Sickness is an insurable risk and there is no doubt that some very comprehensivo and acceptable scheme of insurance against it will yet be worked out. Whether, in the United States, it will be a compulsory, state-managed scheme is by no means so certain. But the more that subject is agitated the faster sickness loss will be reduced. for agitation will direct attention to public health, and means that are tried and proved will be more extensively employed to prevent sickness. Steady, intelligent public attention is what the whole problem of poverty needs. There is no doubt that a great part of it is preventable. The poor, it is true, we have always with us. Time was when we had always had slavery and smallpox with us. Now out of half a million persons one person dies annually of smallpox in the United States. Time was when elavery and smallnox were generally taken as a matter of course. As soon as they ceased being taken as a matter of course they were put into the way of practically disappearing—not by any magic formula but by tireless, sure-footed, practical-minded effort.

At length we have the means of reducing poverty to its practical, irreducible minimum. It is only very recently, as history runs, that we have had those means. But now we have the wealth-not enough wealth for a limousine and a grand plane to every | yesterday, and now I want to cell it inhabitant and a four-hour workday; but enough for the essentials of decent physical existence to every family. We have the social and industrial organization and the body of scientific knowledge. Poverty is a social loss and a social danger. We can take out an insurance policy against it.—Will Payne, in Saturday Evening Post.

BARBERING

I will be in my barber shop Capitan, N. M. In the Pool Hall on Friday and

Dr. Simon Elexner of the Rocketeller institute, who has just received one of the French government's highest decorations, told a story at a New York dinner. "The medical ignorance of some people is staggering," he said. "I know an X-ray specialist who got a letter from a middle western farmer the other day. The farmer wrote:

"Dear Sir: I have bad a nail in my thorax for 17 years. I am too busy to come to New York, but want you to come down here to Paris Corners with your rays, as my case will be worth your while. If you do not find time to come, send a dozen rays howed, by express, with instruction card, and 1 will try to work same myself."

"The X-ray specialist wrote back to the farmer of Paris Corners:

"Dear Friend: I regret to say that business engagements prevent a trip to Paris Corners, and I am unfortunately out of rays just now. If you cannot come to New York, send me your thorax by parcel post and we will see what can be done."

The Persistent Echo. "Good morning."

"Good morning." "You remember that house you sold me last week?"

"Certainly." "Welh I had my wife up to see it back to you again."

"But you said you admired the house." "What fault do you find with it

"It has an echo in it." "That doesn't hurt it." "Yes it does." "In what way?"

Typhen my wife scolds me for staying out late the blamed old house will repeat it six or seven times, and gosh, how I do hate nagging."-Rehobeth Bunday Herald __

FIND LITTLE JOY IN MANTUA

American Boldiers in Italian City Can not Be Accused of Indulging in Wild Revela.

Mantua, the metropolis of the province, is the center of the territory which encircles it in every direction. Hither flock the country folk from as far as five or six kilometers away, to gaze at the vino and stand around in the middle of the street, impeding the progress of the trolley car. Equally fascinating to the American soldier is this city, with its car track. its air of cordial welcome, and its insalubrious climate, all of which combine to make him think more of the old bome town than he did before he came here, says a writer in Italy Ambulance Service News. It is not difucult to find things to do, for one may always spend quite a while figuring out when he last saw the sun, or when he will see it again. And then one may also look at the lake. But it is at night that Mantua discloses its true nature. With an electric light gleaming on every fourth block, and the comradely mist always with you, you can start out for a wild evening. There are plenty of places to go-all cafes. Variety is supplied by ordering heer in one place and wine in the next, until in a final burst of hilarity you, end up with caste-latte (the badly of recklessness). By that time it is 10:30, the shutters are up. the waiter lingles a pocketful of centhe bar seems to wonder what secretsofrow keeps you from home. So you depart-vin the back door, harking to your footprints echoing upon the still night air. The carabinier look at you suspiciously, a cat runs across the in the wicked city. You yawn and go and beer. One night nearer home.

About Eggs.

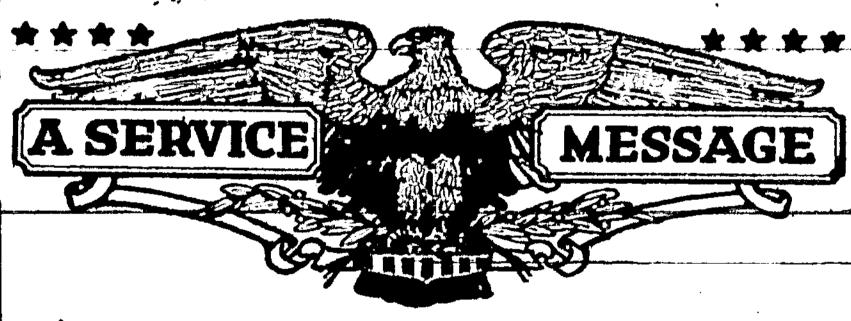

Ontario. Canada, now has an egg "circle." This egg circle has been organized for the purpose of eliminating the wholesaler and middleman. Its idea is specifically to prevent any person or persons coming between the farmer's supply of eggs and the consumer. More and more as the cold storage warehouse has come between the consumer and his egg, has the consumer suffered from the separation. "Most every one" will wish the egr circle well.

TO INSURE AGAINST POVERTY

Writer is Confident That a Practica Scheme Will Be Worked Out Before Many Years.

Bickness is an insurable risk and there is no doubt that some very comprehensive and acceptable scheme of insurance against it will yet be worked out. Whether, in the United States, it will be a compulsory, state-managed scheme is by no means so certain. But the more that subject is agitated the faster cickness loss will be reduced, for agitation will direct attention to public health, and means that are tried and proved will be more extensively employed to prevent sickness. Steady, intelligent public attention is what the whole problem of poverty needs. There is so doubt that a great part of it is preventable. The poor, it is true, we have always with us. Time was when we had always had slavery and smallpox with us. Now out of half a million persons one person dies annually of smallpox for the United States. Time was when slavery and smallpox were generally taken as a matter of course. As zoon as they censed being taken as a matter of course they were put into the way of practically disappearing—not by any magic formula but by tireless, sure-footed, practical-minded effort. At length we have the means of reducing poverty to its practical, irreducible minimum. It is only very recently, as history runs, that we have had those means. But now we have the mealth-not enough wealth for a Ilmousine and a grand plane to every inhabitant and a four-hour workday; but enough for the executials of decent physical existence to every family. We have the social and industrial or ganization and the body of scientific knowledge. Poverty is a social loss and a social danger. We can take out an insurance policy against it-Will Payne, in Saturday Evening Post.

Dr. Simon Flexner of the Rockefeller institute, who has just received one of the French government's highest decorations, told a story at a New York dinner.

"The medical ignorance of some people is staggering." he said. "I know an X-ray specialist who got a letter from a middle western insmer the other day. The farmer wrote:

"Dear Sir: I have bad a nail in my thorax for 17 years. I am too busy to come to New York, but want you to come down here to Paris Corners with your rays, as my case will be worth your while. If you do not find time to come, send a dozen rays boxed, by express, with instruction card, and I will try to work same myself."

"The X-ray specialist wrote back to the farmer of Paris Corners:

"Dear Friend: I regret to say that business engagements prevent a trip to Paris Corners, and I am unfortunately out of fays just now. If you cannot come to Now York, send me your thorax by parcel post and we will see what can be done."

The improved reads of Mil wankes County, Wis., save $25,000 a day to the people who uso them. This is the estimate of the county commissioner of highways, as reported to the Bureau of Public Roads of the Un ted States Department of Aurleniture.

The statistics are based on a census of the tradic taken pe riolcally during the post four years. The census is made by enlecting 52 points scattered throughout the county, and molding seven counts at each week. The count is not made on consecutive days, but at various periods from April to November, so as to arrive at average conditions. This cenans is taken to determine the dumbility of certain types of povement, ucco.ding to the amount of traffic a square yard. It shows that about 25,000 vehicles of or kinds travel the highways each day Traffic on the road has increased about 42 impressive Tribute Paid by English percent a year during the four years in which the survey has been made.

Two Nest Explanations of Train. Schedules That Are About the Best of Their Kind.

Railways have had their troubles during these amazing years of world wor and continental congestion; so, connequently, have passengers. On a rickety-rackety, half-forgotten little bradeh tine to nowhere in particular. not long ago, a long, tank, lazy Yankee station master, with an Unrie Sam goalee, mentioned those mighty and historic obstacles in excus- for the lateness of a certain two-car train, for which an impotient salesman of agricultural implements was waiting. But although he offered an excuse, he did not enjoy doing so, and concluded his remarks by appounding re-

MORE LIKE GODS THAN TREES

Poet to the Glant Redweods of California.

John Mazefield, the English poet, contributed the following impression of the glant trees of California to the Revellle, a new paper devoted to disabled sallors and soldlers: "They are not like trees; they are like spirits. The glend in which they grow are not tike pincen; they are like haunts of centaurs or of the gods. The trees rise up with dignity, power and majesty, as though they had been there forever. They are the oldest living things. Even the young ones were two thousand or three thousand years old, and many of these grew from the visible ruins of others, which may have been saplings seven thousand years ago. Sometimes in cathedrals one feels the awe and the majesty of columns. These columns were more impressive than anything of stage: these columns were alive. They were more like gods than anything I have ever seen. They seemed to be thinking. One felt that presently they would tworch to wipe out everything mean or base or petty here on earth. The stars shope about their heads like chapteta."

HONDURAN CITY OF WYSTERY.

Copin is a city of mystely. The people who once thronged its streets wild bowled at its ditars are long since gone, leaving by record of their existence save the houry stones of their city. These stones, built into pyramids, wills and monuments, bear their story carved in the Maya characters.

Rulns of this oldest city of the Maya Indians may still be seen by those sufficiently persistent and enthusiastic to seek them out. A lietie Indian village in western Honduras. and the river on which it lies keep the name of Copan alive today. To visit the rules of the great Copan you must seek out this village by train and then go a long journey on horseback. Just beyond the village lies the old Mays metropolis.

The only inhabitants of Copan toony are queer ugures of the Maya gods, that peer out of unexpected hiding places like the creatures of a bad dream. Wonderfully carved many of them are, grotesque in attitude and expression, according to the artists' conception of the beings of the other CEASED.

When Copan flourished, how it fell, known persons who claim and what became of its last people, any interest or title adno one knows. The city is as desolate as only a deserted city can be, oppressive and and even in the bright nunlight of a troplesi midday. "Nikeab" in Indianapolis Star.

FIRST TO WEY! FINGER RING

Legend Makes Prometheus the Plonser of Custom That May Now Ba Called Universal.

The first finger ring is supposed to have been worn by Prometheus, who stole fire from heaven that man might warm himself and cook his food. This act so incensed Jupiter that the king of gods condemned him to be chained upon a rock where vplthree could constantly feast upon him. The sentence was carried out, but Prometheus was released. Then Jupiter ordered that Prometheus wear a link of chain about his finger as a remin | been filed against them the of the rock to which he had begin chained was set in the ring, so that he might still be regarded as being bound to the tock.

this finger with the heart, according to a writer in the Pittsburgh Dispatch. Macrobina said: "Because of this perve the newly betrothed places the ring on this finger of his beloved, as though it were a representation of the heart." And just to show that the practice is a very old one. Macrobias admitted baving obtained the facts from an Egyptian priest, thus linking the belief with the dim
