Officers Capture Still, Arrest One Man

Deputy Sheriff A. S. McCamant arrested Allen Patterson late Saturday evening of last week on the charge of bootlegging. Several quarts of liquor were found in Patterson's car when it was searched. He was taken to Carrizozo and placed in the county jail. His bond was fixed at $500 which he failed to make. Sheriff Ed Harris, prohibition officer O. A. Rector and deputy sheriff McCamant located a 40 gallon still which Patterson and a man called Shannon were charged with operating, about six miles from its original location where it had been hidden by Shannon. Shannon is reported to have made a full confession, admitting that he and Patterson had been operating the still on a 50-50 basis.

CASE THRESHING MACHINES

Case Threshers Easy to Handle

BECAUSE of the simplicity of design of Case steel-built, galvanized Threshers, but few adjustments are necessary when these machines are in operation.

The man who is familiar with the various types of threshers in use today, is always impressed by the fact that all unnecessary belts, pulleys, shafts, gears, sprockets and chains have been eliminated from Case Threshers. This means not only a great saving in power, wear and tear on the machine, and replacement costs, but also results in reducing delays to a minimum.

Case Threshers require very little attention. Back of the cylinder and beater, there are no revolving parts to wrap or wind with straw or twine. All parts that might require oiling, adjustment or replacement are easily accessible.

The seven sizes are 20x28, 22x36, 26x46, 28x50, 32x54, 36x58 and 40x62. There is a Case-built Kerosene Tractor or Steam Engine that will furnish steady, economical power for each thresher. There's real economy in buying a Case outfit as we can easily prove to you when you come in to see us.

THE BEGINNING OF A BANK-NOTE

Little Marcia's baby dress though made of the finest linen was ultimately worn threadbare. One day it landed in the rag and was sold to the junk dealer. When the rag sorter touched the discarded garment he detected in a flash the fine quality of the flax and set it aside for a journey to the Bureau of Engraving and Printing at Washington. Eventually it became legal tender—a bank-note. Just how is told in one of the beautiful booklets about Our Government which we are sending each month to those interested.

CLIENT "SPILLED THE BEANS"

Altogether Too Truthful in Answering Question Put to Him by His Own Attorney.

"Were I giving advice to a young lawyer," said an attorney the other day, "I would advise him to be careful about placing his client on the stand. It is at least as well to know what he is likely to answer to his attorney's leading questions. Some time ago," continued the lawyer, "a case was tried in which the plaintiff's attorney certainly 'spilled the beans,' though actually it was a cargo of bread, rolls and cake that was upset. A baker's wagon had been hit by a train in spite of the 'Stop, Look, Listen' sign, and the driver sued. On the stand he was asked how he conducted himself when he came to the crossing, and he replied: 'I just trotted gently across, looking the other way and thinking about nothing in particular.' The attorney threw up the case on the spot, but it was really a lack of foresight on his part," continued the narrator.

PUTTING MOTHER IN WRONG

Small Boy Quick to Observe Point That Might Enable Him to Escape Punishment.

It was cherry time and Richard insisted on running out in the orchard and eating the half-ripe cherries. His mother told him how much better it would be for every one if he only left the cherries until they were ripe, so they could be enjoyed. She also warned him she would punish him if he went to the orchard again.

Soon she saw him pulling off the green cherries and she went out and cut a tiny switch from the tree. Richard saw her coming toward him, switch in hand, and the little lad said to her earnestly:

"Mother, if you had only left that switch on the tree just think what a fine big limb it would have been some day!"—Exchange.

Don't Kill Bullsnakes.

Kansas farmers find that a bullsnake in an alfalfa field is worth at least $2.50 a month, says the Scientific American, for an acre harbors, on an average, six gophers, which damage the crop to that extent. One adult bullsnake keeps an acre free of the pests. The bullsnake is harmless, feeds also on rats and mice around barn or granary, and deserves the protection of the farmer.

The State Department has just received word from Tokyo that Japan has just produced its first automobile, a three-wheeler, it was announced. Postal employees have been cautioned by Assistant Postmaster General Hartlett not to be misled by "propaganda or misinformation," designed, it was said, to create unrest among the nearly half million workers of the service. The caution, contained in a statement made public recently, was occasioned, it was declared, by a declaration of the National Federation of Postoffice Clerks that the postal service was not properly observing the eight-hour law, as it was "cheaper financially to work regular clerks overtime than to employ substitutes."

THE AMERICAN LEGION

Roger Sullivan, Former Engineer, Disabled in World War, Successful in Camera Work.

The fact that he was an engineer before the war may help him to understand the mechanism of a motion picture camera, but the knowledge of proper lighting effects and other things incident to the successful production of motion pictures had to be learned by Roger Sullivan, after he was seriously disabled in the World war.

Sullivan was wounded while operating with the United Naval forces in France. After the war, young Sullivan found that his injuries were such that he could not successfully "carry on" as an engineer. Under the supervision of the U. S. Veterans' bureau, he entered a school of photography in New York and has completed a course in motion picture making and "still" photography.

Sullivan and His Camera.

Together with James E. Pelkey, another disabled veteran who took the same course, Sullivan is producing a picture entitled "Another Chance." The picture depicts every stage through which a disabled veteran passes from the time he leaves the hospital until he has been completely rehabilitated in some school of vocational training.

The film closes with the picture of President Harding. The photograph of Sullivan "shooting" the President was taken by Pelkey.

Sullivan and Pelkey spend their spare hours in the club rooms of the Washington Heights post of the American Legion in New York City.

WANTS BEST COOKIE RECIPE

American Legion Auxiliary Plans to Have "Cookie Jar" for the Sick Ex-soldiers.

The best, top-hole, A-1 cookie recipe in America is wanted by the American Legion auxiliary for use in its welfare work with veterans in hospitals.

This recipe may be a modern, cooking school's latest piece de resistance, or it may be a family heirloom—but it must be good. The more it resembles the cookies that mother used to bake, the happier it is going to make a lot of sick soldiers.

The auxiliary's plan is to establish in each hospital, where there are veterans receiving treatment, a "cookie jar," which will be kept filled with a fresh supply of delectable cakes, made by auxiliary members. The plan is that of Mrs. W. H. Cudworth, of Milwaukee, Wis., chairman of the hospital and welfare committee. The recipe should be sent to the national auxiliary headquarters, Indianapolis, Ind. A widely known baker will be asked to judge them and select the best.

GERMAN CROOK DUPES YANKS

Unconfirmed Report Is That Escaped Prisoner Dressed Belgian Uniform and Obtained Money.

The story is carried by a Brussels newspaper of the duping of the American army in the Rhine area by a clever German crook. The story was not confirmed by Americans at Coblenz.

A German prisoner of war effected his release from a prison camp, donned the uniform of a Belgian army major and the name of Otto Debeny, according to the report. He presented forged credentials at Coblenz where he is said to have been royally received by the American army.

Before the assembled American troops, he played the medallion military of Belgium on Major General Allen's breast and after getting numerous tokens of considerable amounts from Major General Allen's staff, departed for Paris.

CROPS ALL GOOD

Western Canada Farmers Jubilant Over Prospects.

Harvest in Southwestern Manitoba Expected to Come Close to Bumper Yield of 1915.

Those who have friends in Western Canada will be anxious to learn of the conditions there, and will be interested in knowing that generally the crop prospect is very favorable. Cutting and harvesting have become general, and it is anticipated that the results which will appear when threshing is completed will be highly satisfactory.

With the widely varying weather conditions that have prevailed in the different sections of the prairie provinces it would be impossible to forecast with any degree of accuracy as to how the crop is made. The Manitoba crop has held its own, and the outlook for the province as a whole is decidedly good.

With the exception of an area south and west of Brandon, grain crops in Manitoba continue to give promise of a good harvest, the best in fact for a number of seasons, reports the Canadian National Railways for the week ended July 22. Recent rains and favorable temperatures have improved conditions wonderfully.

Southwestern Manitoba will reap a harvest which will nearly equal the bumper harvest of 1915. Farmers in the district are very optimistic. The rye crop is exceptionally good; many fields will yield upwards of 30 bushels per acre. The fields are remarkably free of weeds, and the grasshopper menace, which has been evident in the southwestern portion of the province for the past three years, has been almost entirely obliterated. No damage has been done to the wheat crop by rust, and the oats crop will average more than 60 bushels to the acre.

In Saskatchewan there are large areas where the crops are excellent. In places where the prospects some few weeks ago were not encouraging, material change for the better is apparent. In these places unusually dry weather during a portion of the growing season kept the crops back, but what was most remarkable was the effect that the spring moisture had. While light in some places, this moisture kept sufficient strength in the growing crops to ensure a fair yield of a good quality of grain. This condition arises in the mid-central districts of the province.

The southern portions of the province have been exceptionally favored, reports showing that the yield of all grains will be wonderfully good. The crops of all Saskatchewan are a week or ten days later than those of Manitoba.

Conditions in Alberta are said to be good, especially in southern Alberta, where copious and plentiful showers came in time to give assurance of good paying yields. This applies to nearly all sections of that district.

Northern Alberta, or at least that portion of it lying within thirty miles of Edmonton, has suffered from lack of moisture, a very unusual thing for that district, where there is generally an abundance. As a result, the heavy yields of wheat, oats and barley for which the district is noted will show considerable falling off over past years. The grain, though, is of excellent quality and the yield will be fair.

Pasturage is poor, and the hay crop will fall short of that of any previous year for quite an extended period.

On the whole, the prairie provinces of Western Canada will have a crop that will warrant the statement that it will prove satisfactory and remunerative.

A number of farmers put in corn this year, and from present appearances there is an likelihood of an abundant yield for fodder and ensilage, while a good deal of it will fully mature. A number of silos were erected this season. While grain growing is losing none of its interest, it is highly pleasing to note the number of farmers who are adding dairying to the grain growing industry.—Advertisement.

The Indian's Vigil. In a book of sketches of upper Canada, a pretty incident is cited of the winter meeting an Indian at midnight on Christmas Eve, during a beautiful moonlight, cautiously creeping along, and beckoning him to silence. In answer to an inquiry the Indian said: 'No watch to see the deer kneel; this is Christmas night, and all the deer fall upon their knees at the great spirit and look up.'

HIKING DOWN THE LONG BROWN PATH

Vacationists With Shelter Tents and Tin Cows Learning to Walk All Over Again.

Oh! It's not the pack that you carry on your back. Now the hills on your shoulder. Now the live load of pack-poles on your back. That makes you feel your limbs are And it's not the hike on the bare turpicks That drives away your smile. Now the rocks in slippers that rates the blooming bluffs. It's the last long mile. —Plattsburgh, Marching Song.

Straggling out from the suburban transit terminals of New York every Sunday and holiday goes the array of khaki-clad hikers. There may be an automobile for every twelfth of the country's population, but a host of city folks disprove the theory of a future leg-enteebled citizenry and are learning to walk all over again.

To the more casual minded, the hike is just exercise, but to those who catch its real significance the hike means a great deal more. It is the cheapest form of recreation and therefore appeals to those living in crowded districts and unable to avail themselves of the more expensive amusements. And these people, be it noted, are just those the country is so anxious to have spread out and settled in the farming sections. The hike, indeed, has possibilities as a real starter for the "back to the farm" movement.

Doopboy and Boy Scout Lead Way. Just a brief survey of the rollicking groups which move off from the outlying terminals on holidays establishes a few general types. There is the ex-serviceman and his friends who will hear from him the story of more serious excursions on the muddy roads of France. He tightens a strap here and another there on the blanket roll adjustment or the "shelter half," in which the compass is packed for the mid-day feast by the roadside. Expert directions come from him on the method of slinging the pack so it will not rest so heavy or interfere with the free body movement. He will pass along the information, gained in his army days, of how that same pack was relieved after numerous expeditions to find the easiest way of carrying the heaviest load. With results he now commends, but which he characterized when a doopboy as a "blatantly blank (total failure)!"

Then there are the boy scout parties. Adept at everything pertaining to "shanks mare" (traveling and woodcraft). The ex-serviceman and the boy scout are pioneers in the hiking game. Listen to one of them right off the train and making ready for a twelve mile jaunt: "Get that canteen over the side, Jimmie, and it won't keep bouncing off your leg every step. Is it filled? Well, then, we drink. How about the spirit? Let's check 'em off. You got the spirit, Bill; the bacon Jimmie. Who has the coffee and the Borden tin cow?"

"Right here," announces a trackled comrade of the road, patting his knapsack. "Snatched the mocha and the can of milk when Sis wasn't looking." "Well, then, let's go!" snaps the commander of the expedition. This party is traveling light for real distance. Another must expect to make a shorter hitch or else be counting greatly on his power of endurance. Perhaps the camp is not far off because the group is equipped for an overnight stay with heavy blanket rolls, hatchets, lanterns, canvas waterpails, rubber ponchos, kettles, pots, new fangled stoves, etc. etc. The blankets are laid out for a better packing of the bags and cans of food. When the party commences to load up the members battle all over with camp tools and equipment.

Back to the Farm. The veteran from the crowded city (element) has found a new territory to roam and one almost unknown to his associates. He is introducing them to this newly discovered land and teaching them how to be independent of any transportation but their own good legs and of any subsistence but what they can carry and procure. "Walk and work your own," is his motto.

Who will say the leaves that tremble in the city crowds will not bear fruit in a keener appreciation of country delights, especially as these are added to by increased comforts on the farm. With his rifle slung up, the farmer listens in on the best entertainment the country has to offer. Modern home devices whip out many hardships formerly imposed upon isolated dwellers. There is, in short, a rapid cutting down of the distance, vital between farm and city life.

In the meantime, knowledge must precede a true appreciation of what the country holds, and this is what the hike supplies. There is more appeal in one apple tree in blossom than in a row of painted water put out to lull the citizens of the city to sleep in its shade in the country. The hiker's intelligence is growing, army, equipped with bacon, quack, coffee and tin cow for merely a day's outing, but nevertheless seeing sights that make them yearn to be among them all the time. It is not too much to assume that the army may see day to-day the open places.

Guernsey's Oldest Charter. Just recently a search in the archives of Exeter cathedral has brought to light the oldest charter relating to the royal court of Guernsey, and conferring a grant of land by Peter Viver to the abbey at Mont St. Michel. This in itself would be interesting, but the document reveals one or two other important historical facts, viz., that the president of the court of Guernsey in 1179 was called vicomte, and therefore designated as a deputy was, and that the court was a royal court (Curia Regia). It was only in later years that a measure of self-government was conferred on the islanders.

Unnecessary Courtesy. American parents often deplore the abruptness of their children's speech, but few American children would venture to address their parents in the inclusive language sometimes used in the Gladstone family, as indicated in a recent book by Mary Drey. Mr. Gladstone's daughter, at her father's side, she says to her people politely: "My dearest love, I really think you are wrong." "He thought it more to the point to be short and sharp—"A lie!" it is impossible to forget Lord Morley's face," adds Mrs. Drey, "when he first heard one of us say to Mr. Gladstone, 'A lie!'" This freedom of expression half startled and shocked guests at Hawarden. Mr. Gladstone's daughter observes, but it breaks the seriousness of discussion and "put everyone in good humor." From the Outlook.

Straightening Wire. Stray pieces of copper wire have many uses, but it is often necessary to straighten out wire that has already been used before it can be employed again. See that there are no sharp bends or kinks in the wire, and straighten out by hand any of these which are found. Fasten one end of the wire to some firm anchorage, grip it in the vice if necessary. Loop the other end of the wire around a hammer handle or similar instrument and then pull out the length of wire. Repeat this operation as often as necessary. If the wire is of soft copper it will stretch a little, which improves it.
