New York Gets First Air Mail From San Francisco

Scene at Curtiss field, Long Island, as the first all-air mail from San Francisco was transferred to the postal truck to be taken to the New York post office, just after Pilot Q. Eugene Johnson had arrived from Cleveland.

Former Enemies' Sons at School

Young Funston and Aguinaldo Are Students at West Point Military Academy.

West Point, N. Y.—That time makes queer changes is once more illustrated in the case of two boys who are now students at West Point Military Academy. One is the son of Aguinaldo, the former leader of the Philippine insurrectionists, who gave Uncle Sam many uneasy months before he was captured, and the other is the son of the officer who captured him, the brave, fearless fighting man of Kansas—Gen. Frederick Funston. Both are plebes at West Point and both are manly young fellows who, one of these days, may be called upon to unsheathe the sword in defense of their common country—these youngsters whose fathers were enemies and the leading actors in one of the thrilling dramas in American history.

Story of Aguinaldo's Capture.

The story of how Fred Funston captured Emilio Aguinaldo has been read probably as often as that of Washington's stand at Valley Forge or the surrender of Lee to Grant at Appomattox courthouse; but it will never lose its thrills, and it stands as an episode in United States history that never fails to make the most tired schoolboy turn to his lessons with vim.

Spain ceded the Philippine Islands to the United States after the War of 1898, but the Americans found that their troubles just were beginning, that the natives in the islands definitely were rising against the United States, fighting Uncle Sam's soldiers, killing them, making it impossible for the troops to come home.

The prime mover of this continual trouble was Emilio Aguinaldo. He had fought Spain's rule in the Islands, so ardent was he in the cause of Philippine independence, and he fought the United States' rule. The natives rallied enthusiastically to his cause. He was not a military man in appearance and one never would have pictured him as a soldier, but he held absolute sway over the natives, killing them, making it impossible for the troops to come home.

"Get Aguinaldo and we have broken up the insurrection," the American army men used to say, but the difficulty was to get Aguinaldo. The man and his followers were elusive. Aguinaldo became almost a myth, he was rumored to be in so many different places at so many different times. The United States knew that with him at large there never could be hope of peace in the Philippines.

Plan for Rebel's Capture.

Gen. Fred Funston was in charge at San Pedro when one of Aguinaldo's runners was brought before him. The man had been captured in the up-country, had come over to the Americans' side, and promised to disclose where his chief was hiding.

"The dictator is in hiding at Palanca," he told Funston and proved it to the American's satisfaction by a letter he carried.

Palanca was a hamlet eight miles from the coast, on the east side of Luzon. It was one of the hardest places in the Islands to go to, but Funston's mind was made up. He was going to get Aguinaldo.

He thought over every available plan and finally hit on one. He and a group of fellow officers would travel to Palanca in the company of a band of natives loyal to the United States. He would pretend to be a prisoner and the natives to be insurrectionists. It was a daring risk, but it was the only plan that looked at all feasible. To capture Aguinaldo it was necessary to come upon the man by surprise, and he must be captured, not killed. His death would ensnare him as a martyr in the eyes of the natives, and the insurrections would go on and on indefinitely.

Funston had a conference with Generals McArthur and Whetstone in Manila. They told him he had a good plan, but that he was going to certain death. He went ahead, however.

Some native Macabebes were given second-hand rebel clothes and guns. Funston got some bogus letters signed by Lacuna, one of Aguinaldo's captains, and the party started out March 1, 1901 on the United States steamer

Man May Sacrifice Life to Save Dog

New York—Dogs that give their lives for their masters are not uncommon. A master ready to lay down his life for his dog appeared at Coney Island recently. Frank Stravel, eighty-one, was out for a walk with Prince, his Newfoundland pup. Prince stepped on the car tracks, apparently oblivious of the approaching car. Like his master, he was old and a trifling deaf.

Stravel rushed in front of the car and pushed Prince to safety. He was struck and his skull fractured. At Coney Island hospital it was said he probably would die.

Prince tried to follow the passing ambulance which took his master away, but was quickly left behind. Somewhere on the island he is trying to pick up a scent which has gone cold.

Missionary Refuses to Leave Head Hunters

Leave Head Hunters

Sydney, N. S. W.—The story of the end of a long missionary on one of the macabre islands of the Solomon group, who was rescued from the hands of head-hunters, but refused to be taken away from his chosen station, has just been brought to Sydney by an island schooner. Men aboard the schooner, nearing the island, saw a number of natives in war paint dancing around a blazing fire, according to their story.

The captain, believing that some person might be in danger, armed the crew and sent them ashore. They fired a volley over the heads of the natives, who ran into the bush. The crew investigated a European-built house and found a white man inside praying on his knees. He said that he was a missionary and had been on the island for a year.

Sickness had broken out among the natives and he had been blamed for the loss of life. The natives had sent their women-folk into the bush and started a war dance. As that was a sign of future trouble, he had locked himself in the house.

The missionary was importuned to abandon the idea of staying among the natives and invited to come aboard the vessel for safety. He refused, however, and the ship sailed away, leaving him at his lonely and dangerous post.

There was a week of marching. Torrents of rain fell without ceasing. The food dwindled, the men grew weak and it seemed as though Funston's great effort was to be blocked by starvation. The last day's march was made on empty stomachs, but it brought the invaders close to Palanca. The Macabebes were ahead, with Funston and the other "prisoners" close behind. Aguinaldo was still in Palanca in a house in the village. He had an escort of about fifty men, including his military staff. The supposed "rebels" called on him and told him of their capture of the Americans. The Macabebes outside of the house came to restrain themselves, opened fire on Aguinaldo's escort and killed two of them.

Aguinaldo believed the shots were

More than 1,000 houses were destroyed with a property loss of $8,000,000 in the fire which devastated the northeast residential section of Berkeley, according to the reports of a survey completed by City Assessor Harry J. Squiera.

Panned by high winds, a great forest fire swept northern Sonoma county, California, recently. A half dozen big ranches were swept by the flames, including the estate of California stock rancher. Hundreds of fire fighters, recruited from the farms and towns sought a desperate fight to save Penwood Springs, a summer resort.

Chinaman soldiers who attacked the Ichang Maru in the Yangtze river have demanded a million yen ransom for the release of their captives, a dispatch from Shanghai stated a few days ago. They served warning they would kill their captives if the amount is not paid. A Japanese gunboat has arrived for the purpose of rescuing the captives, the dispatch added.

A case of the deadly bubonic plague was announced a few days ago by the United States public health service in Washington. The victim is a woman who previously resided at Pacific Grove, Monterey county, Calif. Officials of the public health service said that the disease had been confirmed bacteriologically, but that an epidemic was not feared.

Boxing as a professional sport and as it is practiced in Denver, was given a severe blow when Judge George F. Duniske ruled that boxing exhibitions of the kind that have been held at the Stockyards at Denver are in reality prize fights and not mere sparring matches. The exhibitions are, accordingly, in violation of Colorado's anti-prize fight law.

The Pacific mail liner Cuba, which went ashore on a reef off San Miguel Island, has been abandoned, a total loss, it was announced in Los Angeles. The loss was estimated at $400,000. It is said the ship's destruction was not due so much to the pounding of the waves against the sides as to the swelling of a cargo of coffee which became water-soaked and exerted such a force against the holds that the hull and decks were forced out of line.

The steamer President Jefferson, carrying the firm survivors of the Yoko-hama earthquake, warped into its dock at Victoria, first port of call on the American continent. Premier John Oliver of British Columbia and a party representing the Canadian government, as well as representatives of the United States public health service and officials of the Admiralty Oriental Line, operating the Jefferson, boarded the vessel at quarantine.

WASHINGTON

President Coolidge in a message addressed to the people of the United States expressed his deep gratification at their generous response to the appeals from the sufferers in the earthquake-stricken Japan. "The prompt and generous response of the American people to the urgent needs of a friendly nation in time of great distress has been most gratifying," the message said. "When the news of the tragedy in Japan first reached us the American Red Cross, pursuant to a proclamation, asked the country for $5,000,000 to meet this great emergency. The answer to this appeal was prompt and generous; in less than two weeks a sum far in excess of the original goal was given."

The federal government role in the Oklahoma City "civil war" is that of an interested spectator. There is little or nothing to be done in the situation, officials declared.

Fourteen ships, laden with food, clothing and medical supplies for the relief of earthquake victims, either have sailed or are about to sail from the United States for Japan, the Red Cross announced in Washington.

The emergency committee of the American Red Cross passed long enough in its ministrations of Japanese earthquake relief to give attention to a catastrophe near home. A preliminary allotment of $10,000 was made from the regular Red Cross disaster fund to the Red Cross organization at Berkeley, Calif., for relief work in the result of the fire there.

The question of American participation in the World Court is regarded at the White House as still待定 reading before the Senate for such action as it may decide to take upon it. Inquiries have had their attention directed that President Harding submitted the matter to that body last February and have been told that in the circumstances there remains nothing for President Coolidge to do.

Practically all of one cabinet meeting recently was devoted to discussion of the agricultural situation. Afterward it became known that Secretary Wallace is making a particular study of the wheat problem and will report to the President later next week concerning facts which are expected to enable the executive and his advisers to formulate a constructive program along sound economic lines.

McAuley has declined an invitation from the Latin-American delegates to the League of Nations to become a member of the league.

FOREIGN

The German-Swiss frontier has been closed by the government of Switzerland. It is understood that Switzerland feared growing riots in Germany might lead to civil war.

Five thousand persons are reported to have perished in the floods which followed upon the typhoon at Tottori, northwest of Kobe, Japan, according to an Osaka dispatch to the Central News in London.

Al Spencer, notorious bandit of the Osage, is dead. He was killed by Alva MacDonald, United States marshal for the western district of Oklahoma. Spencer's spectacular career of crime ended in the Osage hills.

Twenty Brazilian state troopers were killed or wounded when their encampment at Cruz Alta, in the state of Rio-Grande do Sul, was attacked by revolutionaries who made a furious surprise attack.

Gen. Miguel Primo Rivera, Marqués de Estella, head of the revolutionary movement which overthrew the Alvarado ministry, took the oath of office as president of the council of ministers before King Alfonso of Spain.

Home Minister Goto of Japan has announced he will have theaters and motion picture houses built in the devastated region to provide free entertainment for the people this winter as a means of diverting their minds from the earthquake and of relieving the monotony of their lives.

Chinese soldiers who attacked the Ichang Maru in the Yangtze river have demanded a million yen ransom for the release of their captives, a dispatch from Shanghai stated a few days ago. They served warning they would kill their captives if the amount is not paid. A Japanese gunboat has arrived for the purpose of rescuing the captives, the dispatch added.

A telegram received at the foreign office at Montevideo from the Uruguayan consul in Zunzhu, near the Brazil-Uruguay frontier, says the town was taken by a force of 1,800 Brazilian rebels. There was a sharp fight, in which seven men were killed and twenty-seven wounded on both sides. Twenty members of the government force were drowned as they attempted to escape by swimming the River Uruguay. Their commander and fifteen men were captured.

The Pacific mail liner Cuba, which went ashore on a reef off San Miguel Island, has been abandoned, a total loss, it was announced in Los Angeles. The loss was estimated at $400,000. It is said the ship's destruction was not due so much to the pounding of the waves against the sides as to the swelling of a cargo of coffee which became water-soaked and exerted such a force against the holds that the hull and decks were forced out of line.

GENERAL

Jack Dempsey admitted in New York City after his victory over Luis Angel Firpo that he had never had received such a cocking in his life.

Governor Walter climaxed his spectacular fight against the Ku Klux Klan by declaring martial law for the entire state of Oklahoma.

Nearly all morning newspapers in New York failed to appear a few days ago as a result of a strike of members of Web Pressmen's Union No. 23.

In a long fight, the street railway of Birmingham has finally won over the jitney as a public carrier in Birmingham, and the people are now riding for 7 cents cash, a reduction of 1 cent in a schedule that had existed for three years. When tickets are purchased, the new fare is 6 cents. School children ride for 2½ cents.

The tank wagon price of gasoline has been reduced 1 cent a gallon in New England and eight Atlantic seaboard states by the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey and the Gulf Refining Company. The new price ranges from 18 cents in Washington, D. C., to 21 cents in Virginia, where there is a state tax of three cents a gallon.

The federal government role in the Oklahoma City "civil war" is that of an interested spectator. There is little or nothing to be done in the situation, officials declared.

Howard M. Corn of Clarendon, W. Va., has been appointed by President Coolidge as Assistant Secretary of Agriculture to succeed C. W. Pugsley, who resigned to become president of the South Dakota College of Agriculture and Mechanical Arts.

Anthracite miners, representing union workers throughout the Pennsylvania hard coal fields, ratified the new year wage agreement drafted by their officers and operators' representatives in Harrisburg, Sept. 8. They returned to work September 20.

To live under the American constitution "is the greatest privilege that was ever accorded to the human race," it was declared by President Coolidge in a message made public in New York City by the National Security League in connection with its plans for the celebration Monday of the 130th anniversary of the signing of the constitution.

Practically all of one cabinet meeting recently was devoted to discussion of the agricultural situation. Afterward it became known that Secretary Wallace is making a particular study of the wheat problem and will report to the President later next week concerning facts which are expected to enable the executive and his advisers to formulate a constructive program along sound economic lines.

"Treasury of Hidden Secrets."

A book called "The Treasury of Hidden Secrets" was written and printed by Jane Bell in London in 1633. The title page tells the reader that it is "The Treasury of Hidden Secrets" commonly called the Good Housewives' Closet of Provision for the Health of her Household, gathered out of sundry experiments, lately practised by men of great knowledge, and now newly enlarged with divers physick helps, and knowledge of the names and disposition of diseases that most commonly happen to men and women.

"Not important for every good housewife to use in her house, amongst her own family."

Bell also dedicates her book "To all wives that toys and profess the practice of good housewifery, as well as wives as maides."

After turning the pages of the book and deciphering the old English printing, one is rather in doubt whether it is a cook book for humans. It reads more like the two recipes might be for the fairies.

How Often Do You Attend Church?

Communicated

Do you know that you owe the privilege of a Christian civilization which you enjoy to the influence of the church? That you owe the moral standards of your community to the influence of the church? That you owe the civil rights and privileges which you are granted to the ideals that have been fostered and promoted by the church?

How much you appreciate the institution which has ever been the means of giving to society such blessings will be shown by how loyally you give your moral support to the work of the church in your town.

The work of the church is primarily, or the moral and spiritual benefit of both young and old. There can be no question as to the value of such an influence. How often do you attend church?

ANNOUNCEMENT

The Editor of this paper is undertaking the task of writing a history of Lincoln County which will be published in the Capitan Mountaineer. It will be published in installments (chapters as near as convenience will permit) from week to week until the work is finished. This country is a field rich in historical matter, a great deal of which has never been published and is known to only a few people, and when printed will interest nearly all who read it. To write this history will require considerable time and research to make it accurate, or as near accurate as it will be possible to make it.

The commencement of the history will be with the organization of the County. A sketch of a few occurrences, however, which took place prior to the County's organization will appear, but they took place within its boundaries as it was afterwards organized and deserve mention in its chronicles, on account of their interest. In presenting this work to the public, the writer will say that he is gathering his information and data from parties now living and were witnesses to most of that which is being put in print. The work will be as impartial as it is possible to make it. The writer has no prejudice or bias in any of the matters pertaining to the County's history. His aim is to give his readers a truthful account of the happenings as they were enacted. One case, at least, will necessarily have to find a place in the work; that will be the story of the Lincoln County War. In this instance parties are yet living who participated on one side or other in that fued and sentiment is still divided and an unpleasant feeling remains. In this matter I will try to find a dividing line and separate truth from prejudice and give a truthful account of that which really transpired and of the parties connected with it as facts will show, and notes has been reprinted from a one-sided view. This work will also give an account of a good many things which have never been published, but are worthy of mention and will make interesting reading.

The writer has been encouraged in this undertaking by all who have been informed concerning it, and are anxious for it to be commenced. It is intended to publish the first chapter in the second issue of the paper in October and a chapter will follow each week thereafter. It will require several months, probably a year, to print all the matter necessary to make the history complete, but I assure the readers of the paper that the work will be diligently and faithfully performed.

Those who are not subscribers to the Mountaineer, but wish to read this county history, should subscribe for the paper at once that they may get it in full.

Application has been made to the Librarian of Congress for Copy Right to protect all of this historical matter or any part of it from being used by other publications.

Examination for Forest Ranger Service.

Albuquerque, N. M., Sept. 1923. The Forest Ranger examination is to be given on October 23 to qualified applicants between the ages of 21 and 35 at Clifton, Marfa, Holbrook, Phoenix, Prescott, Saford, Springerville, Tucson, and Williams, Arizona and at Alamogordo, Albuquerque, Magdalena, Santa Fe, Silver City, and Taos, New Mexico according to an announcement of the United States Civil Service Commission.

The examination is given to fill vacancies in the position of Forest Ranger in the Forest Service, U. S. Department of Agriculture. For this position young men of good education and those physically able to stand the hardships of field work on the National Forests are especially desired. To such, the work of the Forest Service has in store an attractive and interesting career, provided they are fond of the great outdoors.

A one day written test composed largely of practical questions concerning timber, forest fires and grazing is given on October 28. Applicants are also given credit for education and experience.

The examination will be given by the Forest Supervisors at the places already named, from whom information concerning it and application blank may be secured.

The lady had just lost her husband and had gone to a summer hotel to rest. She often dreamed of her husband and she would sometimes get up in the middle of the night to see if he was walking about. Any little disturbance caused her to be frightened. One night mysterious raps were heard on the wall of the summer hotel.

"Great goodness," cried the frightened woman in room 13. "I wonder if that could be my departed husband?"

"No," growled the man in room 14. "It's the people on the other floors killing themselves with their slippers."

Strange Experience.

One day a friend wanted to go swimming and asked me to keep $30 for him until he returned. I wrapped it in a handkerchief with $20 of my own money and pinned it inside my dress. An hour later I went to the post office and upon returning saw something lying on the sidewalk. I picked it up and discovered it to be my handkerchief containing the $30. The pin had come unfastened but I had not noticed it. —Chicago Journal.
