Wind farms 'coming'

DIANNE STALLINGS
dstallings@ruidosonews.com

Wind farms seem to be a good fit for Lincoln County, but county commissioners were warned at a special meeting they need to be prepared with an ordinance and not rush into approving projects.

Mike Newman from First Southwest Company in Dallas, an investment banking firm that specializes in public finance, told commissioners at their special meeting earlier this month wind farms in northern areas of the county appears to be on horizon. He explained the advantages of an

Northern Lincoln County could be coveted for wind energy, but county commissioners are advised to prepare an ordinance, first ordinance, the use of industrial revenue bonds for financing a project and providing tax breaks, and the dollar savings of coordinating with a neighboring county.

Developers research a county for good wind and access to a transmission line, he said.

"Typically good wind is in remote areas," he said. "Lincoln County is perfectly positioned if you have the wind, because you have the main transmission line out to California, so I suspect if you have seen one (wind farm developer), you will see more."

County Manager Tom Stewart said landowners in the county are being approached.

"The charts for the county show some of highest wind in the state is north of Capitan, so it's coming," he said.

Commission Chairman Tom

Battin said, "It concerns me a little bit about timing, relative to contracting between developers and landowners. I would think it would be to the advantage of the landowners to have an ordinance for protection. If they sign contracts prior to an ordinance, I wonder as to the effectiveness."

"I think we're under pressure to get it done," Stewart agreed.

"The new president of the New Mexico Association of Counties is from Union County and went to great lengths to say how helpful Mike and his company were,"

A chance to say goodbye

Capitan's Pat Campbell, who has cancer, lives through a generosity toward others

jcarter@ruidosonews.com

In the sadness of the situation, friends and family are happy for the opportunity to tell a very special woman how they feel about her.

Three weeks ago, Patricia (Pat) Campbell, of Capitan, received a medical diagnosis of pancreatic cancer that gave her a short time limit for her days here on Earth.

With the same enthusiasm she has had for living, she is embracing her ending in peace.

She's gone fishing. Fighting cancer for the past 15 of her 61 years, Pat never stopped living life for others and to the fullest. People in Capitan, Fort Stanton and Camp Sierra Blanca know her as the Ms. Claus who created a bountiful Thanksgiving dinner for those without family, home or place to celebrate the holiday. Last year, she added Christmas dinner and gifts to her project of love.

Outgrowing the space at Calamity Jane's, she moved the event to the County Fairgrounds building where she fed and celebrated the holidays with hundreds. She was their angel, and more than one described her that way.

Krystal Silverthorn wrote, "Miss Pat is an angel sent from heaven. Unfortunately, God is calling her home. She will be truly missed."

"She has always done for others," said her brother David Campbell. "And now is the time for people to tell her what they want her to know before she leaves us."

Workers last week came across the huge rock underneath the old veranda of the administration building at historic Fort Stanton.

The stone appeared to come from the ground level of the building at some point when workers were changing from dirt to wood flooring.

Bearing the date 1862 and an insignia of crossed sabers, it was pushed out of the way with the inscriptions face down in the earth, which probably preserved them over the past

Alto Lakes

The Alto Lakes Water & Sanitation District Board will meet at 9 a.m., Thursday, in the Conference Room of the ALW&SD Office, 214 Lake Shore Dr., Alto.

A public hearing is set for 9 a.m. on a resolution amending rates, tolls and fees, followed by a public hearing at 9:30 a.m. on the final Fiscal Year 2010 operating and capital budget resolution.

The regular agenda includes reports from the operation manager and office manager, as well as possible action on Water Treatment including Phase I design; Solid Waste Convenience Station; ALPOA use of maintenance yard for chemicals; request for service from Pickel; Swine Flue planning; and legislative representation.

County are looking for special items for their yard sale from 9 a.m. to noon, Saturday, at 1305 Sudderth Dr. in Ruidoso.

They suggested that now is the time to clean out closets and storage units, and get rid of "stuff" by dropping off items from 5 p.m. to 7 p.m., Friday, or on the day of the sale at the same address. Pricing the items in advance would help.

Call Maria Quintana at 937-8394 for more information or to volunteer.

Federated Republican Women of Lincoln County will be July 27 at Cree Meadows, Country Club. The speaker will be Steve Pearce.

It will be a buffet, and the cost is $11.50 per person, including tip. RSVP to 653-4379.

AG workshop

Attorneys from the New Mexico Attorney General's office will be in Ruidoso July 29 for a workshop on the Open Meetings Act and the Inspection of Public Records Act.

The workshop will run from 9 to 11:30 a.m. at the Ruidoso Convention Center, Room 4, 111 Sierra Blanca Dr.

The workshops are designed to provide assistance to local governments, members of government boards and commissions and the general public in understanding the state's open government laws. This year, the AG added a Methamphetamine Awareness Presentation that will begin at 11:30 a.m.

The AG's office will host similar events in communities across New Mexico in the coming months.

Ruidoso Art Festival Returns for 38th Year!

The Ruidoso Valley Chamber of Commerce announces new events planned for the 38th Annual Ruidoso Art Festival and City Bank New Mexico is proud to sponsor the Festival's entertainment once again. Every July the Convention Center in Ruidoso, New Mexico, is transformed from an empty cavern into a chamber of wonders as more than 150 artists gather for the Art Festival. The Festival draws top artists from around the nation.

From humble beginnings as an outdoor tent show, the Ruidoso Art Festival has evolved into an indoor show renowned as one of the nation's Premier Juried Fine Arts Shows. On July 23rd, world renowned cellist, Zuill Bailey, performs at the Performing Arts Hall. The Art Show officially opens on Friday, July 24th. At 7:00 PM that evening, a giant Artist party will be open to the public featuring nationally known artists Del Castillo performing Latin rock and world music on an outdoor stage. Michael Hurd will also be presented with a Life-Time Achievement Award and signing posters of his work, Afternoon Hike at Ft. Stanton. Artists' party tickets are now on sale at the Chamber and City Bank locations. Also new this year - there will be wine tasting of New Mexico Wines and gourmet food vendors.

The Ruidoso Art Festival ... a jubilant celebration of ART on July 23th through 26, 2009! Contact the Chamber of Commerce for all Festival info at (575) 257-7395 or www.RuidosoNow.com.

Comprehensive plan needed a kick-start

Task force may have provided the catalyst

Ruidoso's Comprehensive Master Plan contains a number of lofty visions for the future: bicycle trails, a river walk, a clean economy based on art and tourism, a pedestrian-friendly Midtown, an improved transportation model, public gathering spots, mixed-use neighborhoods, etc.

What the plan doesn't contain is a road map for achieving those goals – the often-tedious and costly process of implementing and adapting desired change to existing infrastructure, zoning laws and ordinances, and to capital improvement priorities and the annual budget.

Enter the Comprehensive Plan Task Force, comprised of elected officials and concerned citizens, which last week presented a concise 23-page document setting goals, action steps and deadlines.

This is the kick-start the village's master plan needed. Theoretically, it will tether the plan to incremental decisions made by the village council and the planning & zoning commission. It will align the plan with applicable codes and regulations.

While the task force did its job, implementation of elements of the plan remains in the discussion phase. Let's hope the timetable for real action has been launched.

Healthcare reform begins at home

In the healthcare reform debate, personal responsibility and its flip side, chronic disease, surface often but rarely with the clarity of recent dueling letters to the editor.

"Seventy-five percent of our country's health-care costs are for chronic illnesses, and many of them – obesity, hypertension, heart disease, diabetes, complications of alcoholism, emphysema and lung cancer – can be prevented, but people with unhealthy lifestyles don't want to put out the effort to make the change," wrote Albuquerque physician Torre Near.

He adds that unhealthy people have no incentive to improve their lives because premiums are the same for the healthy person as they are for "the person who is fat, smokes, drinks, whose exercise is working the remote and who sees the doctor every two weeks."

Robert Schwartz, a professor of law and pediatrics at UNM, rebuked Near for blaming one particular group for the problem. He argues that people with unhealthy habits don't cost us more because they'll die soon. But the nonsmokers, for example, will actually consume more health-care resources because they live longer.

So there you have it. You salad eaters, joggers and non-smokers are the problem!

But seriously, folks, Near has a point. How do we address chronic disease related to personal choices?

Back in May, Sen. Jeff Bingaman introduced The Obesity Prevention, Treatment and Research Act of 2009 to come up with "a comprehensive strategy to prevent, treat and reduce the prevalence of overweight individuals and obesity."

Do we really need more research to tell us how fat we are? Not really. Can obesity be addressed in a government program? No and maybe. Let me explain.

One recent study says of eating habits and weight gain: Like mother, like daughter, like father, like son. Another reports that nearly 86 percent of black Americans, 29 percent of Hispanics, and 24 percent of whites are obese. A Center for Disease Control epidemiologist said poverty limits food choices but added that blacks and Hispanics are more accepting of high weight.

I would argue the notion of acceptance. Looking at my own family, it's really a sense of resignation: When everyone around you is heavy and has diabetes, that's your expectation for yourself.

When all the people in your life can't live without a Big Mac and fries, what will you learn?

Yet, even my family has its success stories. My nephew lost 150 pounds and boasts a normal weight for the first time in his life. What was the trigger?

"Nothing, really," he said. "It was just time."

Any particular diet?

"No, I just tried to eat better – more fruit and vegetables – and started taking a walk after dinner." As he lost weight, his walks grew longer. Then he took up hiking. His wife joined him and lost 60 pounds.

Point is, he knew he had a problem, and he knew what he needed to do. His journey began, literally, with a single step.

The market for healthcare coverage is dysfunctional, but the weight-loss market is pretty effective. It's not hard to find a gym, a Weight Watchers or Jenny Craig program, or a diet book, and grocery store shelves bulge with healthy choices.

But the market doesn't serve poor people, so there's a modest role for government. Improving school lunches is a step. Bingaman's bill would increase funding to the Department of Agriculture's Fresh Fruit and Vegetable Program.

Even more can be done locally. Las Cruces has a community-wide obesity prevention effort aimed at families and kids. And a few years ago, Zuni Pueblo, responding to spiraling diabetes rates, built a walking trail and launched a public information campaign.

With community programs, there's less Big Brother and more, We're All In This Together.

Cutting race dates would harm economy

To the editor:

OPEN LETTER TO Governor Bill Richardson, re: horseracing dates for 2010.

Honorable Governor Richardson:

Three New Mexico Racetracks have proposed a significant cut to their race days for 2010 over 2009. The tracks are The Downs at Albuquerque, which is proposing a race date cut of 15 days (42 in 2009 to 27 in 2010); Ruidoso Downs, which is proposing to cut 14 days (63 in 2009 to 49 in 2010) and Zia Park, which is proposing to run four fewer days (57 in 2009 to 54 in 2010).

A total cut of 33 days from race dates calendared for 2009 has been proposed by the tracks for 2010. If these cuts are granted by the New Mexico Racing Commission, there will be approximately 330 fewer races run in 2010 than in 2009.

This will mean a reduction of 3,300 horse starts in 2010. These drastic cuts in race days will severely impact our owners, trainers, their employees and the thousands of folks based in New Mexico who depend on racing in New Mexico to make a living.

In addition, the race date cuts, if approved, will negatively impact tourism in this state as well as the state's bottom line, as less pari-mutual and other taxes will be generated as a result. Indeed, even the vaunted quarter horse Triple Crown series run annually at Ruidoso Downs may be negatively impacted by the severely shortened race meet that has been proposed.

The racetracks that have requested the race date cuts will be the sole beneficiaries from the proposed reduction of race dates as they will save money against their bottom line.

These savings will, however, be quickly offset by the negative impact on the horsemen and others who work at the tracks and in the communities where the race tracks are located.

In those communities, horse feed, bedding, vet supplies and services, gasoline, diesel and other supplies and necessities are purchased in large quantities.

In sum, there will be few winners – the owners of the three racetracks who have requested less days for 2010 and many losers, including the Horsemen who race in New Mexico.

In 2007, at the Legislative Finance Committee meeting held in Ruidoso, the Honorable Representative Ben Lujan informed the audience present that the reason that gaming at racetracks was passed in New Mexico was to ensure that a vital part of the state's economy and heritage, namely the racing and breeding of race horses, would not become extinct.

Cutting race dates diminishes the industries of horseracing and horse breeding in New Mexico.

We ask that you and the New Mexico Racing Commission consider this letter favorably, as the commission acts on the requests of the racetracks for race date cuts in 2010.

Sincerely,

Pat Bingham

Journeys of the dead

For the first time in 18 years – and, in a sense, ever – we whose taxes and consent fuel wars can see the military rites that honor the grief of families who have lost loved ones.

I hadn't been touched by that grief since the Iraq/Afghanistan wars started, because no one that I know, or from my town of Taos, has been among the nearly 50 New Mexicans killed so far.

A reality-based film and a shift in policy invite us to feel the mourning.

We have been barred from seeing caskets arrive at Dover Air Force Base in Delaware since 1991, under order of Bush Sr. Only this April, Secretary of Defense Robert Gates partially lifted the ban. The family can now allow press at this solemn homecoming, but the press cannot take pictures of the family.

As far as I know, no commercial film has ever recounted in detail the journeys of the dead from theater of battle to hometown.

As my wife and I sat in our darkened living room watching the film "Taking Chance," which never showed action in battle or the face of the deceased, tears rolled down our faces many times.

The film shows, with quiet reverence, the accumulating weight of the pains the Marines take to clean, dress, and speed the body of Lance Cpl. Chance Phelps from Iraq to his funeral in Dubois, Wyoming. It could be any small town in the United States.

The film is luminous with reality because it is the story of Marine Lt. Col. Michael Stroble, who volunteered to be the official escort for Chance Phelps on his return home. Stroble co-wrote the screenplay, and had Marine advisors authenticate every detail of demeanor and ritual.

Kevin Bacon plays Stroble. The Marine advisors "were all over me," Bacon said. "They didn't want me to look like a jerk." Bacon doesn't. He is lean and straight and quiet, with a close buzzcut and an angular face reminiscent of a young Clint Eastwood.

Stroble had often scanned the lists of Marine KIA's from his desk job in the Pentagon, feeling guilty he hadn't put in for another tour in Iraq. When he saw Chance Phelps's name from the same town as Stroble, he volunteered to escort Phelps, even though his commander says having a colonel escort a corporal was "highly unusual."

The motion of the film follows Bacon as he reports to Dover Air Force Base to meet the plane bearing Chance Phelps's body. The subsequent journey from Dover to Wyoming is intercut with the myriad careful steps that began back at the morgue in Iraq: bags of ice placed along Chance's body bag; honor guards, aircrews, and baggage handlers standing at attention and saluting in slow motion when Phelps's casket is moved from plane to cart to van for the long drive.

At the Dover mortuary, we see hands sponging Phelps's hands clean of dirt and blood, and carefully removing and cleaning his ring, dog tags, and St. Christopher medal. These are placed in a velvet bag that Bacon will hand to Phelps's mom.

Hands, black and white, put a crisp full-dress uniform on Chance, though his wounds require a closed-casket funeral. In the Wyoming plains, semi-truck drivers and ranchers turn on their headlights at the sight of the official black Suburban.

This beautiful film was directed by Ross Katz for HBO. Its meticulous honesty shows how a film can bring us closer to the emotional truth of the more than 4,000 dead who have come home from the far deserts.

I salute the reverence and respect in rituals the military wrap around the fallen. I implore Congress and the administration to increase their care for the wounded.

Commissioner Dave Parks told fellow board members. Newman guided the development of an ordinance for Union County in cooperation with Harding County, because the proposed project straddled the two counties. To date, commissioners in Union have not passed the ordinance.

"It doesn't come free," Stewart said of Newman's help.

"We're consultants and work by contract," Newman explained. Counties don't have much extra money and the company contracts on a contingent basis. "If financing goes forward, we get paid from that, and there is no cost, if doesn't go forward," he said. "My job is to help clients make the best decisions and protect them."

His company's contract is a simple 4 1/2-page document, he said. "We don't go forward if we don't think a project is likely," Newman said. "It's a generic document and we attach an addendum with a fee schedule. It's a five-year agreement that can be canceled anytime for any reason with 30 days notice. We don't want to be where someone doesn't want us or somewhere we don't want to be."

Wind farms work on a thin profit margin as developers sell their power in a competitive market. The company's $25,000 maximum fee is payable from industrial revenue bond proceeds, "so if (the deal) is not closed, there is no fee to you."

County Attorney Alan Morel said that information covers his concern about violating the state procurement code to require requests for proposals, because the fee falls under the $50,000 mark.

At their regular meeting Tuesday, commissioners approved the contract with First Southwest and set a public hearing for their August meeting on the proposed ordinance. Stewart said the one-month breather will give a chance for the contract to be reviewed by another consultant, who works for the county handling cell tower applications. Representatives of the industry "will come out of the woodwork," when they hear an ordinance is being adopted, the manager said.

During the previous special meeting, Newman said one attorney from Modrall Sperling in "New Mexico tends to represent most of the wind farm developers in New Mexico on projects. The developer will have plenty of attorneys. He advised the commission to hire an attorney and financial advisor loyal to the commission with a fiduciary responsibility to the board. The bond counsel is not tied to the county, he's there to do handle the bonds, Newman said. "You tend to see problems where there is one person for both sides," he said.

"After they come, they will want to build on a timeline," Newman said of the developers. "Everything will be a rush. I would suggest examination and implementation of an ordinance to develop wind farms before they come, so you can do it at your pace and decide what's important to Lincoln County and the protection of its citizens. It covers predominantly safety and building issues, setbacks" and decommissioning of equipment when worn out or closed down.

"It's easier to get something done before someone who has an agenda at cross purpose to what you want to achieve. While the wind farm developers initially fought an ordinance and said to 'trust them,' they came to realize the value of an ordinance that sets rules and regulations for both sides."

A major issue covered in the ordinance was repair of roads used by trucks hauling heavy equipment, but other aspects such as height limits also were included. Height approvals are required by the Federal Aviation Administration and the military, because of air traffic over the wind farm territory.

"It gave them ground rules so they knew what to build and if they did that in compliance, they were protected from changes in law, so (an ordinance) benefited both sides," Newman said. "That project straddled Union and Harding, which wasn't going to do an ordinance, but when (wind farm developers) realized the value, they pushed for adoption so they had certainty."

An outfit called High

Lonesome Wind Farm is developing turbines in neighboring Torrance County, Newman said. "It's the same one doing the facility in Union/Harding County. Typically a developer approaches a landowner first for easements to put up the towers. Almost all are wildcatters, who put a deal together. They have no money and bring in Southern California Edison, which is what happened in Union. They couldn't get access to transmission lines to bring power to buyers. They got that from Tri-State Power. They brought in Southern Cal Edison to finance and own it. The wildcatter will get a percentage and ultimately will be taken out of ownership by Southern Cal Edison. I believe that's the same way High Lonesome will work."

Commissioner Eileen Sedillo said small ranchers came together to form an association. An individual rancher is at a disadvantage against large corporations, she said. They band together for better leverage and because wind projects may run through multiple properties. They can create bigger tracts.

"Otherwise," Newman said, "a turbine may be on one and not the other, so one owner doesn't share in the revenue. Some larger ranch owners think they have enough property to stay on their own."

Newman said wind farms in New Mexico have benefited from industrial revenue bonds that only can be accessed by a county or municipality. "So if they want that tax break, they have to come to you and then you can say as county commissioners, we have a responsibility to the community and want them to sit down and negotiate. You set the law with which they have to comply." It's to their advantage to have that law in place before they conclude their contracts with landowners, he said.

Industrial revenue bonds shield the purchase of most equipment to construct the turbines and towers from gross receipts taxes, Newman said. If a county takes a leasehold interest, that takes the land off the tax rolls, so counties ask for compensation for losing those taxes.

"In Union County, the developer said this is all I can afford to pay," he said. "A commissioner said he wanted to know what was fair, the value of the tax break, so he would be able to tell his constituents."

Newman said he created a spreadsheet and how the project in Union was estimated to grow over time.

"We could not give an absolute value difference," but estimated the loss against gains and presented it at a town meeting. The public complimented commissioners for having an independent professional answer the question."

Developers initially contended the state Construction Industry Division would handle all inspections, "and not to worry."

"We spoke to the person at CID who inspects wind farms and there is no inspection code for such in New Mexico, but because they generate power and are elevated, they fall under utility construction. We had to validate all of the representations by the developer." His company also projected the number of permanent jobs to be created and the average salary. They projected lodgers tax and gross receipts tax produced, and service demand impacts.

"An important aspect was to protect the roads against wear and tear, and we made the developer agree to put roads back (to previous condition) and to designate which roads they would use, any remediation from damage through construction to ensure the county was back to looking like rural New Mexico when they were finished," Newman said.

The turbines are built to last from 20 to 30 years, he said.

Newman warned that although IRBs are used in the state to foster economic development by giving a tax break to companies, wind farms are not "credit worthy," because there is start-up and long-term risk.

"The name on the Modrall document would be the county's, so they carry a reputation risk," he said. "You want to make sure it's explicit in the documents and disclosed to investors, they have no financial recourse and you are indemnified. The wind generators are the sole source of repayment. There is no pledge of taxes. That should be explicit throughout the document."

Peace Village is a multi-cultural day camp with the mission to provide a fun, educational environment in which children can learn the messages of and practice non-violence and peace making from various world traditions. All activities encourage respect for racial and cultural diversity.

"We do have an introduction to cultural diversity," Peace Camp co-director Kayla Glasgow said. "Our main theme, though, is non-violent conflict resolution."

The children meet in an opening circle each morning to formally begin the day, and where they will hear inspiring short talks from local leaders about a topic related to peace. It might be a discussion about the similarities and differences among different cultures or various methods of non-violent conflict resolution.

Then the kids break up into groups by ages for many other classes.

In the afternoon, organized musical games and rhythm band activities entertain the children while teaching the value and fun of team activities.

All classes and experiences are developmentally appropriate for each age group seven through thirteen. High school students serve as group leaders, mentoring the children in their groups.

The interactions between campers and teens, who serve as positive role-models, is an important aspects of the camp.

"This year we are adding classes on the environment," Glasgow said. "We will be teaching the kids the importance of taking care of Mother Earth."

The kids will receive a class on media literacy.

"We try to teach the kids what the media is trying to tell them and make them think," Glasgow said.

On Friday, the last day of camp, parents are invited to a candlelight graduation ceremony where each child receives a certificate and a T-shirt.

"Our attitude is that these kids are our future and it is very important to nurture them and teach them," Glasgow said. "We want them to know that they are special and make them feel that they are very special."

Cowbelles award scholarships

Each year Corriente CowBelles awards scholarships to deserving Lincoln county students who are graduating seniors, college students or graduate students that are studying agriculture or a related field.

This year four $400 scholarships are being awarded: two scholarships in memory of Ken Schear, through the generosity of his family and Ken's lifelong desire to help young people.

Staci Stanbrough, a senior at New Mexico State University (NMSU) in Las Cruces, and the daughter of Tiger and Karen Stanbrough, is the recipient of a Ken Schear memorial scholarship. Staci Stanbrough has maintained an A average during her college career along with actively participating on the NMSU Rodeo Team. She qualified for the Collegiate National Finals Rodeo for two years and continues to take honors in rodeo. Staci Stanbrough recently changed her college major from Ag Business and Economics to Animal Science with a pre-veterinarian option. She is currently working as a surgery intern at Equine Sports Medicine and Surgery located at Sunland

The second Ken Schear memorial scholarship is presented to Ryan Gaines, son of Mike and Melody Gaines. Ryan Gaines is a 2006 graduate of Carrizozo High School and a senior at NMSU, where he is majoring in agriculture and extension education. He has been very active in his local FFA and 4H organizations throughout his school years. After graduation in May 2010, he plans to begin a welding business, and later teach technical and vocational skills at a trade school or college.

Dulcie Sultemeier, a 2009 graduate of Corona High School, is recipient of a third Corriente scholarship. Sultemeier graduated at the top of her class as valedictorian and is a fourth generation rancher on the family ranch east of Corona. Sultemeier plans to attend West Texas A&M at Canyon, Texas, in the fall, where she will study veterinary science to become a veterinary technician. Working in that position she hopes to help the ranching community as well as her own family business.

Sara Rush is a fourth recipient of a CowBelle scholarship for this year. Rush will be attending NMSU at Las Cruces in the fall, where she will major in Agriculture Business and Economics. She has been very active in extra-curricular activities at Capitan High School, including FFA, 4-H, National Honor Society, Softball and Crossfire Youth group. Rush was a FFA chapter officer for four years and has participated in Career Development Events for all six years of her FFA involvement. Rush has been in 4H for eight years and is currently president of the Capitan 4H club. Rush has shown nearly every breed of farm animal at the annual Lincoln County Fair.

Capitan middle schoolers get a taste of college

Two Capitan Middle School Students were selected to attend the UNM Summer Law Institute this summer.

The camp, sponsored by the New Mexico Hispanic Bar Association, State Bar of New Mexico, University of New Mexico, and ENLACE, invited 24 students from across the state after a rigorous selection process.

Tristan Romero and Natalie Barnwell, both going into eighth grade, were selected to participate in the law program this summer.

The students stayed on campus to experience college life and were able to explore the world of law. They visited small and large law firms, as well as numerous court proceedings including state and federal courts.

Romero and Barnwell also participated in the creation and preparation of both sides of a case and presented it in a mock trial in front of a presiding judge at the District Courthouse in Albuquerque.

They also participated in team building and recreational activities, leadership training, educational programming and community service activities.

Although the students went on different weeks, both returned with an excitement about their future. They have been comparing notes from the cases and talking about what lies ahead for them in their college careers.

The program is designed to encourage students to go to college.

RUIDOSO POLICE BRIEFS

Teed off

Officer Larry Smith took a report of two auto burglaries at a golf course July 20. The second victim discovered that his car had been burglarized while Smith was taking the report of the first burglary. The first burglary was discovered when clerks at a convenience store called police to report checks being found in the parking lot. The owner of the checks is an employee of the golf course. An IPOD, two sets of headphones and some heartburn medicine were reported missing from the second vehicle.

Out of the pool

Officer Mike Weaver took a report of an auto burglary at the Ruidoso Municipal Swimming Pool July 20. $100 and a driver's license were reportedly stolen.

Just talking

Officers Jon Lund and Mike Weaver were sent to Sierra Mall to investigate a report of two suspicious vehicles July 19. Weaver received consent to search Matthew Sammis, 35, of Alamogordo, vehicle. Weaver reportedly found a small amount of marijuana in the vehicle. Lund stopped the second vehicle before it left the parking lot. David Lambert, 46, of Screaming Eagle, reportedly gave Weaver consent to search his vehicle also. Weaver allegedly found marijuana seeds in a bag in Lambert's vehicle. Both were issued citations for possession of marijuana. The police were called by employees of a business that were suspicious of these actions in the parking lot.

Look at me!

Ruidoso Police were alerted to be on the lookout for a Chevrolet S-10 pickup southbound on Mechem Drive at a high rate of speed, weaving in and out of traffic with the driver and passenger making obscene gestures at motorist on July 18. Officer Mike Weaver located the vehicle at Mechem and Sudderth. After following the vehicle through midtown, Weaver stopped the vehicle to check on the welfare of the occupants because of their earlier reported actions. The driver of the vehicle gave Weaver consent to search. Weaver found a bag of what was believed to be marijuana and a package of Zig Zag papers in a cigarette pack in the glove box. Joshua Rocha, 23, of Glencoe, the passenger in the truck, was cited for possession of marijuana and possession of drug paraphernalia.

Broke up

Officer James Urban took a report of a broken windshield on a vehicle in the 200 block of Hemlock July 18. The estranged husband of the vehicles owner is a suspect.

George of the Jungle

At about 5:20 p.m. July 17 a truck reportedly hit a tree on Lower Terrace Drive. The vehicle was reportedly traveling at a high rate of speed before it struck the tree, leaving about 100 feet of skid marks on the road. The driver of the vehicle, John Rudolph, 41, of the 500 block of Lake Shore, Alto, reportedly told witnesses "Don't call the police." Rudolph reportedly managed to get the vehicle back on the road, drove into the ditch and hit a tree on the other side of the road. After the second accident, Rudolph reportedly drove to a nearby parking lot where Ruidoso Police arrested him for reckless driving, after having him checked for injuries by Emergency Medical Personnel. Rudolph reportedly refused treatment.

You can run...

Sergeant Joel Martinez reported that he was running radar in the 1100 block of Mechem Drive at 10:45 p.m. July 17 when he observed a silver colored vehicle northbound on Mechem at 60 miles an hour, in the 40 mile an hour zone. Martinez reported that he pursued the vehicle north on Mechem and saw it turn on Alpine Village road, turn of it's lights and speed up the road. The vehicle then reportedly turned on Sequoia. Martinez reported finding the vehicle in the 200 block of Sequoia and said Justin Brown-Gonzalez, 29, was on the porch of the house. Martinez reported that the vehicle was still smoking from being driven hard. Brown-Gonzalez denied turning his lights off to evade Martinez. Martinez arrested him on a charge of resisting, evading or obstructing an officer and cited him for 60 mph in a 40 mph zone. Brown-Gonzalez posted bond and was released.

Drugs missing

A shipment of drugs to a pharmacy was reportedly tampered with on July 17. The package arrived at the pharmacy with the tape on the box cut and a bottle of amphetamine and a bottle of oxycodone missing.

Calm down, dude

Francisco Solis, 27, of the 200 block of West White Mountain, was arrested for criminal trespass at a business in the 1100 block of Sudderth July 16. Police Chief Wolfgang Born reportedly tried to talk to Solis, then handcuffed him when he became uncooperative. Officer Chris Bryant arrived and placed Solis into his patrol car. Bryant reports that the car began shaking and he opened the door to attempt to calm Solis. Solis reportedly attempted to kick the door of the patrol car and when Bryant tried to secure his legs, head-butted Bryant in the face. After consulting with Assistant District Attorney Reed Thompson, Bryant charged Solis with battery on a police officer. Bryant reports that they are attempting to get Solis placed in a mental institute.

I am the DD

While on patrol at 11:45 p.m. July 15, Officer Lance Ledford reports observing a silver Jeep southbound on Hull Road that allegedly almost ran off the road. Ledford said he stopped the vehicle at Country Club Road. Ledford reported that the driver, Jared Medley, 28, of the 100 block of Juniper, had watery eyes, smelled of alcohol and slurred speech. Medley reportedly told Ledford that he was the designated driver for his girlfriend, who was drunk. Medley allegedly failed the field sobriety tests. Ledford arrested him on a charge of driving while intoxicated. Medley's blood alcohol was reported .19 on the breathalyzer.

Very observant

Sergeant Joel Martinez reported that a vehicle parked in a shopping center on Sudderth Drive caught his attention at 10:35 p.m. July 15. The passenger side door was open but the stores were closed. Martinez reportedly pulled his marked patrol car across the street and observed. A second vehicle arrived and the passenger of the first vehicle exited to talk to the driver of the second vehicle. When Antonio Trujillo, 46, of San Patricio, exited the vehicle Martinez reports he was carrying a pipe. Martinez allegedly observed him lighting the pipe and "smoking it like he was smoking a narcotic." Martinez called for additional officers. Trujillo reportedly then spotted the patrol car across the street and returned to the car. Martinez drove across the street and made contact with the occupants of the vehicles. David Trujillo, 45, reportedly exited the vehicle and when asked if he had any drugs gave Martinez a bag of marijuana. The driver of the second vehicle, Charles Soto, 38, of San Patricio, also consented to a search of his vehicle. Marijuana was allegedly also found in his vehicle. David Trujillo and Soto were cited for possession of marijuana. Antonio Trujillo was cited for possession of drug paraphernalia.

Fight club

On July 13 Officer Jon Lund was dispatched to a business in the 800 block of Sudderth for a fight in progress. Robert Minnix, 41, of the 100 block of Ravens Wing, Alto, was cited for criminal trespass and battery. Gary Caughron, 54, of the 100 block of Ranchmans Camp, Capitan, was cited for battery.

Soundproof truck

A Ford pickup reportedly backed into a Village owned bench in the 2800 block of Sudderth on July 13, knocking the bench from it's base, then left the scene. Police found the suspected vehicle and cited Charles Martinez, 51, of Roswell Avenue, for duty upon striking a fixture and immediate notice of an accident.

century.

No one knows for sure the purpose of the stone, but Mike Bilbo, historian and Bureau of Land Management cave specialist, said the speculation is that members of the 4th Cavalry, being onsite in the 1880s, decided to leave their mark.

Possible barracks

The building at that time may have been used for their barracks. The veranda now is dismantled and will be restored piece by piece to return the front of the old administration building to the elegant Victorian style of yesteryear. The peeling paint and faded wood will have a sheen and pride to it once again.

More research needs to be done, but for now the stone is one more example of the many secrets held within the walls and under the floors of the historic buildings at the fort commissioned in 1855 and situated about 13 northeast of Ruidoso.

Hidden tunnels

Hidden tunnels also were found and other foundations of various structures are everywhere. But for now, the major work of renovation is for the administration building that soon will become headquarters for the State Monument and Museum, the two officers' quarters buildings and also the Commandants' quarters and the stables.

The project is part of the ongoing renovation on the Quadrangle and also the historic stables. Funding includes capital outlay dollars, combined with a Save America's Treasures grant obtained from an application sent in by fort advocates Joe Arcure and Earl Pittman.

Stables stabilized

People driving past the fort may have noticed the old rusty tin roofs on the stable were replaced. The area was cleaned, the rock walls are being shored up and possibly, even the silos will be next in line for roof repair.

During a tour last Wednesday, one of the American endurance riders in the group noted that the stables looked "100 percent better" than the previous year when she visited.

County told to update Hazard Mitigation Plan – or else

dstallings@ruidosonews.com

If Lincoln County doesn't update its Hazard Mitigation Plan and another disaster like last year's massive flood strikes, the federal reimbursement will be much less, warned the county's emergency services manager.

Travis Atwell and consultant William Perry with Ecology and Environment Inc., told county commissioners Tuesday they identified 15 threats, the assets the county owns to attack them and 14 projects to be pursued in the plan, which should be ready to present in August.

"This is not your first hazard plan," Perry said. "But in the event there's another flood and this is not adopted, it will cut down the money from the Federal Emergency Management Agency."

Atwell said the document also must be approved by the state hazard manager and then by FEMA officials.

"Once it's in place, we can go after more funding," he said.

Commission Chairman

Tom Battin said he was amazed by the rapid response to the July 27, 2008, flood on the Rio Ruidoso and was told by others outside the county they never saw a makeshift bridge constructed so quickly to help evacuate stranded residents and visitors.

Perry explained the county's Hazard Mitigation Plan is the cause and the emergency operating plan is the effect. The hazard plan will outline ways to improve the response and to mitigate the effect of a hazard incident.

Commissioner Dave Parks said the plan should help generate more money to reduce fuel for wildfire and remove resulting slash piles and debris.

Wildfire No. 1 threat

Wildfire topped the list of 15 threats identified for the county, followed by high wind, flood, drought, thunderstorms, severe winter storms, tropical storms, dam failure, earthquake, tornadoes, hazardous materials, extreme heat, expansive soils, landslides and volcanoes.

The likelihood of each threat would depend on the section of the county, which varies in elevation from about 5,400 feet above sea level at the county seat of Carrizozo, where a relatively young lava flow covers a 40-mile stretch, to 8,000 feet in residential areas of Ruidoso and Alto.

The Ruidoso River begins in the Sacramento Mountains and flows through Ruidoso, Ruidoso Downs and Glencoe into Hondo Valley, picking up tributaries along the way.

Several mountains are higher than 10,000 feet, with Sierra Blanca Peak at 12,003 feet in neighboring Otero County. The Lincoln National Forest blankets 364,731 acres of the county that covers 4,831 square miles.

Some of the projects identified are to leverage hazard mitigation funding to improve response processes, to complete low water crossing and bridge improvements, to stop repetitive loss of certain roads, to improve the notification system with sirens to route Hazard Material transportation, and to improve the Grindstone Dam warning system.

Oscura landowner says environmental health employees violated civil rights

dstallings@ruidosonews.com

An Oscura landowner complained to Lincoln County commissioners Tuesday that his civil rights were violated by two state environmental health employees.

County Manager Tom Stewart was directed to refer the complaint to the 12th Judicial District Attorney's office for investigation.

When he stood up in commission meetings and in front of the Carrizozo town trustees early in the year to ask questions about a proposed septic dumping field on the townsite of Oscura, Carroll said he was targeted for retaliation by officials in the field office of the state Environment Department. Carroll's land where he maintains his goats also is in the townsite.

"I've been singled out for retaliation," he said. After his appearances, he received a notice citing him for discharging liquid waste from a septic system without a permit, he said. But Carroll has contended no one lives on the property, he has no septic system and he hauls in water for his goats.

A trailer he used for storage is for sale, he said.

He petitioned the commission to investigate under a county ordinance protecting the civil rights of residents. Any violation complaint is to be investigated by the county, the district attorney or in district court, he said, reading from the ordinance.

"I just received another notice that I need a septic system. For what, I don't know," he said. "I can't potty train my goats. My comments were used against me when I came before you. There were no complaints (against him)."

He signed for a certified letter because he assumed it was about the waste site he questioned, but instead the letter cited him.

"It says I have no septic and then said an outhouse is not permitted," he stated, adding that a state official misrepresented what he said in the commission meeting in a previous article on the issue. In that February article, Marissa Stone, public information officer for the state Environment Department, denied any retaliation. She said she understood employees were looking into a statement by Carroll at the meeting that he had an outhouse and he didn't have appropriate permits.

Commission Chairman

Tom Battin said Carroll or any other resident has the right to take a position in a public meeting.

Commissioners agreed the allegation was serious and should go to District Attorney Diana Martwick.

Carroll named two specific employees he contended violated his rights and tried to intimidate him.

THE WAY YOU USE POWER HAS CHANGED.

DOESN'T IT MAKE SENSE TO CHANGE HOW WE PROVIDE IT?

When technology and ingenuity come together, it's a beautiful thing. People here in the West should know. We've always had a way of taking what has worked well in the past, and re-imagining a better way. That's how we look at power.

At Tri-State, we're continually working to find innovative means of providing the power you need. Like renewable energy from clean and green sources, investing in new technology, and improving energy efficiency.

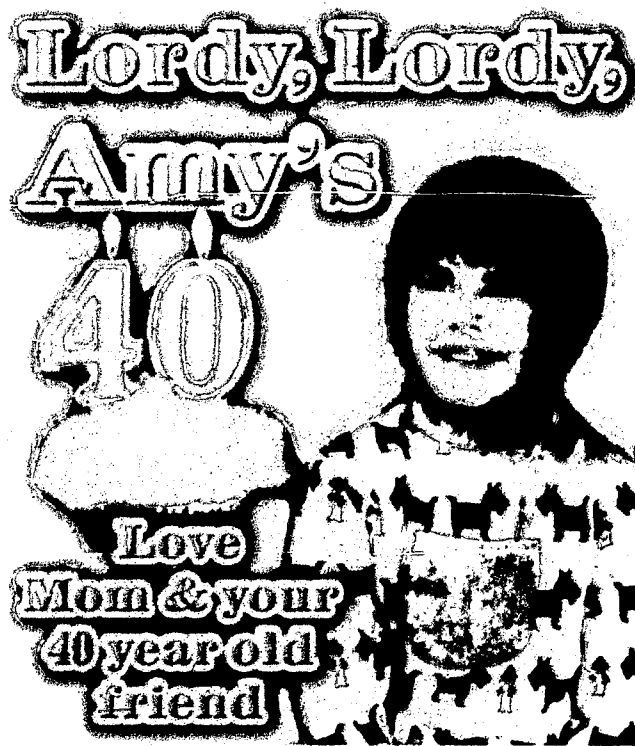

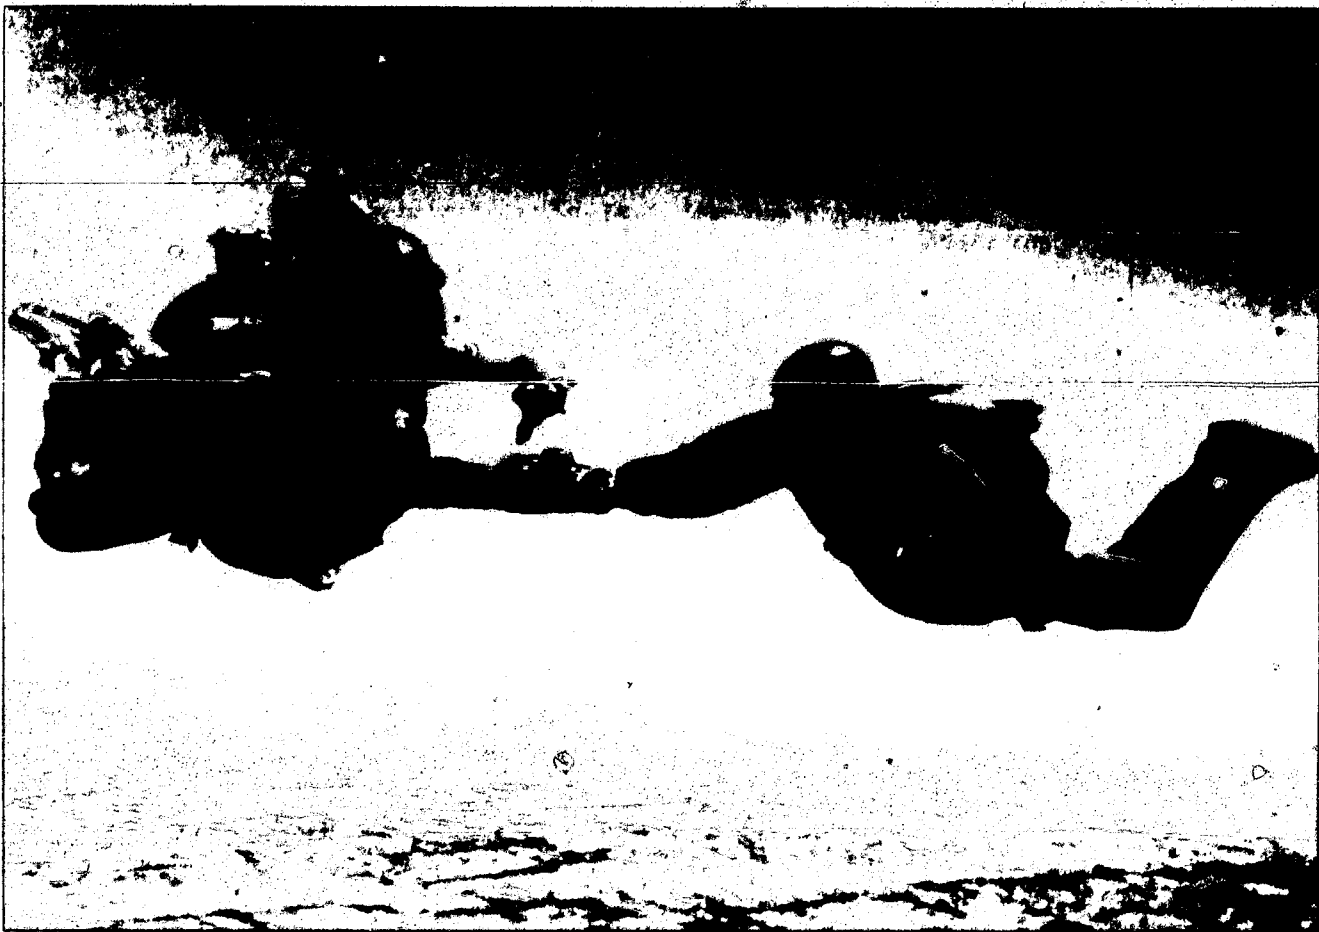

We're a not-for-profit, consumer-owned, wholesale energy co-op. That means we're owned and governed by the people we serve. Because we supply the power to your local electric co-op, we understand your needs. And as your needs change, we'll change with you as we join together to provide the reliable, affordable electricity you've come to expect. To learn more, visit www.tristateenergy.com.

Zoomin With Ease takes Futurity

TY WYANT

For the Ruidoso News

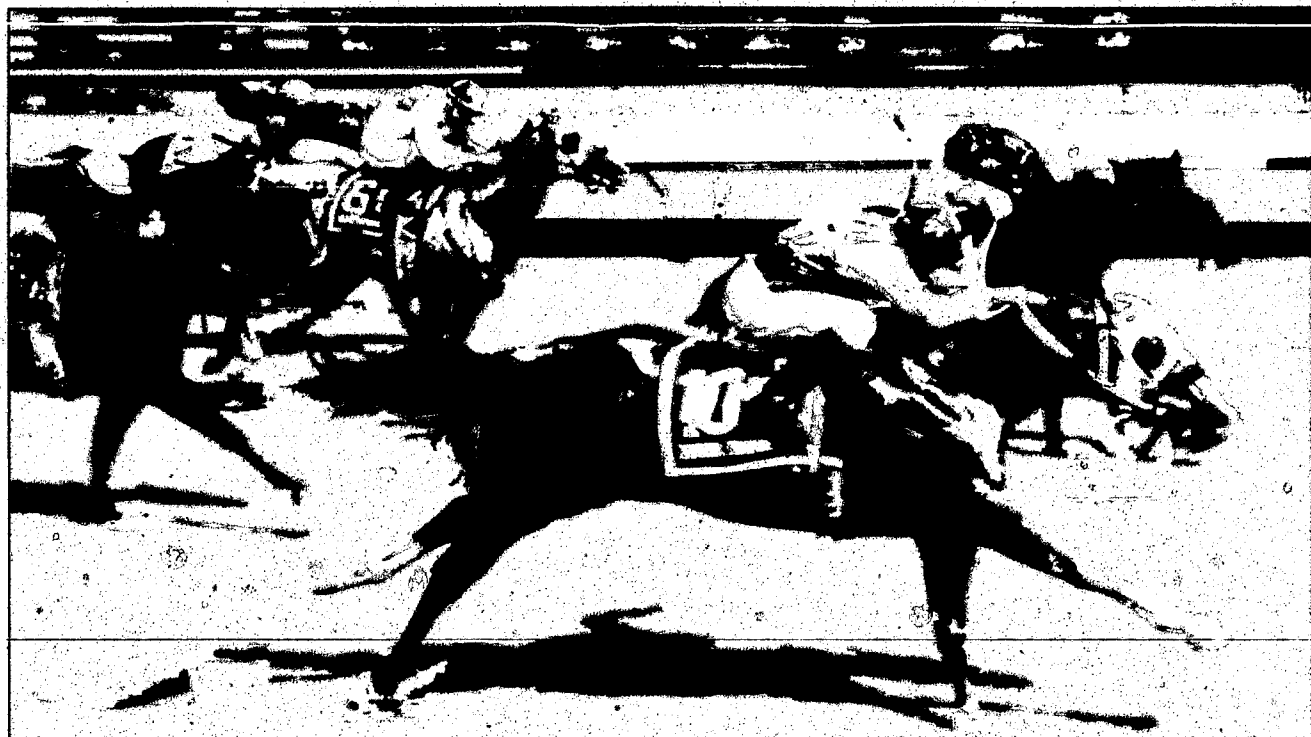

Bobby Cox's Zoomin With Ease rallied on the outside for a 12-1 upset in the Grade 1, $625,000 Rainbow Futurity on Sunday afternoon at Ruidoso Downs.

The B. Russel Hadley-ridden Zoomin With Ease raced the 400 yards in :19.586 for his first career win in his fifth start.

Zoomin With Ease crossed the finish line 1/2 length ahead of Running Brook Gal. Favorite Cartel, who went off as the 7-5 favorite, overcame a poor start to finish third, 1 1/4 lengths behind Running Brook Gal.

Running Brook Gal and Favorite Cartel were two of the four competitors in the Rainbow Futurity trained by Paul Jones, who won the Grade 1, $480,000 Rainbow Derby on Saturday with Inseperable.

He also saddled Stepenos and Brooks Midnight.

The John Buchanan-trained Zoomin With Ease broke alertly from the outside post position in the nine-horse field and raced greenly for the first half of the race.

Hadley straightened the gelding and he rallied to catch Running Brook Gal.

"John [Buchanan] said to force him to the wire and that's what I did," said Hadley. "He did everything perfect from the moment I got on him until I got off."

It was the first Rainbow Futurity win for owner Cox of Fort Worth, Texas, and his longtime trainer Buchanan.

Zoomin With Ease earned his spot in the Rainbow Futurity with a second-place finish in his Rainbow Futurity trial.

The horses with the 10-fastest times from the 20 trials on July 2, earned eligibility for the Rainbow Futurity.

Inseperable gives Jones third Rainbow Derby win

TY WYANT

For the Ruidoso News

Inseperable gave Ruidoso Downs' leading trainer Paul Jones his third Rainbow Derby win in the latest four years with a dominating 1 3/4 length win in the Grade 1, $480,867 derby on Saturday afternoon at Ruidoso Downs.

Jones, the seven-time defending national Quarter Horse training champion, also won the 2006 running with Strawkins and the 2007 renewal with Separate Bet.

The Cody Jensen-ridden Inseperable raced the 440 yards in :21.362.

Jensen also rode the Jones-trained Strawkins in the 2006 Rainbow Derby in a Ruidoso Downs' track record :20.736.

"Normally he breaks really well, but today he just blew away from the gate," said Jensen. "In the trials he shied from the whip so I never used it today."

After that excellent start he drew away to his third career win in his ninth start.

Jensen had his choice between Inseperable and Winners Version as his mount in the Rainbow Derby.

"I went with Inseperable because he was scrappier at the end in his trial race," he said.

Inseperable is owned by Jimmy Harrel, Duane Harrel, JoAnn Adams and Joe Peacock of Weatherford, Okla.

They also own Separate Bet, who is currently the No. 1 older horse in the

The 'new' family sport of pickleball comes to Ruidoso

mccurran@ruidosonews.com

Pickleball was created in the summer of 1965 on Bainbridge Island, Wash., near Seattle. According to its co-inventors, U.S. Congressman Joel Pritchard, William (Bill) Bell, Jordan Steranka and Barney McCallum, their intent was to develop a fun new sport for the entire family.

Reportedly (from the USA Pickleball Association, [USAPA]), the name came from a family dog named Pickles who would chase after the balls and then hide them in the bushes.

Pickle's Ball was subsequently shortened to pickleball.

Early on, families played the sport in their backyard on a hard surface, on driveways, and on dead-end streets.

As the sport grew in the 1970s, it evolved into a paddle-court sport with organized rules.

Pickleball is now played in school physical education programs and at parks and recreation centers, correctional facilities, camps, YMCAs and retirement communities. And now New Mexico.

The sport is similar to badminton and tennis.

The court it is played on has the same dimensions as badminton court but instead of a racket the player uses a hard paddle. The ball is larger than a tennis ball and is made of perforated plastic.

Mine That Bird to lead All American Futurity post parade

TY WYANT
For the Ruidoso News

Kentucky Derby winner Mine That Bird will lead the post parade for the Grade 1, $2 million All American Futurity, the world's most celebrated quarter horse race, on Labor Day, Sept. 7 at Ruidoso Downs.

"New Mexico is our home and everybody in New Mexico has supported us," said Mine That Bird's co-owner Mark Allen.

Dr. Leonard Blach, left, and Mark Allen are co-owners of Mine That Bird

"The people deserve to see him and we're excited about being able to parade him for the All American."

He teasingly added, "This may be as close as I get to an All American win."

In reality, his Quarter Horses are very successful at Ruidoso Downs. Time For A Cigar and Shaboomator swept the top-two spots in the Grade 1, $308,000 Ruidoso Derby on June 6.

Those two horses then finished second and third in the Grade 1, $480,000 Rainbow Derby on July 18.

Mine That Bird is scheduled to start in the $750,000 West Virginia Derby on Aug. 1, at Mountaineer Park and then race in the Grade 1, $1 million Travers Stakes at Saratoga, N. Y.

The Travers is called the "Mid-Summer Derby" is the oldest major Thoroughbred race in North America, first held in 1864.

Mine That Bird will then travel to New Mexico. The owners also plan, an event at Allen's Double Eagle Ranch in Roswell, so fans can view the gelding.

"R.D. Hubbard and Ann McGovern wanted us to bring him and the schedule worked out well after the Travers," said co-owner Dr. Leonard Blach.

"The support we have received has been unbelievable, even two months after the Kentucky Derby."

Hubbard is the majority owner of Ruidoso Downs and McGovern is the track's president and general manager.

"There are people still stopping us and congratulating us. I was at Wal-Mart just the other day and the cashier wanted me to sign the ticket for her. It's amazing," Blach added.

In 1983, when Blach managed and was the resident veterinarian at Buena Suerte Ranch in Roswell, he brought the then 30-year-old Go Man Go from that ranch to Ruidoso Downs and led him in front of the crowd

Mine That Bird will be at Ruidoso Downs Race Track on Labor Day before the All American Futurity.

Go Man Go was a three-time world champion in the 1950s and became a leading quarter horse sire.

After a few days stay in New Mexico, Mine That Bird will ship to Southern California with trainer Chip Woolley to prepare for the Grade 1, $5 million Breeders Cup Classic on November 7 during the Oak Tree meeting at Santa Anita Park.

"We're very thankful that Mine That Bird is coming to Ruidoso Downs," said Hubbard.

"He has done so much to boost the excitement about racing in New Mexico with his Kentucky Derby win. It's been great."

Mark Allen and Leonard Blach are to be commended. They're showing how much they appreciate New Mexico and New Mexico racing. It's an historic addition to the All American weekend."

Efforts were made for several years to bring the sport here and now Gary Beatty is about to see his dream come true.

Beatty will be conducting pickleball clinics in the near future and has secured the necessary courts needed.

And it's not as if he doesn't have the required experience. He has played tennis for more than 50 years and pickleball for more than 30 years. Beatty started playing the latter sport in 1978, and thought it was so much fun he started teaching it to his tennis students.

Beatty attended Southern Colorado State University on a tennis scholarship, has given tennis lessons pretty much his entire life and spent many years coaching the sport that he loves.

After retiring to Arizona, he volunteered to become the ambassador for pickleball and took the local club from 10-12 members to more than 150 members in one year.

"It's just so much darn fun, you become addicted," Beatty said.

Beatty was a junior high Industrial Arts teacher in Phoenix, Ariz., and could teach one elective outside his area.

He took that opportunity to teach pickleball.

The students who signed up for his class would report to his shop and make their paddles out of marine plywood and Beatty would take them out to the field and show them the game.

It was so popular to the 12-14-year-olds that the P.E. teachers incorporated it into their program.

"Pickleball is a very social, unisex sports activity that revolves around a mixing of doubles play and includes lots of socializing, exercise, fun and laughter," Beatty explained.

"It's easy to learn and fun for ages 8 to 88.

"It has been said, 'Well spent leisure time can lead to great leaps in happiness.' Activities that combine socializing and physical activity and require some moderate skills are the best. Pickleball fits this saying to a 'T'."

So much so, pickleball is now included in the New Mexico Senior Games.

And its popularity continues to surge across the

Carrizozo students to benefit from NM MESA program

jcarter@ruidosonews.com

Carrizozo students grades 6-12 will be offered the opportunity to participate in the New Mexico MESA program.

NM MESA is an academic model based on enrichment in mathematics and science, college preparation, career awareness and teacher professional development.

This model also incorporates a dynamic partnership of academia, private industry, state and federal government, schools and teachers, parents and community and provides critical support that facilitates student success.

"The MESA program provides opportunities for students to improve their academic skills, participating in community service, developing a resume, traveling and interacting with peers, academic competition and providing scholarships for college," said Ashley Ivins, Carrizozo's new middle and high school Science instructor.

Ivins said she worked in the program for a year in Hatch, where she previously taught before coming to Carrizozo.

"It gets students excited by science, excited about college," she said.

"We hope to develop this into part of the after-school program with students working with projects such as model rockets, biodiesel or robotics."

The program improves students' math skills and technical literacy.

"We are very lucky to become part of this program," Ivins said. "There was a waiting list but because of (school superintendent) Mr. Cobos' involvement with the program for so long and because of the strong administrative support, they accepted our application."

Cobos was involved with MESA when it first started in the state 25 years ago and heartily endorses the program for its benefits to students in the areas of math and science.

NM MESA's mission is to "Empower and motivate New Mexico's culturally diverse students with science, technology, engineering and math (STEM) enrichment."

Graduating students are eligible to earn up to a $1,000 monetary incentive award based on their participation in the program.

"The students learn by doing," said Ivins. "They compete with other students from other schools with their projects and in

Blackwater Ranch wins benefit rodeo

The Cowboy Crisis Fund Benefit Ranch Rodeo hosted seven teams in competition Saturday, in Capitan.

The event drew a nice crowd who enjoyed the playful atmosphere of the events, followed by a barn dance and pie/cake/gift auction.

Fair Board President Billy Bob Shafer said he was humbly grateful for all the volunteer help that made the event possible and for those that came to watch, dance and bid on the auction items.

Shafer said more than $4,100 was raised through the gate for the rodeo, concessions, dance and the auction.

"There were people who would buy a pie, give it back and someone else would buy it, pay for it and give it back to be bid on again," he said. "People were very generous and made this a very successful benefit."

The Lincoln County Sheriff's Posse, the Lincoln County Sheriff's Office and Dispatch, the Lincoln County EMS, the DJ for the dance, the announcer, and the fair board members were just a few of the many that donated their time, talents and effort to the cause.

The winners of the ranch rodeo were:

Average: 1. Blackwater Ranch, 2. Circle Cross Ranch, 3. Los Viejos.

Event: Team Penning, Trailer Loading and Team Branding: Blackwater Ranch;

Team Tying: Black Hills Ranch;

Wild Cow Milking: Circle Cross Ranch.

Other competing teams were Circle R Ranch and Needmore Land & Cattle Company.

Veronica A. Orin

Former teller at Ruidoso Downs

Veronica A. Orin, 86, of Ruidoso Downs, died Friday, July 17, 2009, in Alamogordo.

Mrs. Orin was born October 27, 1922 in Herndon, Kansas to Henry Paul and Elizabeth Barbara (Versh) Niemeth. She grew up in Herndon and graduated from high school there. Following her graduation she moved to Denver, Colorado where she was a chef for many years. In 1977 she moved from Winter Park, Colorado to Ruidoso Downs where she was a teller at the racetrack for 27 years.

Survivors include three daughters, Mary Lou Gray and Barbara Clair of Tularosa, and Judy Miller of Ruidoso Downs; 8 grandchildren, Charles Gray of Shawnee, Oklahoma, Brenda Markulik of Tularosa, Kenneth Gray and his wife Brenda of Alamogordo, Beck Gray of Odessa, Texas, Brian Trapple and his wife Tanya of Alamogordo, Shane Watts of Las Cruces, Wayne Watts of Ruidoso Downs, and Jay McDermott and her husband Ryan of Trophy Club, Texas; numerous great grandchildren and great great grandchildren; and a brother Frank J. Niemeth of Las Cruces.

She was preceded in death by her parents; her husband, Charles A. "Jack" Orin, in 1989; 6 brothers; two sisters; a grandson Michael Gray; a son-in-law Edwin Miller.

The Rosary will be recited Monday, July 20, at 7:30 p.m. at the Herrmann Funeral Home Chapel in McCook, Nebraska.

Mass of the Resurrection will be celebrated Tuesday, July 21, at 10:30 a.m. at St. Patrick's Church in McCook with Father Gary Brethour as celebrant. Interment will follow in Memorial Park Cemetery in McCook. Forwarding services are under the direction of Hamilton-O'Dell Funeral Home in Alamogordo. The Cummins floor work (photos above) is done by Bob Gamble and Grant James, from Arbo Flooring of Amarillo, Texas, working on floor designs and varnishing.

The work on Cummins began over spring break in April, when the upper portion of the gym was painted. This summer, the old perimeter flooring was removed and have replaced with an aggregate floor. This type of floor was also used in the locker rooms to replace the old painted concrete floors. The work was done by Stonhard, of Denver, Colo.

The gym should be completed in time for volleyball practice which begins Aug. 10.

Other work to begin soon is a gutting and re-furbishing of the concession stand at the football field as we had several electrical concerns at that facility that needed to be addressed. More tables have been ordered to accommodate students as the school goes to a closed campus next year.

One of the computer labs at the high school is being overhauled to accommodate students' needs and provide interventions for students in need of greater assistance.

This week, High School Principal Jerrett Perry and several others are painting in the high school hallway to brighten that area and give it a more updated look.

'More to Love' gives those with more a chance to love

By Jacqueline Cutler
© Zap2it

A reality show chronicling the final frontier of the dating scene, at least the legal dating scene, premieres Tuesday, July 28, with Fox's "More to Love."

Let's just dispense with the obvious: The participants are overweight. Joke if you must, but in this weight-obsessed society, taunting those in that situation is still accepted.

"More to Love" is set up like "The Bachelor" with the same executives, the same goal of finding love and even the same secrecy shrouding it (The bachelor in this show wasn't allowed to talk unless accompanied by a publicist, though Fox doesn't seem to mind letting him loose before millions of people.)

Luke Conley, 26, is a big guy, over 300 pounds on a former college football player's 6-foot-3-inch frame. A Californian, he's a subcontractor looking for love from women who range in age from 22 to 37, hail from New Jersey to California, and include teachers, makeup artists, a fitness instructor, a dancer, a lawyer and a corporate trainer. The eight-week show follows the usual course of 20 women living in a house, with the man in a guesthouse. The dates include bowling, horseback riding, a trip to a vineyard and romantic dinners.

It's precisely that the show is not all that different that attracted Emme, the model and TV personality, as the host.

"There is a whole demographic not part of the voyeurism, that's not been included, and it's about time," she says.

"They wanted to show the average American person," Emme says. "The average American woman is a (size) 12, 14 to 20. When I modeled, I am 5-11, but if I stood next to a runway model; who is a size 2 and 5-11, and you see me, in size 14 and 5-11, you think, 'Wow! That's a big difference.' However the reason we are saying 'Wow! That's such a big difference' is because you have only seen the extreme smaller side of womanhood in media. All we need to do is retrain the media in diversity. We are not all one way."

The contestants' head shots reveal 20 attractive women. For some, however, men never saw past their size. Incidentally, many aren't that big. There was no minimum size requirement, according to executive producer Mike Fleiss. Viewers may be surprised to see that some contestants are size 12 or 14.

"That is not huge, but it's not what you see on other dating shows," Fleiss says.

Intrigued by the ratings of "The Biggest Loser," Fleiss knew there was a market to tap.

Like "The Bachelor," it aims to make a lasting match.

"This show has a different goal, almost primary goal," he says. "We want girls to overcome their negative feelings toward love and dating. And we wanted them to shed the baggage they have been carrying around for years because it's so hard for them to date."

He maintains that the show isn't snarky.

"We took great, great care to ensure this is a sweet and sincere show that gives women who have had a difficult time finding love a chance to find their dreams," he says. "When you hear the thoughts of doing the show with plus-sized people, it's easy to think it will have a mean-spiritedness to it. There is nothing mean-spirited about the show. We see it as the underdogs of love, these women." Some have never been on a date, he says.

"For some of these girls this is their first chance ever to really find somebody," Fleiss says. "They never met a guy, never met anybody, never went to the prom. We wanted them to experience things they had dreamed of but couldn't do because of their size."

When it rains, it pours in NBC's harrowing 'The Storm'

By John Crook
© Zap2it

"Everybody talks about the weather, but nobody does anything about it."

That quote, attributed incorrectly to Mark Twain, looms large in "The Storm," an effects-heavy megabucks two-part TV movie premiering Sunday, July 26, on NBC and concluding the following Sunday.

Treat Williams and James Van Der Beek star as, respectively, a billionaire who tries to control the weather for his own sinister agenda and the idealistic young scientist who signs on for the project, then discovers what's really going on as Mother Nature blows her stack spectacularly, mainly in the form of torrential rains, as an Army official (David James Elliott, "JAG,") plots to use the technology as a formidable weapon to make the United States an unbeatable superpower. Luke Perry, Teri Polo and John Larroquette also star.

Ratings prospects are high, given that so many people love watching "weather porn," footage involving extreme weather events, says executive producer Robert Halmi Jr.

"I don't think it's just in fiction, in movies. It's also in reality shows like 'Storm Chasers' and 'It Could Happen Tomorrow' and all those shows based on terrible weather and storms," Halmi says. "I think people are fascinated with things they can't control - and Mother Nature certainly is the ultimate of what we can't control."

"In our film we take it one step further. We have someone who tries to control weather, and it backfires. You can't control it even when you are a billionaire and you have the technology. It's one of the last real mysteries on the planet that we'll never truly solve, although we'll understand it."

Although "The Storm" is airing at a time when climate change is a dominant story in the world news, Halmi insists the filmmakers have no real social agenda in presenting this thriller right now.

"Our goal is to be a good storyteller, and if (greater) good comes from our story, that's great," he says. "It's really more of a technology tale than a global warming tale. It's about the abuse of technology, all these computers and things that people can do that don't necessarily lead to something good. It's really just entertaining, larger than life, and hopefully from the story there is some morality and some great messages from within, because that's what good storytelling delivers."

Van Der Beek says he didn't have a problem understanding how his idealistic young scientist, Kirk Hafner, would sign on for a project that turns out to be as dangerous as this one does.

"Kirk is a brilliant young scientist who is brought into this independently funded 'dream team' with the task of trying to manipulate the weather," Van Der Beek explains. "He realizes there is a lot of good you can do by doing that, whether it's downgrading a hurricane or bringing rain to the Sudan, so he comes in with the best of intentions. I'm sure he also was excited by the science of it. Anytime you get to play and innovate with the best in your field, that's the ultimate goal, right? But then, as often happens, with great power comes great temptation, and people try to take this thing he has managed to create and want to use it to gain power."

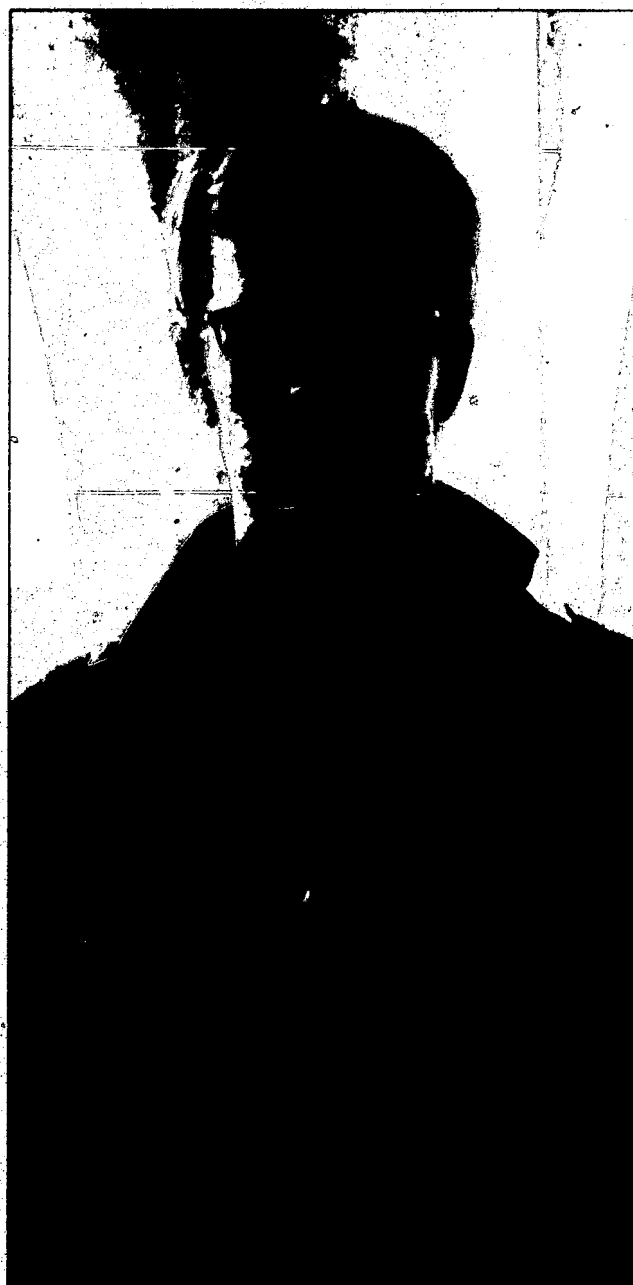

"That puts him in a very difficult position, because he has to take this thing that he has created out of the hands of the people who funded it, and he is almost betraying them in going public with this thing that they are trying to keep secret. He's a loyal guy, so that's difficult for him, and he ends up being on the run, and that's when all the fun starts."

The actor isn't a "weather porn" junkie, as it turns out - he's even a little startled to hear the term for the first time - but he says he's experienced a weird thrill going through extreme weather events in his own life.

"I worked for six years in North Carolina (on 'Dawson's Creek'), where we got a number of hurricanes," he recalls. "When I was a kid in Connecticut, we had Hurricane Gloria come up, and there was something exciting about the onset of that kind of bad weather: getting the candles all ready, getting the flashlights set, putting plywood over your windows. So I guess there is something perversely exciting about all of it, but I don't know that I especially like watching footage of it, with other people. I just connected to the experience of being in that kind of weather."

And he got to feel that connection several times over while filming this TV movie, which kept many members of the cast very damp and chilly, even though it was filmed in Southern California.

"Almost 80 percent of the film takes place, not just in rain, but in hurricane-force, typhoon-type rain," Van Der Beek explains. "We had multiple rain towers at almost every location, fire hoses, you name it. It was impressive. It felt big. It felt grand. And it definitely felt wet! I had picked a jacket for my character, who is in water most of the time, thinking it was waterproof, but I think it ended up being the least waterproof fabric known to man. Keeping dry was an impossibility. Keeping warm proved difficult as well.

James Van Der Beek stars in "The Storm," premiering Sunday on NBC.

"You get new levels of appreciation every time you work, and I don't think I appreciated being dry so much as I did after I shot this film. The most difficult part is the waiting around between takes. When the rain towers are pouring down on you and you're running from the cops and you're climbing or jumping over something, that's the fun stuff. That's what brings out the kid in you. It's just after they yell 'Cut!' and you're huddling in front of a little propane heater with a blanket over you ... those are the moments you get paid for. You'd almost do the moments between 'Action!' and 'Cut!' for free."

A Closer Look

Action sports vets look back as the X Games turns 15

By George Dickle
© Zap2it

To most people, seeing the Grand Canyon with their own two eyes is an awe-inspiring experience that stays with them for life, the type of thing that makes them realize how relatively small and insignificant they are in the grand scheme of things.

And that notion was driven home in near-tragic fashion to veteran skateboarder Bob Burnquist three years ago, when he tried a BASE jump off a vert ramp into the canyon's gaping maw, tumbling out of control before recovering, deploying his parachute and landing safely. His second jump would go off flawlessly.

"That was one of the most magical experiences I've ever had on my skateboard and just in life in general," says Burnquist, who will be among more than 200 action sports athletes competing in X Games 15, which airs Thursday through Sunday, July 30 through Aug. 2, on ESPN, ESPN2 and ABC. "And there was just crazy weather, snowing and going nuts, and I got to hang out in the Grand Canyon for over a week, staying in a local hotel and checking out dinosaur tracks and different little spots and just kind of taking in the beautiful scenery and being around it and driving every day to the location and riding around on my mountain bike just waiting for everyone to get ready."

"So it was quite an experience all around. ... It was one of the coolest things I've done."

This week, the X Games celebrates 15 years with a roster full of stars competing in venues in and around Los Angeles, among them Burnquist, fellow skateboarder Rune Glifberg and BMX champ Kevin Robinson - all of whom were at X Games I in 1995 in Newport, R.I., - and mainstays Travis Pastrana (rally-car racing), Daniel Dhers (BMX), Kyle Loza and James Stewart (moto X), and Ryan Sheckler and Elissa Steamer (skateboard).

Two new disciplines, Skateboard Big Air Rail Jam and Skateboard Park Legends, haven't been added to the roster of BMX, moto X, skateboard and rally-car racing events that will be staged before hundreds of thousands over four days at Staples Center and Home Depot Center and millions more watching on television and online worldwide.

It's a far cry from the first X Games 14 years ago, which had a relatively small audience and about which Burnquist says was somewhat misrepresented by the sponsors and broadcasters.

"It was at this ... old fort, and I remember going in and the location was just amazing as a landmark. And I remember kind of going, 'Whoa!' And then we went inside this whole fort, and there were just all these video-game, neon-color, kind of weird, wacked complex of what they thought we were all about," Burnquist says, laughing.

"So it was like my first introduction to the TV side of things. I've done enough of the underground in skateboarding and now here we are. We've got the big sponsors and TV exposure coming in, and what do we think? It was a shock. All of us were like, 'Well, I don't know about it. It doesn't really represent us.' And over the years, they've evolved so much. There's been constant communication, which is great, and listening to what actually made the X Games and where were the cool sports, and so I've seen a lot of come-and-go with different people and different sports. ...

"I remember also the commentators," Burnquist, a six-time X Games gold medalist, continues, "when we got home and watched it, I just could not listen to them. I turned the volume down because they had no idea what they were talking about. They were trying to mesh the sports commenting style of the time to skateboarding, and it was just really cheesy."

"But you don't know unless you know, unless you're a part of it, and you have to bridge gaps between ... the skateboarders and the nonskateboarders to make this mainstream push, so naturally it would be awkward. And it was very unpopular within the skateboarding world, but at the same time, it was growing and getting into something where more and more people were able to see what was going on and more and more people were involved, and skateboarders and skateboarding got more mainstream."

Robinson, a three-time BMX gold medalist and fellow member of the X Games class of '95, says he also thought the sport was misunderstood, but he "was heartened by the sponsors' and broadcasters' willingness to listen and learn."

"Working with them was great," he says. "We had our ups and downs, but they just always stood with us and stood by us and they always did what the athletes suggested - within reason. You know, it is a business."

"It was new to everybody," he continues, "and a lot of them never even saw it before, so of course you had some guys announcing it who knew nothing about the sport. But just like anything, when it's in its infancy, you've got to educate yourself on everything, and it just takes time, you know? And who would have thought we'd be here celebrating the 15th anniversary of the X Games and what it's grown to from the time it started - from little Fort Adams in Newport, R.I., where we had maybe a couple thousand people standing beside the vert ramp watching to now hundreds of thousands of people showing up. It's crazy how much it's grown."

Talk to any action sports athlete, and he'll tell you his given pursuit is more a lifestyle than a sport, more about constant progression and improvement and less about accolades and awards.

Bob Burnquist competes in the X Games, airing Thursday through Sunday on ESPN, ESPN2 and ABC.

An Inside Look

For Cybill Shepherd, it's cool to be back in school

By Karl J. Paloucek
© Zap2it

She's been on the comeback trail for a while now, starting with her appearances in Showtime's "The L Word," but it's been some time since we've seen Cybill Shepherd take the lead. This month, the screen veteran takes the point in "Mrs. Washington Goes to Smith," a Hallmark Channel original movie debuting Saturday, Aug. 1.

In the film, Shepherd plays Anne Washington, an empty nester whose husband has run off with a younger woman. In search of a rebirth, she enrolls in courses at Smith College, where she ends up rooming with free-spirited music major Zoe (Corri English, "The Bedford Diaries"). Although the dorm mates awkwardly fall in love with the same poetry professor (Jeffrey Nordling, "Once and Again"), it soon becomes apparent that they need each other's support if they're going to become who they're supposed to be.

According to Shepherd, when the role was pitched to her, it was a timely offering. "Somebody had said, 'What are two of the things that you never have had a chance to do in your life but sure would love to be able to do?' " she recalls. "One would be to go back and finish my degree in college. Another would be to play college basketball."

Dreams came true early in life for Shepherd - whose win as Miss Teenage Memphis in 1966 eventually led to one of the most famously meteoric careers in Hollywood history - and they lifted her right out of her college years.

"I really kind of skipped a whole developmental scene in my life," she says. "I suddenly had to act like I was the most beautiful woman in the world and pretend that I knew everything I was doing, and function. And you know, I did - but ... the one thing I knew about modeling as I went into it was No. 1, it would support me, and No. 2, that I did not want to be an actor - because every model I knew was going to acting school and wanted to be (an actor). And I wanted to go to college. So that's what I did instead of studying acting! Those first few years."

Kate Walsh stars in "Private Practice," airing Thursday on ABC.

THURSDAY

4:30 p.m. on SCIFI Movie:
Serenity

Thanks to the post-mortem popularity of the series "Firefly" and the determination of the Browncoats — those rabid "Firefly" fans — this 2005 sci-fi drama made a decent showing. The original cast returns in a continuation of the story lines started in the series. However, you don't need to know the back story to enjoy it. Nathan Fillion, Gina Torres, Sean Maher, Summer Glau, Adam Baldwin, Alan Tudyk and Jewel Staite star.

7:30 p.m. on KOBR KTSM
The Office

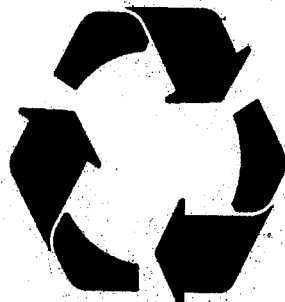

Michael's (Steve Carell) relationship with the new vice president (guest star Idris Elba) gets increasingly tense as Michael perversely looks for even more excuses to goof off than usual — which is really saying something. Pam (Jenna Fischer) is challenged by a new copier, while heart-on-her-sleeve Kelly (Mindy Kaling) develops a crush. Rainn Wilson and John Krasinski also star in "Two Weeks."

9:01 p.m. on KOBR KTSM The Listener

Toby (Craig Olejnik) uses his gift to help Detective Marks (Lisa Marcos) gather intelligence from the traumatized victim of a serial rapist she failed to convict on a previous occasion. Ennis Esmer, Mylene Dinh-Robic and George Ryder also star in the new episode "One Way or Another." Colm Feore guest stars.

9:02 p.m. on KOAT KVIA
Private Practice

Addison (Kate Walsh) suspects that her brother Archer (Grant Show) is up to his old bachelor tricks even as he gets closer to Naomi (Audra McDonald). Dell (Chris Lowell) gets into a heated argument with Addison and Naomi over a patient's child who is born with both male and female reproductive organs. Violet and Sheldon (Amy Brenneman, guest star Brian Benben) co-lead a therapy group for couples. Tim Daly also stars in "Wait and See."

Marco Pierre White hosts "The Chopping Block" Friday on NBC.

FRIDAY

2:05 p.m. on MAX
Movie: I Am Legend

No matter how many times a story is told, it becomes its own creature when the star is Will Smith — as demonstrated by this third version of Richard Matheson's plague-survivor story that first had film life as Vincent Price's "The Last Man on Earth," then as Charlton Heston's "The Omega Man." Smith now plays the scientist immune to the virus that has turned virtually everyone else into mutants determined to make him one of their own.

7 p.m. on KOAT KVIA
Surviving Suburbia

When an end table the Pattersons bought is sent to a neighbor's house, Anne (Cynthia Stevenson) asks Steve (Bob Saget) to get it back. Henry (Jared Kusnitz) puts Courtney's (G. Hannelius) relationship with Jenna (Lyndsey Jolly) in jeopardy. Steve Howey ("Reba") guest stars in "Three End Tables."

7 p.m. on KOBR KTSM
The Chopping Block

The final two couples compete in a finale that calls on them to remodel their restaurants, come up with an engaging menu and provide unparalleled service for host Marco Pierre White, his guest Piers Morgan and various food critics who appeared in previous episodes.

SATURDAY

10 a.m. on VS. Cycling

The penultimate stage of the 2009 Tour de France takes the riders to notorious Mont Ventoux — aka "Mount Baldy" — in southern France, where the race's toughest ascent awaits them. Here, competitors will face an 8-degree grade over the 20th stage's final 10 miles as well as high, violent winds. Relief is in sight, however, as tomorrow the cyclists will make their way down the Champs-Élysées in Paris toward the finish line.

WNBA Basketball

Mohegan Sun Arena in Uncasville, Conn., is the scene as the top players in the WNBA — as determined by a fan vote — square off the the league's All-Star Game. In the game's nine-year history, the West had dominated play, winning the first six games before the East won in 2006 and 2007. No game was played last year because of the Summer Olympics.

7 p.m. on KOBR KTSM Kings

William and Jack (Dylan Baker, Sebastian Stan) make plans for Jack to take his father's place as king of Gilboa, but David (Chris Egan) escapes Shiloh to warn Silas (Ian McShane) about the looming chaos. Allison Miller and Susanna Thompson also star in "The New King P. 2."

8 p.m. on KOAT KVIA Castle

Castle and Beckett (Nathan Fillion, Stana Katic) track a killer after an immigrant is found tortured and murdered in ritualistic style, reminding Castle of one of his books in which he wrote about the mysterious Vodun religion. Things are complicated further by the possible return of Castle's high-energy first wife, Darby Stanchfield and Nicki Micheaux guest star in "Always Buy Retail."

Nathan Fillion stars in "Castle," airing Saturday on ABC.

Merlin (Colin Morgan) is left facing a nearly impossible moral dilemma after he rescues a young Druid (Asa Butterfield) who was fleeing Camelot guards with his father, when King Uther (Anthony Head) executes the older man and sends out a decree that anyone caught hiding the boy will suffer the same fate.

7 p.m. on HBO True Blood
Sookie (Anna Paquin) embarks on a dangerous mission to locate Godric, the missing vampire. Bill (Stephen Moyer) is shocked when a vampire from his past resurfaces in Dallas. Daphne (Ashley Jones) urges Sam (Sam Trammell) to embrace his destiny as a shifter. Jason (Ryan Kwanten) must make difficult emotional and physical choices at the Light of Day camp.

7 p.m. on KOBR KTSM Great American Road Trip
The five remaining families mark the midpoint of Route 66 by participating in a very messy pie eating contest, then move on to a hot-air balloon ride in Albuquerque, N.M., before heading to Arizona's Meteor Crater for final challenge. Along the way, however, tensions — escalating among some of the contestants

Family Viewing

WEDNESDAY

4:30 p.m. on MAX
Movie: Ghost Town

Ricky Gervais ("The Office," "Extras") has a good showcase for his humor in this comedy-fantasy, which puts some spins on the concept of a person who can see ghosts. Gervais plays a decidedly antisocial dentist who dies for several minutes, then is enlisted by someone from the afterlife (Greg Kinnear) to prevent his widow (Tea Leoni) from remarrying.

7 p.m. on KDBC KBIM
The New Adventures of Old Christine

Basket case Christine (Julia Louis-Dreyfus) likes to talk a good game about being able to take care of herself, but when Matthew and Barb (Hamish Linklater, Wanda Sykes) both move out, and Ritchie (Trevor Gagnon) goes to science camp, she's hard-pressed to prove to everyone around her, including herself, that she can back it up. Clark Gregg also stars in "Reckless Abandonment."

THURSDAY

6 p.m. on APL Wild Russia

In Russia's far east sits the Kamchatka peninsula, where fire and ice meet over lava-spewing volcanoes. At least 29 are active, and they sit amidst scores of extinct and dormant cones. In this harsh and beautiful environment, brown bears wait for spawning season so they feast on salmon. Stellar's sea eagles and golden eagles battle for access to ice holes to fish, and wolverines and red fox battle it out for carrion.

SATURDAY

1 p.m. on DISN Movie: Gotta
Kick It Up

This 2002 Disney Channel movie, directed by Ramon

Menendez ("Stand and Deliver"), is inspired by the real-life experiences of a TV executive who spent several years as a teacher in Los Angeles. Susan Egan stars as a former Internet executive now working as a teacher and volunteer dance team coach for a high-spirited squad of Latina schoolgirls. Miguel Sandoval and Camille Guaty also star.

SUNDAY

7 p.m. on KRWG KENW Nature

Frogs, newspaper journalists and bees all seem to be disappearing at an alarming rate, but only bees have played a pivotal role in our survival. Most fruits and vegetables are entirely dependent upon bees to produce. The massive dying of bees was first reported in 2006, and scientists responded by delving into why this is happening and how it can be stopped. "Silence of the Bees" lays out the dire consequences of what could happen if all bees died.

6 a.m. on HBO Movie: The
Brady Bunch Movie

It's a sunshine day in the world of the overly perky Brady family until an unscrupulous developer attempts to seize their property. The Bradys must work together to save their home before it's too late. Shelley Long and Gary Cole head the cast as the parents. Michael McKean, Jean Smart and Christine Taylor also star.

8 p.m. on KRWG KENW
History Detectives

Amelia Earhart's brave flight continues to capture children's imaginations, and this is a great show to watch as host Elyse Lurray investigates whether the piece of an airplane a San Jose, Calif., man owns is indeed from Earhart's doomed Lockheed L-10E Electra. The middle segment checks out if an 1851 document is a presidential pardon signed by Millard Fillmore. Finally,

"Nature: Silence of the Bees" airs Sunday on PBS.

TUESDAY

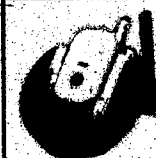

7 p.m. on KDBC KBIM NCIS

Not all the sparring is in the ring as NCIS Director Leon Vance (Rocky Carroll) "borrows" Gibbs' (Mark Harmon) team for an investigation of his own into the murder of a boxer who was a friend, prompting Gibbs to dig for more information on Vance's past. Paula Newsome ("Women's Murder Club") and Obba Babatundé ("Miss Evers' Boys") guest star in "Knockout." Michael Weatherly, David McCalm and Pauley Perrette co-star.

8 p.m. on KFOX KASA
More to Love

Luke Conley, 26, a college football player-turned-subcontractor and real estate investor, is a husky guy seeking romance with a full-figured woman comfortable in her own skin. Will he find her in this new dating competition show from Mike Fleiss ("The Bachelor")? Maybe, maybe not, but with 20 voluptuous ladies vying for his attention, he's bound to have fun trying.

That's Impossible

If only Ponce de Leon could have lived to see this, which was pretty much his quest 500 years ago as he sought the fountain of youth. Some believe that children have already been born who can live to be 1,000, which isn't technically eternal, but could feel so if you watch the same Christmas specials each year. The show checks in on labs developing replacement body parts.

LIBRA – Sept 23/Oct 23 You're the picture of determination and dedication this week, Libra. Others marvel at how you can complete so many tasks without getting distracted by other things.	SCORPIO – Oct 24/Nov 22 Scorpio, you can't get something out of your head, and it's affecting everything you do this week. The only way around it is to try and distract yourself as much as possible.	SAGITTARIUS – Nov 23/Dec 21 Don't put all your eggs in one basket, Sagittarius. Spread the wealth around a bit more since you don't know how things are going to turn out in the days to come.	CAPRICORN – Dec 22/Jan 20 Things really heat up for you, Capricorn. You will find yourself busier than ever. You may want to reach out for some help if you feel you're drowning.	AQUARIUS – Jan 21/Feb 18 Things are looking up for you, Aquarius. The plans that you are making will come to fruition in their own time. Financial ventures also turn out well.	PISCES – Feb 19/Mar 20 This is a week of rocky starts, but smooth sailing later on, Pisces. All you have to do is hold out until things become a little calmer.
