Power Rights From This Dam Asked by Ford

An exclusive photograph, taken from an airplane, of the Mississippi River high dam between St. Paul and Minneapolis, for which Henry Ford has applied to the federal power commission for power rights. The Detroit motor car maker, if granted permission to harness this water power, has announced he will build a ten-million-dollar automobile, tractor and farm implement plant on the banks of the river. Also he will open a barge line to run down the Mississippi, carrying freight to St. Louis, Memphis and New Orleans. On the return trips the barges would carry coal from Kentucky and southern Illinois fields.

Nevada's total gas penalty in murder cases is likely never to go into effect. Assemblyman Anthony Jurich of White Pine said recently. As minority leader at Carson City he is preparing a bill to abolish the gas penalty and he said it is probable the Legislature will do away with capital punishment in all cases.

Mrs. Maybelle Roe, convicted of the murder of McCullough Graydon, real estate operator, in a dispute over possession of a beach resort bungalow, was sentenced to life imprisonment by Superior Court Judge McCormick at Los Angeles, while she lay on a cot in the woman's ward of the county jail, seriously ill.

A primary measure which would abolish state party conventions except for the purpose of drawing up platforms was introduced in the House of Representatives of the Seventeenth Idaho Legislature by Republican members, including Campbell of Boundary county, Hull of Bear Lake and Call of Jefferson. The measure would provide a primary or nominating election to be held the fourth Tuesday in May and biennially thereafter. The state platform convention would be under the auspices of the state central committee of each party and not later than sixteen days following the primary balloting.

A demand for intervention by the state of Arkansas into the situation at Houston arising from attacks on Ellis and North Arkansas strikers was issued by Samuel Compton, president of the American Federation of Labor. The Italian government, it was stated recently in well-informed circles in reference to certain published reports, is not negotiating with the French government with the view of sending troops to the Rhineland in place of the American troops recently withdrawn. The "vets" are breathing a trifle easier now that it is impossible for a "bone dry" bill to be considered by the present regular session of Congress in Mexico City, which adjourned also recently. Although there was small fear that such a measure would pass the lower house it was expected in many quarters that the "dry" element, receiving inspiration from certain high government officials, would attempt to have such a bill at least brought up for discussion. But other legislation intervened, and a new liquor law was forgotten.

GENERAL

Penna, Indiana operator, issued a statement in which he renewed assurances of his fellow operators that there would be no strike in the bituminous industry this year. John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America, and other labor members of the sub-committee of seventeen, were equally optimistic.

Norman, governor of the Bank of England, both paid glowing tributes to the fair treatment they had received from the American press. "I am particularly grateful," said Mr. Baldwin, "for its personal kindness and the fair way it has handled this matter. The temper of the American press has been a model of what a respectable press should be. I hope I will find on my return home that the British press conduct has been similar."

Science Finds Use for Waste

Discover Way to Make Alcohol and Good Quality of Animal Food From Sawdust.

COAL DUST MADE INTO BRICKS

Experts Save Smelting Industry by Finding Way to Utilize Bulk of Polluted Dust From Flue Gases.

Do you know of anything that is being wasted that these scientists might try their hands on?

Washington, D. C.—Scientists have shown that if the atmosphere were not impregnated with dust there would be no cloud effects, no radiant sunsets, no soft afterglow of harmonious colors which lead a halo to the quiet of twilight. Also, there could be no condensation of moisture as in rain, mist or fog without nuclei such as dust particles.

That is one of the stories of the usefulness of dust, but government scientists and others are more interested just now in determining what can be done with dusts of specific kinds that have long constituted big items of waste in various industries.

Perhaps the most interesting development of the experimental work that has been going on is in connection with the problem of what to do with sawdust. Ever since the first saw mill it was through a piece of timber the enormous waste in sawdust has been a matter to worry over. In time it was found that this debris could be made commercially valuable as the basis of various manufactures. Oxalic acid is produced on a large scale from sawdust, and sawdust is also used in the carbonizing stage of the process for the manufacture of soda ash.

Alcohol From Sawdust.

But now it has been discovered that sawdust can be converted into a food and by carrying the process a step further alcohol may be produced.

The sawdust food is one for beast and not for man, but nevertheless it is useful and may become a factor in farm economies. Sawdust alcohol will not be used for beverage purposes, but there is a great need for a new motor fuel to take the place of gasoline or to supplement the supply of that article, which is not keeping pace with the demand, and alcohol seems to hold out the greatest possibilities in that direction.

While pine sawdust is used in this process, it is treated with dilute sulphuric acid and cooked under pressure with steam. This brings about a chemical change in which the sawdust is partially converted into glucose, a simple sugar which is both nutritious and of high value. There is from 10 to 18 per cent of glucose in this mixture, which is then neutralized with lime, the sugar dissolved and the solution filtered off and boiled down under reduced pressure until it is of the consistency of molasses. This molasses is then mixed with the partially dried sawdust residue and the result is a product closely resembling bran.

Farmer Had Right Idea.

Thus it would appear that the tight-fisted farmer who tried feeding his mules kaffir and sawdust as substitutes for grass and bran mash had the right idea. His trouble was that he did not prepare the stuff properly. In producing alcohol from the bran mixture the essential step is to let the sugar in it ferment. It is estimated that three to four hundred million gallons of alcohol could in this way be derived from sawdust, shavings and bits of lumber that are wasted each year in the mills of the country.

The debris of the lumber industry is by no means the only dust that is being conserved and put to useful purposes. Coal dust is another notable example, and in view of the present shortage in the coal supply as a result of the strike its utilization is especially important.

For years the cull or dust produced in sizing anthracite for the market, was regarded as practically worthless, although it was for the most part perfectly good coal. It could not be handled or shipped economically, however, and the consumer did not know how to use it, so it was permitted to go to waste. Smaller and smaller sizes of anthracite were found useful until now the dust itself is being burned, either through a powdered-coal burner which gives off the powdered fuel into the furnace of a boiler, or in the form of briquettes.

A corporation recently formed has an establishment at Alexandria, Virginia, where a new process of preparing a fuel that is an amalgam of coal dust and crude oil is being exploited. It is claimed that a wholly satisfactory substitute for anthracite for domestic purposes is being produced, and it is also said that it can be marketed at a price that is altogether interesting in these days when the so-called law of supply and demand is sending the cost of anthracite skyward.

Briquettes are made of other materials in the campaign against waste. Metal filings and turnings are subjected to pressure and thus converted into compact masses that can be charged into furnaces and remelted with the least possible loss. Powdered ores and minerals that would either blow away or clog the smelters, may be handled in similar fashion and made almost as satisfactory as lump ore. Immense quantities of dilute-grade iron ore that were formerly considered of little or no economic importance are thus made available.

In at least one instance the miller of dust has been brought about, not as a mere means of economy, but in order to save the industry itself. In smelting valuable metallic ores, notably copper and lead, considerable quantities of arsenic are contained in the ores or driven off with the furnace gases in the form of fume or very fine dust. This fume or dust settles over the furnaces for great distances surrounding the smelters and causes great injury to all kinds of vegetation, with the result that the smelting companies were being sued for heavy damages constantly, and there was a prospect that they might be required to shut down their plants.

Experts were called in and eventually a way was found to eliminate the bulk of the poisonous dust from the flue gases. The white arsenic thus collected aggregates thousands of tons annually and it is devoted to many useful purposes. It is converted into pigments, compounds of value in medicine and in the dye industry, and into insecticides for spraying orchards, vineyards and gardens.

Careful With Gold Dust.

There is one kind of dust that everybody has always been more than anxious to utilize and that is gold dust. If any of that goes to waste it is because it cannot be avoided. In all the varied mining processes and where over gold is handled in the mine or in the arts every precaution is taken to conserve every particle of the precious metal. In fact, dust is gathered and saved that is so fine that it is little more than "color."

In placer mining all the gold is "dust," but it occurs in scales, grains or nuggets, and all the particles are smooth and rounded, thus differing from vein gold which is sharp and angular. The nuggets have varied in size from small grains to one found in Australia that weighed 2,320 ounces and was worth about $42,000. Appropriately enough this nugget was christened "Welcome Stranger." The largest nugget found in California weighed 230 ounces. Russia has produced one of 83 ounces and the Illinois one of 63 ounces. By far the greatest proportion of the gold recovered, however, is in medium and fine dust.

Where gold is handled in large quantities all sweepings and all dust collected by vacuum cleaners is saved, for it contains minute particles of gold that in the aggregate and in the long run amount to large sums. Even the clothes worn by those who handle the gold are "rained" at stated intervals.

Seven Points of Supremacy

1. The sole leather used in "FOOT-FITTERS" is of the best quality obtainable. Even the insoles are cut from standard outside leathers.
2. "FOOT-FITTERS" are the only shoes in the world having full length vamp and sole leathers with laces. This feature prevents slipping at the tip and makes a smooth curve and inner arch.
3. The fabric used in "FOOT-FITTERS" is such that they fit snugly against the foot. There is no need of room for a cork insole. A small piece of cork is used to prevent slipping.
4. The "FOOT-FITTER" counter is of great value, for it saves the wear of the work. There is no rough surface to rub against.
5. "FOOT-FITTER" heels are 1/2 inch longer than generally used. They give additional support to the arch and increase the comfort and wear of the shoe.
6. The vamp is reinforced with steel duck. This absorbs the moisture from the foot, keeps the vamp from cracking and holds the shoe in shape.
7. "FOOT-FITTER" shoes are called "FOOT-FITTERS" because they fit the foot snugly. Built on comfortable lasts they support the foot like a doctor's hand—"FOOT-FITTERS" give comfort, service and appearance.

Robert A. Hurt Laid in the Tomb.

On last Monday afternoon the remains of Robert A. Hurt were buried in the Captain Cemetery. The funeral services were conducted by Rev. Mr. Zeigler of Albuquerque, Episcopal Missionary for the State. The occasion was appropriate to the occasion and many thoughts expressed by the minister were in accordance with Mr. Hurt's religious belief. More people attended this funeral than any previous one ever held here. They came from all parts of the county and it can be said that nearly every one of them was his personal friend. Tears from both men and women were shed during the services and when his body was lowered into the grave. The coffin was covered with bouquets of flowers, the offerings of friends.

It was one of the saddest occasions we have ever witnessed. It was plainly seen that the people fully realized the brutal manner in which his death was brought about and their emotions could not be restrained and that occasion will remain one of the sad reflections in their lives.

The murder of Robert A. Hurt will be a chapter in the criminal history of New Mexico, and for brutality and cowardice will hardly have an equal. It will be read in years to come, as it is read now, with amazement and horror at the thought men in a civilized country can become so depraved as to conceive and execute a crime so horrible.

We wish to thank our friends and the people of the Captain vicinity and Lincoln county, for many kind acts and sympathy during our recent bereavement in the death of husband, father and brother Robert Hurt. Also thanks for flowers and music.

HILLIONS BEING SPENT BY SOUTHERN PACIFIC FOR NEW EQUIPMENT TO SERVE WESTERN STATES

One of the Southern Pacific Company's tremendous new '310' type locomotives, 97 1/2 inches high, built by the company in recent months, standing beside the tiny 'Cattle Wagon' No. 17, the pioneer locomotive named after one of the members of the Big Four, who built the Central Pacific and other Southern Pacific lines. This contrast illustrates the progress made by the country's leading railroads in development of equipment.

As a result of the equipment expansion program recently announced for the Southern Pacific Company by Wm. Sprague, president of the company, a great increase in the amount of rolling stock will be made available to western shippers and travelers during the year 1923. Freight and passenger train cars representing an investment of $12,000,000 have been ordered by the company for 1923 delivery for the company's Pacific system. The new equipment to be of the most modern type and will include 4,000 freight train cars and 141 passenger train cars. These are in addition to the 5000 standard refrigerator cars and 500 express refrigerators equipped for passenger car service representing an additional investment of $18,000,000 that have just been ordered by the Pacific Fruit Express Company in which Southern Pacific has a large interest and the Union Pacific also interested. The substantial purchase of equipment we are making, said Mr. Sprague, indicates our faith in the territory we serve and in the continued prosperity of the west. We are in line with the Southern Pacific Company's established policy of providing our customers with the best equipment obtainable. Included in the new freight train equipment announced today are 2500 box cars, 500 stock cars, 700 gondola cars, 500 logging cars, and 75 cabooses. The new passenger rolling stock includes 18 steel coaches for local service, 18 steel coaches for main line through service, 18 steel dining cars, 11 steel buffet baggage cars, 21 steel combination mail and baggage cars and 10 steel baggage cars. The Southern Pacific line just taken delivery for the last equipment of 57 '310' type locomotives, representing an investment of $4,000,000. They are being placed in freight service on mountain divisions. They are the heaviest and most powerful locomotives of this type yet built and combine the latest order of locomotives equipped with feed water heaters and 'booster' gears made by any railroad. The Pacific Fruit Express Company is receiving the final completion of 1000 new refrigerators and it is expected the delivery early this year but construction of what was delayed by unsettled industrial conditions in the East. With the completion of these and the 2300 ordered for next year the Pacific Fruit Express will have more than 37,000 cars for handling fruit and vegetables from the Pacific Coast in 1923. The Western Pacific will release Pacific Fruit Express cars supplying some $700 of its own instead, thus giving a total of 30,000 cars there now 20,000 cars or an increase of 10,000 cars. The Southern Pacific Company recently placed an order with steel plants in the East for 15,000 gross tons of rails for delivery in 1923. The value of the order is between $1,000,000 and $1,500,000. Approximately 10,000 tons of the rails, or two-thirds of the amount ordered, will be used on the Pacific coast. This will provide a total of 300 miles of rails for use in the West, of which 217 miles is to be 110-pound rails and 112 miles of 90-pound rails. The 110-pound rails are the heaviest ever used in railroad construction work west of the Rocky Mountains.
