father's children: four straight people and one gay, all raised the same way. Social conservatives believe this "weakness" can be corrected by therapy and prayer. To my family, we might as well pray for a cat to become a dog.

He is who he is. He's also bright, creative, funny, original and disciplined. He aspires to be a businessman like our dad.

That doesn't mean it's been easy. I once asked the next youngest brother, a football-playing guy's guy, "Did Dad go to his grave without knowing T. is gay?"

Long pause. "That explains why I spent so much time in high school fighting every time somebody said, 'Your brother's a queer,'" he said. He had suspected on some level but didn't know.

His surprise was mine, too. I'd left their state years earlier, so I missed a lot of family discussions, including the one they didn't have. Apparently, the family policy was: Don't ask, don't tell.

So I don't for a minute underestimate the sensitivities here. Still, I want our brother to find a stable relationship.

—And that's the other side of the coin. I know gay couples in long, committed partnerships — often longer than most traditional marriages.

In my neighborhood, a lesbian couple adopted two kids who might otherwise have spent their lives marooned in the state's foster system. They're good parents and good neighbors. Why should this couple be denied rights to hospital visitation, inheritance, property and health insurance?

The governor and lieutenant governor see the issue as a step forward in human rights. Lt. Gov. Diane Denish is unambiguous: Should the need arise, she will cast a vote to end a last vestige of discrimination.

It's the GOP's fault; no, the Democrats'

To the editor:

OUR COUNTRY IS IN dire economic straits. Every day brings reports of more job cuts. In just the past few weeks Microsoft cut 5,000 jobs, Caterpillar cut 20,000 jobs, Sprint/Nextel cut 8,000 jobs, Pfizer Drug Company cut 8,000 jobs and The Home Depot cut 7,000 jobs.

And these are in addition to the tens of thousands of jobs already lost in the auto, banking, manufacturing and retail sectors.

The unemployment rate is 7.2 percent and rising, while many employed people are only working part time. The American economy has lost 2.59 million jobs since the recession began. Everyone knows how bad things are and most of us realize that it will get much worse before it gets better.

President Obama has a stimulus program ready because he knows that Americans need help right now. Yet the Republicans won't support a program that will create jobs and help middle-class Americans because it doesn't have enough tax cuts to please them.

Excuse me, but didn't we have eight years of tax cuts under Bush and his Republican Congressional majority (until 2006)? Did that work? Weren't we told by the Republicans that lax breaks for the wealthy would trickle down and help the rest of us? Did that work?

Weren't we told by Bush and Hank Paulson, his Treasury Secretary, that giving billions to the Wall Street bankers, without any conditions attached to the money, would bail us out? Did that happen?

I cannot believe that the Republicans are still stuck on tax cuts alone. Don't they have any new ideas? Don't they have any sense of urgency to get a stimulus package passed so that we can create new jobs?

Haven't they listened to the majority of economic experts who say that tax cuts are the least-effective way to stimulate the economy?

John Boehner, the Republican House leader, says that the Republican party does not want to be "The party of No." He says they do have their own ideas to stimulate the economy and that he will reveal them "in a few months." Sorry, but a few months may be too late.

It is already way too late for the millions of Americans who have lost their jobs. After all, what good is a tax cut if you don't have a job? I'd much rather have a job so that I have the confidence to spend money at the local stores and pay my mortgage. An opposition party that only votes no and has no alternatives of their own is not what America needs.

Most Americans want the government to help us now and that means both parties have to work together to get economic relief to the people.

Damage done

To the editor:

RAHM EMANUEL, White House Chief of Staff, earlier said that "a crisis should not be wasted." He and our president must now be gloating.

For he, our president and the liberal Congress have now achieved their long-term goal of changing our capitalistic system to a democratic socialist system based on the European model of cradle-to-grave socialism.

I can imagine Rahm Emanuel and our president agreeing that, with fear, intimidation, partisanship and obfuscation, and a very liberal Congress, they know it will be extremely difficult for the U.S. to undo the damage they have done and to return this country to its capitalist roots.

They must be elated in that they accomplished this in less than 60 days.

Don Mathews

Big Brother's reach

To the editor:

THE NATIONAL Economic Council Director Lawrence Summers, when speaking on the $800 billion stimulus package stated, "We're focusing on the pie and not the crumbs."

Red Flag! Beware of the crumbs. When someone says that they are ignoring the crumbs which fall upon the floor, start sweeping as hard as you can, because old magic ringers is going to start juggling the Golden Globes before our eyes. Oops, almost dropped one, two, three, four. Does he possess fumbitis or was it the motion of quick hands?

The use of detractors such as Tom Daschle, Nancy Killefer, Timothy Geithner and Bill Richardson allows the smoke and mirrors act to move swiftly ahead.

Be warned! To survive this class act, the audience must stay sober and not partake of the intoxicating illusion of something for nothing smooth financial drink which will drop us into the deep dark hole of limbo.

Further, we also require a designated, sober, reflective and topnotch engineer to steer this trillion dollar runaway train onto solid and safe steel rails, not the golden strips which vanish into the night of the real peril of nothingness.

We need jobs, not socialistic handouts that builds dependency upon Big Brother. We must have a solid base upon which we can build a future for us and our families.

It is jobs, stupid. Work for an honorable man and woman enables them to stand tall and proud. Do not degrade us with a promise of a distant sunset but rather lift us up with a glorious raising sun.

ed most of the concern. We have amended the ordinance since to eliminate that problem. I'm very hopeful the development will be done in a way that is compatible with the neighborhood."

The subdivision falls within the extraterritorial zone, a one-mile district around the boundary of the village of Ruidoso. The village Planning and Zoning Commission recommended the village council deny the preliminary plat.

County Planner Curt Temple explained that the subdivision took a long time and many meetings to reach the county commission primarily because of an initial recommendation against it by the OSE and reviews by five other state agencies. "It took several months for the developer to come back with sufficient data for the OSE to change its position," he explained. Some drainage issues tied to the road and calculation errors had to be addressed after a review by Benchmark Engineering, Temple said.

Eight conditions

In the Jan. 7 motion by County Planning Commissioner Jennie Dorgan, the eight recommended conditions were:

- remediation of property to state forestry specifications before final plat approval, in compliance with Ruidoso forestry rules, if they apply.
- amend plans to reflect drainage structures needed to handle flows created by development.
- place a statement on the plat that it is illegal to change drainage to flow onto neighboring properties.
- amend the disclosure statement to reflect most building slopes are in excess of 15 percent.

• show excessive slopes on final plat.

• strike out the architectural control committee from being able to review septic system placement as stated in the restrictive covenants. Because of soils and slopes, septic may not be approved for sites by the state Environment Department.

• review of the proposed entrance by a traffic design engineer for safety and site distance requirements.

• the developer is to meet with owners in an adjoining subdivision before county commission approval of the final plat.

Runnels, who said he made up the name Stone Mountain, contended he is ready to comply or has complied with most of the eight points.

"Drainage structures are shown on the plat," he said. "We're willing to show excessive slopes, if excessive is defined," he said, adding he'll work with Morel and Temple on the wording. "Since the subdivision is within the ETZ, a site development plan will be required for construction and that requires that no additional runoff is produced going to other properties. That must be shown before a building permit is issued or anything is constructed. That provision will take care of any concerns about drainage."

As for placing wording about drainage runoff on the plat, that's not where it belongs, he contended.

"State law says you cannot place more water on neighbors," said Runnels, who is an attorney. "We have no objection to putting the wording in the disclosure statement. It's not a plat issue. It's a disclosure issue."

As for the entrance, he walked the road with the county road superintendent for the best entry point and sight line, but, "We could have engineering done. I don't know what it would accomplish. The way to handle it is with signage and a 'lower speed limit.'"

He contended the developer tried to alleviate all of the concerns expressed by neighbors.

"We drilled test wells at the highest point of the property we could access and found water-bearing formations at 375 feet and another at 900 feet."

Powell said she disagreed with the limited view of water impact. Experts should be looking at an entire basin when a new subdivision is submitted for review, she said.

John Ayarbe, the hydrologist who handled the analysis for the developer, said in an Aug. 6, 2008 letter, the OSE rendered a positive opinion that the subdivider could furnish sufficient water. More data and some recalculations were required before the initial rejection was reversed, he said.

Powell said using data from 2005 wasn't accurate, because of significant climate change in the area.

Temple said a state Environment Department official rendered a standard letter saying that at the time of construction on a site, he would examine conditions and tell the owner what must be done, which could include an aerobic system, a holding tank or other options.

Soils are shallow and ill suited for development with solid rock lying underneath. Percolation tests would have to be run. The soils tend to be impervious and not "real stable," he said, adding, "But we don't address that in our ordinance." The state handles waste permits.

Runnels said most of the eight conditions are reasonable, he just has to work out the details.

Most attending meeting oppose proposed subdivision

dstallings@ruidosonews.com

Other than a few agents of the developer, when the Lincoln County Commission chairman asked for a show of hands last week of those who wanted to speak in support of Stone Mountain subdivision, no hands went up.

When he asked for those who oppose the 22 lot development on Eagle Creek, eight hands were raised.

Buck Buchanan led off. He complimented County Planner Curt Temple for being helpful, even though he disagreed with the planner's recommendation to approve based on the developer's compliance with requirements in the 2006 ordinance that was in place when plans were submitted.

"This is the last undeveloped piece of property in the Eagle Creek area because, in my opinion, it doesn't lend itself to development," Buchanan said. "It's very steep, and the two-acre (lot) size makes it more difficult. It is surrounded by long established neighbors with five acres and more." To be compatible, the lots should be a minimum of five acres, he contended.

Buchanan presented petitions signed by land owners around the development in opposition to the subdivision.

He offered three other reasons to deny the preliminary plat. They were lack of water, lack of drainage protection and limitations on handling of sewage. He pointed out that the soil rating was the lowest of four rankings. Using holding tanks for sewage is not a good solution when they would sit above residential property, he said.

But County Attorney Alan Morel said while not the best, at times holding tanks are the only measure that will work, if the state Environment Department allows them.

"We don't oppose this residential development, we understand the owner has a right to develop his property," Buchanan said. "I am a conservative capitalist and believe in growing the tax base and jobs in home building as an economy that gives to a village and county."

But Stone Mountain is wrong for the area on all four fronts - lot size, drainage, water shortages and waste system limitations, he contended.

"I had to build a 15,000 gallon water storage tank to service our home," he said. "Water is a big problem on Eagle Creek and if you allow 22 new straws into the reservoir, it will be a bigger problem."

The developer's agent, attorney Mike Runnels, said the disclosure statement puts buyers on notice the developer isn't building any waste systems and they will have to work with the NMED on where to build homes and what systems are needed.

In other comments, commissioners heard:

• Don Zimmerman, who owns seven acres across the street and told about significant retaining wall construction, drainage ditches and other expensive and time-consuming measures to control the fierce and destructive runoff from above his property and handle liquid waste. He's just beginning house construction two years later.

Commissioner Eileen Lovelace Sedillo asked, "Are you glad you did this?"

"Very much," Zimmerman replied, because of spectacular views. But he couldn't have solved the problems if he didn't own seven acres, he added.

• Larry Hill, who said he's lived in Eagle Creek Canyon 14 years and had his first well drilled for $6,000 in 1994 at 120 feet, producing 15 gpm. Eight years later when that water nearly dried up, he spent $8,000 to drill to 300 feet.

"I can't believe the county would approve that many parcels on that site," he said. "I don't think you are doing a service for people in Eagle Creek Canyon. If the lots were larger and there were fewer, it would help everyone."

• Bob Moeller, a member of the county Planning Commission, said he has a problem when professionals on one side back a project and those objecting have no evidence from professionals contradicting. "I feel as a planning commissioner, I have to go with experts, who are not refuted or contradicted." He added that many issues cannot be covered in a subdivision ordinance and would require a zoning ordinance. He urged more public participation when new language is drafted, instead of waiting until they are personally affected by development.

• Warren Hanson, who said he's owned property and fished in Eagle Creek since the 1960s, commented, "The professionals told us the water would always be here and it isn't."

• Larry Musser, who said when he bought three years ago, he was told he would have enough water for 40 years when he drilled to 300 feet. But at times, he isn't able to pump any water although he lives in the bottom of the valley on level land. "I have three storage tanks, 500 gallons each, that ran dry and the well now is producing less than 3 gpm," he told commissioners. Since he moved in, the creek has been dry except temporarily in the monsoons.

Even in the best area for septic, he hit rock at 6 inches and had to build a 300 foot long leach line, he said.

"Is this fair to people who spend a lot of money and then run into this?" he asked. "How many people read every word of a contract or disclosure statement? I just think it's not right. Most developers have more money for professionals. We have all our money in the property."

• Daryl Felder, who said he paid to create two retention ponds to reduce erosion on tracts he bought in 2002 in Gavilan Subdivision below Stone Mountain. "They worked well until an unauthorized road was built in 2005," he said. After that, runoff caused problems and obstructed a culvert. He pointed out the county planning commission split on its vote to approve, while the Ruidoso Planning & Zoning Commission unanimously recommended to deny.

"County planning commissioners suggested the developer contact neighboring property owners to work out solutions, but they never have," Felder said, saying the problems remain with water, septic, traffic, runoff and property devalued with smaller lots.

Runnels said the chairman of the county planning commission, who's familiar with the area, concluded no increased runoff would occur. "We have a drainage plan and at no point did anyone complain until the application for subdivision (was submitted) and they knew who owned the property, because they tried to buy it," he said. "The law in New Mexico says you cannot increase drainage onto a neighbor's property. We have made an honest effort to address these problems. We are in compliance."

The area, said Buck Buchanan, "doesn't lend itself to development."

Masks, Love and Pirates takes awards at Portales

Twenty-nine Ruidoso High School cast and crew members of The Red Feather Theatre Company's Masks, Love and Pirates received the highest awards at the 54th Annual Eastern New Mexico and West Texas Drama Festival at ENMU-Portales last week.

The play received Superior Recognition for original script (by student Hannah Kashmar), direction (by student Ellyn Koehler), stage combat (fencing routines, all choreographed by students) and costumes (students Jayli Johnson and Heather Ryen with assistance from parent Lisa Wenner). The four superior ratings constituted the highest number received by any of the 20 schools that participated in the festival.

During the four-day event,

The cast of Masks, Love and Pirates gathers before departing for the Eastern New Mexico and West Texas Drama Festival at Eastern New Mexico University.

Ruidoso's theatre students took advantage of a wide range of workshops, including comedic improvisation, various styles of dance, technical aspects of theatre and much more. Students, parents and supportive community members, including The Lincoln County Sheriff's Posse as a major contributor, made the trip to Portales possible.

A reprise of the student production was held Valentine's Day weekend, where Posse members cooked dinner for each of the shows. The Red Feather thanks them and all of those who attended the reprise and dinner. Approximately $4,300 was raised.

The Red Feather Theatre Company was previously scheduled to premiere their production of Too Many Doctors, based on The Imaginary Invalid by Moliere, starting Feb. 27, but it has been rescheduled to run March 13, 14 and 15 and May 8, 9 and 10. Also coming up are productions of W.B. Yeats' Cathleen Ni Houlihan and RHS Theatre Instructor Georgene Inks' Spinning Straw Into Gold. Reserve your tickets now for the March production. ## Gavilan students winners in poster contest

The Mescalero Responsible Gaming Program has been working with the Ruidoso Gavilan Canyon School students on gambling awareness, focusing on the negative affects that underage gambling can have on students and their families. In January, the Responsible Gaming Program had an Underage Gambling Awareness Poster Contest among the Gavilan Canyon Students. Fifteen posters were submitted. The students produced some awesome posters. The posters were judged and the top three students received gift cards for Hastings. Everyone received a participation gift card from Sonic. The top 12 posters will be created into a calendar for 2010.

The Gavilan Canyon School is

RHS principal resigns

Ruidoso Municipal School District Superintendent Bea Etta Harris confirmed, Tuesday, that Stephanie West resigned as Ruidoso High School principal, effective Thursday, Feb. 19. Harris said West resigned for personal reasons.

Harris named Stan Lyons, White Mountain Intermediate principal, as the acting principal at RHS on Friday.

Harris also moved WMI's physical education teacher, Jason Edmister, to the position of dean of students at WMI. A substitute has taken over PE at the school. Harris stated WMI students were sent home with letters to inform parents of the changes.

Local students named to ENMU Honor Roll

PORTALES - Two students from the Ruidoso area are attending Eastern New Mexico University and are among the 558 students on the 2008 fall semester Dean's Honor Roll.

Briana Harrington, music education, and Ananda Tomas, sociology, were named.

To be eligible for the Dean's Honor Roll students must complete a minimum of 15 hours for the semester and maintain a 3.25 GPA.

Seeking for your peaking

Today is the day to start living your dreams with a full-fledged commitment. The other day I was having a conversation with a friend and community leader about his life. I quickly began questioning his opinion on the development of society and the direction of where he saw the youth going.

He stated, "The issue is the inability to commit to a given position or direction." He felt that the commitment or the inability to stick to a specific direction was inhibiting the growth of today's society.

This was puzzling and troubling to me, due to the need for speed that has engulfed the population. People today jump like we were developed to be frogs, unattached to a greater understanding of our purpose and reason for being here as humans.

In my personal growth, I have come to understand that I'm merely a piece of the immaculate puzzle and that I must do my portion for the greater good of humanity.

TIM LUCERO

This perception has allowed me to treat others as meaningful assets to the community while accepting my purpose in life. By feeling this way, I have opened up the floodgates for opportunity through making every business, friendship and acquaintance a two-way street of giving and providing.

Being a giver of services is not easy, but is definitely rewarding. School teaches you to be giving so that you make friends. As we enter the business world, we learn we also must grow and develop with integrity within our own business.

Giving from your heart is a passionate transfer of a greater meaning. Giving in a two-way transaction is the smooth sailing of a quality relationship in any arrangement of life.

Life demands, in some form or fashion, trustworthy success and will stifle those who reach a point where they have passed their own personal development. So, while seeking your peak, always make a heart transfer before a financial transfer.

Kindergarten registration and child find on horizon

DAHN FREED
Child Find Coordinator
Region IX Education Cooperative

In the first five years of life, a child acquires the ability to communicate, socialize, problem solve and move independently. These developmental skills are the basis of learning that will continue throughout life. Monitoring children's development at an early age can play an important role in setting a solid foundation for successful student outcomes in school.

On April 2, area schools will begin kindergarten registration for children who will turn 5 by Sept. 1. In conjunction with kindergarten registration, schools will be conducting Child Find screenings for any child between birth to 5 years of age.

Child Find Developmental Screening is a federally funded program designed to identify children 3 to 21 who may have special needs. Child Find teams partner with school districts, health care providers, service organizations, childcare centers and individuals to conduct free developmental screenings in the community for all children under the age of 5. Child Find screenings are coordinated through Region IX Education Cooperative, an educational service agency supporting families, schools and communities. Region IX service areas include Capitan, Carrizozo, Cloudcroft, Corona, Hondo, Ruidoso and Tularosa.

Children may be referred to Child Find by anyone including parents, teachers, childcare providers, physicians, friends or family members. All initial screenings begin with a first level screening, the Ages and Stages Questionnaire. The Ages and Stages Questionnaire is a 30-item survey which is completed by interview with parents to assess their child in communication, gross motor, fine motor, problem solving, and personal/ social skills. Based on the survey and parent interview, recommendations can be given to families to support the child through community programs, home-based interventions provided by the family and other caregivers, or school-based interventions. The ASQ is also used by kindergarten teachers to assess pre-readiness abilities and development for kindergarten students.

Children suspected of having a delay or disability in a developmental area can be referred for a full and individual evaluation completed by trained professionals. Developmental needs for children can range from a mild speech delay to intensive cognitive and physical disabilities. If a developmental disability is determined, a child may be referred for early intervention services or special education. A team of individuals, including the parents, design a program plan for the child identified as having a disability.

Early intervention, based on the jointly developed program plan, can assist families in supporting the growth and development of their children. Services may be provided in multiple ways in multiple settings. For children ages birth to 3 years, Region IX Developmental Services provides intervention in Lincoln County. In Otero County, Zia Therapy provides the early intervention services. The local school districts provide support services for children who are 3, 4 and 5 years of age.

Each spring, Region IX coordinates developmental screenings with member school districts in conjunction with the schools' kindergarten registration. In addition to developmental screening, vision, hearing, nutrition and dental screens will be available. Public Health will be on-site, to provide immunizations for those presenting a vaccination record. In addition, Lions Club organizations will be conducting Kid Sight vision screenings.

Even if parents do not have developmental concerns for a child, the screening offers families the chance to monitor their child's development and a one-stop opportunity to screen other vital areas important to the health and development of children. Parents registering children for kindergarten have an early opportunity to register their student, meet kindergarten teachers, and find necessary information about the 2009-2010 kindergarten school year.

The upcoming registration and screening dates are: Ruidoso, April 2, Ruidoso Convention Center; Tularosa, April 3, Tularosa Elementary; Corona, April 7, Corona School Auditorium; Carrizozo, April 15, Carrizozo High Gymnasium; Capitan, April 16, Cummins Gymnasium; Hondo, April 17, Hondo Multipurpose Room; and Cloudcroft, April 23, Cloudcroft Elementary. If you have a concern for a child, an individual screening can be set up at any time. For more information about developmental screening, contact Dahn Freed, at 257-2368, or in the Child Find office at Region IX, 1400 Sudderth Dr., or visit our website at www.regionix.org.

Riverfront owners wary of 'open-ended' contract

dstallings@ruidosonews.com

Some owners of property along the Ruidoso River say they're uneasy about being asked to sign a contract for work to stabilize the river bank, when it contains an open-ended financial obligation.

But Bill Morris, acting Ruidoso village manager, contends the village cannot work on private land and must hold the owners of the property ultimately responsible for repair of the river after a July 27 flood created new pathways and deposited large boulders.

By participating with the federal Natural Resource and Conservation Service, property owners have a chance to see most, if not all, of the cost covered with the federal government picking up 75 percent, the New Mexico Office of Homeland Security paying 18 percent and the property owners 7 percent, primarily through "matching in-kind" work by village equipment and machinery, through grants or from materials or work accomplished by private owners after the flood.

John Momeier said the river course that runs by his family cabin on Main Road near Hummingbird Lane was damaged and that along with other owners he signed a paper that allowed representatives of the NRCS to enter his property and create a restoration plan.

But when he received a contract in January from the village for the restoration work to begin, Momeier said he was bothered by two elements and called for an explanation from the mayor, NRCS officials and the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers.

"It's a nine-year requirement for the land owners to be responsible for inspection and maintenance of the improvements," said Momeier, who was in the military Corps for 25 years. "And in Section 4A, it says if they run out of money (completing the project), the difference will be made up by landowners without specifying a cap or the expense of maintenance. It's open-ended."

Some of his neighbors along the river told him they don't plan to sign the contract, Momeier said.

"I know the river is privately owned, but we can't do anything on the river on our own," he said. Owners have to receive approval from the Corps for any work in the river.

Adding to the aggravation, property owners are left out in the contract from any decisions about adding work. If something more is needed, officials with the NRCS and the village decide he said.

Despite his disagreement, Momeier said he probably will sign up for the nine years of maintenance responsibility, but he remains reluctant to commit to the immediate financial responsibility for the restoration work in case of an overrun. He's received no indication village officials will live on the point, he said.

He described the water in the river as about 3 inches to 4 inches deep now and fish cannot be sustained.

The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers requires a 10-year maintenance obligation, Don Ashby, NRCS team leader on the Ruidoso River projects, said Tuesday. But the first year will be handled by the village as sponsor through the Emergency Watershed Protection program, he said.

Morris said last week he's had "dozens" of conversations with owners on the contract. "This is on private property, so it falls to the owners to take responsibility," Morris said. "Realistically, leaving it alone is the maintenance."

Each project undergoes a cost estimate and bid process, he said. "If the bids come in higher, we pull back and relook. Using $6 million in state disaster money allocated last August, no extra cost has fallen to owners at this point, he said.

"We're trying to cover all costs, but we can't guarantee it, if the state, because of budget restraints, pulls money back," he said.

If people don't want to partner with the village, owners looking for restoration of the river bed and shoreline can apply to the Army Corps of Engineers and privately contract for the work. "But then it's all on their dime," Morris said. "The NRCS knows how to design flow-through channels to protect the river banks."

The NRCS designs the best system for the river and then see who owns what, he said, adding, "Unlike other areas where only one owner is involved, here it can be 20 owners."

FILE/RUIDOSO NEWS
The Río Ruidoso went on a rampage in the July 2008 flood, changing course and destroying everything in its path.

Despite the problems, some of the projects have rolled forward quickly, he said.

Ashby disagreed that the obligation for landowners is open-ended.

"It's a requirement through the EWP program, which is a cost-share program," he said. "The property owner is responsible for 7 percent of the cost share amount, but it can be in-kind, not cash, in labor, equipment, work already performed, materials, not out of pocket."

"Basically, it's a requirement if there is any additional cost, and there will not be."

Momeier contacted Dick Wisner, another Upper Canyon resident affected by the flood and executive director of The Ruidoso River Association. Wisner is trying to set up a meeting with Morris and crew, he said.

The aim is to hammer out a clause that could be added to the contract to mollify the property owners, he said. Wisner could not be reached for comment Tuesday.

Another neighbor also was assured that no additional costs will be assessed in the project, but Momeier said his opinion was, "Fine, but there's always a first time."

The ownership issue seems to be a matter of convenience, Momeier said. The river runs through the village and in 1996, it nearly went dry as the village diverted without restraint into the Grindstone Reservoir.

Since then, an agreement was struck between the village and the river association defining when river water can be diverted based on the amount of flow.

Other questions left hanging include if a construction contract ran over the budgeted amount, how would the extra cost be apportioned among the property owners, Momeier said, adding, how would it be enforced?

According to published information from the village, the NRCS asked for an extension on projects until Aug. 29, the Hummingbird project will cost $210,864, with the 7 percent coming in at $14,760.

Momeier said he's confident most neighbors will sign to allow the work to proceed on their land and will not have a major problem with the maintenance obligation, because the project consists of some dredging to restore the river depth to about two feet and to rebuild river banks.

"The only thing we don't want is a commitment to an overrun," he said.

In the space of three days, the Hondo Eagles' boys and girls teams collected four convincing district victories at home. On Saturday afternoon the Lady Eagles sacked the Corona Cardinals, 58-18, and the Eagles riddled the Corona boys, 63-22. Monday evening, the Hondo girls thumped the Vaughn Lady Eagles, 52-17, and their male counterparts took down the visitors, 66-38.

With those quadruple wins, the Lady Eagles are now 7-1 in district action and hold second place behind Carrizozo (7-1). Hondo's only loss came at the hands of the Lady Grizzlies, Feb. 3, 52-49, but Zozo's lone loss was the result of a 47-45 OT defeat at the hands of the Lady Eagles, Feb. 17. The 3-point margin of victory in the Feb. 3 game puts the Lady Grizzlies in first place.

The Hondo boys squad, currently at 5-4, is in third place behind Carrizozo and Mountainair (6-2).

Carrizozo capped off a stellar season with first-place finishes by both the girls and boys teams. The Grizzlies went through district play undefeated (7-0).

"The Lady Eagles are coming on like gangbusters," Carrizozo Assistant Coach Pam Allen said. "They've improved by leaps-and-bounds over the season."

In the Vaughn contest, the Lady Eagles opened up a 22-2 lead going into the second quarter and continued to stretch that advantage to 43-4 by halftime. By the end of the third period of play, the Hondo girls were up 48-9 and won going away by 35.

"We played hard in the Corona match-up," head coach Gerald Montes said. "The Lady Eagles are in good physical shape and it showed in both games. Good things happen to those who work hard but now they have to remain focused for the demands at hand come Wednesday when we face Mountainair."

In the Corona contest,

Las Cruces boxer faces stiff test in Mexico

FELIX CHAVEZ
Las Cruces Sun-News

LAS CRUCES - On March 14 in Torreon, Mexico, Las Cruces boxer Austin Trout faces his stiffest test to date when he takes on world ranked Marco Antonio Avendano in a 12-round fight.

The fight is significant for many reasons for the 16-0 Trout.

This is his biggest fight, his longest scheduled fight and Avendano is by far his toughest opponent. Avendano has fought top fighters in his class and he's gone all over the world to fight, so taking on a young fighter in Mexico won't bother the 27-6-1 Avendano.

Trout has faced adversity in recent months because he's had several fights fall through and that's tough on a young fighter.

Trout has had to stay focused and he's had to stay patient through the pitfalls of the boxing world.

It looked good for him after he won on ESPN2's Wednesday night fights last summer, but the momentum didn't last long.

But now Trout is in line for some big things if he can beat Avendano, who has good power, is experienced and is probably going to be desperate for a win because a loss for him could signal a slide in his career.

Trout has good reflexes and can be particularly adept on the defensive front. He's going to have to move well, slip punches and not stand in front of Avendano.

In addition, Trout's stamina could be tested. He's never gone more than eight rounds and this fight could very well go the distance, plus Avendano will likely put the pressure on Trout and test the young fighter.

This is the moment that Trout has been waiting for since he started his career.

He wants to take on the best and he wants to test his skills against the best.

The junior middleweight division is loaded with talent, including Alfredo Angulo, James Kirkland and Sergio Martinez.

A win on March 14 could put Trout on that list, but he's going to have to be as sharp as he's ever been and as disciplined as he's ever been.

On Saturday night in Houston, a potential Fight of the Year takes place when lightweights Juan Diaz (34-1) and Juan Manuel Marquez (49-4-1) meet in an explosive 12-round fight, which will be televised by HBO.

The Mexican-born Marquez is the slick fighting veteran, who at 35 seems to be getting better with age.

He's dependable, adapts well to different styles and is a big-fight fighter.

He was last seen stopping the venerable Joel Casamayor last September in his maiden voyage into the lightweight ranks.

Marquez still appears to have the reflexes and offensive ability to beat top-flight contenders and he'll need every bit of his skill to fend off the Mexican-American Diaz, nicknamed the Baby Bull.

Diaz has lost just once and that was to the ageless Nate Campbell, but he too won his last fight in impressive fashion.

The 25-year-old Diaz has fought some of the best at 135 pounds, but he'll be meeting his toughest match to date in Marquez.

The fight will come down to who can control the tempo and who can fight his fight the best.

My guess is that Marquez will do just enough because of his boxing ability and skill to adapt during a fight.

It will be a close fight, but expect Marquez to win 115-113.

HOOPS

three of the Lady Eagles reached double digits as Dedra Romero dumped in 16. Alicia Nieto scored 13 and Felicia Chavez pumped in 12. For the Lady Cardinals, Taylor Huey led the charge with 11.

In Monday's game, Hondo's Chavez again hit the double-digit mark with 11, while Stephanie Gomez scored 10.

In the Corona boy's game, Raymond Montano led the squad in scoring with 14, followed by Anthony Sanchez with 13, while Rico Lopez pumped in 11. For the Cardinals, Dylan Johnson led his team with 13.

In the Vaughn contest, Montano again led the scoring with 19, followed by Jorge Guillen with 15 and Lopez with 14.

"We played well to finish out the regular season," head coach Henry Lopez said.

"We got to play a lot of our bench in these two games, which is important.

Hondo's Felicia Chavez tries 2 from the right side.

We can't make any mistakes now that districts are comencing."

An all-important district playoff match-up will pit the Lady Eagles at home against Mountainair at 6 p.m., while their male counterparts travel to Mountainair Thursday for a 6 p.m. tilt.

Carrizozo will face off against an as-yet unnamed opponent Saturday. The girls game will start at 5 p.m. and the boys follow at 6:30.

Carrizozo grad is named CNM campus director

JULIE CARTER
jcarter@ruidosonews.com

For the last eight years, Annette Chavez y DeLaCruz has been working as the director of Central New Mexico Community College (CNM)'s Job Connection Center.

Last summer, Chavez y DeLaCruz accepted a one-year obligation to be director of the Albuquerque South Valley Campus of CNM where she is working to build a stronger connection between the campus and the surrounding community.

CNM is the former Albuquerque Technical Vocational Institute (TVI) that, in 2006, transitioned from a trade school to a community college and become the second-largest educational institution in New Mexico. According to their Web site, more than 26,000 students currently attend classes at four campuses and a Workforce Training Center in the Albuquerque metropolitan area. The South Valley Campus is home to more than 1,000 of those students.

Personally, connecting to the South Valley won't be an issue for Chavez y DeLaCruz. She's been living there for the last 22 years. She views her new position as a great opportunity to give back to the community she loves and where her husband, Bernalillo County Commissioner Art DeLaCruz, was born and raised. One of her first priorities in her new position was to begin meeting with community organizations, neighborhood associations, business representatives and other key stakeholders in the South Valley to gain understanding of their expectations and hopes for the campus.

Chavez y DeLaCruz was very active in last year's campaign in her husband's bid for the county commission seat. One his campaign points was making community a priority and creating bridges of cooperation between people and agencies.

Chavez y DeLaCruz is the daughter of Nat and Polly Chavez of Carrizozo. She graduated with honors from Carrizozo High School in 1977. While there, she received "Greatest Grizzly" awards for volleyball, basketball and track and was co-valetictorian of her class.

The DeLaCruz's have an 11-year-old daughter, Alejandra, and a 17-year-old son, Reyes.

Garrett named Citizen of the Year

The Capitan Chamber of Commerce is proud to announce Pat Garrett as its 2009 Citizen of the Year. For 10 years, Garrett's dedication and commitment to the Capitan Public Library has led to its continued growth. Under her leadership, the building has been expanded and the thrift store added.

A reception to honor Garrett will be held in May. An auction will also be held with the proceeds used to benefit the library. Original artistic items for the auction will be book and/or library themed. Anyone wishing to create and donate items can call the chamber at 354-2273 for information.

Roslie on the move

It has been a hectic two months. We are settled in an apartment for the next two months, and then hopefully we will be able to find a house. With looms, spinning wheels and wool for Ralph and my scrapbooking, an apartment is a little crowded.

celebrating birthdays. Ralph Dunlap and Lee Rucker celebrated their 82nd and 80th birthdays. They celebrated with parties at the Dolan House.

Bill Staussner also had a birthday, but he wouldn't tell which one.

We got cowboys

Sometimes you can look back on an event or a person that changed your outlook. Sometimes it's a stupid comment. Stories that start out like this usually include a Preacher and the words "Tido," but this is a different type of stupid comment.

When I lived in Post, Texas, I used to help my Aunt Pearl with her cattle. It never occurred to her that since I worked nights, when she needed help it was akin to waking someone up at midnight. Early on she said she was going to gather and probably needed to use helicopters again. Well, being a ranch kid from N.M., I couldn't fathom why anyone would need helicopters in what appeared to be fairly flat country. I offered to help if someone would lend me a horse. When I asked the size of the pasture and she said "about 4 sections." I said "oh hell, Pearl, I can gather that by myself." She gave me a long look and asked me why I said that and I said, "We've got cowboys where I come from."

I arrived and was given a horse that didn't have a hump in its back and no one referred to it as a kid horse so I felt pretty good. Pearl informed the cowboys that since "my niece here considers herself a cowboy - give her the outside circle." Which I thought was fine and we set off. I soon became acquainted with mesquite trees or whatever they call them. They certainly did not resemble the mesquite bushes we have here. In fact, they didn't resemble anything that I had ever come in contact with. I found you cannot ride a horse through them, and you can't walk through them. In fact, the three or four cows I did gather, I did so by crawling on my hands and knees but I was determined.

I was the last of the "cowboys" to arrive at the corrals with my three or four head and I was danged proud to have them, if a little chagrined. The cowboys opened the gate for me with only the barest of smirks. Aunt Pearl looked me over, took note of the goose down jacket that could never be worn again, the Wranglers with the rips and tears that would be a fashion statement in Hollywood these days and the look in my eye. She said, "I thought you said they had cowboys where you come from?"

COUNTY BRIEF

Say congratulations

The Lincoln County Fair Book has room for more advertisements and, in fact, the more ads sold, the more pages the book will have, offering more space for more photos. It's a win/win.

The Lincoln County Fair Book has become a keepsake album of the faces and fun connected to the fair and year-round events of the youth that make up Lincoln County 4-H and FFA.

To continue the tradition, the ads are necessary as they pay for the printing of the book.

Grandparents, parents, aunts and uncles - tell your FFA or 4-Her how proud you are of them. Say it in an ad.

A one-eighth page ad is only $25. Larger sizes range from $40 for a quarter page to $100 for a full page, with several options in between.

Ad sales are going on now as the book begins production. Call Kathleen at the Lincoln County Extension office, at 648-2311 to reserve ad space.

Congratulations Frank and Lois O'Dell, Celebrating 50 Years of Marriage!

Frank and Lois married in Levelland, Texas, March 1, 1959. In 1965 they moved to California's San Joaquin Valley where they worked and raised four children. After Frank retired from Pacific Gas & Electric Company in the early 90's they relocated to Ruidoso, New Mexico where they had honeymooned years before. They moved back to California for a short time to consult for PG&E but ultimately ended up back in "paradise" in Ruidoso for good!

They have spent 50 years together as best friends. Their marriage has survived raising a family, a devastating California Earthquake in 1983 with the loss of their son Dustin in 1991, not to mention the trials and tribulations of life. We wish to thank our parents for showing us a great example of a "loving" and "strong" marriage. Mom & Dad have sacrificed and given everything to us kids but have never forgotten each other in the busy life and times of raising four children. We wish them health and happiness in the many wonderful years to come. We love and respect you both so much...love always, Burk, Candy and Andrew.

Louis Lopez passed away at his home in Ruidoso surrounded by his wife and children on February 20, 2009.

Louis, as he was known by all, was born in El Paso, Texas on November 26, 1926. He was a proud graduate of Bowie High School, class of 1944, and attended Texas Western College, now known as UTEP. He served in the United States Navy during World War II.

Louis is survived by his wife of 58 years, Alicia, his sons Ricardo, Fernando and Marco Lopez, his daughters Sylvia Lopez and Delia Perle, daughters in law, Deborah, Joy and Laru Lopez, his sisters Alicia Armendariz and Helvia Martinez and seven grandchildren, Paul, Christopher and Vanessa Lopez, Ryan Perle, Brandon and Joshua Lopez, Ashley Schneck, 16 nieces and nephews, his sisters in law Hortencia Trujillo, husband Eduardo, Soledad Rodarte, husband Tony, Dolores Guzman and husband Carlos.

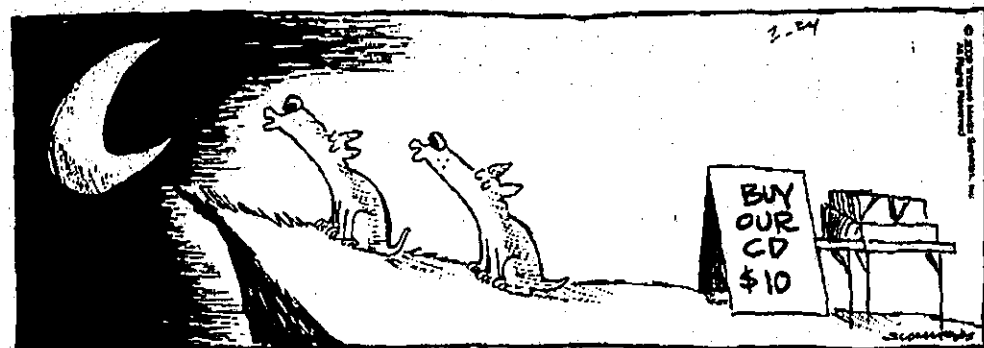

Louis was a beloved, husband, father, brother, mentor and friend.

He loved music and sang in the choir at his church, St. Joseph's Mesquero Apache Mission in Mesquero, New Mexico. He was an avid photographer, a collector of odds and ends and liked everything electronic. He was an accomplished "Mr. Fix-It" and delighted in helping his family with all types of home repairs.

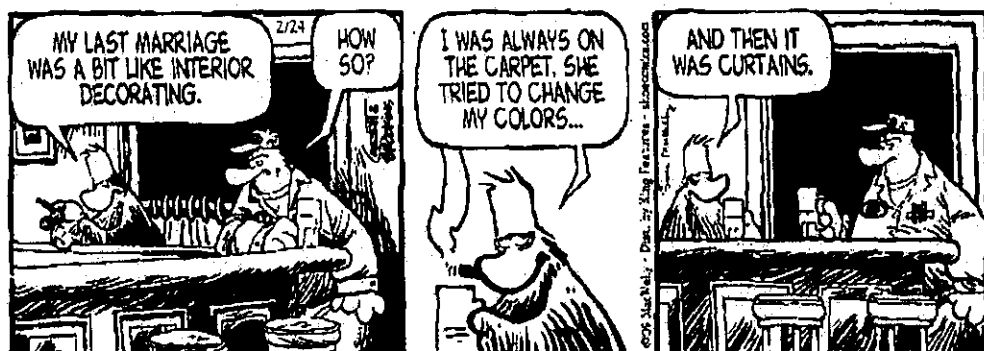

Louis was a lifelong Democrat and a member of the Lincoln County Democratic Party. He was employed as Calligan Water Company in Ruidoso for the past 9 years.

The Rosary will be recited Thursday February 26 at 7:00 PM at Martin Funeral Home Central, 1819 Montrose. The funeral mass will be held Friday February 27 at 9:45 AM at St. Raphael Church, 2101 Zuni Blvd, followed by burial at Fort Bliss National Cemetery.

Tom Selleck lays down Jesse Stone's law in new CBS movie

By Jay Bobbin
© Zap2it

Despite the title of his latest "Jesse Stone" TV movie, Tom Selleck hardly is on "Thin Ice" with the series.

It's been almost two years since the Emmy-winning actor's last turn as novelist Robert B. Parker's small-town Massachusetts police chief, but the crime dramas have earned solid ratings for CBS -- a big reason there's now a fifth one, with a sixth coming -- and they've also rented and sold well for Sony Pictures Home Entertainment as DVD releases.

Airing Sunday, March 1, "Jesse Stone: Thin Ice" quickly re-establishes the title character and his personal demons, including a drinking problem and an ex-wife he can't get over (even when she hangs up the phone on him). It also gives born rebel Stone fresh mysteries to solve: a brutal attack on him and a colleague, then a particularly heinous case revolving around missing children.

Kathy Baker, William Devane, Stephen McHattie and Kohl Sudduth return from earlier "Stone" tales; new cast members include Camryn Manheim ("The Practice," "Ghost Whisperer") and Leslie Hope, alias Jack Bauer's wife during the maiden season of "24."

Also one of its writers and executive producers, Selleck made "Jesse Stone: Thin Ice" around the same time he was starting his role on what became the final season of the NBC series "Las Vegas." He says CBS' reasons for delaying the movie's airing were "all positive. May sweeps, when it was originally slated last year, kind of fell apart because of the writers strike. Then they said they'd start the next season with it, but there was the election and the World Series."

The "Jesse Stone" movies are character studies as much as, if not more than, crime procedurals.

"The mystery often is Jesse himself until the specific plot's mystery takes over," explains Selleck, who adds, "We're now in an area of not working from the books, and Robert Parker is completely on board with that. He's selling a lot of books, and he's nice enough to attribute some of that to us. We didn't think some of the books fit the universe we've created in these movies, so 'Thin Ice' is an original story."

"Jesse Stone: Sea Change" (the preceding film) was greatly changed, as opposed to slightly changed, from the book. That led us into this kind of parallel world, which is a bonus; if you read the books, you find out where that Jesse is going. He's the same guy, except that he's 34 in the books. I'm not."

Selleck and producing partner Michael Brandman are putting finishing touches on the forthcoming "Jesse Stone: No Remorse," which CBS hasn't scheduled yet. The star says "Thin Ice" sets up that story -- in the sense that Daniel Craig's 2006 debut as James Bond in "Casino Royale" led into the recent "Quantum of Solace" -- but Selleck hesitates to call "No Remorse" a literal sequel.

"It takes place about two weeks after this one ends," he reports, "but each of these movies has to stand on its own for a new audience. You don't have to have seen the others, but those who have get a little bonus. It's mainly a continuation of character, not plot."

"If I knew I was doing two 'Jesse Stone' movies a year, I'd be happy not doing anything else," Selleck adds, "at least in the near future. I think we have that many arrows left in our quiver."

Tom Selleck stars in "Jesse Stone: Thin Ice" Sunday on CBS.

Jimmy

By Jay Bobbin

Thanks to his "Live" years, Jimmy Kimmel has a lot about doing television.

But he's in for a starting this week.

The comedian became a rare club as he joined the talk show fray with Conan O'Brien. He succeeds Jay Leno on "Tonight Show" in NBC debut of "Jimmy Fallon" Monday. Among scheduled guests: Robert Cameron Diaz, Tim Bon Jovi.

"I think I'll feel a little the self-effacing," he says. "You know, those to fill. David Letterman (before moving to Conan; now I'm trying this show out) but I actually just going. The first week calling on favors come by, and even to be learning, not of people will go to show what it is."

With "SNL" and Michaels as his producer and the house band, Fallon's historic Studio City Studios in New York have been revving up months. Since early he's been posting a video blog to introduce his new plan to them weigh in on choices.

"There couldn't be a better thing for us to maintain. It was and we didn't want to do sketches or to show what it's like on a late-night talk show, excitement, the thing, the putting together and so been as much fun informative."

"You can see the webside to the calmer I am in the era. It was done in a rilla way, and I show people when the got to go into a video (Viewers) got to show's logo; I'm giving ways they the show. I'm giving options of how late-night television. Acknowledging 'my break' by Mike."

nowledging he was given break" by Michaels, Fallon is glad to have the veteran comedy-variety producer backing him again.

"I was 23 and nervous, and I just wanted to be the guy who did impressions on the show ('Saturday Night Live'). He saw something there, maybe the hunger. I got to do characters, I got to do 'Weekend Update,' I even got to do music on the show - but I just wanted to fill out my contract, which was six seasons. I don't like it when cast members stay too long, but I had no goal after that.

"As I was leaving, Lorne said, 'Just remember that in 2009, we're going to be looking for a replacement for Conan. Keep that in the back of your head.' I went, 'Well, yeah, you never know.'"

Having made such movies as "Fever Pitch" and "Taxi," Fallon focused on other matters then.

"I got to meet a beautiful girl, I got to date her, and I got to get married," Fallon says of Nancy Juvonen, Drew Barrymore's movie-producing partner, whom he wed in 2007. "I just kind of lived life, but I missed the audience. I missed that immediacy and interaction."

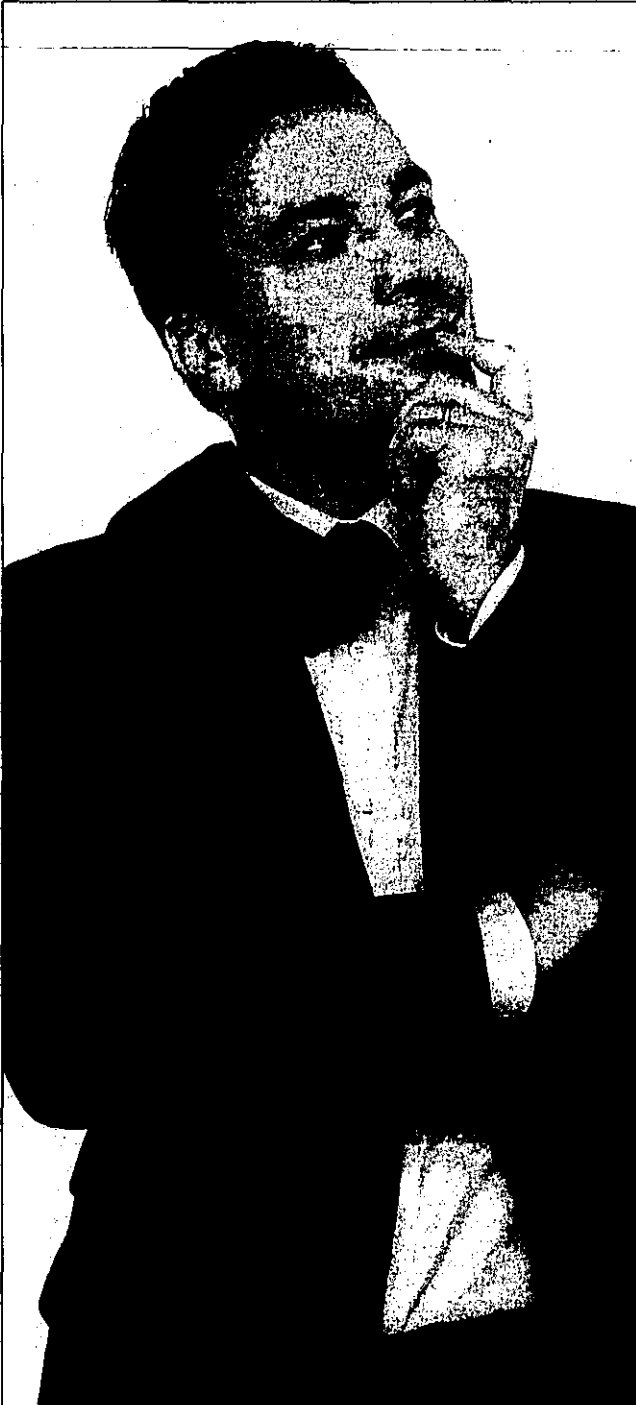

Fallon doesn't seem overly concerned about his time-period rivals, ABC's Jimmy Kimmel - whose show will be in its last half-hour in most markets while Fallon's is in its first - and CBS' Craig Ferguson. Recently, Ferguson publicly extended Fallon a welcome to the slot.

"I've already sent him a thank you, a DVD collection of (fellow Scotsman) Sean Connery's movies," Fallon reveals. "He took the high road, and you've got to appreciate that. I want to do the same thing."

When Fallon was signed for his new stint, it appeared his would be the second in NBC's roster of weeknight talk shows, following "The Tonight Show." Come fall, though, he'll be third: He and "Tonight" both will be preceded by Leno's new prime-time venture.

"I don't think it's going to affect me at all," Fallon says. "There are people who are awake at that hour of the night and people who are asleep, and that's the way it's always been. I doubt someone will think, 'Well, Jay was great, I'll give it another hour. OK, Conan was good, I'll give it one more hour.' The immediate lead-in is a little important, I guess, but I don't know that the double lead-in is."

It's a no-brainer that some former "SNL" comrades will join Fallon occasionally on "Late Night," partially because it's highly convenient.

"They're just down the stairs," he says. "They don't even have to be booked. I'm in awe of those guys, so they can always drop by and do bits."

Such looseness typifies what Fallon wants his overall experience as the new steward of "Late Night" to be.

"It could be a lot of stress if you wanted to look at it that way, but I'm trying not to," he says. "I'm trying to ease my way into it and figuring, 'It's going to be what it is, and I'm going to have a fun time doing it.'"

Contestants prowl the catwalk as 'Top Model' starts 12th cycle

By Michael Korb
© Zap2it

So just how do you keep one of the hottest competitive reality shows fresh after 11 seasons? Oddly enough, it's by delivering more of the same -- more beautiful girls, more exotic locations and more catfights pre-catwalk. And when the 12th cycle of "America's Next Top Model" begins Wednesday, March 4, on The CW, fans will begin another ride on the quest to take an unknown beauty and turn her into a face that sells a million magazines. And for the sake of television, let's just ignore the fact that that hasn't happened yet with any of the other 11 seasons.

"I think the success of the show has less to do with actual fashion and the fashion industry than the fact that it is a Cinderella show," says supermodel Paulina Porizkova, a former Sports Illustrated swimsuit cover model and one of the judges on "ANTM." "What little girl doesn't want to be Cinderella? Whether she is from the country or from the big city, every girl wants that. I think Tyra (Banks) very smartly realized that, and that's what makes the show so popular."

For those of you living under a rock since the show began in 2003, "ANTM" takes a group of young women, makes them over to be more fashion-magazine friendly, then puts them through challenges -- photo shoots, commercials, runway walks -- where they're judged by fashion industry gurus in hopes of winning a lucrative modeling contract. It is "Survivor" meets "The Devil Wears Prada," and its success should be judged more on ratings than on magazine covers.

"Look, the fashion business does not want Tyra to dictate who will be the next top model," says a refreshingly frank Porizkova. "This is TV -- not high fashion. You and I can see that and we kind of pretend ... But that's not to say that every girl on the show isn't a beautiful young woman."

Of course, beauty is in the eye of the beholder, but rest assured this cycle's 13 contestants run the gamut from classic beauties to the girl next door to "Holy cow, I'm in love." They range in age from 18 to 25 and sport names such as London (who hails from Arlington, Texas), Kortnie and Fo -- although there are an Allison and a Sandra tucked in for good measure. And while most list "student" as their occupation, they haven't learned anything in Comp 101 that will compare to having Tyra Banks in their faces for failing to live up to her high expectations.

"Tyra's strength is being larger than life, being goofy and telling you the power of 'smiling with your eyes,'" Porizkova says. "It's the earnestness behind her words. I'm not sure anyone else can actually do that."

Yet what makes the show so addictive is the fact that these girls truly come from nowhere and are immediately thrust into a white-hot spotlight with industry leaders such as fashion photographer Nigel Barker and runway expert J. Alexander. Then they're expected to glean all they can and transform themselves into instant supermodels. It really does seem Cinderella-esque.

Jay Manuel, the show's creative director, who is known best for his frosted hair and glossy lips, doesn't exactly agree with Paulina's Cinderella assessment. Then again, he doesn't exactly contradict it either.

"I love Paulina to death," Manuel says. "I love that she has such strong opinions. But I think there are a couple of different reasons why the show is so intoxicating. There are these connections that separate it from other shows. It aspires to a positive end product. That's why women buy fashion magazines month after month. They want to buy into that. And sure, you know that you're not a model, but that doesn't mean you can't have the confidence of a top model. We have these lessons season after season. And I think we connect with people who are artists who want to be part of that artistic community. I hear from people all the time who say, 'I aspire to be a photographer, or a stylist, or a fashion journalist.' So it's more than just the models. We're putting a spotlight on the industry as a whole."

What Manuel and Porizkova do seem to agree on is that modeling is not the diva-driven hype machine that the public seems to think it is.

"Models don't really mean anything right now," Porizkova says. "They are nameless and faceless. The industry has come full circle. Before the supermodels, models were just clothes hangers ... For me it was always just a job. They could put me in any clothes they wanted -- it didn't matter if you looked like a giraffe on crack. I think when people think of 'America's Next Top Model,' they think the girl gets a golden ticket to limousines and Leonardo DiCaprio."

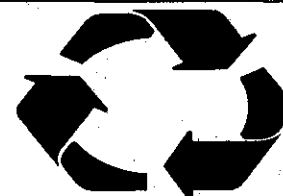

Manuel concurs.

"It's not like it was in the '90s. Girls who come on this show with preconceived notions of what modeling is tend to get stuck."

But it's also those girls who make the best television for Porizkova. "As a viewer, I love it when some girl is having fits and Tyra tells her off," she says.

Paulina Porizkova serves as a judge on "America's Next Top Model" Wednesday on The CW.

An Inside Look

Two women 'Bound by a Secret' -- and separated by one, too

By Jacqueline Cutler
© Zap2it

Titanium has nothing on the enduring strength of a lifelong friendship between two women, as Hallmark Channel's "Bound by a Secret" proves Saturday, March 7.

Jane and Ida (Lesley Ann Warren, Meredith Baxter) have been best friends since childhood in an idyllic, unnamed western town. Jane left to become a Broadway star but wound up as a star on a soap opera, "The Dawn of a New Day." Ida stayed put and reared her daughter, Kate (Bridget Ann White), alone after her husband left. She has a cafe, Ladyfingers, which serves fine teas and pastries, and she's content being close to her daughter, son-in-law and granddaughter.

From the beginning, it's clear something is wrong with Jane. And it wouldn't be much of a film if it weren't. She quits the show and leaves her Manhattan apartment. Soon we learn she has terminal cancer, but she doesn't tell that to Ida when she shows up unannounced.

Their friendship is such that Ida knows something is wrong with Jane the moment she sees her. Jane reveals she has come home to die, and Ida will be with her. The question is will Jane tell Kate the big secret -- that she is her birth mother? Ida does not want her to tell, but it's Jane's decision.

Impending death has a way of crystallizing life, making those about to leave it see very clearly, and Warren says she tried to capture that.

"I was very moved by the emotional content and the journey this character takes," Warren says. "I felt also it was a real opportunity to illuminate one's grappling with choices you have made in life and how to come to terms with those choices and how to have closure with those choices. Because of my age and the age of many of my friends, death is more of a reality than I would wish -- illness and death. And so I thought it would also be tremendously challenging for me as an actress and artist, but as a person, to look at and express and explore what was going on with this character in terms of facing her own passing."

Ben Wallace and the Cleveland Cavaliers take on the Atlanta Hawks Sunday on ESPN.

Best Bets this Week

Laurence Fishburne stars in "CSI: Crime Scene Investigation" Thursday on CBS.

THURSDAY

8 p.m. on KDBC KBIM CSI: Crime Scene Investigation

These are the types of story lines that made us fall in love with this series. This week Langston (Laurence Fishburne) and the team investigate three different crime scenes in one night. The three crimes seem to be unrelated, but each case's forensic evidence reveals a common link. John Schneider and Michael Weston guest star in "Kill Me if You Can."

8 p.m. on KWBO Supernatural Sam and Dean (Jared Padalecki, Jensen Ackles) investigate a small town with a wishing well that really works: A teddy bear comes to life, someone wins the lottery, and the town geek gets a hot girlfriend.

8 p.m. on KFOX KASA Hell's Kitchen

Insert your own "egg on their faces" joke here. In this new episode, the chefs must feed breakfast to 50 hungry members of a youth football and cheerleading program. That's challenging enough even without ingredient issues, but when one team runs out of eggs, things get really interesting. And by "interesting" we mean "disastrous."

8 p.m. on A&E The Beast

He's not Eliot Ness, but he does have some dealings with a guy named Capone in this new episode. When a Chicago police officer goes missing, Barker (Patrick Swayze) goes undercover as "Apache," a tough guy with connections to Latino drug dealers, and reconnects with an associate called Capone (Lou Diamond Phillips) — who isn't what he seems. Travis Fimmel also stars in "Capone."

9 p.m. on KOBR KTSM ER

Taking cues from Brangelina, Dr. Banfield (Angela Bassett) and her husband (guest star Courtney B. Vance) consider adopting after growing frustrated with in vitro fertilization. Meanwhile, Dr. Carter (guest star Noah Wyle) tries to jump back into working at County but struggles with the new procedures and technology.

Jennifer Love Hewitt stars in "Ghost Whisperer" Friday on CBS.

FRIDAY

6 p.m. on TNT Movie: The Lord of the Rings: The Fellowship of the Ring

Evil forces are gathering to control the land, and Frodo is given a magic ring, which he must destroy. He is accompanied on his journey by a noble assortment of companions. Viggo Mortensen, Orlando Bloom, Sean Astin, John Rhys-Davies, Billy Boyd and Dominic Monaghan co-star.

7 p.m. on KDBC KBIM Ghost Whisperer

The last time we told someone about our ability to communicate with the dead, they were surprised. And rightfully so. So it really shouldn't surprise Melinda (Jennifer Love Hewitt) when Sam's (Kenneth Mitchell) reaction to learning about her gift is, umm, unexpected. Hey, everyone reacts differently. In fact, we were just talking to Frank Sinatra about this...

7 p.m. on KWBO Everybody Hates Chris

When Rochelle (Tichina Arnold) orders a copy of her birth certificate, she discovers she is actually a year younger than she thought she was and decides to start living her life with a new, younger attitude. Then when a stranger helps Chris (Tyler James Williams) to safety during a blackout, Chris decides to repay the man by getting him out to meet new friends. And Greg (Vincent Martella) realizes he has no identity of his own.

7 p.m. on KOBR KTSM Howie Do It

Side effects may include ... In this episode, a man tries a new shampoo designed to make his hair beautiful, assuming he subscribes to the notion that bald is beautiful. Yep, the stuff makes his hair fall out. In another segment, folks who think they're competing on a game show are in for a shocker. Howie Mandel hosts.

SATURDAY

2:30 p.m. on ESPN2 NASCAR Racing

Accidents marred last year's Sam's Town 300 at Las Vegas Motor Speedway, resulting in a record 13 cautions and overtime. When it was finally over, only 14 cars were on the lead lap, a group from which Mark Martin emerged to post his series record 48th career victory and first for JR Motorsports co-owner Dale Earnhardt Jr. Greg Biffle finished .586 seconds behind, followed by Clint Bowyer and Kevin Harvick.

7 p.m. on LIFE Movie: America

No, this isn't a patriotic movie. America is the name of a 17-year-old boy who has grown up in foster care. About to "age out" of the system that's left him abused and angry, he also wants to check out of life. A suicide attempt lands him at a residential treatment facility, where a therapist (Rosie O'Donnell) helps him turn his emotional life around. Newcomer Philip Johnson plays America in this new drama, which O'Donnell also executive produced.

8 p.m. on KOAT KVIA Movie: Bewitched

Director Nora Ephron's update of the 1960s Elizabeth Montgomery television sitcom has a more complicated structure than it needs, but Nicole Kidman is charming in a lighter-than-usual role as an actual witch who's cast in a remake of the show. Will Ferrell portrays the actor who plays mortal husband Darrin to her otherworldly Samantha.

9 p.m. on KOBR KTSM Law & Order

Lupo and Bernard (Jeremy Sisto, Anthony Anderson) are called to a crime scene where a woman has been found murdered. It seems her husband insisted the family live environmentally friendly to avoid leaving a heavy carbon footprint. But with a little digging, they discover her behavior left a little to be desired. Hey, it's not easy being green. Then Cutter (Linus Roache) is determined to expose misconduct when an old friend working the trial is obstructing justice.

Jeremy Sisto stars in "Law & Order" Saturday on NBC.

Tom Selleck stars in "Jesse Stone: Thin Ice" Sunday on CBS.

SUNDAY

1:30 p.m. on KFOX KASA NASCAR Racing

Some athletes like to blame the media for their woes, but Carl Edwards nearly had a legitimate beef with a cameraman at last year's Sprint Cup race in Las Vegas, now known as the Shelby 427. A wayward tire on pit road, caused by the videographer's unwitting interference, almost resulted in a penalty that would have negated Edwards' win. But NASCAR refrained from punishment, and Edwards had his second 2008 victory, snapping Jimmie Johnson's Sin City win streak at 3.

7 p.m. on KRWG Nature

Arachnophobes should skip "True Adventures of the Ultimate Spider-Hunter." Martin Nicholas, previously seen in the show's "Deep Jungle" miniseries, goes in search of the largest known spider, the goliath bird-eater. Along the way, he gets up close and personal with several other fearsome species and gives "Spider-Man" creator Stan Lee a few insights on the "superpowers" of real spiders.

7 p.m. on KOAT KVIA Extreme Makeover: Home Edition

The Augustin family of Keller, Texas, lost its home and not-for-profit photography studio in a flood, but thanks to Ty Pennington and his able design and construction team, a new home is going up in its place nearly as fast. Helping the professionals are hundreds of volunteers touched by the Augustins' past record of selflessness to others.

8 p.m. on KDBC KBIM Movie: Jesse Stone: Thin Ice

And he thought he left all that big-city stuff behind. In this new mystery, Jesse Stone (Tom Selleck), police chief in the little town of Paradise, Mass., accidentally becomes involved in a shootout on a Boston street that leaves a friend and fellow cop (Stephen McHattie) seriously hurt. As he deals with the repercussions of that from the Boston police, his controversial decisions back in Paradise put his job in jeopardy. Kathy Baker also stars.

MONDAY

7 p.m. on A&E Intervention

Meet Nik, once a proud dad and the emotional glue that held his large family together, as well as the director of a multimillion-dollar casino chain. Tragically, however, he got hooked on OxyContin after a debilitating back injury four years ago. After the addiction spiraled out of control and led to a heroin habit, Nik lost his job, his home and custody of his son. Now he is a homeless drug addict.

8 p.m. on KOBR KTSM Heroes

Acting on a tip from Rebel, Max and Peter (Greg Grunberg, Michael Ventimiglia) race to Building 26 to rescue Daphne (Brea Grant) and recover files that will expose the government's plans for those with abilities. An unlikely source helps Claire (Hayden Panettiere) smuggle Alex (Justin Baldoni) out of the city. Syler (Zachary Quinto) begins to have memories about his father, leading him to the truth about his mother in the new episode "Exposed."

8 p.m. on A&E Paranormal State

Ryan Buell and the Paranormal Research Society team travel to West Virginia, hoping to help a family whose quiet home in the mountains has turned into a real-life horror movie. Psychic Cherie Coffey also joins the PRS team.

8 p.m. on TNT Saving Grace

Who says all the good stuff on TV happens during February sweeps? New episodes of the excellent drama series starring Holly Hunter as troubled cop Grace Hanadarko are here, and the first of the bunch is a doozy. When a string of mutilation murders points to a possible serial killer, Grace gets a new partner Abby Charles (Christina Ricci) while Ham and Butch (Kenneth Johnson, Bailey Chase) team up. Leon Rippey also stars in "The Heart of a Cop."

Sarah (Deanna Russo) becomes overwhelmed by her new duties. Kevin Alejandro and Mini Anden guest star in the new episode "I Love the Knight Life."

7:30 p.m. on KDBC KBIM Gary Unmarried

Under ordinary circumstances, Gary (Jay Mohr) rarely lets ex-wife Allison's (Paula Marshall) fiancé, Dr. Krandall (Ed Begley Jr.), ruffle his feathers, but he's plenty concerned when he notices how much time Krandall is spending with Gary's teenage son, Tom (Ryan Malgarini), and vows to bond more strongly with the boy himself. Jaime King and Kathryn Newton co-star in the new episode "Gary Toughens Up Tom."

8 p.m. on BRAVO Make Me a Supermodel

Host Tyson Beckford returns for a second season as 16 models compete in a series of challenges to win a hefty cash prize plus a lucrative modeling contract. There's a big change from season one, though: no voting from the folks at home, so don't look for models to be kept around just because someone feels sorry for them. It's also unlikely you'll see a "bromance" like the season one quasi-fling between Ronnie Kroell and Ben DiChiara.

Jay Mohr stars in "Gary Unmarried" Wednesday on CBS.

THURSDAY

6:45 a.m. on TCM Movie: Paint Your Wagon

Despite the presence of the decidedly nontuneful Lee Marvin and Clint Eastwood, the Lerner & Loewe stage hit gets appealingly scenic screen treatment in this 1969 version. The actors play partners not only in seeking gold in California but also in sharing the same woman (Jean Seberg). Polygamy is just one of the unusually adult — but not inappropriate — themes in the musical, whose score includes the wistful "They Call the Wind Maria."

SATURDAY

5 p.m. on LIFE Movie: Twelve Mile Road

Tom Selleck stars in this 2003 drama as a divorced farmer whose life is turned upside down by the arrival of his teenage daughter (Maggie Grace), a wild child with a destructive streak. With the help of his girlfriend's daughter (Tegan Moss) and a neighbor couple, the girl slowly learns to adjust to country life and help her father deal with his unresolved issues about his divorce. Anna Gunn and Wendy Crewson co-star.

SUNDAY

5:30 p.m. on FAM Movie: My Girl

Vada (Anna Chlumsky) is an 11-year-old girl with a less than ordinary life. Her dad (Dan Aykroyd) is a mortician who uses the family home for his funeral business. Her mom died after her birth, leaving Vada with her dad and her grandmother, who suffers from Alzheimer's. Into this girl's hypochondriac world arrives a plucky woman (Jamie Lee Curtis) responding to her father's employment ad. Macauley Culkin also stars in this 1993 coming-of-age drama.

10 p.m. on DISN Movie: Spy Kids 3: Game Over

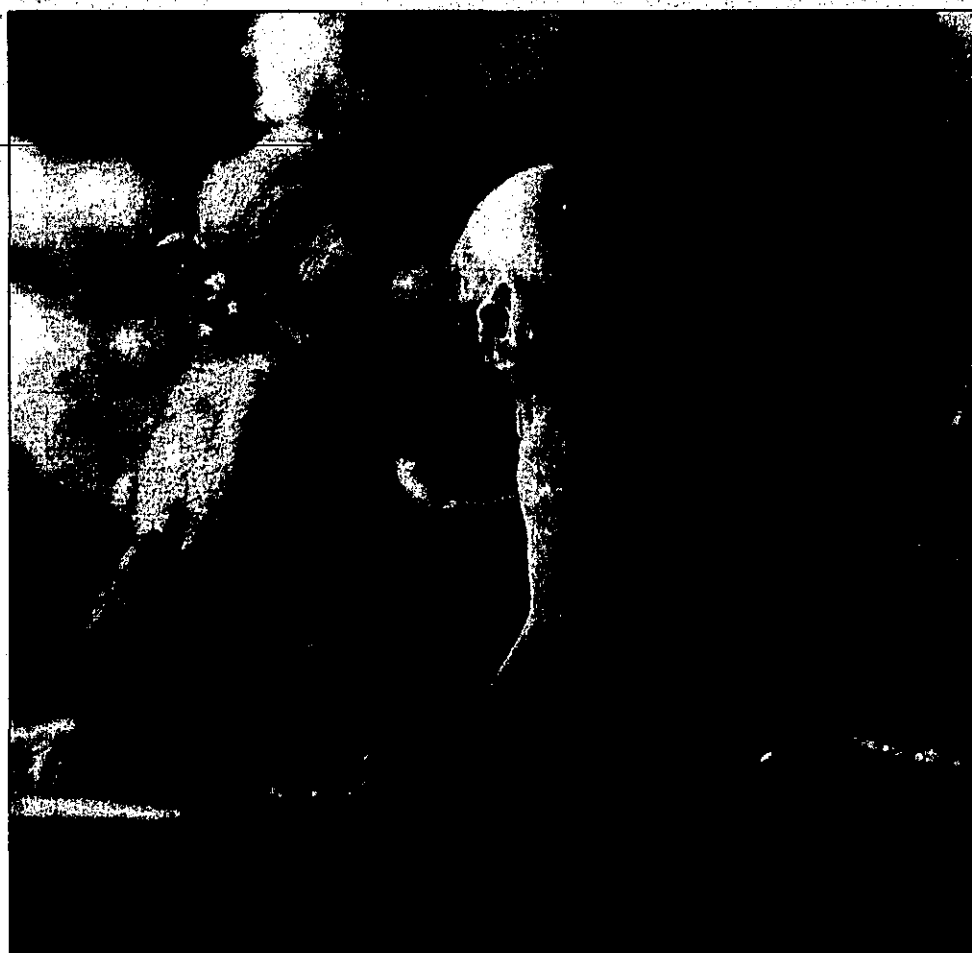

Since this ambitious 2003 adventure was meant to be viewed through 3-D glasses, some things may be lost in mere 2-D. When young adventuress Carmen (Alexa Vega) is trapped inside a computer game by the villainous Toymaker (Sylvester Stallone), her brother Juni (Daryl Sabara) launches a rescue mission. Also back in writer-director Robert Rodriguez's cast are Antonio Banderas, Carla Gugino ("Karen Sisco") and Ricardo Montalban.

MONDAY

8 p.m. on HIST Ax Men

The second season documenting the treacherous lives of

Family Viewing

"Dark Days in Monkey City" airs Tuesday on Animal Planet.

Northwest loggers returns, following the two leading teams from last season. They're joined by three new companies, all competing to fell the most timber. Some of these wizened characters can trace their families back to the settling of the West. They confidently handle powerful machinery and sleep in remote outposts under the stars. A father and son team is among the newcomers.

TUESDAY

8 p.m. on APL Dark Days in Monkey City

Alas! King Lear rules no longer, only this time the sovereign did not abdicate. With Hector usurping Lear's place as top monkey, the lowly Portia fears for her babies. Will Hector kill them as some male monkeys tend to do when the offspring are not those they sired? And at Temple Lake, the aristocrats munch on lilies within easy reach, while the lower caste monkeys wade into dangerous waters.

Myths about green building

Green construction has become a mainstream building practice. Looking for cost-effective and environmentally friendly ways to improve upon or construct a home or business is no longer the ideal of a fringe society of environmentalists. People across the board are recognizing the advantages to building green -- both to their bottom line and the planet. Despite how widespread green building has become, certain myths still get presented when the topic is broached. Here's a look at the more common.

Myth: Green building is for tree-huggers. Fact: According to estimates from the Environmental Home Center in Seattle, the overall market for sustainable building materials is about $20 billion a year. That figure is expected to grow more than 10 percent annually. Green building is more mainstream than ever before. Certainly environmentalists are interested. However, regular people who just want to do their own part for the environment are interested, too.

Spring cleaning

It's the season for sorting and reducing items in your home or office that have turned into clutter. Some people hold on to items that they no longer need or use because they can't bear to throw them in the trash. Instead of making a bee line for the garbage pail, sort items that are still useful and in good condition into piles that you will sell. Take advantage of the first warm weekend to hold a yard sale and make some money on your seldom-used stuff. People who don't want to spend a day manning the yard sale tables can place advertisements for their belongings in a newspaper's classified section. Online auction sites are another option for parting with items that may be your trash but another person's treasure.

Did you know?

A pneumatic nail gun is a faster way to do jobs that require a lot of nailing. The gun requires a fraction of the time as a traditional manual hammer and nails. Pneumatic nail guns come in two main types: cordless nailers and nailers powered by an air compressor. The air compressor models are less expensive, but work is limited by the length of your air hose. The cordless nailers are powered by a fuel cell and battery, so they are much more portable but generally cost more. Nails for these guns come in magazine-style packets of various lengths.

colony that will soon find their way to your food." The key to successfully controlling ants is to lure worker ants – those that you see out marching around – to bait, which they carry back and feed to the rest of the colony. But while the insecticide in the bait should ultimately kill the worker ant, it must work slowly enough that the worker has time to get back and share the bait with the colony. That is the only way to get rid of both the ants you see and the thousands you don't. Clark notes that many indoor ant problems are actually linked to a colony that is outside. Often the most effective solution, therefore, is one that addresses the problem outside the home. "For a longer-term solution, turn to an ant bait product," suggests Clark. "This will actually eliminate the entire colony." TERRO Outdoor Liquid Ant Baits work especially well on outdoor ant colonies because they allow you to put bait closer to the colony itself, making it significantly easier for worker ants to transmit the bait. The patented TERRO container keeps the liquid ant bait from drying out and protects it from the elements. The baits are pre-filled and ready to use without the hassle of drips and spills, and a full ounce of bait is enclosed in each station for maximum effectiveness. Simply open the bait station, place it near ant trails or where ants are congregating, and wait for the bait to
