Seven Points of Supremacy

The sole leather used in "FOOT-FITTERS" is of the best quality obtainable. It is the only shoe in the world having full length vamp and heel. This feature prevents slipping at the tip and makes the shoe and inner surface. The leather is specially tanned so that it is highly resistant to wear. There is no need of room for a cork shoe. A small piece of cork is used in the heel. The cushion makes comfort in a guaranteed, for it gives the foot a soft support in the arch and increases the comfort and wear of the shoe. The shoe is made with a cork heel. This absorbs the shocks from the feet and keeps the feet from cracking and holds the shoe in shape. "FOOT-FITTERS" shoes are called "FOOT-FITTERS" because they fit the foot. They are comfortable, light, they protect the feet like a second skin. "FOOT-FITTERS" give comfort, service and appearance.

POSTAL IMPROVEMENT WEEK IS OBSERVED

May 1-5th Inaugurated First General Campaign of Kind in Service.

Without the Postal Service business would languish in a day. The Postal Standard is a week. Unlike other weeks of any day, the Postal Standard is a week. Unlike other weeks of any day, the Postal Standard is a week. Unlike other weeks of any day, the Postal Standard is a week.

It is the Postal Service that makes it possible for the business of the world to go on. It is the Postal Service that makes it possible for the business of the world to go on. It is the Postal Service that makes it possible for the business of the world to go on.

"Postal Improvement Week" has been set for May 1-5th by the Postmaster General. This is the first general campaign of the kind in the Postal Service for several decades. Business men and their organizations have been urged to send in suggestions for the improvement of the Postal Service. Your help is vital. Address your letters plainly with pen or typewriter. Give street address. Spell out name of State, don't abbreviate. Put your return address in the upper left hand corner of envelope (not on the back) and always fasten your letter before dropping in the mail to see if it is properly addressed. This care in the use of the mails is for your benefit and speeds up the dispatch and delivery of mail matter.

If you have any complaints of poor service make them to your postmaster. He has instructions to investigate them and report to the department.

Taxes Reduced

The county has been successful in its fight with a petition to the Board of County Commissioners requesting that the taxes assessed on farming land be reduced. The valuation of agricultural land in this precinct was reduced from $90.00 per acre to $75.00.

WITHOUT STREET ADDRESS YOUR MAIL IS DELAYED AT OFFICE OF DELIVERY

The Head Letter Office has been in existence ever since Ben Franklin started our postal service. Even then people addressed mail to Mr. Franklin Smithers, "Atlantic Coast," and expected Ben to know just where Zeke lived.

Perhaps they had Zeke's address in letters up in the attic. Maybe a sheet full of 'em, half full, was pinned to the back of Zeke's door. People are addressing letters to Mr. Smith, New York, N. Y. or to Zeke, thinking Uncle Sam can locate him, which is just as impossible as Ben Franklin's address of 1788. The Post Office Department asks you to put the number and street in the address. It helps you.

LOOKING AFTER THE CATTLE

Not Alone in Fever Districts of Ireland Are Animals Shattered With the Family.

It is well known that the plot belonging to the poorer peasants in the villages of Ireland are practically "members of the family." The house is so all intents and purposes their kitchen, lodging and living quarters. Indeed, because, in not the only stock houses, as in the outlying villages in the northern part of Russia the family cow literally serves household, owns and is under shelter for eight months out of every twelve, says London Analyst.

The whole countryside is a mass of snow for months on end, and 40 to 50 degrees below zero is not uncommon; so the poor beasts have to be cooped up. They are fed—or, rather, nearly starved, on scrub grass, collected and stored by the Russians during the short summer, and they emerge when the snow has disappeared very thin indeed.

Although living in the same habitations as their owners, they are allotted a separate apartment. The chickens are also sheltered in the living and sleeping rooms, and are "bunched" in the fireplace.

The fire actually is about two and a half feet above the level of the floor, and with a few thin pieces of wood the aperture underneath is easily converted into a cosy place for the fowls in the winter.

In the village in the Nils district, 70 of the houses have flat tops, the natives make use of the roofs to "house" their smaller live stock, such as sheep, pigs and poultry.

The coroner's jury which inquired into the facts surrounding the killing of Constable M. E. Mosher, slain by another officer while the constable was participating in a raid of masked men, returned a verdict that Mosher came to his death while a member of a masked mob "presumably instigated and directed by members of the Ku Klux Klan."

Many bequests to charity were made by Christopher A. Buckley, famous blind boss of San Francisco's early days, whose will was on file for probate. The will, drawn March 18, about a month before Buckley's death, disposed of an estate valued at more than $1,000,000. Charitable institutions for Catholics and Protestants, whites and Chinese, were remembered in eleven bequests of $500 each.

Once more the wheel of fate has turned and Juanita Miller, daughter of the late Joaquin Miller, eccentric "Poet of the Sierras," has entered still another cycle of her life. When two more months have come and gone, Juanita admitted, she will lay away her wedding gown of burial and, donning a neat tailor suit, will file suit for divorce at Oakland, Calif.

J. Foster Hynes, United States district attorney for Colorado, has been nominated by President Harding to be United States district judge for the Colorado district. Mr. Hynes has been prominent for a long time in business and political circles in Denver, as well as being active in clubs and social life. Following announcement of Mr. Hynes nomination by President Harding, the United States district attorney's office was flooded with calls of congratulations.

ORDER MARTIAL LAW IN PEKING

AMERICAN LEGATION IN CHINA ASKS FOR ANOTHER BATTLESHIP.

CIVIL WAR IN CHINA

HUNDREDS KILLED IN DESPERATE BATTLE NEAR CHINESE CAPITAL.

(Western Newspaper Union News Service.)

Peking—Martial law has been declared in Peking. The armies of Gen. Chang Tso-Lin and Gen. Wu Pei-fu have been fighting continuously. The fighting centered around Changshientien, twelve miles distant. A government communique says Chang Tso-Lin was victorious in the fighting at Machang. The American legation has requested Washington to send another warship to Tientsin.

President Hau Shih Chang, in consequence of the hostilities, has issued three proclamations, calling attention to the serious consequences to China which might result from the jeopardizing of foreign interests.

The first proclamation said the Chinese people were terrified; that merchants were suffering losses and the industry of the nation was demoralized. Therefore, it was demanded that Chang Tso-Lin and Wu Pei-fu immediately withdraw their armies.

The second proclamation declared that as Peking was the capital of the nation, peace and order must prevail.

Emphasis was laid in the third proclamation of the necessity to protect the lives and property of foreigners and for compliance with treaties with the powers. It was added that the Chinese railroad administration had sent a protest to the government asserting that the railroads of the country face bankruptcy in consequence of the suspension of traffic, and that this fact involves foreign obligation.

Chang Tso-Lin's forces occupy the village of Changshientien, where 100 wounded have been taken into the houses of natives. The dead were left on the battle field. Reliable details as to the casualties are not obtainable.

From the hillside overlooking the Hun river he witnessed the operations of both armies, with Chang Tso-Lin's troops holding the village of Changshientien and the Wu Pei-fu forces two miles southward fighting desperately to advance.

Smoke from the cannon enveloped the hillside; shells were bursting in the trenches; camels were to be seen transporting guns to various points and refugees were observed running from their homes. A vivid picture of the seriousness of the struggle was obtained.

About 1,000 dead or wounded were observed by Commander Hutchins. Both sides appeared to be signaling wide areas. The relative position of the contending forces did not seem to have changed materially since the battle began.

The opinion expressed by Commander Hutchins is that Wu Pei-fu's object is to push forward and capture Peking, with a view to controlling affairs from the capital. Chang Tso-Lin in a declaration asserted that Wu Pei-fu was ambitious to become a Chinese Napoleon. He declared that peace would not be possible until Wu Pei-fu was "captured and banished like Napoleon."

Utah Governor Withholds Troops

Salt Lake City, Utah.—The sending of national guard troops to police the coal mines at Scofield, Carbon county, in connection with strike disturbances there, is being held in abeyance by Gov. Charles Mabey of Utah. Following receipt of word from Labor Commissioner William Knerr at Scofield, the governor said troops would not be sent unless there was further evidence that their presence was required. Scuffling miners are reported to have held up a train and to have removed several alleged strike breakers.

League Asks to Stop Opium Traffic

Geneva.—Illicit trade in opium throughout the world soon will be under effective control if the restrictive measure adopted by the advisory committee of the League of Nations, which has been in session here, are accepted by the various governments. The plans adopted provide that no opium shall be exported or imported without a written governmental certificate that is needed for medical or other legitimate purposes.

Pope Pius Makes Appeal for Peace

Rome.—Pope Pius, through Cardinal Gasparri, has addressed to the governments and peoples of the world a letter, which is described as a new appeal to universal brotherhood and a new admonition of disaster likely to befall mankind if efforts for true pacification should fail. This act by the Holy See has created great interest, has seemed already to inspire all renewed efforts to make the Geneva conference of lasting good to the world.

WASHINGTON SIDELIGHTS

To Mix Efficiency With Civil Service

WASHINGTON.—Part of the bureau of engraving and printing, which was reorganized under an executive order by President Harding, removing James L. Wilmett, its director, and other high officials, was ordered closed later by Secretary Mellon for an inventory of the stock, valued at many millions of dollars. "Mr. Mellon's order applied only to the divisions of the bureau which handle the paper used in making bank notes, stamps and government securities, it being explained that a quicker and more accurate checking could be made by a temporary shutdown of all paper work. About 1,500 employees of the bureau force of 6,000 would ordinarily be affected by the order, officials said, but about six hundred would be used as counters and all others having annual leave to their credit will be given the benefit of it. Secretary Mellon in a formal statement said: "The statements to the effect that a vast volume of duplicate bonds and other securities have been fraudulently issued and are in circulation are wholly without foundation. There has been no evidence developed of any such situation either by the bureau of engraving and printing or elsewhere in the treasury department." Following President Harding's declaration that the administration is conducting no drive on the civil service but is driving for greater government efficiency through the civil service, it was learned that some influential administration leaders plan to take many of the higher paid positions out of the ironclad jurisdiction of civil service regulations. All positions paying $5,000 or $4,000 or over, positions of an administrative nature, would be placed in one group. Employees below the higher figures would be in the same position they occupy today.

Blanton of Texas Unpopular in House

THOMAS BLANTON, a Democratic representative from Texas, does not seem to be exactly popular with either side of the house. Representative Garner, Democrat of Texas, declared in the house the other day that if permitted by the rules to speak what was in the minds of 424 of the 485 house members he would say that Representative Blanton of that state "is a disgrace to this house and ought to be kicked out."

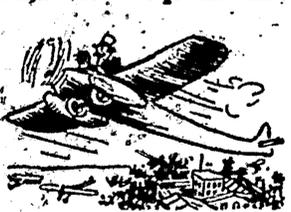

At the onset of his speech Garner said that in this world there "are all kinds of liars, the artistic liar, the inartistic liar and the common liar." Representative Blanton, sitting a few feet away jumped to his feet and exclaimed: "And I will hold you personally responsible if you call me a liar."

Garner did not notice the interruption, but Representative Summers, also of Texas, sitting nearby jumped to his feet and shouted "liar" at Mr. Blanton, at the same time starting in his direction. It was at this point that the sergeant-at-arms rushed in and Blanton retired from the chamber. Then there came from the Democratic side of the chamber a cry of "throw him out," which was picked up by other Democrats, and for a moment there was great confusion. Mr. Garner waited until quiet had been restored, so proceeded with his speech. "But I have in mind an individual—not a man—a creature who is the commonest; the biggest liar that ever spoke a word of English in this country. I have in mind a creature who would go to the stationery room and make inquiry about a whisky flask and then ask the superintendent to get him one from Philadelphia that he might parade it in Texas as an evidence of what congressmen get." The cause of the rumpus was several speeches by Blanton denouncing the stationery and mileage allowances of members as graft.

America Up in the Air Over Aviation

WE WILL—and we won't—in aviation. The senate passed a resolution the other day which contains the following: "Whereas immediate and adequate consideration and development of the science of aeronautics is vital to the commercial and industrial expansion and to the protection and prosperity of the United States; and "Whereas it daily becomes more evident that if the United States is not to be completely outdistanced in the field of aeronautics, and is not therefore to be left defenseless, a separate school of aeronautics should be created and maintained or separate schools of aeronautics should be established in the United States Military academy and in the United States Naval academy; Therefore be it "Resolved that the secretary of war and the secretary of the navy be directed to report to congress (1) whether or not it is feasible and advisable to establish a school of aeronautics, to be known as the United States Academy for Aeronautics, with buildings, grounds, and equipment necessary for instructing and training cadets; (2) whether or not it is practicable to use a part of the buildings and grounds of the United States Military academy and of the United States Naval academy for separate schools in aeronautics, to the end that young men desirous of qualifying for commissions in the United States air service may be appointed as cadets to such separate aeronautical schools in the same manner as cadets are now appointed to qualify for commissions in the United States army and the United States navy; and (3) whether or not it is feasible to take over one of the existing navy yards or arsenals for the purpose of converting the same into a government plant for the development and manufacture of aircraft of various kinds suitable for national, commercial, and defense purposes."

"Home Again, From a Foreign Shore?"

LIQUORS having a value in the legitimate market of more than $200,000,000 and worth in bootlegger channels more than $100,000,000, shipped from the United States to foreign countries just before the Volstead act went into effect on January 16, 1920, will eventually find their way back to this country, under the provisions of the Willis-Campbell act passed by congress last November to supplement the national prohibition law, according to John D. Appleby, general prohibition agent in charge of New York and New Jersey.

The passages of the Willis-Campbell law, which ostensibly was principally for the purpose of killing medicinal beer, has made it possible for the thirsty to be supplied with good liquors for a much longer period than appeared likely before the measure was adopted, prohibition officials here say. In some quarters the provision for the reimport of liquors is considered as a "joker" in the law. The law stopped the importations of liquors, and also the manufacture of medicinal liquor in this country save alcohol "with the consent of such liquor law is distributed or other bonded warehouses, shall have been reduced to a quantity that in the opinion of the commissioner will, with liquor that may hereafter be manufactured and imported, be sufficient to supply the current need thereafter for all nonbeverage uses." But it is provided "that the commissioner may authorize the return to the United States under such regulations and conditions as he may prescribe any distilled spirits of American produce imported free of tax, and reimported in original packages in which imported and bonded for medicinal use in the distillery bonded warehouses from which originally removed." And there you are!

A Few Little Smiles

NOT A PROFITABLE FAMILY

"So you've lost that family you've been attending for several years," said one doctor to another.

"Yes," he replied, "they've changed over to Doctor Green."

"Weren't they good pay?"

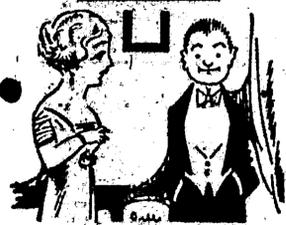

"Oh, they paid their little bill regularly enough, but there wasn't one among 'em who would ever consent to have an operation."—Detroit Free Press.

"My dear," said Mr. Bibbles, "I don't want to object to your friends, but Mrs. Wopple is quite impossible."

"I thought so, too, before I got well acquainted with her," replied Mrs. Bibbles, "but she is really quite a charming woman, and she tells me Mr. Wopple is an expert in making home brew."

"Well, well, I guess we ought to be neighbors. We'll run over together this evening and ask how they are."

The Living Present.

"Your name," exclaimed the admiring constituent, "will echo down the corridors of time."

"I don't demand that much," said Senator Burghum, much affected. "All I ask is that my services may be considered sufficiently worthy to keep my name mentioned in the various political conventions."

Reducing His Ego.

"What's the cause of this traffic congestion?"

"A man who is the power in the community is having an argument with a traffic policeman."

"Getting any results?"

"Yes. He doesn't know it now, but the experience is doing him a lot of good."

Foregoing a Thrill.

Daddy's Evening Fairy Tale

MARY GRAHAM BONNER

FAIRY QUEEN'S ADVENTURES

"Well," said the Fairy Queen, "so many adventures as I've had today! In the first place of all, I've seen so many balloons."

"There have been pink ones and blue ones and red ones. Oh, balloons of all colors, and some of them got away from their owners, broke their strings and went high, high up in the air."

"I saw one fastened to a painter's scaffold, and it looked so pretty high up like that."

"High up in the air?"

"They are so lovely," continued the Fairy Queen, "that I am going to give a Balloon Ball next week and I want everyone to come to it."

"Everyone must be dressed like a balloon and everyone must bring a balloon, too. It will be a beautiful ball, I'm sure."

"Oh, it will be a lovely ball," said the Fairy Queen.

"But tell us the rest of your adventures," they added.

"Well," said the Fairy Queen, "I saw three fine boys named Tony and Joe and Marlo. They were busy playing checkers, and they had a visitor who came and played with them. Two played at a time, but Marlo beat all the others."

"I peeped behind a plant which was growing in the window and saw all these checker games. I like it when people have plants. Then I can see so much more, as I can hide behind the plants."

"I always carry my wand with me that I can wave so as to make myself small or big, as I choose."

"Then I saw a little girl whose father always calls her Mrs. Kittens."

"I asked how she had received this name and I was told that her father thought she was just like dear little kittens one wanted to hug and love and pet."

"I passed a quince bush which has been in a garden for years and years and years."

"Are you going to bloom this year?"

"I asked. I mean by that, are you going to yield or give any quinces?"

"I'm not sure," said the quince bush. "You know, I had a quince on my bush one year."

"You are forever talking about that one quince," I said. "I have heard about it for the greatest number of years, and I believe it is the only quince that was ever on your bush."

"You're right," said the quince bush, "but I still talk about it, Fairy Queen."

"Then I saw some children and I heard them talking about the different tricks they had played on April Fool's Day."

"It seems they had stopped everyone and told them they had dropped some money, or that there was some money in front of them, and then they had said 'April Fool!'"

"They had played it on each other, too."

"Oh, see the penny coming out of your shoe!" one had said, and some one had stopped to look at such a curious sight when, of course, the child had called out:

"April Fool!"

"I saw a little city garden, with trees coming out and showing that it was the springtime. There were crocuses already out and seeds had been planted and the trees were soon to be in bloom and would later have lovely leaves."

"I saw skipping and jumping games, and many, many games of marbles being played."

"And such fine rope-skipping as I saw! Oh, some splendid rope-skipping."

"Where were some fine chalk drawings that I beheld, too. Some of them were very fine and some were very funny."

"I saw my old friend, Beauty, who said she was still busy going her rounds and giving Beauty Sleep to folks to make them handsome. She is certainly handsome herself."

"And I saw sailboats in ponds, and even sailboats in mud puddles, and mud pies being made—fine looking mud pies."

"I saw a little seashore garden where there were big pansies and brown and yellow wall flowers out, and lovely double daffodils, too."

"But there! I've talked enough. We must make ready our invitations for the great Balloon Ball. Heigh-ho, heigh-ho for the great Fairyland Balloon Ball!"

Fine Looking Mud Pie.

"I saw a little seashore garden where there were big pansies and brown and yellow wall flowers out, and lovely double daffodils, too."

Educated Dog.

"Lay down, pup. Lay down. That's a good doggie. Lay down, I tell you."

FRIEND OF YANKS

American Has Won That Reputation In Cuba.

Colonel D'Estrampes Is Remembered With Gratitude by Many Foolish and Unfortunate Visitors.

"If you ever go down to Havana, run into a rum den, sipple a bit and wake up in jail—as many an American does—you'll want to meet Jose d'Estrampes. Since Rovin carried the message to Garcia there has never been on the whole island of Cuba a figure more picturesque, more romantic, more genuinely flavored with tropical adventure and romance than this man D'Estrampes, avers a New York Sun writer.

Colonel D'Estrampes—for he was a colonel, right beside Roosevelt at San Juan—is not a native. Born in New Orleans, he there picked up his first splutterings of Spanish, the language that later facilitated his passage on board a frigate to Havana.

In Havana, always a method of politics, D'Estrampes, tall, handsome and courtly, was soon recognized as a friendly American and effective orator. It wasn't long before his chair was drawn up every night among those other chairs clustered around the small, marble-topped saloons tables over which Cubans wage their bitter political campaigns. He was elected to congress and later to the senate and for his services in the war against the Spaniards was commissioned colonel.

All the influence which Col. Jose d'Estrampes has accumulated through these years he now employs to the benefit of his visiting countrymen. He can always exert a little "pull" to help the down-and-out American.

If an American is locked up let him send a messenger to Col. Jose d'Estrampes and he'll get out of jail without any diplomatic red tape. If a girl comes to Cuba with some traveling yaudeville team, is stranded in Havana, let her communicate with the colonel. He'll arrange to house her temporarily with one of the many wealthy families who always welcome D'Estrampes and whom he introduces.

"You're a sort of self-constituted minister to Cuba, aren't you, colonel?" he was asked. "Why do you take so much pains with all these unfortunates?"

"Now," drawled the colonel with a sun-twisted smile and he waved his sabers-carried right hand out toward Key West, 90 miles across the water. "Now, I'm no diplomat. Folks up in Washington send your diplomats down here, your ministers and your consuls, you know. Now, I wouldn't be one of them. Too many bosses!"

"But you take as much trouble with Americans, colonel, as if you were a consul."

"More, I guess," he admitted and scratched his head. "But it ain't diplomacy. It's just a sort of friendly feeling for home folks—patriotism they call it during a war, I always kind of keep in mind and try to recollect that I used to be an American and it don't seem so long ago, either, that I was almost a bum, too."

Will Educate the Indians.

An extensive campaign of education among the Indians of Mexico, which promises to do away with their illiteracy, has been mapped out by the department of public education of the Mexican government. Preliminary to the establishment of schools in Indian communities an inspection of the different tribes will be made by Prof. Lauro Caloca. It is stated that the work will be instructed with the appointment of 100 instructors, and that in making these selections preference will be given to those teachers who speak the Indian language. An appropriation of 500,000 pesos, equivalent to $250,000 money, will be used to get this new educational work started.

Reforming the Deal.

Some one who has evidently been suffering from a succession of poor hands when playing whist or bridge has devised a pack of cards the backs of which are marked with numbers and indicators and the cards are dealt according to the indicator, instead of in the usual way, by rotation. The result is that four absolutely equal combinations of cards are obtained by the four players. There are 12 sets of indicators on each pack of cards, making possible 12 entirely different hands or sets of combinations. After the cards have been dealt, the game is played in any of the ordinary ways.

It Happened Long Ago.

An old-timer told us a story the other day that he swore was true. It happened in the old wild days, when many days were considerably damper than they are now. It seems that he and his buddy were holding down a solitary outpost in the Philippines and it was their duty to raise and lower the national colors, morning and night. One day, evening, through an oversight, they neglected to lower the flag at sundown. All went well until the next morning when they searched frantically for the flag, only to discover that it was hanging limply at the top of the flag pole.—The Leatherneck.

MORE GOOD THINGS

Egg contains about 15 per cent protein, 10 per cent fat, 1 per cent mineral salts and the rest water. It will be seen, then, that they lack carbohydrates (starches and sugar) and this must be supplied by combining with eggs the needed amount of carbohydrates to make a well balanced diet. The yolk of the egg has 82 per cent of fat while the white has none. Often the yolk of a hard-cooked egg will agree better with a young child than a whole egg cooked soft.

Stuffed Eggs.—Cut hard-cooked eggs in halves, crosswise; remove the yolks and place them in a bowl; mash and mix them with an equal amount of chicken, seasoned, and mix with salt and pepper and a little cream. A few chopped mushrooms may be added. Fill the halves of the whites with the stuffing, press them together and roll in crumbs, then fry in hot fat. A cream or tomato sauce is good with these eggs.

Apple Balls.—Cut 24 balls from apples with a French potato cutter; add two tablespoonsful of lemon juice and then add one-fourth cupful of sugar and one-half cupful of water; steam until tender, but not soft enough to lose their shape. Beat the whites of two eggs, add two tablespoonsful of powdered sugar and a few drops of vanilla. Toast six rounds of bread until well browned, dip in hot milk, then butter and pile the apple balls on each round. Cover with the meringue and brown in the oven.

French Omelet.—Scour the omelet pan with salt so that it will be perfectly smooth. Add to the hot pan one tablespoonful of butter; when melted, add the omelet. Break four eggs into a bowl and beat them just enough to mix the yolks and whites; add four tablespoonsful of warm water, one-half spoonful of minced parsley and a sprinkling of pepper. Place the pan where the heat is hottest and pour in the eggs, dust lightly with salt and shake the pan to keep the omelet in motion. Lift the edges with a knife so that the center will cook; fold and turn on to a hot platter. Serve at once.

Apple Drops.—Sift together one cupful of flour and sugar, rub into this mixture two tablespoonsful of butter. Reserve a quarter of a cupful for the top. Add 1½ teaspoonfuls of baking powder, one egg, three tablespoonsful of shortening and one-half cupful of milk; beat well and put the mixture into a shallow pan, cover with the reserved flour and shortening mixture and bake in moderate oven. Cut in rounds, cover with apple sauce and serve with whipped cream.

POTATO COOKERY

Potatoes are the common food and are popular because of the ease of preparation as well as for their wholesomeness and adaptability. Any one is supposed to know how to boil potatoes if she knows how to boil water, but the fact is a good potato is not produced by all cooks. Potatoes should be of uniform size if cooked together, or the small ones will be ruined by the time the larger ones are cooked. This is true of both boiled and baked potatoes.

The sweet potato should not be forgotten for it is a most valuable food. The yams are especially fine-flavored and one never tires of them, while the too sweet potato cloy the appetite.

Potato Muffins.—Take one cupful of cold mashed potato, soften with three-fourths of a cupful of milk, sift one and one-half cupfuls of flour, one-half teaspoonful of salt, four teaspoonfuls of baking powder, add the potato, then two well-beaten eggs and two tablespoonfuls of melted fat. Bake thirty minutes. If the potato is very dry add a little more milk.

Potato Pudding.—Take two and one-fourth cupfuls of grated sweet potato, one cupful of milk, one-half cupful of sugar, two eggs, one teaspoonful of cinnamon and one-fourth teaspoonful of ginger. Mix well and bake in a moderate oven until firm. Serve with milk or cream.

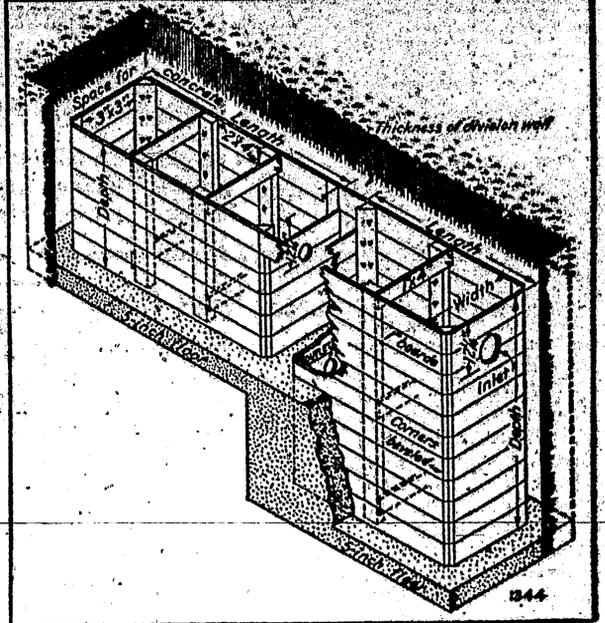

Potato Soup.—Boil four medium-sized potatoes in salted water; when soft, mash through a ricer. Add a slice of onion to one quart of milk; when scalded remove the onion. Add the milk to the potato. Melt three tablespoonfuls of fat, add two tablespoonfuls of flour, stir into the boiling soup, boil one minute. Sprinkle with parsley and serve hot.

Potato Cakes.—Form mashed and seasoned potato into small cakes and roll in seasoned flour. Melt some fat in a frying pan and brown the cakes on both sides, turning them carefully with a spatula.

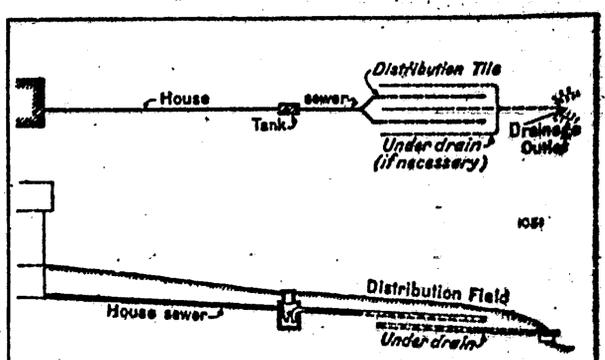

Stakeholder Methods.

Stakeholder methods, materials or devices should be avoided, or used sparingly, according to Farmers' Bulletin 1227, Sewage and Sewerage of Farm Homes, recently issued by the United States Department of Agriculture. Vent pipes should never be placed in the tops of septic tanks or cesspools where they are near dwelling houses; in the construction of a sewage disposal plant, the siphon chamber and siphon may be omitted in those rare instances where it is feasible to discharge into salt water or into a large stream already badly polluted. Disposal of sewage in a running stream should be a last resort, as such practice endangers water supplies downstream, and unless the volume and velocity of flow are good such disposal may be very objectionable. After a sewage disposal plant is installed, it is necessary to inspect and clean it out at regular intervals. The settling chamber should be cleaned at least

SEWAGE DISPOSAL AS IMPORTANT FOR HEALTH ON FARM AS IN CITY

Practical Dimensions for Farm Septic Tank.

Plans for Sewage Distribution Fields.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

There is a general but erroneous belief that the cost of sewerage is little in the city, but almost prohibitive in the country. All personal and realty properties in a certain Eastern city average a valuation of $10,352 per home, which pays $353 for sewers outside the cellar wall. An average farm in a Middle Western state represents a valuation of $17,250. Is not a farmer justified in the small outlay required to dispose of the farm sewage? Because of the issuance of bonds and the appointment of sewer systems for a series of years, the city dweller may have his burden distributed over a long period. The farmer does not pay interest on these obligations, and sewer work can be done more cheaply in the country than in the city.

Not Merely a Fad.

Safe disposal of farm sewage is not a passing fad, but a vital necessity, cautions the United States Department of Agriculture. A good sewerage installation is an asset, because it greatly promotes the healthfulness and wholesomeness of the farm. Moreover, the benefits are far-reaching, because farm products go into every home, and farm and urban populations mingle freely. Before undertaking construction it is best to prepare a definite plan. Assistance and advice can be had from the local county agent. Such agencies as agricultural extension workers, state agricultural colleges, state and local boards of health, the United States public health service and the United States Department of Agriculture are all desirous of assisting the farmer who contemplates the installation of a satisfactory sewage disposal plant.

Size of Septic Tank.

The septic tank should be 50 to 100 of more feet from any dwelling and, if practicable, to the leeward of prevailing summer breezes. The sewage distribution field should be located downhill from any well or spring and, if possible, at least 300 feet from such water supplies. The disposal of all sewage should be through dry, porous, deeply drained ground. The distribution of the sewage in the land should be so apportioned that all of it is thoroughly absorbed and oxidized. Always lay sewers straight and below the reach of frost, ventilate them thoroughly and make the joints watertight and rootproof.

Avoid Cheap Methods.

Stakeholder methods, materials or devices should be avoided, or used sparingly, according to Farmers' Bulletin 1227, Sewage and Sewerage of Farm Homes, recently issued by the United States Department of Agriculture. Vent pipes should never be placed in the tops of septic tanks or cesspools where they are near dwelling houses; in the construction of a sewage disposal plant, the siphon chamber and siphon may be omitted in those rare instances where it is feasible to discharge into salt water or into a large stream already badly polluted. Disposal of sewage in a running stream should be a last resort, as such practice endangers water supplies downstream, and unless the volume and velocity of flow are good such disposal may be very objectionable. After a sewage disposal plant is installed, it is necessary to inspect and clean it out at regular intervals. The settling chamber should be cleaned at least once a year. All pipe lines below the ground should be marked with iron or stone markers to facilitate examination, repair, or extension of the system.

Every farmer contemplating the installation of a sewage disposal plant should secure and study this bulletin, which can be obtained free of charge from the division of publications, United States Department of Agriculture, Washington.

STERILE SPIKELETS IN OATS

Yield is Sometimes Much Reduced Because of Condition—Too Much Moisture is Cause.

The yield of oats is sometimes much reduced because of the number of sterile spikelets in the heads, and because of the frequent occurrence of this condition the United States Department of Agriculture conducted a number of experiments to find the cause and, possibly, a remedy. The results are given in Department Bulletin 1038, Sterility of Oats, a professional paper by Charlotte Elliott.

It was at first thought that the number of sterile spikelets had some relation to the amount of halo blight in the field, but the experiments did not bear out the belief. The amount of sterility seems to vary with different varieties during the same season under similar conditions. Too much moisture about the developing heads is believed to be the cause, due to rains falling about the time the oats sheaths are ready to open. The author suggests that if further experiments show that year after year certain varieties suffer more from sterility than others, as appears to be the case, they may be discarded and harder ones grown.

The bulletin may be had by addressing the Superintendent of Public Documents, Washington, enclosing 10 cents.

ALFALFA IS BIG MONEY CROP

Increased Number of Animals That Can Be Carried on Farm and Enriches Soil.

The great benefits from alfalfa include the increasing of the number of live stock that can be carried on the farm; lowering the cost of feeding; and improving the land for following cultivated and small grain crops. In addition to these advantages, alfalfa is one of the best money crops that can be grown under present conditions. From three to five tons of hay per acre can be expected from a good stand. At present prices for alfalfa hay, it is doubtful if any other general field crop can show as large a net profit per acre as alfalfa during the past year.

YEARLY COST OF RAT

The Department of Agriculture figures that it costs $152 to keep a rat for a year. That looks high, but if we lose one dollar the rat is still an expensive luxury. The $2 cents would pay big interest on money in rat-proof cribs and bins.

New land is being broken for cultivation in every locality around Corona this spring. Farmers are beginning to wake up to the fact that the pinto bean is a real money maker if given a reasonable amount of attention.

The squabble in the senate over the proposed soldiers bonus reminds the ex service man of these lines from Kipling: Oh, to tummy this an' t' mmy that an' chuck 'im out, the brute But 'is 'saviour of 'is country' 'as the guns begin to shoot.

Main Street why not grade it? An Easy World

Life's an easy road to travel if you'll only walk it straight: There are many here to help you in your little bouts with fate. When the clouds begin to gather and your hopes begin to fade. If you've only toiled in honor you won't have to call for aid. But if you've bartered friendship and the faith on which it rests For a temporary winning; if you've cheated in the test. If with promises you've broken, you have chilled the hearts of men: It is vain to look for friendship for it will not come again. Oh, the world is full of kindness, thronged with men who want to be Of some service to their neighbors and they'll run to you or me When we're needing their assistance if we've lived upon the square. But they'll spurn us in our troubles if we've always been unfair.

DAMAGE DONE TO COLISEUM

English Writer Criticizes Action of the Authorities in Removing Ivy From the Walls

For many centuries down to February 1, 1872, there was a solemn procession from the Church of San Clemente to the Coliseum in Rome, carrying the relics of Saint Ignatius, the disciple of St. John and companion of Polycarp, around the scene where on that date he had been decouped by lions as the first of the martyrs of the Coliseum. The spot where shortly after his death 115 Christians were shot down by arrows was marked, until 1872, by a cross which was then destroyed.

"The dealings of the authorities with that ancient monument have been rather unprofitable and tender," says an article in Cornhill (London). "Nature has clothed its ruined walls with an exquisite veil of greenery; a flora so marvelous and interesting that books had been written on its 400 varieties, a few of which were so rare that their seeds are supposed to have come in ancient days in the cage of wild beasts from tropical countries. They have all been scraped away, the walls are bare, and more damage has been done to them by dragging out the bones of the shrubs than might have happened naturally in the course of centuries."
