WILL BUILD TO CARRIZOZO.

And Connect With the El Paso & Northeastern—Incorporation Papers Filed

Last Saturday the Santa Fe, Albuquerque and Pacific Railroad company filed its incorporation with Territorial Secretary Wallace at Santa Fe, N. M. The capital of the company is given as $22,250,000, divided into shares of the par value of $1 each. Headquarters will be maintained at Albuquerque.

The line, which it is proposed to construct, will start from Santa Fe and extend to Albuquerque and to a connection with the Rock Island and the El Paso & Northeastern in Lincoln county. The route, as described in the incorporation papers, is as follows: Commencing at Santa Fe, south to San Pedro in the Southern portion of Santa Fe county, a distance of forty miles, and thence southeast eighty miles to connect with the Rock Island and the Northeastern at a point in the vicinity of Carrizozo.

The effect of this new line, on El Paso and the entire territory will be very great. At present the Santa Fe has an exclusive monopoly of the business between El Paso and the northern portion of the territory of New Mexico. The White Oaks has opened a new field to El Paso, but so far has done nothing towards giving competition in the direction of the older and more settled parts. Albuquerque is connected with the city only through the one line, and Santa Fe is but a branch station. With this new line El Paso will have through connection not only with these points, but with Denver and southern Colorado and points in the northern tier of counties in the territory. On the territory the effect will be to give the capitol a line connecting it directly with the southern and central portions instead of having to do all business over a branch of the Santa Fe. Albuquerque will gain much by a direct line to the north of the Territory and by having competition.

The first of next week we will have the most complete line of capes ever shown in Lincoln county.

Attention is directed to the announcement of Mr. Robt. Hurt for the office of Justice of the Peace which appears in another column. Mr. Hurt is too well and favorably known to need any introduction to the people of this precinct, having been in business here since the town was established. By his honorable business methods and frank nature he has made a host of friends who will support him for the office to which he aspires, believing they will find in him a capable and efficient officer.

The development of the Capitan Iron and coal fields is attracting the attention of railroads promoters everywhere and it now looks as if this section will have an outlet for its coal in many directions. The coal companies operating here have fully demonstrated that the coal deposits of this region are so extensive as to be practically inexhaustible and the effect has been to awaken a deep interest in railroads circles. Those who have watched the progress of other mining sections see in Capitan the same evidence of future greatness and development that characterized Pueblo Colorado and other places that have grown from villages into cities within the last few years.

THE STORY IS DENIED.

The Rock Island Has Not Bought the El Paso & Northeastern

AND IT IS NOT FOR SALE.

Work is to Begin at Once—The Roswell-El Paso Extension Will Now be Dropped.

H. Alexander, assistant general freight and passenger agent of the El Paso & Northeastern in an interview has the following to say in regard to the report sent out from Austin, Tex., that the White Oaks Route had been absorbed by the Rock Island: "I know the El Paso & Northeastern is not for sale and that the Rock Island has not purchased it. The two roads have entered into a traffic arrangement and both will build to Clayton, New Mexico, for a connection. President Eddy of our line is now in New York and I do not know if he has yet signed the agreement with the Rock Island people. The Austin correspondent seems to think the Rock Island has purchased the El Paso & Northeastern simply because the Rock Island people secured a charter for a road in Texas. Well, they had to get that charter because they will have to build across three Texas counties to reach the desired connection with our line.

"No, I do not know when construction work on the extensions will begin, though I have been told the Rock Island people are ready to begin building at once. You will have to wait until the return of Mr. Eddy to learn any thing definite about what the El Paso and Northeastern will do."

Local railroad men generally are of the opinion that the surveys of the proposed extension of the Pecos Valley from Roswell to El Paso were made by the Pecos Valley road to try to get the Rock Island to take that route, and that the Roswell-El Paso extension will now be dropped, since the Rock Island has closed a deal with the El Paso & Northeastern. However, there are one or two exceptions to this general trend of opinion among the local railroad men, for one of them said yesterday that he believed the Choctaw road would build the Roswell extension to this city.

Maudie Adams has a new play upon which the New York dramatic critics are unable to agree. She is a fortunate woman.

The reason for the advance in price is by no means complicated. The Chicago packers simply feel that they need the money.

Absolute amnesty has been granted by the Peruvian legislature to all persons who may have been concerned in any political transgression or offenses, with the right to fill public offices. All political prisoners confined at Lima have been set at liberty.

When a new postoffice is to be named the people of the neighborhood have the right to choose its name. There are Schleya, Roosevelt and Funston all over the country. Now some Virginians have named their postoffice Tuan, in honor of the anti-foreign Chinese prince, and the name has to stand.

Clark of Montana is going to make another effort to obtain a seat in the United States senate. As far as the legislature of Montana is concerned, Clark's case is already won. A majority of the members of that body are of Clark's choosing, and they will undoubtedly give him a set of credentials to carry to Washington.

There is some comfort in the coming on of cold weather. Statistics indicate that outbreaks of insanity are most frequent in the hot season, and that suicides in the summer months are as three to two. Hence it would appear that even our reason and our love of life are best kept hot.

Christmas trees are already being cut down in Washington county, Me., and the season's output from that section will amount to 100 car loads, with 350 bunches to a car. Each bunch consists of from two to six trees. The trees are sent to New York and Boston where they will retail for about ten times as much as they are worth on board the cars in Maine.

A street in Chicago, not far from the Arthey road, immortalized by Dostoyevsky has been known for twenty years as "Fike street" in honor of a certain business man bearing that name. The word has come to have an injurious significance of late years, and the residents and property owners of that neighborhood have prayed the city authorities to give the street a new name.

Twenty-one persons died in Massachusetts last year aged 100 years or more. Fifteen of the twenty-one were women, three of the sixteen never having been married. Eight of the twenty-one were born in Ireland, three in Canada and three in other foreign countries. Having seven native-born, six of whom were of Massachusetts nativity. The oldest was two months over 100 years.

The perfunctory manner in which witnesses are sworn in English courts was illustrated recently in a London court after some twenty witnesses had given their evidence. It was then discovered that all had solemnly sworn on and had kissed a guide to the law of landlord and tenant. The mistake came to light only when a court official saw that the supposed Bible was much more clean than usual and, as a consequence, looked closely at the book.

Mrs. A. B. G. of Cincinnati O., who acted as bridesmaid at the wedding of a friend found a thimble in the piece of bride's cake which she ate. This was regarded as proof that she would be an old maid. To prove that the sign was false she agreed to marry William Hecker, to whom she was engaged, at once, and invited all the wedding guests to be present at her marriage. A minister was found within three hours of the time when she was acting as bridesmaid.

The falling of the elevators is perhaps not the only danger associated with life in the modern skyscraper. Some physicians in making physical examinations for life insurance companies, think they have discovered that elevator boys and others who make many trips a day are peculiarly liable to heart-disease and premature degeneration of the arteries. They do not know whether this is due to change in atmospheric pressure in passing from basement to roof and down again, to the disturbances caused by the sudden starts and stops and the rapid descent, or to some as yet unsuspected cause.

Telephones are being fitted on the electric cars of one of the suburban lines in St. Louis. The instrument is placed in the rear of each car, the negative connection being through the wheels to the rail, and the positive connection being secured through a simple device, like a jolted Sahag's, and an overhead wire, paralleling the trolley. Thus the motorman is able at all times to communicate with the office, the shops and the wrecking crew. Later it is intended to connect this line with the public service and to permit its use by passengers.

Want to my kin, there never was a purtier gal in Pike county than Matilda Miggin's an' no worse old crank than her father. Well, I s'pose I kin overlook his fallin's now that I'm a member of the family, but it looked one spall as though I never would be, and then is when I discovered his crankiness—hull streaks of it, with mighty little fillin' in between.

When I asked him if I might wait on his daughter Matilda with the prospect of marrying her in time he grunted once or twice to himself an' then said sarcastic-like:

"Ye kin—provided I don't ketch ye at it!"

This was a back-hander an' sorter staggered me fer a minute, but when I come to ag'in I spoke up an' sez:

"What objections have ye ag'inset me as a suitor fer yer daughter's hand, Mr. Miggin's? Hain't I as likely a young man as ye'll find about these parts?"

"Mebbe ye air," sez he, shettin' one eye an' squintin' with the other. "Mebbe ye air, but ye don't vote the same ticket I do, an' besides yer father shot a dog wunst that belonged to me."

"Well," sez I, "if the dog didn't deserve shootin' I apologiza. First I ever heard of it anyhow, an' I don't know that ye kin blame me fer what my father done without askin' my advice or consent."

"Mebbe not," sez he, "but all the same I've allers noticed that tricks of that kind run in families, an' as I said before, yer politics an' mine don't hitch."

"Hang politics!" sez I; "I'll let Matilda do the votin' after we git married."

years, an' five years is a long time to wait for a gal if ye love her right smart; an' in the second place, even if I met up with a bear, it wasn't a dead certainty exactly which would git chased up.

Bears were a little out of my line anyway. But I knew it was "no bear, no Matilda"—I s'pose Miggin's would compromise on anything less than a bear—an' I made up my mind the first time I heard of a bear bein' seen anywhere in the neighborhood I'd start out on the war-path an' capture the critter an' a bride along with it or perish nobly in the attempt.

Well, time is no respecter of persons an' don't seem to give a ding whether a feller is enjoyin' life or not, an' it kept rollin' right along at the usual gait of twenty-four hours a day, an' seven days a week fer a hull year an' a half, an' nary a bear, nor even a bear track, had I seen or heard of anywhere around the hull township, an' I don't mind sayin' I was gittin' feet a little mite discouraged.

Time kept moggin' along, as I before remarked, an' one frosty March day when the snow was packed down hard and had a crust on it that would hold up a man I tramped up into my wood lot on the hill back of Miggin's place, with a ax on my shoulder, an' begun slashin' down trees an' choppin' 'em up into cordwood. As I worked away I kept glancin' ever an' anon down towards the cottage where Matilda lived; which was right in plain sight below me, an' wonderin' if Fate would ever send a bear along. At noon I got down on a log an' was busy eatin' the lunch I had brought along, when I heard the twigs snappin' behind me, an' jumpin' to my feet I looked around an' there was the very critter I'd been wishin' fer so long—a big black bear, eyelin' me from behind a clump of bushes!

My gun was hangin' over the door at home, an' the bear was between me an' the ax, which I had left stickin' in a stump when I quit workin' to eat, so I was caught nappin' all round, an' ye kin bet I felt purty cheap fer about a minute. But I didn't run. I was bound to stand my ground, no matter what happened. The bear came on toward me, shakin' his head an' growlin', an' I stood there with no weppin' 'cept my dinner pail, waitin' fer him. A sudden idea had come into my head, an' if I could carry it out I was safe. The tin pail I had in my hands was an unusually deep one, holdin' probably eight quart or more, an' as soon as the bear was close enough I jumped forward an' clapped the pail over his nose, same as a dog's muzzle or a bull-catcher's mask, an' then I jammed the ball over back of his ears so he couldn't shake it off an' I had him 'jest where I wanted him.

The top of the pail came up far enough to cover his eyes, so altogether the bear was about as harmless 'jest then as if he had been born without any eyes or mouth. Procurin' my ax fer use in case of emergency, I took a half-hitch on that critter's nigh ear with my right hand, an' fifteen minutes later I was standin' with him in Miggin's front door yard. It was down hill and a hard crust on the snow all the way, an' it didn't do him any good to act balky or hold back.

"There's yer bear," I said, when old man Miggin's come to the door, "an' now 'jest trot out Matilda an' we'll make a trade."

"Where'd ye git 'im?" asked Miggin's, with eyes like two pealed onions.

"Up in my wood lot," sez I. "Thought it would be too much trouble to drag the carcass way down here, so I captured him alive an' made him walk."

"The dickens ye did," sez he. "Bet yer boots," sez I, "an' here's him to prove it. An' now the question is, do I get Matilda?"

"Reckon ye do," sez he. "It takes as much pluck to capture a bear alive as it does to kill one, so I guess I'll haffer give in. Wait till I put a ball through that bear, an' then ye kin come in an' talk over the matter with Matilda."

Three days later Matilda an' I commenced housekeepin' on our own account—thought we might as well hurry things along while her father was willin'—an' about a week after that he dropped in on us fer a call one day an' said:

"I thought I was gittin' a purty wiry an' courageous son-in-law, but I've changed my mind."

"What's the trouble now, dad?" sez I.

"Why, about that bear ye captured."

"What about it?"

"Why, I've been told the plaguey bear was at least forty years old, an' crippled an' half blind. An' Kye-tailan was exhibitin' it down at The Corners one day before ye made out ye captured it, an' they say he was braggin' afterwards how he swindled some one by sellin' 'em the bear fer ten dollars. Thought ye were mighty smart when ye bought that bear, didn't ye? Nibs tried to play on yer prospective son-in-law, I must say."

"But he didn't do it, father," spoke up Matilda, with a becomin' blush.

"Joe didn't know a thing about it till this very minute. I bought the bear of the Kye-tailan myself an' had him turn it loose in the woodlot where Joe was workin'."

"An' I'm mighty glad ye did!" sez I, throwin' both arms around her an' givin' her a ragin' bear hug.

"Hull hull!" sez Matilda's father, lookin' sorter cut-up like. "Well, that beats me. I hain't got nothin' further to say. I guess I've been to some sayin'."

A woman never knows what she hasn't found till she knows what she has lost.

Indicates strength of muscle and character, but in a woman, individualism, not to mention sensuality. One nail professor has taken the trouble to study the finger tips of sovereigns, and gives the world the benefit of his deductions. Kaiser Wilhelm has a slight hand, a stumpy thumb, fat, colorless nails, which indicate a brain wanting in balance. How clever! It didn't need finger nails, however, to discover that. Then the Emperor of Austria has a pair of sensible, rather hairy feet, but the long thumb denotes his line blood, the nails are pearly hued and much incurved, showing a well balanced mind. Victor Emmanuel III. has a spoon-shaped thumb nail, suggesting a gloomy, relentless character. The sultan, the monster, has a lovely, delicate, white hand. King Leopold is cursed with a plebian thumb and squat and square-shaped nail. Of course, the young Queen of Holland has a large hand for a woman of her height, with short nails of common mold. It would seem by all this that there is no telling whose blood is blue or whose is red by the hand. The most "aristocratic" hands ever beheld on woman were a perfect pair that did up a small package for me in a small shop not many days ago. The girl to whom they belonged didn't look as if she knew they were fine, and the above theory instantly went all to flinders in my mind. To all outward appearance she had no right to the best hands, to say nothing of the lost arms of the Venus di Milo, but there they were.—Boston Herald.

Interesting Facts Disclosed at a Missouri County Court Case.

Agencies in marriage licenses in the recorder's office show that men and women are marrying later in life than ten or twenty years ago, says the Kansas City Journal. The average age is considerably above that of ten years ago and very much above that of twenty, thirty or forty years ago. Formerly it was the rule rather than the exception for brides to be seventeen or eighteen and grooms twenty or twenty-one. Now it is almost reversed. Figures for several months show that the average bride's age is between twenty-five and twenty-six and the groom's between twenty-eight and twenty-nine. The average age of the first couple applying for licenses at the recorder's office Saturday was 33 1/2 for the men, and 33 for the women. When the number of couples had reached nine the figures were reduced to 33 for the men and 28 for the women. These figures, however, are not a good criterion, the couples applying Saturday happening to be a little older than ordinarily. Figures also indicate that couples marrying in May are younger than the average, than those marrying in the fall of the year. "I don't know to what to attribute the tendency to marry later in life," said the marriage license clerk, "unless it is that it takes the young man longer to get a start in the world than it did twenty or thirty years ago. The country is more developed, there are not so many opportunities open to him, and he must wait longer before he finds himself in a position that would warrant his taking the responsibility of supporting a family. In other words, men no longer marry young because they can not afford it."

WOODEN HUNTERS FEWER.

The Adirondack Woods Like a Leaning Tower in These Days.

Woodswomen are growing fewer in number, relatively and absolutely. The women who find pleasure in tramping over the mountain ridges with a gun in quest of deer, in following the windings of the stream with a rod alluring the trout, or casting for bass, are disappearing before the women who come into the woods with big trucks and many of them. True woodswomen are not confined to the Adirondacks. They may be found in any of the localities where there are good hunting and good fishing. They enjoy outdoor life and growing strong in roughing it. The membership of the Adirondack League club contains many women who are devoted to hunting deer and fishing, tramping through the forest and withstanding hardship. But the number of women who have entered the forests this fall to hunt deer has been smaller than usual, and it is seen that the number grows smaller each year. The conversion of the woods into a fashionable lounging place has had its effect upon the woodswomen. While there are woodswomen today, the majority have grown timid through the display of fashion about the hotels and are now rarely seen in short hunting skirts and high boots. When sporting was permitted in the Adirondacks women hunted deer much more than they do now. Later day conditions have decreased the number of women hunters greatly.

Lived a Clean Life.

General Hawley says this tribute to the late Charles Dudley Warren: "He was completely a gentleman. He lived a religious life, but said little about it. He regularly attended his church, respecting and obeying its observances. I never heard from his lips an indelicate or coarse story or an unclean idea. He abhorred impurities, immorality and dishonesty. It is a cheerful spirit and a true wit and a great humor that we find in all his works."

MRS. F. J. LYNCH, GRAND RAPIDS, MICH. Mrs. F. J. Lynch, 324 South Division street, Grand Rapids, Mich., writes: The Peruna Medicine Company, Columbus, Ohio:

Gentlemen:—I earnestly recommend Peruna to any suffering woman as it cures quickly. I had a most persistent cough which nothing seemed to cure. Two bottles of Peruna did more for me than all the doctors seemed to do. In a couple of weeks I found myself in excellent health, and have been enjoying it ever since. Hence I look on Peruna as a true friend to women.

Chronic Coughs and Colds Are Catarrhal Diseases.

Catarrh is the Continual Scourge of Christendom.

Catarrh hovers ominously over every city, and nestles treacherously in every hamlet. It flies with vampire wings from country to country and casts a black shadow of despair over all lands. Its stealthy approach and its lingering stay makes it a dread to the physician and a pest to the patient. It changes the merry laugh of childhood to the wheezy breathing of old age, and the song of the blushing maiden to the hollow cough of consumption. In its withering grasp the rounded form of the fond wife and mother becomes gaunt and spectral, and the healthy flush of manhood turns to the sallow, haggard visage of the invalid.

Cough takes the place of conversation, speech gives way to spitting, the repulsive odors of chronic catarrh poison the kiss of the fondest lover, and thickened membranes bedazzle sight, impair hearing and destroy taste.

As a drug store in this age of the world is incomplete without Peruna, it can be obtained anywhere with directions for use. A complete guide for the prevention and cure of catarrh and all diseases of winter, sent free by The Peruna Medicine Co., Columbus, Ohio.

W. B. Thompson & Co. Cotton Factors and Commission Merchants. No. 508 Perdido Street, NEW ORLEANS. ADVANCES MADE ON CONSIGNEMENTS.

Mrs. Alec Tweedie of London, England, has gained much fame as a writer and traveler, but until now America has been left out of her itinerary. She has been traveling in this country for several weeks, and intends to leave for Mexico in about ten days for a six months' stay to gather material for another such delightful book of travels as her former well-known works, "A Girl's Ride in Iceland," "A Winter Jaunt to Norway," and "Through Finland in Carts," have proved to be. Mrs. Tweedie is a distinguished-looking woman, who owns a pair of handsome brown eyes, a keen sense of humor and a refreshing enthusiasm in new experiences and new people, and as a result is a most entertaining talker.

In London, where she has a beautiful home, Mrs. Tweedie is a famous club-

MRS. ALEC TWEEDIE, woman. Her energy is something awe-inspiring. Every morning from 9 till 1 o'clock she is busy at her literary work, and after that the innumerable engagements of society during the season occupy her time. It has been said that of untitled women she has presented more girls at the English court than any other person and her list of friends numbers about all the writers, artists, travelers, statesmen and distinguished people who live in or visit London. Ample witness to this is the famous tablecloth she owns which is about as well known in London as its owner. The guests who have sat at her dinner table have scribbled their names on it in pencil, have sketched pictures and signed them, have written bits of verses, and these pencil outlines she has covered with embroidery tracings, the result being decidedly novel in the line of souvenirs.

Mrs. Tweedie has come to America after a summer in Paris, where she was an invited guest of Franco and spoke before one of the congresses on agriculture in Great Britain—this subject being one of the numerous hobbies for which she excels, her embroidery and painting being two more that she pursues with success. She is such a versatile woman that she crowds enough experiences, achievements, amusements and good hard work into one year to supply a dozen ordinary persons and such is her vitality she seems to thrive on it. As a charmingly representative English woman she stands a type by herself.

An interesting bit of news brought by her is that Sarah Grand, the novelist, one of her intimate friends, is coming to America soon on a lecturing tour. English women writers seem about to follow in the footsteps of their brother authors who have addressed American audiences the last few years.

OCEAN'S FLOOR.

It is Being Covered by a Deposit of Sediment.

Scientists estimate that the floor of the ocean is being gradually covered by a deposit of sediment, but so slowly is it forming that it amounts to but a single inch in a thousand years. Scientists are rather fond of estimating all manner of things which other folks usually overlook. When they turned their attention to the bottom of the ocean they went into the subject most thoroughly. For one item they took the ships which have been wrecked since ships were first built. They found that there were over thirty thousand of them in one much-traveled part of the ocean—so many that were they all afloat, a boy or girl might stand upon the deck of any one vessel and count the masts of a dozen others. Then they speculated upon the lasting qualities of all these wrecks, and decided that tens of thousands of years hence, when the present floor of the ocean will have risen and become populated farms, the man who plows the fields will find no remaining trace of all this wreckage unless he turns up an occasional object of gold, silver or glass. Wood, steel, iron and copper will have disappeared altogether. Should the great battleship Oregon sink to the ocean bed a plowman of the future will find only coins, bits of jewelry and the bull's-eye lights that go down with her. Man is leaving only one permanent trace of himself upon the ocean floor, and that, strange to say, is the deposit of ashes and half-burned coal thrown from steamers.

Great quantities of this refuse are cast over the sides of ships every year and the scientists believe that heaps of it are forming in quiet spots and that their brother scientists of the coming ages will be able to do a little estimating on their own account regarding us poor mortals of the twentieth century.

CONCEALED FIRE-ESCAPE.

Here is a fire escape which is designed to take up no extra space in a room, and yet it is always ready for instantaneous use. The designer's object is to utilize a chair or divan in the construction of the fire-escape that the latter will be effectively hidden from view when not in use. The work of adjusting the ladder for use is slight, and no time need be lost in placing the apparatus. The chair is wheeled to the window and the buttoned back stripped off, when the reel of links and rungs is presented to view. The outer end of the ladder is provided with two grappling hooks, which are attached to the window sill and the reel torred out of the win-

COMBINATION CHAIR. The weight of the ladder holds the hooks firmly, and the ladder is then ready for descent. When the apparatus is in position in the back of the chair it is concealed by a covering of cloth, which is provided with snap buttons around its edge, this being the handiest to unfasten in case of a fire.

JOHN I. TARTE OF CANADA.

One of the most conspicuous figures in politics in the Dominion at present is Hon. John Israel Tarte, minister of public works. He is certainly one of the best-abused men in Canada and by a large portion of the community the best hated. Notwithstanding this fact, he is unquestionably the real leader of the Liberal party in Quebec province and his splendid generalship as a tactician carried it again for Wilfrid Laurier, the Liberal premier, with a large majority.

Mr. Tarte is a born fighter. Single handed almost he wrecked the great Conservative party, of which he was at one time a leading member. In 1891 he declared war on a certain section of the cabinet of Sir John Macdonald, the then Conservative leader, and the disclosures made him an object of great hatred on the part of the Conservatives, so he threw his fortunes with the Liberals. The great Liberal victory of 1896 in Canada was attributed in large measure to his ability and efforts. Certain factions of his own party are also opposed to him, but Premier Laurier has always stood firmly by him.

An Old Custom Revived.

At the Dewey dinner given last winter to Admiral Dewey in Brooklyn each guest took away his plate as a souvenir. This was not a novel idea. Dr. Nicolas Tulp, one of the most celebrated physicians of Amsterdam, in 1672 gave a grand entertainment to his fellow burgomasters and councillors, on the completion of the fiftieth year of his membership of the common council. On that occasion each of the guests was presented, with a silver medal struck to commemorate the event. The festivities lasted from noon until 11 o'clock at night. Two customs were observed on the occasion, one somewhat general, the other rather rare. The first was that each guest on leaving took his dessert plate with him, on which was loaf sugar and fruit. The second was that the pipes and tobacco were served with saucers of porcelain.

Old Four-Wheeler at Auction.

An interesting relic of the earl of Beaconsfield came under the auctioneer's hammer at a sale in the parish of Hugheaden, Bucks, England, the other day. It was the two-wheeled pony chaise in which the conservative leader was accustomed to take his country drive in company with Lady Beaconsfield when in residence in Hugheaden manor. The vehicle, very old-fashioned in design, was knocked down for the small sum of 23s ($7.25), the purchaser being a local dealer.

Annual Production of Rubber.

It has been estimated that the approximate total production of rubber annually is $7,500 tons. Of this amount 21,000 tons are taken by the United States and Canada; 21,000 by the United Kingdom, and 15,500 by the rest of Europe. The Amazon district produces 26,000 tons and West and West Africa 24,000 tons; parts of South America other than the Amazon district, 2,000 tons.

WHY MRS. PINKHAM

Is Able to Help Sick Women When Doctors Fail.

How gladly would men fly to woman's aid did they but understand a woman's feelings, trials, sensitivities, and peculiar organic disturbances.

These things are known only to women, and the aid a man would give is not at his command.

To treat a case properly it is necessary to know all about it, and full information, many times, cannot be given by a woman to her family physician.

Mrs. G. H. CRAPPELL.

She cannot bring herself to tell everything, and the physician is at a constant disadvantage. This is why, for the past twenty-five years, thousands of women have been consulting their troubles to Mrs. Pinkham, and whose advice has brought happiness and health to countless women in the United States.

Mrs. Crappell, of Grant Park, Ill., whose portrait we publish, advises all suffering women to seek Mrs. Pinkham's advice and use Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, as they cured her of inflammation of the ovaries and womb; she, therefore, speaks from knowledge, and her experience ought to give others confidence. Mrs. Pinkham's address is Lynn, Mass., and her advice is absolutely free.

An Odd Trade Mark

And It's Origin.

The above singular combination is the trade-mark adopted by the Paris Medicine Company of St. Louis and is used in their advertisements of Grove's Tasteless Chill Tonic. To the many people who may be interested to know the origin of this odd trade-mark, the following information is given:

In the spring of 1893, the little two-year old son of Mr. E. W. Grove was taken quite sick with malaria. Mr. Grove, knowing the virtue of his own medicine, commenced giving him Grove's Tasteless Chill Tonic. He had taken this prescription only a few days until quite a favorable change was noted, in fact, he grew so rosy, healthy and plump, that Mrs. Grove, in describing his condition to her husband, remarked "Grove's Tonic makes our baby as fat as a pig." This led Mr. Grove to thinking that the expression "as fat as pigs" used in connection with malaria, was a very common one, and suggested to him the idea of combining a child's face with a pig's body, with wording as above. "Grove's Tonic makes children as fat as pigs." It is an attractive trade-mark, and the remedy it represents—Grove's Tonic—is regarded by the public as being the very best prescription for Malaria, Chills and Fever. The record of the Paris Medicine Company shows that Nine Thousand seven-hundred and thirty-one of Grove's Tonic have been sold this year from Jan. 1st, 1900, and as orders are truly a good index of a medicine's worth, it does not seem doubtful that the virtue of Grove's Tonic. Druggists all sell Grove's Tonic on a no cure, no pay basis, for fifty cents a bottle.
