Washington Letter.

A delegation of Governors of the Pueblo Indians of New Mexico visited Washington this week and particularly the Department of the Interior. These Governors are in charge of the Pueblo villages within a radius of forty miles of Albuquerque and are descendants of the Aztecs and the conquering of their Pueblos were among the victories of de Vargas. For at least four centuries the Pueblo Indians have been selecting their Governors and under them a war captain, counsellors peace officers. The Commissioner of Indian Affairs sometime ago established the office of Justice of the Peace and Police Officers for each Pueblo to try the offenses that were formerly passed upon and judged by the Governor without the assistance of the police. The new idea of police among the Indians, these Governors affirm, conflicts with the authority of the Governors and they are in Washington interceding with the Department of the Interior for the purpose of having the ruling changed so that each Governor has authority and jurisdiction to combine in the Governor the office of Peace Officer and police. The Governor's who have been having the time of their lives in Washington are: Gov. Jose Alcario Montoya, Pueblo of Chochiti and also representing the Pueblo of San Felipe near Albuquerque; Gov. Santiago de Santa Domingo; Gov. Juan Avila, Pueblo of Sandia; Gov. Jose Padilla, Pueblo Isleta.

The Bill recently introduced by Senator Bursum to suspend the requirements of annual assessment work on mining work on mining claims during the years 1921 and 1922, passed the Senate on May 10th. The Act as passed the Senate suspends assessment work entirely for the year 1921 and until June 30th, 1921, upon filing certificate on or before August 1st by claimant, and provides for work hereafter during the fiscal year commencing July 1st and ending June 30th. This Bill is now pending in the House Committee on Mines and Mining and after it passes the House miners will have until June 30, 1922, to do their assessment work.

It may be interesting to New Mexico people to be told that the Senate Committee on Mines and Mining had turned their backs on this Bill, virtually refusing to pass it. Senator Bursum then requested a hearing and appeared before the Committee, making the hardest fight he has found it necessary on any bill, with success as above reported. He will now appear before the House Committee to inform them of the dire necessity for this relief to the miners of New Mexico and all other places affected by it. Senator Jones very ably supported this bill and Senator Bursum's efforts in its behalf.

Nester Montoya, jr., has returned from the Hospital at Ft. McHenry where he was treated for a wound in his face received in an accident in France. Mr. Montoya has been away for a month and he is resuming his position as Chief Clerk for his father, Congressman Montoya. Montoya, jr., is an ex-service man. He was in Mexico with General Pershing on border duty and went to France in the late war, where he saw much service. It may be said in connection with the mention of Fort McHenry that Francis Scott Key received there his inspiration for the Star Spangled Banner, which was written as the Port was being attacked.

Senator Bursum, Interviewed Secretary of the Treasury.

Senator Bursum called on Secretary Mellon a day or two ago to solicit his views on and interest in the bill recently introduced by Senator Bursum for the relief of cattle and sheep men by granting them longer time loans, and providing money for further loans. Secretary Mellon was most gracious to the Senator and expressed himself as being most interested and then informed Mr. Bursum of his activities toward the immediate relief of the very strained situation. The Secretary announced that he had arranged with Morgan & Co., of New York to subscribe to a loan fund $25,000,000; Pittsburg Bankers $12,500,000, and Chicago Bankers and west of Chicago $12,500,000.

This fund is immediately available at the rate of interest charged by the Federal Reserve Board and will be loaned on six months notes, renewable for as long as needed up to two years, to be used exclusively for the relief of the cattle and sheep men.

The primary influence which brought about this magnificent result is the fact that after the introduction of Senator Bursum's Bill, legislation along these lines was pushed so vigorously that it became necessary to take some pronounced action to hasten use of the money to the MAN WHO NEEDS IT, and to prevent hasty legislation at this time. Senator Bursum is very happy over the result, realizing that it will temporarily take care of the emergency now gaping before the hard pressed stockmen of the west. The Senator believes, however, that there should be created separate departments for credit which may be extended and made available commensurate with the turnovers of the various branches of industry, namely a department for exports, one for livestock and another for farm crop credit, all of course to be worked out along safe and sane lines on the basis of a reserve which probably would be subscribed by the banks of the country on similar lines with the creation of the Federal Reserve, and the volume based upon the commodities necessary to carry to the period of distribution and liquidation. This with orderly control of distribution, would prevent present troubles recurring and develop a permanent aid to those now so severely afflicted.

Mrs. Bursum, wife of Senator Bursum, arrived in Washington last week and will spend some time here with her husband. The Senator has a suite at the Capital Park Hotel near the Senate office Building. The Bursum young people will remain at the family home in Socorro during the summer months, and until the fall opening of schools.

Special Correspondence to the Mountaineer.

Washington, D. C., June 18, 1921.—Senator Holm O. Bursum, of New Mexico, has taken up the cause of volunteer officers in the World War, and is pushing a bill introduced by himself to place these officers, who are disabled, on the retirement rolls of the United States Army, on the same basis as Regular Army Officers.

The measure is meritorious and deserves the support of all citizens who do not believe in discrimination against any class of the gallant officers, who backed by our invincible doughboys, made possible our great victory in France.

A hearing was recently held on the Bursum bill by the Senate Military Affairs Committee, and it is hoped a favorable report will soon be made by this committee, to be followed by favorable action by Congress.

Certainly it seems that the volunteer officers of the world war should receive exactly the same treatment as the Regular Army officers, no more and no less. They are not asking a single advantage that the Regular Army officers do not already have.

A similar effort was made for many years by the volunteer officers of the Civil War to be placed on the retired list of the U. S. Army, on the same status as retired Regular Army officers.

The Spanish War disabled officers and those who participated the Philippine insurrection and the China Relief Expedition have made no effort along these lines. These officers probably feel the privilege of being placed on the Army retired list is given to the Civil War and the World War officers they will be included.

The American Legion is backing the Bursum bill and some of the members of the World War, made convincing and eloquent arguments for the bill at the hearing before the Senate committee.

The arguments advanced by advocates of the Bursum bill are unanswerable and convincing. These may be summed up as follows:

When the volunteer officers entered the armies for service in the world war they bore the same risks carried the same responsibilities and performed the same services, under identical conditions as the officers of the Regular Army.

National Guard, National Army, and National Reserve Corps officers, who are disabled, have been discharged from the service, and receive only from $3 to $30 per month, in proportion to the degree of their injuries. The disabled Regular Army officers have been retired on three-fourth active pay and in addition get commutation for heat, light and quarters, which amounts in every case to a considerable sum.

It is a rank injustice to retire a wounded and disabled volunteer officer on $30 per month pay, the highest disability pay he can obtain, while a Regular Army officer, similarly disabled, is drawing three-fourths pay plus allowances, which gives the regulars a comfortable salary. The injustice lies in the fact that both volunteer and regular performed the same meritorious service, suffered the same disabilities, and in many instances the volunteer has a better army record than the regular. It cannot be denied, despite claims of the Regular Army to the contrary that most of the actual fighting on the front lines was directly under direction of emergency officers, except in the case of brigadiers or major generals who were nearly all regulars. The volunteer officers, particularly the lieutenants, captains and battalion commanders, were the boys who led the men "over the top" when the Germans were smashed. These officers were National Guardsmen, National Army men, or from the officers' training camps, with some direct from civil life without any training. In the mass they more than made good in contact with the enemy.

Why, after performing these brave and satisfactory services for Republic and the people of this country, should they not have the status of any officers who are disabled? Any other treatment is not fair and is not satisfactory to the people.

The Regular Army, except in the highest commands, did not win any particular glory in the world war. It was the men from the ranks of the people, not West Point "pets" who whipped the foe.

The average retired pay of these brave disabled volunteer officers would only be $1,562 per year. Surely the people would not grudge that.
