Impressive Statue of Lincoln

This Daniel Chester French 175-ton statue of Abraham Lincoln, in the massive memorial at Washington, compared with a human figure. Reflections on the statue come from streams of bright sunlight pouring between the huge pillars at the entrance of the memorial.

WORLD PAYS TRIBUTE TO THE "GREATEST AMERICAN"

On February 12, everywhere over this country—in its schools and its public gatherings—and in the silent reverence of the hearts of its hurrying throngs—the people pay tribute to the memory of Abraham Lincoln, on the one hundred and fourteenth anniversary of his birth. And I think that the universal feeling that he were with us makes today, with his sympathetic understanding of men, kindly philosophy and far-reaching vision to help guide through the problems and dangers of the reconstruction period.

But as we do so, we should realize that the reverence we now accord his exalted memory has been the growth of years; and that in his life, fully as much as in his death, he suffered the martyrdom which the world usually accords its saints and seers. It is not Abraham Lincoln who has grown, but the nation which, with the passing years, has come into a realization of his true greatness. I am reminded, in this connection, of the eloquent words of Brand Whitlock, spoken regarding Lincoln, in 1908, as follows:

"His beautiful dream was but to be, shamed, tested realist though he was nevertheless. He was 'rashly' idealistic, and his ideal was too high, too far. Mutual forgiveness, mutual reconciliation, brotherly love, were not for his contemporaries, and their failure bore its inevitable fruit in the bitter days of reconstruction that followed. Because they could not understand him, the men of his time reviled and reviled him, persecuted him by the standards with which they measured themselves, and, in judging him, judged only themselves. This is what impressed them, they thought him impractical, who was the most practical of men; thought him ignorant, who was the wisest of men; sneered at him as uneducated—him in whom degrees and doctors' gowns would have appeared puny and ridiculous! As the scenes of the great war receded, as the perspective lengthened and gradually cooled, men came to see how great, how mighty, how original he was."

"As slowly they grew in the national spirit he breathed into them, as mankind in its upward striving reached toward his stature; they began to realize in him not only the first, but the ideal American, realizing in his life all that America is and dreams. And more and more, as time goes on, he grows upon the mind of the world. The figure of Washington, the first of American heroes, has taken on the cold and classic isolation of a marble statue. But Lincoln, even though inevitable legend has enveloped him in its refracting atmosphere, remains dearly human, and the common man may look upon his soft and homely face, and find in it that quality of character which causes him to reverence and love him as a familiar friend—one of the common people whom, as he once humorously said, God must have loved 'because He made so many of them.' Thus he remains close to the heart, just as if he had lived on through the years, essentially and forever human, not alone the possession of our people, not of a nation only, but of the whole human brotherhood he loved with such perfect devotion, and that humanity to which he gave his life."

In connection with the above, I am reminded of another hymn and inspiring tribute to Lincoln, this one in verse, written by James Russell Lowell, whose most familiar stanza runs:

"Nature, they say, don't dare
And cannot make a man
So good, so true, so nobly pure,
Deserve to be born."

Charles Gleeson of Butte, a student in the University of Montana at Missoula, Mont., was taken from a fraternity house by a band of masked men. Gleeson, the second university student kidnapped by masked men within five days, refused to make any statement regarding the occurrence.

The Colorado Legislature is expected to consider within a few days measures to ratify the Colorado river pact, on which four states now have taken action, three of them by complete ratification of the agreement. Arizona has prepared action temporarily, but is expected to consider the question soon.

The Kansas Senate passed a mob bill, designed to put two persons of responsibility for mob activities in the parades and the peace officials who fail to suppress such activities, and provides as penalties terms in the state penitentiary of from two to five years. It defines a mob as "three or more persons."

The Nevada Senate adopted the State Assembly's resolution approving the Colorado river compact and the resolution has been signed by the governor. The resolution pledges Nevada to work with the federal government and the other western states concerned along the lines recommended by the commission headed by Secretary Hoover.

Inauguration of the eight-hour day by the Standard Oil Company of California has proven an economic benefit, H. B. Huntington, president of the company, asserted. In Washington, D. C., the Senate oil inquiry, Mr. Kilburn described the company to the pioneer in establishment of the eight-hour day in the oil industry, having abandoned the twelve-hour shift in 1917.

The marriage ceremony of A. L. Howes, 43 years old, and Cora Gray, 21, was performed in the Little Church of the beloved, a funeral chapel in Forest Lawn cemetery, at Glendale, a suburb of Los Angeles, because the bridegroom wished to emphasize the solemnity of matrimony, he said. The bride smiled and said nothing when asked what she thought about it.

WASHINGTON

Acceptance of Henry Ford's offer for Model T cars, provided no better offer is available and conditions for the actual production of nitrogen for fertilizers at the rate of 40,000 tons a year, is recommended in a special report made to the American Farm Bureau Federation by Edward M. Baruch, vice-chairman of the war industrial board.

Work of army experts since the war has produced a bow rifle bullet known as a "bead-ball," because of a six-degree taper at the tail. Experiments tested by the army have shown that the change in shape has added 1,000 yards to the maximum range attained and shortening the trajectory of the bullet at 1,000 yards approximately 20 per cent. In addition, the army experts have worked out a new jacket for the bullet that virtually eliminates rattling in the gun barrels.

The Senate has confirmed the nomination of Robert Wood Eliot of New York, new third assistant secretary of state, to be minister to Sweden; J. Estler Wright of Wyoming to be third assistant secretary of state, and Philip Elling of Kingston, N. Y., to be collector of customs for the port of New York.

Losses to the government through mail bandits in this fall robbery have been officially ratified by the Post Office Department. They have aggregated only $24,000 for the last nine months compared with $1,120,000 for the year ending March 31. Two years ago $30,000 was stolen from the vaults of which $25,000 was recovered, leaving a balance of $5,000.

The entire cost of the allied organization of the Latin Bank of the United States from the formation to Dec. 31, 1922, amounts to $3,600,000,000 gold dollars, or $1,230,000,000 at the present rate of exchange, according to figures compiled by the German government and made public in Washington recently.

A close-up of President Lincoln. The President stood at the door of the second parlor, with a secretary beside him who gave him the names of his callers. Anna's first impression was of his extraordinary height, for he towered over the people about him, and then the amazing charm of his face caught her; fragile, humorous, dignified and kindly; she adored him at first sight. He was obviously born of the Lincoln's veracity of handwriting, but as obviously determined to go through with it with painstaking courtesy; he had a round of greeting. "I am charmed to see you here," he said, over and over, with a look of grave concern. From "The Courtship of Washington Square" by Janet Faibisoff.

Lincoln in Capitol

Vinnie Ream, Hoyle, famous artist and sculptor, was the first woman commissioned by congress to model a statue. At the age of fifteen she attracted the attention of President Lincoln, who consented to pose for her. The result now stands in the capital.

The All-Russian Council of Trade Unions at Moscow has donated 100,000 gold rubles to the Ruhr workers.

A former British soldier, suffering from shell shock attempted to attack King George with his crutch at the St. Pancras railway station. The ex-soldier was arrested.

The telegraph and telephone station employees have gone on strike in Dusseldorf. They took this action in protest against the presence of French soldiers.

Patrick Cunningham, William Conroy and Colm Kelley, all of Tullamore, were executed at Birr, King's County, Ireland, for possessing arms and ammunition and for thefts from residents.

"We will break the Germans' will and we intend to impose our own will upon them!" General Desoutte, commander of the Franco-Belgian army of occupation in the Rhineeland, says quoted in a saying in dispatch received in London from Dusseldorf.

Captain Coyne of the Irish National army was shot dead and three soldiers were wounded when a party of troops were ambushed by irregulars between Abbeyfeale and Ballycotton on the Limerick-Kerry border. The attacking party is said to have left the captain's body at the roadside stripped of all clothing.

The Free State government still is confronted with a grave task in view of the intensified campaign of destruction and incendiarism that is being carried on by the irregular forces. These acts are considered proof of the determination of the Republicans to resort to every possible means to prevent the government from functioning and to break the country's morale.

Late advice from Paris indicates vigorous procedure on the part of the French and Belgians throughout the occupied zone, where wholesale arrests of German officials are taking place, which are promptly followed by strikes in all branches of the governmental service. The telephone, telegraph and postal employees at Ebenau walked out in a body in a protest against the arrest of six officials who declined to speak to French orders.

The Free State government still is
