Appointed U.S. Commissioner

E. F. Davidson received notice Wednesday of his appointment as U. S. Commissioner here to succeed D. H. Henty, who has filled the office for the past three years, and who was appointed assistant bank examiner last year.

Card Of Thanks

I take this opportunity, on behalf of the teachers and pupils of the Corona school, to thank the ladies of the Republican Committee who donated and served the delightful refreshments at the dance Saturday evening. The dining room was artistically decorated and the service prompt and pleasing. The sandwiches were highly complimented. The net proceeds amounted to twenty four dollars and thirty six cents and were donated to the library fund. A shipment of excellent books has been ordered from the Roycroft Shops in New York and the patrons are invited to read not only these, but any other book in the library.

Ruby A. Hylbert

Six car loads of cattle, were shipped out to Denver from Corona this week. The cattle were purchased by C. W. Wade for John Schwab of Walkenburg, Colo. The cattle were purchased from Mrs. W. J. McAdams, C. H. Lee and A. J. Imhoff. Jesse Wade and Joe Stratton accompanied the shipment.

Lifes Little Lessons

By Roland J. Nease

You have heard the greatest speaker
Tell of virtues you should hold;
You have read of many Authors
Who were anxious to save your soul.
Have you reasoned that these reformers
Are not worthy the attempt to teach;
Are you sure they're prone to practice
The many things they've tried to preach?
I do not want what the world calls great
new,
And not be great of heart and mind,
Great of soul, pure, simple and virtuous;
Without these fame is foolish and blind.
Most of our lives are filled with small things,
Each has a lesson for us in store.
We must not be so great we despise them,
Duty must be done to them the more.
Oh that my life could be filled with kind
new,
Little smiles and attentions too!
I'd put in each my very best effort;
I'd be cheerful, patient, faithful, true,
I want to be true to Life and Duty,
With these trifles, my life, I'll fill!
For one hundred pennies are just as valid
And worth as much as a dollar bill.

WOMEN DEMOCRATS ASK HEART-BREAKING QUESTIONS OF REPUBLICANS SEEKING OFFICE

(By Constance Drexel)
Washington, Oct. 23.—Republican candidates all over the country will be running under cover when the broadside of questions just issued by national Democratic women at headquarters here to Democratic women's clubs begin to trickle thro'. Mrs. Emily Newell Blair of Missouri, vice chairman of the Democratic national committee, and Mrs. Blair-Banister, of Virginia, her chief of staff, so to speak, seem to have thought of everything the men politicians have and then some.

Here are just a few of them under the title "Questions Women are asking Republican candidates."
"What has become of the association of nations promised by Warren G. Harding, when he was a candidate for the presidency and reaffirmed by him after he became president?"
"Where is the era of prosperity, the promise which lured many women into the Republican party?"
"Why has the tax burden been lifted from the shoulders of rich people who can well afford to bear the load and placed heavily upon the shoulders of the poor, people—the people who have to earn a living by the sweat of their brow?"
"Why have the boasted 'best minds' failed so signally to function?"
"Why do European conditions continue so chaotic and what part of the responsibility lies at the door of America?"
"Why should congress pass the ship subsidy bill, which President Harding insists shall be enacted into law, when everybody knows it will take money out of the pockets of the taxpayers to pay tribute to and add to the profits of the shipping magnates of the nation?"

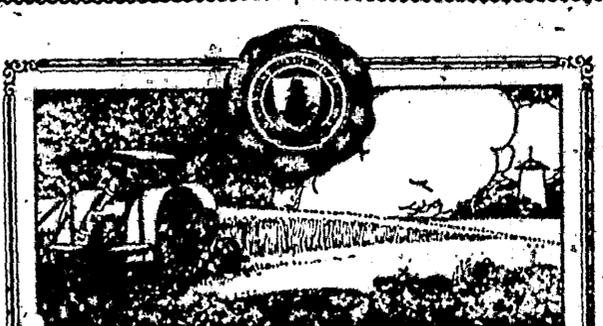

Question on Tariff.
"Why should the Underwood-Simmons tariff bill passed under the Wilson administration and based upon justice and right rather than upon special privileges for the few, be wiped out of the statute books of the country and the Fordney-McCumber tariff bill, with its monstrous pervasions of the public welfare in its stead?"
"Why should the women of this country be called upon 'under' this tariff of abomination to pay duties for every article they use in their households?"
"Why has the United States government under the Harding administration donated the nation's oil reserves to private interests, as was done when on April 7, 1922, secretary Fall of the interior department, handed over to Harry Sinclair of the Mammoth Oil Co., a secretly executed lease of the naval reserve No. 3, commonly known as the Teapot dome.

Treaties not Ratified.
And as the Washington conference does not suit the Democratic women at all, they ask all Republican candidates:
"If the arms conference was the great achievement that Republican leaders claim, why is it that not one of the treaties negotiated has yet been ratified by all the powers participating in that parity?"
"Why is it that the four-power pact has been treated with indifference and unconcern by the foreign powers—some having only recently ratified it after months of delay, and others not having ratified it at all. Why is it that the entire program of ship scrapping, outlined in the five-power naval treaty, has broken down?"
"They are not satisfied with the way the Harding administration has treated women, for they are asking the following:
"Why has all the gratifying advance made by women during recent years to many high positions hitherto closed to them, come to such a sudden and mysterious halt, since the Republican party assumed the reins of government?"

TEXAS CHILDREN PLAY FOR HEALTH

Here is how the Red Cross in Fort Worth, Texas, helped to keep the children of that town well during the summer. The Red Cross public health-nurse put on a campaign of games, health stories and regular physical examinations during the summer which has resulted splendidly for the children and has sent them back to school this fall in fine condition to keep up in their classes and resist the usual winter ailments of school children.

One-fourth of the wheat we grow is the result of the researches of the Government. After years of untiring experiment and investigation, the Government, through the Department of Agriculture, was enabled to introduce into this country the remarkable Durum wheat through which our production has been increased fully twenty-five per cent. This has been only one of many surprising but little-known accomplishments of the Government, which are covered in the interesting series of stories for which we have the exclusive right of distribution in this community.

THE AMERICAN LEGION

LIKE THE OLD-TIME DANCES

Legionnaires Enjoy Steps Popular With South at the Big National Convention

As for the jazz! Welcome the waltz, the stately minuet, the Virginia reel, the sedate schottische. Many thousands of American Legionnaires have voiced their verdict. Which is the verdict spoken by the American association as well. The thousands of Legionnaires expressed their approval of the more moderate, likewise modest dances when Bloor Schleppey, former marine and a Legionnaire, down New Orleans way, announced the old dances would prevail and be featured at the big national American Legion convention. Mr. Schleppey, who fitted out Spanish Fort park as a second Nice for entertainment of the Legion members, prepared his programs with all the care and caution any Beau Brummel of 50 years ago would exercise. Said he:

"The waltz and the minuet and the Virginia reel breathe of the spirit of the old South. And they are the dances of beauty, of real sentiment, of soothing strains. I have noticed that the dancing masters of the nation seek to do away with the atrocious jazz dancing of the present. And I have heard that the country is prepared to welcome the waltz back as its principal terpsichorean pleasure. So I decided that the American Legion dancers would receive my announcement enthusiastically. They did. They approached the fact that it would be of typical Southern atmosphere to dance the old dances that were so popular with the belles and beaux of the South."

Mr. Schleppey also devised a magnificent nightly fireworks and battle scene display for the entertainment of convention guests.

MADE PAJAMAS FOR WOUNDED

Premier Women of Hawaii, Under Supervision of Mrs. Dorothy B. Harper, Aided Veterans

"Aloha from Hawaii," was the message a number of wounded war veterans in American hospitals found written on slips of paper tucked in pockets of gay colored pajamas which were handed out to them by members of the American Legion auxiliary. The pajamas had been made by American women under the palm trees during the long hot tropical afternoons. The women who worked included such loyal citizens of the United States as the wife of the governor of Hawaii, the wife of the admiral of the U. S. fleet stationed there, and the wife of the commandant of the Marine barracks.

The work was done under the supervision of Mrs. Dorothy B. Harper, president of the American Legion auxiliary in Hawaii, and also a member of the American Legion, by virtue of her work for the U. S. marines during the war. She lives at Hilo. The pajamas from Hawaii were first sent in response to an appeal from auxiliary workers at the hospital at Camp Logan, Tex.

Corn is Popular Crop in Colorado.
Denver.—Corn still is the most popular crop in Colorado, more farmers raising corn than any other single crop grown in the state. Reports of county assessors to the State Immigration Department show 23,214 farmers growing corn, compared with 23,001 last year.

Wheat ranks second in popularity, there being 20,276 farmers reported as growing the crop. The number growing winter wheat was 10,062, while 14,001 reported spring wheat. Since a good many farmers grow both winter and spring wheat, the total number growing wheat is considerably less than the sum of those reporting winter and spring wheat.

While more farmers raise corn than any other crop, the total acreage devoted to wheat is much larger than that devoted to corn, being 27.10 per cent of the total acreage under cultivation. Assessors this year reported 1,981,652 acres of wheat, of which 1,551,825 acres was winter wheat and 429,827 acres spring wheat. The acreage of corn reported is 1,100,978. These are the largest acreages ever reported for these crops.

Bridge Will Be 685 Feet High.
Washington.—The proposed North River bridge, spanning the Hudson from the center of New York City to Weehawken, New Jersey, will be, with its connections and terminals, "the most stupendous engineering work yet undertaken, surpassing in that respect and also in final cost the Panama canal," according to Representative Ernest Ackerman of New Jersey.

Jury Allows Six Cents Damages.
Atlantic City.—A jury in Circuit Court returned a verdict of six cents for Franz Volker of Ventnor, a local baker and real estate agent who sued Frederick Nixon Nirdlinger, Philadelphia theatrical manager, for $150,000 damages, alleging the defendant alienated his wife's affections.

Small Grain Yields Decrease.
Denver.—Threshing of small grains is making good progress in Wyoming and Colorado; yields are generally not as heavy as expected but the quality is good. Rain is badly needed in these states to facilitate the seeding of winter wheat and rye and unless better moisture conditions occur soon the acreage will be considerably curtailed. Seeding is in progress in Arizona and some remarkable growth reported. The yield of corn will generally be light in Colorado due to the excessive drought, except in the eastern and northeastern counties, where a good crop is reported. Corn is maturing rapidly in Wyoming and is past frost danger; considerable fodder and silage has already been cut.

U. S. and Canada Plan Arms Pact.
Washington.—Preliminary exchanges relative to the new Great Lakes armament treaty between the United States and Canada are understood to have resulted in a virtual agreement to disburse entirely with naval vessels on the lakes and to replace those now in commission there with revenue cutters.

September Wholesale Prices Decrease.
Washington.—The average level of wholesale prices in September, the department of labor reported, was about 11.5 per cent lower than in August. The index number, representing comparative price levels, dropped from 155 to 135. Fuel and light materials were chiefly responsible for the reduction, the estimate said, having dropped 10 per cent during the month. Farm products, building materials, textiles and clothing all showed small declines.

LOVE OF BROWN LEAF

ONCE on a low branch of a tree in the woods hung a leaf. It had not thrived as did its brothers, and so it grew to be very lonely and sad. One day it was swinging in the wind when it heard a sob right under it, and looking it saw a purple flower growing there.

ANNA

THOUGH coming originally from the same source, Anna and Anne are very different names. To call a girl bearing the pretty appellative derived from the Helianthus Champanch, Anna or Anne indiscriminately is a gross error. They are separate names and should not be used interchangeably. Anna was first known as the Roman goddess of the dwelling year. She was confused later with Anne, the companion sister of Dido, whose tragic end is recorded by Virgil in the "Aeneid." According to Roman tradition, Anne pursued the faithless Aeneas to Italy, after the suicide of Dido, and there drowned herself in the river Numicus, where she became a presiding deity.

There was also a St. Anna in Byzantium for whom the Emperor Justinian built a church in 550. Thus Anna became a popular name among Greek damsels, and a daughter of Emperor Basil married Vladimir, grand prince of Moscow. Another famous bearer of the name was Anna d'Este of Italy, who brought her title to the House of Guise.

Like Anne, the talkative gem of Anna is the pearl. It promises her good fortune, many friends, and extreme affability. Wednesday is her lucky day and 8 her lucky number.

ASKING QUESTIONS
IN THE old days when it was just as much a part of the young girl's education to be taught what was called "good manners" as algebra or geography—more important for that matter—there was a prevailing notion that it was bad manners to ask questions. And when a woman indulged in pumping her friends and her neighbors it was usually concluded that she had not had the proper bringing up.

"Goodness knows," said an old-fashioned old lady to me the other day, "there are times when I would like to ask questions. I've got just as much curiosity as anyone else, but we were taught that it was not good manners. They train girls different nowadays." An matter of fact they don't train them at all, and if a girl does not receive such instruction at home or does not have an instinctive feeling that it is bad form to ask personal questions she is pretty apt to acquire the pumping habit and to make herself a nuisance and perhaps a source of amusement. Especially obnoxious are questions relating to prices. It is the height of rudeness to ask even an intimate friend how much she paid for anything, how much money she receives as a salary, or what she pays an employee.

Quite as obnoxious are personal questions concerning one's state of health. To be sure, it is only kind to ask generally for a friend's health, but to pry too closely into such things is extreme rudeness.

During 1920, due to the dropping and pausing of dividends resultant from the period of depression, indications point to a drop in the number having million-dollar incomes even below that for 1914. And the end is not yet, for corporate incomes, from which most of the big individual incomes are derived, have been shrinking so much that many wealthy men find themselves in a quandary as to their ultimate outcome.

It's a mistake to smile over others' misfortunes. Not one should find a cause for rejoicing because quickly-made millionaires and wealthy persons are made miserable through falling incomes. But the information at hand regarding the difficulties the rich are encountering is a reason for the average class and the poor to consider their misfortunes less serious and to recognize that there is nothing in the radical discussions of the rich getting richer and the poor poorer.

RICH AND POOR

IN 1914 there were only 60 individuals in the United States who reported incomes of a million dollars or more per year. For 1910 the incomes of more than a million dollars totaled 200; but since that year—the howling of street-corner orators notwithstanding—there has been a marked decline. Wealthy men's income returns for 1910—the last year for which statements have been compiled—included only 65 of a million dollars or more.

Home Town Helps

TREES REQUIRE PROPER CARE

Merely Planting One Under Good Conditions Will Not Be Found to Give Full Satisfaction.

The lack of care of home landscapes becomes most noticeable at this season. In this statement I refer to the care of trees on our lawns, says a writer in the Pittsburgh Dispatch. Many times we notice buckeye trees, as well as many other species, with the leaves all eaten off, after which a second crop of leaves appears only to be killed by the frost. This is hard on the life of the tree. The city has spent a great deal of money on the planting and care of trees, while the average citizen considers a tree a permanent fixture of the house. A band our town requires and can support, of my paper is sometimes put around the trunk and does some good for a short time, then becomes dry and useless, whereas a band of cotton will last a full season or even several seasons. A band of cotton prevents worms from attacking the tree, thereby keeping it looking better longer. It is not "too much trouble" or "too expensive." The average person will spend much more time on a few flowers, for which I do not condemn them, but they last only one season, while the trees that should last many years, die prematurely from the lack of a little attention. There is, of course, much more work to make a tree last its maximum life, but a little attention adds many years to its existence.

HAVE STAKE IN COMMUNITY

Small-Home Owners Always the Most Stable Portion of the American Population.

John H. Puellicher, president of the American Bankers' association, remarked in an endorsement of a statement that "the most stable population of America has always been the small-home owner."

"English colonists," writes Mr. Puellicher in the National Real Estate Journal, "secured the right to hold property—they became established. That ownership brought a higher form of civilization, a desire to live happily as a community of individuals, each respecting the rights of others. It brought greater contentment. It encouraged the people to work and develop their holdings, since the improvement and betterment of these result in reward to the owner."

How to Plant Fruit Trees

To plant fruit trees instead of shade trees it is first necessary to give the trees plenty of room. Two perfect trees will fill the back yard of a 50-foot lot, and any other trees in that space will crowd them. One must be prepared to give more care to fruit trees than to shade trees, and spraying and pruning a specimen 20 feet high is quite a job. Pear and cherry trees need less attention than apples, but a good yield of fruit requires not less than three sprayings in a season, and sometimes more than that. The more vigorous shade trees will need no spraying at all, unless attacked by an unusual insect invasion.

Ready Ownership Thrift

We find fewer spendthrifts among the owners of real estate. They know that the mere filing of a judgment in the county clerk's office becomes a lien on their real property—not as if they could conceal their assets in some out-of-town bank and when they found their debts accumulating silently steal away. Hence, it is to the real-estate owners that the store-keeper looks for his best customers, and since, after all, the entire fiscal powers of the government are nourished by trade, it can readily be seen that home ownership encourages trade and stabilizes credits.—Exchange.

DOES LAUNDRY WORK AND HOUSEWORK TOO

Surprised to Find Herself Feeling So Well

Taunton, Mass.—"I used to have pains in my back and legs so badly, with other troubles that women sometimes have, that my doctor ordered me to stay in bed a week in every month. It didn't do me much good, so one day after talking with a friend who took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, for about the same trouble I had, I thought I would try it also. I find that I can work in the laundry all through the time and do my housework, too. Last month I was so surprised at myself to be up and around and feeling so good while before I used to feel completely lifeless. I have told some of the girls who work with me and have such troubles to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I tell them how it has helped me. You can use my testimonial for the good of others."—Mrs. BRANCKEN SALVIA, 59 Grant St., Taunton, Mass.

New Mexico and Arizona

Hains came too late to benefit the ranges in New Mexico and cattle are being moved as fast as cars can be secured.

Friends of Robert Anderson, veteran mining man and owner of the oldest mine in New Mexico, who died in El Paso hospital recently, are searching for his relatives, who are heirs to a fortune estimated at from $150,000 to $200,000.

E. E. Miller, of Hope, N. M., has a new steam cannon of work which the claims will turn out over 3,000 cans per day, and is now running on pears, apples and tomatoes.

Inheritance tax collections in Arizona for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1922, amounted to $5,104.33, according to a report made to Raymond H. Karhart, state treasurer, by Nori (John) Jr., inheritance tax collector.

George White, an employe of a paving company in Bisbee, fell into a pot of boiling asphalt, and was seriously burned.

The Fort Apache, Arizona, military reservation containing approximately 7,500 acres, has been declared useless for future military purposes and placed under control of Secretary Fall of the Interior Department.

Neri Osborn, Jr., state tax inheritance clerk of Arizona, has been chosen state adjutant of the American Legion to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of D. A. Little.

The Sisters of St. Mary, of Gallup, are busy with the plans for a new addition to the hospital which will be used for contagious diseases, and added over $500 to the building fund during the Indian fair by giving a tag day.

The cotton gin at Roswell was nearly destroyed by fire recently and the loss is estimated at over $2,000, which was covered by insurance.

In a further effort to help the livestock industry in the drought-stricken districts of the state, the Santa Fe railroad telegraphed the state corporation committee that the freight on feed stuff would be reduced one-half.

Playing through two matches in the morning and then facing a younger opponent in the finals for the men's singles championship in the tenth annual Border States Tennis Tournament, concluded at Tucson, Ferguson of El Paso defeated Hutchinson, of Phoenix, Ariz., in straight sets, 61, 52, 51.

At a recent meeting of the city council, the order to pave the main street of Artesia, N. M., was passed and it is planned to begin work as soon as the contract is let.

ARMY BLIMP BURNED

PASSENGERS ESCAPE WITH LIVES IN DROP.

EXPLOSION DESTROYS BALLOON IN RETURN FLIGHT ACROSS COUNTRY.

San Antonio, Texas.—The dirigible C-2, the United States army's best and largest "blimp," on a return transcontinental flight from Rosa field, California, to Langley field, Virginia, was burned here and seven persons were injured.

According to Maj. H. A. Strauss, commander of the ill-fated ship, the accident was due primarily to the pulling out of the fabric of the envelope during a strong wind.

A board of inquiry was appointed by Major Hayes, commander of Brooks field, to investigate the accident. The ship, which Major Strauss said was valued at possibly $70,000, originally cost the government $270,000.

The seven men, including five army officers and two newspaper men, who were injured, were reported to be not seriously hurt. None of them suffered broken bones in jumping from the carriage of the balloon after it had struck the end of the giant concrete hangar at Brooks field, which was built originally to house the Roma, which blew up over Hampton roads, Feb. 21, 1922.

The C-2 was preparing to make a flight over the city of San Antonio, primarily for the benefit of newspaper reporters and eight army officers of headquarters Eighth corps area, at Fort Sam Houston. It had been pulled out of the hangar about half way, when a strong gust of wind, estimated by Major Strauss at not more than fifteen miles velocity, swung the ship around.

"A strong puff came, dragging the bag along the ground," said Major Strauss' written statement regarding the accident. "I ordered the ship back into the hangar. Just as we started, another gust came, and the fabric to which the windward handling guy was attached pulled loose, another handling guy broke under the sudden pressure and the third handling guy failed, releasing the bag and permitting it to swing to leeward into the concrete structure at the base of the hangar door. The bag was torn.

"As the bag became loose the car broke in two places. Thirty seconds after the car broke the hydrogen in the envelope caught fire, due to the hole and rapid influx of air."

American Legion Chooses New Leader. New Orleans, La.—The American Legion, at the end of a five-day convention here, unanimously elected Alvin W. Owsley of Texas as its national commander to succeed Harford MacNider of Iowa.

Retaped Convict Gives Self Up. Alpine, Texas.—Completely exhausted, H. L. Hughes dragged his weary body into a railroad camp at Toronto, six miles from here, tumbled into an empty bunk and surrendered himself.

"Doll Baby" Mother is Freed. Hammond, Ind.—Mrs. Hazel McNally, declared by her 15-year-old husband to be the mother of "doll baby" twins, was freed of a charge of murder here. By a strange paradox of the law, the defense, which maintained the twins "born" to Mrs. McNally last December were but inanimate creations of china and straw dressed in baby clothes, won its victory because the state was unable to prove that the mystery babies were not at the present moment living, breathing human beings with actual flesh and blood.

Life Term Given Parson. Nashville, Tenn.—Sam Miller, 73 years old, serving a life sentence for wife murder committed in 1902 in Memphis, and a participant in a sensational jail delivery at Jackson, Tenn. when he, George Carroll and Leo Cohn made their escape, received a pardon on the promise of friends to give him a home.

Denies Burning of Villages. Constantinople.—Lieutenant General Harrington, commander of the allied forces, denied emphatically that there had been any widespread burning of villages in Thrace and appealed to the American and British correspondents to use the utmost caution and discretion in reporting events in the evacuated areas, where the situation was most delicate.

BONAR LAW IS NAMED PREMIER

CONSERVATIVE LEADER WILL SUCCEED TO MINISTRY OF ENGLAND.

LLOYD GEORGE QUILTS

WELCH STATESMAN RESIGNS AFTER UNIONISTS VOTE TO OUST LEADERS.

London.—After holding the office of prime minister through seven of the most critical years of British history—three years of war and four years of reconstruction—David Lloyd George has resigned. Unionist withdrawal from the coalition was decided upon by the meeting which Austen Chamberlain had called at the Carlton club and which was attended by the coalition members of the House of Commons and a handful of lords who were grafted in the cabinet.

The vote was 165 to 87 against the Chamberlain policy of pledging the party to sustain the coalition and in favor of a general election to confirm its course. The meeting was followed by a succession of swift events which carried the coalition government into outer darkness.

Andrew Bonar Law will put on the premier's mantle for a short term of office. The king summoned him to Buckingham palace tonight and invited him to form a new government, which Mr. Law will undertake, although the state of his health, which compelled him to withdraw from public life a few months ago, makes it a risky venture.

Before Mr. Bonar Law can formally accept the premiership, however, a meeting of the Unionist party must be held to elect a new leader to carry out the policy to be decided by caucus.

Mr. Lloyd George advised the king to summon Mr. Bonar Law, and, according to custom, this was done. While Mr. Lloyd George exhibited cheerfulness to the few who saw him and cheered him on his journey to the palace, he could not but feel deeply the verdict that he no longer commanded the support of the majority of the Unionist party, which for the past few months had furnished the strongest material for his cabinet.

It was Bonar Law, more than any other man who influenced the Unionist caucus to secede from the coalition. He had been a sphinx whose rank and file of the Unionist members were willing to hear. He is a serious and unemotional man with a quiet manner. His opinion that it was more important to keep the party together than to win the next election and "whether by his own fault or the force of circumstances, Mr. Lloyd George has lost the confidence of the country," decided many votes.

These recent events may be regarded as constituting a great victory for Sir George Younger, who upset Lloyd George's plans for a February election and now has been the cause of his resignation. Mr. Lloyd George will continue to hold his seat of office to carry on current business until the new government is formed.

Kidnaper Is Convicted. Omaha, Neb.—A jury in County District Court found Fred Brown, "chick man" guilty of kidnaping with intent to commit criminal assault and recommended life imprisonment as his penalty.

Brown's twenty-day flight before possession, airplane, automobile and boat, and his subsequent capture June 17 last sixty-two miles north of Medicine Bow, Wyo., was one of the greatest man hunts in the annals of Nebraska's history.

BRITAIN IS AROUSED

U. S. FEDERAL AGENTS CLAIM SHIP WAS RUM RUNNER.

ENGLAND FILES A COMPLAINT AGAINST SEARCH OF VESSEL.

Washington.—Seizure by prohibition enforcement officials of the Canadian schooner Emerald off the New Jersey coast has been made the ground for formal protest by the British government, the contention being that the vessel was outside American jurisdiction.

The report received at prohibition enforcement headquarters said the Emerald had been taken for alleged liquor smuggling while in communication with shore from a point beyond the three-mile limit. The message did not say specifically, it is understood, that the Emerald's own boats were plying between ship and shore. It was assumed that the prohibition enforcement bureau that such was the case, however, and that the ship, therefore, fell within the recent government ruling as to operations beyond American territorial waters.

The British protest, which was presented to the state department, is understood to assert that the Emerald's boats were not in touch with shore and that there was, therefore, no warrant under the announced policy of the American government itself for interference with the Canadian craft. There was nothing to indicate that the statement that the Emerald was seized eight miles off the coast would be disputed and the diplomatic correspondence apparently turns the question as to whether the schooner was in touch with shore through her own boats.

The case is the first of its kind to arise under the administration policy, recently announced, of confining prohibition enforcement operations strictly to the three-mile limit of territorial waters, except in one circumstance, of a vessel beyond that limit, but sending contraband shipments ashore in her own boats. The American position in that regard is held to rest on international precedent.

That the British authorities are convinced the Emerald case does not fall within the rule was made plain by the promptness with which a protest was lodged with the State Department. Framing of the American reply necessarily awaits an official report from the Treasury Department setting out the facts of seizure. Should that sustain the belief here that the ship was using her own boats to reach shore when seized, presumably the diplomatic phase of the incident would be closed and the case be allowed by the British to go to legal determination.

In view of the British refusal to consider the working out of a treaty to permit search of suspected liquor smuggling craft up to twelve miles off shore, it appeared unlikely that the Washington government would attempt to defend diplomatically the more drastic action of seizure beyond the three-mile limit except where the conditions met the rule laid down.

Fire-Quitted Summer Is Sunk. San Francisco, Cal.—The liner City of Honolulu, gutted by fire recently, sank in 2,500 fathoms of water after the coast-guard cutter Seaweed had poured thirty-one shots into the hull, according to a radiogram received by the coast-guard here. The City of Honolulu's grave was more than 600 miles southwest of San Francisco.

Daughtery Assails Yellow Journalism. Chicago.—No organization or combination of organizations, no matter what their pretended purpose, can be above the law, Attorney General Harry M. Daugherty declared in an address before the annual convention of the audit bureau of circulation here.

"We must be one people, one nation," said the American union, "he asserted. The attorney general declared that next to the home, school and church, the newspaper has the greatest power for good or evil.

LLOYD GEORGE STARTS BATTLE

WELSHMAN IS WELCOMED WARMLY IN ALL CITIES VISITED.

EX-PREMIER ON TOUR

CARLTON CLUB IS ASSAILED BY DAVID LLOYD GEORGE IN ADDRESS.

Leeds, England.—A great crowd welcomed David Lloyd George and his party on their arrival here by special train. Mr. Lloyd George delivered five speeches at various railway stations on the way here from London, and everywhere was greeted warmly.

At Wellington the retiring premier compared himself to Lord Channing, who once represented that constituency, Channing, he said, had fought similar battles for liberty and fair play.

"I invite your support in a battle for national interests," Mr. Lloyd George told an audience at Kefton.

"You probably have heard that they don't like me at the Carlton Club. The fact seems to have added to my number of friends, not only at Leicester, but all along the route. I have never witnessed such remarkable demonstrations.

"We won the war together and peace was being helped by all sections. We were pulling through together, and now the new Carlton Club orders 'party first'."

"No wonder some of the ablest and most experienced leaders of the Conservative party protested against that order and declined to carry it out."

The Liberal association at Nottingham presented Mr. Lloyd George with an address, to which the little Welshman replied that he was standing for national unity, while at Sheffield he told the crowd that gathered about his car that the Carlton Club had deliberately wrecked the organization which won the war.

London.—In the still highly speculative political situation, only two facts stood out as definite—that there will be almost immediately a general election and that parliamentary ratification of the Irish constitution is safe if assured.

Andrew Bonar Law, who is to lead the new government which will take the place of that of David Lloyd George, in a message to an evening newspaper confirmed his intention to advise King George to immediately dissolve Parliament and added that this fact would give ample time to deal with the Irish legislation.

British Will Not Affect U. S. Debt. London.—A change of government in Great Britain will not alter the British policy of paying the $2,277,000,000 which the British owe the United States, it was officially announced at the Treasury Department.

A plan for payment of the debt and interest thereon already has been worked out and is ready for presentation to the American government by the British debt-funding commission, headed by Sir Robert Horne, chancellor of the exchequer.

Postoffice Clerks Held For Theft. Washington.—Detection of thefts from the mail in the Council Bluffs railway mail terminal and the collection of evidence alleged to involve forty postal employes, has been announced by the postoffice department.

Confessions were said to have been obtained from more than twenty-five of the men, and warrants for their arrest and the arrest of the others have been ordered. It was stated.

Wife Is Found Guilty of Murder. Tompa River, N. J.—Mrs. Ivy Giberson was found guilty of the murder of her husband, William F. Giberson, in Lakewood, Aug. 14, and was immediately sentenced to life imprisonment.

The jury had deliberated more than four hours. Mrs. Giberson received the verdict without emotion, and when sentence was imposed she kept her calm demeanor as she had done throughout the trial.

Two Killed in Mexican Labor Riot. Mexico City.—Police were called to suppress a labor demonstration at San Angel, six miles from here. They fired on the workers, killing two and wounding four.

The workers had organized a protest meeting in connection with various strikes in San Angel. Among the police were many reserves sent from Mexico City to reinforce those of San Angel.

Flyer Bares Self by Parachute Jump. Dayton, Ohio.—Leaping from his Leong monoplane in a parachute when the plane began to wobble at a height of 2,000 feet above the ground over North Dayton, Lieut. Harold H. Harris, chief of the flying section of McCook field, escaped death while his plane crashed to earth. The plane, landing in the rear yard of a home in that part of the city, was reduced to wreckage.

Lieutenant Harris came to earth several blocks away in a grape arbor. He was traveling at high speed.

THE CROSS-CUT

BOY SCOUTS

(Conducted by National Council of the Boy Scouts of America.)

ENDORSE THE MOVEMENT

One of the finest tributes paid to the scout movement at the national conference of scout executives recently held in Blue Ridge, N. C., was contained in the addresses of three prominent members of the three great faiths when they gave their support and strong endorsement to this great movement dedicated to the character-building and citizenship training of boys, regardless of birth, nationality or creed. These addresses were delivered at the Sunday Fellowship Hour. Dr. William Poter, president, Wake Forest college, North Carolina, speaking for the Protestant religion; Rev. John F. White, director of education, boy scout extension, National Catholic Welfare Council, for the Catholics; and Rabbi W. H. Felschreiber of Memphis, Tenn., for the Jewish.

Each generation starts life afresh, and presents so much plastic material for the home, the school, the church, and the manifold play of circumstances, to mold to noble or ignoble ends. Save the children—save the future.

Save the boys from idleness, if you would save the world from anarchy. Individualism runs rapidly to seed in revolt, impatient of restraint. Society is possible only on condition of its supremacy. Limitations upon personal liberty imposed by the social group for the common good mark social progress.

Save the boys from the fascination of the military career, if you would save the world from war. Scouts are not soldiers in training, even if they do wear uniform and drill. Turn the fighting instinct against the enemies of human life. Substitute a moral equivalent.

Save the boys from excess, if you would save the world from incompetence and wreck.

Save the boys from irreligion, if you would save the world from barbarism. Religion is the sovereign human interest. It is the mother and conservator of nations.

Happily the boy scout movement is committed to the fullness of life which I have sketched. I congratulate you and wish you Godspeed.

Father White, speaking on "Service and Citizenship," said:

"The happy man is the man who strives to lighten the burdens and dispel the sorrows of others. Service should mean the willingness to spend ourselves and to spend for others. Citizenship implies more than the mere right to demand privileges and favors. Citizenship implies the positive willingness to sacrifice self when the good of our country demands such sacrifice. Not 'What can I get from my country?' but 'What can I do for my country?' must be the real slogan of all true Americans. Don't ask 'What's wrong with the government?'—ask 'What's wrong with me?' Answer this latter question, right the wrong, and you'll discover there's nothing wrong with the government. I can't teach boys how to serve unless I myself have served. I can't teach boys how to be good citizens, unless I myself am a good citizen.

"Love God, love your country; serve God, serve your country; and be assured of thus obtaining that peace and happiness that surpasseth all understanding."

"Scouting has succeeded amazingly," said Rabbi Felschreiber, in the course of his address. "All the qualities which the teachers of religion have considered fundamental to the religious life—reverence, faith, honesty, loyalty, cleanliness, responsibility—are being translated into concrete realities in the boy scout's life. Best of all, he learns by doing. In this, scouting has been a great stimulus to the educational life of our country. The schools will have to pattern themselves as best they can, after scouting pedagogy."

"It has been a stimulus to our civil life, incalculating as it does, the duty of service above self. It has been a challenge to the churches, since it has successfully demonstrated that religion can be taught without narrowness, without race antagonism.

"Why not a scout movement for men and women?"

WE'LL SAY THEY DO

The Florida (III) Transcript, commenting on the latest statistics on scout enrollment published by national headquarters, says: "There are 430,000 boy scouts in the United States and 480,000 of them know just what to do when the flag goes by."

THE SCOUT WAY

A gentleman walking along a street of a certain city noticed a group of boys chattering and sauntering carelessly, as boys will. He noticed, also, at the same time an elderly woman standing by the curb, evidently trying to muster courage to venture across the street. One of the boys saw the woman, too. In an instant he had left his mates and was at the woman's side. The onlooker saw him help her across the street and scamper back to his companions.

"Who's Fairchild Here?"

sonable figure, other things that would eat quickly into the estimate placed upon the total. And with a capital already dwindling, it meant an expenditure which hurt, but which was necessary, nevertheless.

Blow, puffing and wheezing, the train made its way along Clear Creek canon, crawled across the newly built trestle which had been erected to take the place of that which had gone out with the spring flood of the milky creek, then jangled into Denver. Fairchild hurried uptown, found the old building to which he had been directed by the telegram, and made the upward trip in the ancient elevator, at last to knock upon a door. A half-whining voice answered him, and he went within.

"Mr. Barnham?"

"That's what I'm called." He wheezed with the self-implied humor of his remark and motioned toward a chair. "May I ask what you've come to see me about?"

"I haven't the slightest idea. You sent for me." Fairchild produced the telegram, and the greasy person who had taken a position on the other side of a worn, walnut table became immediately obsequious.

"Of course! Of course! Mr. Fairchild! Why didn't you say so when you came in? Of course—I've been looking for you all day. May I offer you a cigar?"

He dragged a box of domestic perfectors from a drawer of the table and struck a match to light one for Fairchild. Then with a bustling air of urgent business he hurried to both doors and locked them.

"So that we may not be disturbed," he confided in that high, whining voice. "I am hoping that this is very important."

"I also," Fairchild puffed dubiously upon the more dubious cigar. The greasy individual returned to his table, dragged the chair nearer to it, then, seating himself, leaned toward Fairchild.

"If I'm not mistaken, you're the owner of the Blue Poppy mine."

"I'm supposed to be."

"Of course—of course. Could you possibly do me the favor of telling me how you're getting along?"

Fairchild's eyes narrowed. "I thought you had information— for me!"

"Very good." Mr. Barnham raised a fat hand and wheezed in an effort at intense enjoyment of the reply. "So I have. I merely asked that to be asking. Now, to be serious, haven't you some enemies, Mr. Fairchild?"

"Have I?"

"I was merely asking."

"And I judged from your question that you seemed to know."

"So I do. And one friend." Barnham pursed his heavy lips and nodded in an authoritative manner. "One very, very good friend."

"Little Corporal" was the little familiarly bestowed upon Napoleon Bonaparte by his admiring soldiers at the Battle of Austerlitz (1805), in allusion to his small stature, youthful appearance and surprising bravery.

CHAPTER XIII.

Fairchild did not show the item to Harry. There was little that it could accomplish, and besides, he felt that his comrade had enough to think about. The unexpected turn of the coroner's inquest had added to the heavy weight of Harry's troubles; it meant the probability in the future of a grand jury investigation and the possible indictment as accessory after the fact in the murder of "Sis" Larsen. Not that Fairchild had been influenced in the slightest by the testimony of Crazy Laura; the presence of Squire Rodaine and his son had shown too plainly that they were connected in some way with it, that, in fact, they were responsible. An opportunity had arisen for them, and they had seized upon it. More, there came the shrewd opinion of old Mother Howard, once Fairchild and Harry had reached the boarding house and gathered in the parlor for their consultation.

"Ain't it what I said right in the beginning?" Mother Howard asked. "She'll kill for that man, if necessary. It ain't as hard as you think—all Squire Rodaine had to do was to act nice to her and promise her a few things that he'll squirm out of later on, and she went on the stand and lied her head off."

"But for a crazy woman—"

"Laura's crazy—and she ain't crazy. I've seen that woman as sensible and as shrewd as any sane woman who ever drew breath. Then, again, I've seen her when I wouldn't get within fifty miles of her. Goodness only knows what would happen to a person who fell into her clutches when she's got one of those immortality streaks on."

"One of those what?" Harry looked up in surprise.

"Immortality. That's why you'll find her sneaking around graveyards at night, gathering herbs and taking them to that old house on the Georgeville road, where she lives, and brewing them into some sort of concoction that she sprinkles on the graves. She believes that it's a sure system of bringing immortality to a person. Poison—that's about what it is."

Harry shrugged his shoulders. "Poison's what she is!" he exclaimed. "Ain't it enough that I'm accused of every crime in the calendar without 'er getting me mixed up in a murder? And—this time he looked at Fairchild with odorous eyes—"

"'ow're we going to furnish bond this time, if the grand jury indicts me?'"

"I'm afraid there won't be any."

Mother Howard set her lips for a minute, then straightened proudly.

"Well, I guess there will! It's boundable—and I guess I've got a few things that are worth something—and a few friends that I can go to. I don't see why I should be left out of everything, just because I'm a woman!"

"'Lor' love you!" Harry grinned, his eyes showing plainly that the world was again good for him and that his troubles, as far as a few slight charges of penitentiary offenses were concerned, amounted to very little in his estimation. Harry had a habit of living just for the day. And the support of Mother Howard had wiped out all future difficulties for him. The fact that convictions might await him and that the heavy doors at Canon City might yawn for him made little difference right now. Behind the great bulk of his mustache, his big lips spread in a happy announcement of joy, and the world was good.

Silently, Robert Fairchild rose and left the parlor for his own room. Some way he could not force himself to shed his difficulties in the same light, airy way as Harry. Looking back he could see now that his dreams had led only to catastrophes. From the very beginning, there had been only trouble, only fighting, fighting, fighting against insurmountable odds, which seemed to throw him ever deeper into the mire of defeat, with every onslaught. The Rodaines had played with wicked cards, and so far every hand had been theirs. Fairchild suddenly realized that he was all but whipped, that the psychological advantage was all on the side of Squire Rodaine, his son, and the crazy woman who did their bidding. More, another hope had gone glimmering; even had the announcement not come forth that Anita Richmond had given her promise to marry Maurice Rodaine, the action of a coroner's jury that night had removed her from hope forever. A son of a man who has been called a slayer has little right to love a woman, even if that woman has a bit of mystery about her. All things can be explained—but murder!

It was growing late, but Fairchild did not seek bed. Instead he sat by the window, staring out at the shadows of the mountains, out at the free, pure night and yet at nothing. After a long time, the door opened, and a big form entered—Harry's hand silent a moment, then to come forward and lay a hand on the other man's shoulder.

"Don't let it get you, boy," he said softly to him. "It's going to come out all right. Everything comes out all right—if you ain't wrong yourself."

with murder. And that story now was at its beginning.

"I saw them together that afternoon early," the old woman was saying. "I came up the road just behind them, and they were fussing. Both of 'em acted like they were mad at each other, but Fairchild seemed to be the milder."

"I didn't pay much attention to them because I just thought they were fighting about some little thing and that it wouldn't amount to much. I went on up the gulch—I was gathering flowers. After awhile the earth shook and I heard a big explosion, from away down underneath some—like thunder when it's far away. Then, pretty soon, I saw Fairchild come rushing out of the mine, and his hands were all bloody. He ran to the creek and washed them, looking around to see if anybody was watching him—but he didn't notice me. Then, when he'd washed the blood from his hands, he got up on the road and went down into town. Later on, I thought I saw all three of 'em leave town, Fairchild, Sis and a fellow named Harkins. So I never paid any more attention to it until today. That's all I know."

She stepped down then and went back to her seat with Squire Rodaine and the son, fidgeting there, again, craning her neck as before, while Fairchild, son of a man just accused of murder, watched her with eyes fascinated from horror. The coroner looked at a slip of paper in his hand.

"William Barton," he called. A miner came forward, to go through the usual formalities, and then he asked the question:

"Did you see Thornton Fairchild on the night he left Ohadi?"

"Yes, a lot of us saw him. He drove out of town with Harry Harkins, and a fellow who we all thought was Sis' Larsen."

"That's all. Gentlemen of the jury," he turned his back on the crowded room and faced the small, worried appearing group on the row of kitchen chairs, "you have heard the evidence. You will find a room at the right in which to conduct your deliberations."

Shuffling forms faded through the door at the right. Then followed long moments of waiting, in which Robert Fairchild's eyes went to the floor, in which he strove to avoid the gaze of every one in the crowded courtroom. He knew what they were thinking, that his father had been a murderer, and that he—well, that he was blood of his father's blood. He could hear the buzzing of tongues, the shifting of the courtroom on the unstable chairs, and he knew fingers were pointing at him. For once in his life he had not the strength to face his fellow men.

At quarter of an hour a knock on the door—then the six men clattered forth again, to hand a piece of paper to the coroner. And he, adjusting his glasses, turned to the courtroom and read:

"We, the jury, find that the deceased came to his death from injuries sustained at the hands of Thornton Fairchild."

That was all, but it was enough. The stain had been placed; the thing which the white-haired man who had sat by a window back in Indianapolis had feared all his life had come after death.

It seemed hours before the courtroom cleared. Then, the attorney at one side, Harry at the other, he started out of the courtroom.

The crowd still dividing itself into little groups to discuss the verdict. Through them shot scrawling forms of newspapers. Dazedly, simply for the sake of something to take his mind from the throngs and the gossip about him, Fairchild bought a paper, and stepped to the light to glance over the first page. There, emblazoned under the "Extra" heading, was the story of the finding of the skeleton in the Blue Poppy mine, while beside it was something which caused Robert Fairchild to almost forget, for the moment, the horrors of the ordeal which he was undergoing. It was a paragraph leading the "personal" column of the small, amateurish sheet, announcing the engagement of Miss Anita Richards

SYNOPSIS.—At Thornton Fairchild's death his son Robert learns there has been a dark period in his father's life which for almost thirty years has caused him suffering. The secret is hinted at in a document left by the elder Fairchild, which also informs Robert he is now owner of a mining claim in Colorado, and advising him to see Henry Beamish, a lawyer. Beamish tells Robert his claim, a silver mine, is at Ohadi, thirty-eight miles from Denver. He also warns him against a certain man, "Squire" Rodaine, his father's enemy. On the road to Ohadi from Denver Fairchild meets a girl, apparently in a frenzy of haste, to change a tire on her auto. When she has left the sheriff and a posse appear in pursuit of a bandit. Fairchild bewildered, misleads them as to the direction the girl had taken. At Ohadi Fairchild is warmly greeted by "Mother" Howard, boarding-house keeper, for his father's sake. From Mother Howard, Fairchild learns something of the mystery connected with the disappearance of "Sis" Larsen, his father's co-worker in the mine. He meets the girl he had suspected but she denies her identity. She is Anita Richmond, Judge Richmond's daughter. Visiting his claim, Fairchild is shadowed by a man he recognizes from descriptions as "Squire" Rodaine. Back to Ohadi, his father's old stand, Harry Harkins, a Cornishman, summoned from England by Beamish to help Fairchild, falls in with joy. The pair find the mine flooded and have not sufficient funds to have it pumped dry. Later in the day "Squire" Rodaine announces that he has practically won Harkins' claim into the flooded mine, and critically is drowned. Harkins being a general favorite, the entire population turns out to clear the flooded mine. When the work is practically done, Harry appears, apparently surprised at the turmoil. It had been a shrewd trick on his part to get the mine pumped out without cost to himself or Fairchild, and the men take it as a good joke. Fairchild learns that Judge Richmond is dying, and that he and Anita are in the power of the Rodaines. They begin, as hitherto, to work the mine. In their hearts both Fairchild and Harkins are killed by Thornton Fairchild and his body buried by a cave-in which destroyed the mine. At the "Old Times Ball" Fairchild dances with Anita, to the discomfiture of Maurice Rodaine, son of "Squire," surprised to see her. A bandit holds up the dance and shoots a marksman, Maurice Rodaine claims he recognized the bandit as Harkins. The latter is arrested. Fairchild interferes to save Anita from the bullying of his two Rodaines, and is arrested at Anita's apartment. Harkins, Fairchild puts up the claim as bond, and secures Harry's release from jail. They are offered $50,000 for the claim, by an unknown party, but agree to disregard it. Clearing the mine, they come to where they find the remains of a skeleton, which Harkins identifies as Larsen. Is there, and there seems little doubt that Thornton Fairchild was a murderer. Fairchild admits the coroner of the discovery of the skeleton. At the request of "Crazy" Laura, a sister of "Squire" Rodaine, and an acknowledged murderer, gives damaging testimony against Thornton Fairchild.

"I think otherwise. The jury is entitled to all the evidence that has any bearing on the case."

"But this woman is crazy!"

"Has she ever been adjudged so, or committed to any asylum for the insane?"

"No—but nevertheless, there are a hundred persons in this courtroom who will testify to the fact that she is mentally unbalanced and not a fit person to fasten a crime upon any man's head by her testimony. And referring even to yourself, Coroner, have you within the last twenty-five years, in fact, since a short time after the birth of her son, called her anything else but Crazy Laura? Has anyone else in this town called her any other name? Man, I appeal to you—"

"What you say may be true. It may not; I don't know. I only am sure of one thing—that a person is sane in the eyes of the law until adjudged otherwise. Therefore, her evidence at this time is perfectly legal and proper."

"It won't be as soon as I can bring an action before a lunacy court and cause her examination by a board of alienists."

"That's something for the future. In that case things might be different. But I can only follow the law, with the members of the jury instructed, of course, to accept the evidence for what they deem it is worth. You will proceed, Mr. Rodaine. What did you see that caused you to come to this conclusion?"

"Can't you even stick to the rules and ethics of testimony?" It was the final plea of the defeated Farrell. The coroner eyed him slowly.

"Mr. Farrell," came his answer, "I must confess to a deviation from regular court procedure in this inquiry. It is customary in an inquest of this character; certain departures from the usual rules must be made that the truth and the whole truth be learned. Proceed, Mr. Rodaine; what was it you saw?"

Transfixed, horrified, Fairchild watched the man, mauling, mauling mouth, the staring eyes and straying white hair, the body crooked hands as they waved before her. From those teethmen jaws a story was about to come, true or untrue, a story that would stain the name of his father

Stanley Newcomb, eighth-grade pupil in the Lincoln school, San Diego, Cal., who won highest honors from a field of 400,000 competitors in the national safety essay contest. The award has just been announced at Washington by the highway education board. Stanley's prize is a gold watch and a trip to Washington with all expenses paid as the guest of officials of the National Highway Education board and the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce. At the time of writing the essay, young Newcomb was only thirteen. He is the only son of a widow, and he says his ambition is to be an editor.

Work of Leaf-Cutting Bee

The leaf-cutting bee drills in a hard bank a hole ten inches deep and half an inch in diameter and divides it into about a dozen compartments or cells. Each cell is composed of pieces of leaf cut into proper shapes and carefully fitted together. These leaves and sweet pea leaves are among the favorites of the bees. The cutting is done with the jaws, while the six legs hold the leaf in position and enable the insect to turn itself about with the precision of a pair of compasses. Some of the cut pieces are perfect circles, others are oblong figures of varying proportions. Having cut out the segment of leaf, an operation requiring about twenty seconds, the bee carries it to the hard bank and then returns for more material. When a piece has been nearly cut off, the bee, in order to prevent tearing, peels itself in the air with its wings and completes the operation with a clean cut.

FIFTEEN DIE IN NEW YORK FIRE

CHILDREN LEAP TO DEATH WHEN BUILDING IS BURNED.

APARTMENT IN FLAMES

POLICE BLAME PYROMANIAC FOR TENEMENT HOLOCAUST.

New York.—Fifteen persons, most of them children, lost their lives in a fire believed by city officials to be the work of a pyromaniac. The flames swept with murderous suddenness from cellar to attic of a five-story brick tenement at Lexington avenue and One Hundred and Tenth street, in the thickly populated East Side. The blaze apparently started in a baby carriage under the stairs in a lower hall under almost identical circumstances as the recent incendiary fire in an upper West Side apartment house, which resulted in seven deaths. So quickly did the flames shoot through the building that a number of the dead were found in bed, burned or suffocated without the slightest opportunity to escape.

In the confusion that followed the cry of "fire" there were many thrilling rescues. Families were separated as they ran from their rooms and children were forgotten in the general panic. Norman Goldfarb, who lived on the first floor with his wife and two children, got them out of the burning building. He then returned and brought out several women and children, who had been overcome by smoke.

Many others were rescued by firemen, who ran ladders against the front of the building just in time to prevent them from throwing themselves from windows.

The sleeping occupants were awakened to find escape by the stairways cut off and the halls filled with flames and choking smoke. Several were hurt jumping from windows.

Firemen searching the floors found four bodies on the top floor; three on the fourth floor and two on the second floor.

Nathan Silver and four of his children were among the victims. Mrs. Silver escaped. Mr. and Mrs. Abraham Matilsky and Sidney and Catherine Sugarman, brother and sister of Mrs. Matilsky, also perished.

City Marshal Joseph Lazarus, while on his way home, saw smoke issuing from the hallway of the building. He ran to the next corner and turned in an alarm. When he returned the whole building, the ground floor of which is occupied by stores, was a mass of flames, and exit by the stairways was cut off. Most of the persons on the second floor made their way down fire escapes, but those on upper floors had to struggle through smoke and flames pouring out the windows.

Several tenants, perched on upper story windows, threatened to jump, but were prevailed upon by firemen to remain until ladders could be raised to take them down. One aged woman, Mrs. Mary Inglass, disregarded the warning and leaped from the fourth floor, receiving injuries which probably will cause her death.

While the firemen were at work on the second floor and preparing to fight their way to the third floor, this floor collapsed, but not before a warning roar had sent the firemen to safety.

Striking Shopmen Buy Winter Food.

Valley Junction, Iowa.—Striking Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific shopmen here are preparing by means of co-operative buying to hold out all winter, if necessary, in order to win their strike against the company. Potatoes are being purchased in carload lots, along with coal and other necessities. If a striker's family can pay for his potatoes he does it at about a third discount from the retail price. If they cannot pay they are given 100 pounds or so. The same holds good for other necessities.

Klanmen March at Girl's Funeral.

St. Joseph, Mo.—What old-time residents here declared was the largest funeral within their recollection took place when the body of Nellie Hale, 14-year-old girl killed by a shot supposedly fired by police, was borne to the cemetery through streets lined by thousands of spectators. A crowd estimated at 5,000 waited in the cemetery for the cortege, in which marched 800 members of the Ku Klux Klan, robed and with their hoods raised.

Famous Race Horses Burned to Death.

Hartford, Conn.—Four race horses, Almaden Ovard, Harry D. O., and Abe Direct, noted pacers, and Daybreak, well known trotter, were burned to death in their stalls, when fire swept through the famous Charter Oak stables at Charter Oak park, near here. Wesley B., a trotter, was so badly burned that he was shot. The horses, which were privately owned, were valued at approximately $30,000. Almaden Ovard alone being valued at $10,000. They were not insured.

the making of modish wraps. These include bloused models and box coats, as well as capes. Among the last are cloth capes lined with fur, that seem even more luxuriously warm and cozy than fur coats lined with silk.

Box coats of fur are very smart and usually they adopt the wide, straight, upstanding collar that looks as if it could fortify one against any degree of cold.

Coats and wraps of fur-fabrics are not far behind those of natural furs in richness and warmth. In durability they have the advantage; nothing is more lasting. They are made on the same lines as wraps of natural fur and employ real furs for voluminous collars and cuffs.

Diadems, coronets, bandeaux and tiaras made to encircle the heads of beauty are all in the running for the coming winter evening gaiters—with bandeaux and garlands far in the lead.

It is a gold and silver season and it follows as the night the day that held line about their edges. The leaves are attached to a narrow ribbon and the ends of the garland are hooked or otherwise fastened together at the back.

Wired lace, spangled with pearls and rhinestones and joined to a jeweled band, furnish the most elaborate of headpieces for evening and the metallic cloths inspire many draped turbans which appear to be wound about the head.

Speaking of coiffures, there is a whole new flock of them and they are greatly varied. In many of them the hair is braided or stranded, is wrapped about the head, in nearly all it is loosely waved.

At least 50 per cent reveal a light hair dress with puffs and curls springing used, and there is also an interpretation of the "early venetian" style with hair parted in the middle and brought down over the ears.

THE KITCHEN CABINET

It is faith that bridges the land of death. To the realms of the souls departed. That comforts the living in days of death.

WHAT TO EAT

Let us eat more nuts. When properly masticated they are the finest of food.

Fruit Salad With Nuts.—Take a slice of pineapple for each serving, place on each a small ball of seasoned cottage cheese, or cream cheese may be used.

Another is prepared with a slice of pineapple cut into cubes; add twelve dates and one orange, one sliced banana and salad dressing. Cube the pineapple, dates and orange, add these to one-half cupful of walnut meats and the banana. Garnish with maraschino cherries. Mix well, adding enough good salad dressing to moisten. Serve in lettuce cups.

Spiced Walnuts.—Take two cupfuls of walnut meats, one cupful of sugar, one-fourth of a cupful of water, three-fourths of a teaspoonful of cinnamon. Mix the sugar and water and boil until it hardens in water. Take from the fire, stir in the cinnamon and add the walnuts. Stir until the nuts are thoroughly coated with the sirup. Spread on a platter to cool.

Sponge Cake With Cream Filling.—Beat the yolks of six eggs until thick and light-colored. Gradually beat in one cupful of sugar and add one-half cupful of boiling water. Flavor with a teaspoonful of lemon extract and gradually beat in one and one-half cupfuls of pastry flour sifted with two teaspoonfuls of baking powder. Bake in two layers, put together with cream filling and feed with caramel icing.

Cream Filling.—Mix together seven-eighths of a cupful of sugar with one-third of a cupful of flour, one-eighth of a teaspoonful of salt. Beat the two eggs and stir into the mixture, add two cupfuls of scalded milk to the flour and sugar, stirring constantly until cooked and thick. Add a tablespoonful of butter, cool and flavor with vanilla.

Raspberry Pie.—Remove the ripe fruit from the stems, fill a pastry-lined shell with the berries, add a little sugar, one tablespoonful of vinegar and two of flour. Cover with strips of pastry or cover as desired and bake in a slow oven.

Old-fashioned flowers! I love them all! The morning glories on the wall, The pansies in their patch of shade, The violets stolen from the glade, The bleeding hearts and columbines, Have long been garden friends of mine; But memory every summer stocks About a clump of hollyhocks.—Edgar Guest.

DELICIOUS DRINKS

A delicious drink may be made by combining grape juice with ginger ale. The two flavors blend well, and one gives zest to the other.

Grape Juice and Ginger Ale Jelly.—Heat a pint of grape juice with two tablespoonfuls of sugar. When hot, pour over two tablespoonfuls of granulated gelatin which has been soaked in a little water. Add one pint of ginger ale. Cool, let stand on ice until ready to serve.

Coffee Marshmallow Cream.—Soak two tablespoonfuls of gelatin in two tablespoonfuls of cold water until soft. Add two cupfuls of strong boiling hot coffee and stir until the gelatin is dissolved. Add one-fourth cupful of sugar, one cupful of condensed milk, one-half teaspoonful of vanilla and one-quarter of a cupful of marshmallows, added just before chilling.

Fruit Jelly.—Pour two cupfuls of boiling water over one-half cupful of sugar, and when dissolved add two tablespoonfuls of gelatin soaked in two tablespoonfuls of cold water, then add one cupful of pineapple juice, three tablespoonfuls of lemon juice, and when the mixture begins to thicken add one and one-third cupfuls of pineapple cut in cubes. Rinse a mold in cold water and turn in the mixture.

Milk Jelly.—Soak one and one-half tablespoonfuls of gelatin in one-half cupful of water. Cook two cupfuls of milk with four tablespoonfuls of sugar and the grated rind of a lemon over a slow fire. Add the soaked gelatin and stir until dissolved. Let stand until the milk is well flavored, then strain into a wet mold. Serve with cream and sugar.

Whey punch has a delicious flavor and is very refreshing. Take one cupful of whey and one and one-quarter cupfuls of sugar and boil together for five minutes. Cool and add one quart of whey, the juice of two lemons and one cupful of shredded pineapple.

WHY DRUGGISTS RECOMMEND SWAMP-ROOT

For many years druggists have watched with much interest the remarkable record maintained by Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder medicine.

Swamp-Root has stood the test of years. It is sold by all druggists on its merit and it should help you. No other kidney medicine has so many friends.

Swamp-Root is a strengthening medicine. It helps the kidneys, liver and bladder do the work nature intended they should do.

Swamp-Root is not so much the mother of invention as a desire to elude disagreeable work.

FREEDOM FROM LAXATIVES

Discovery by Scientists Has Replaced Them.

Pills and salts give temporary relief from constipation only at the expense of permanent injury, says an eminent medical authority.

Science has found a newer, better way—a means as simple as Nature itself.

In perfect health a natural lubricant keeps the food waste soft and moving. But when constipation exists this natural lubricant is not sufficient.

HYMN COVERED HIS RETREAT

Probably Young Clergyman Feared He Would Get into Yet Deeper Water If He Kept On.

In Georgia they tell of a young clergyman, newly settled over a large parish, who had occasional fits of embarrassment when standing before his congregation.

One Sunday, after reading a notice of a woman's missionary meeting to be held in the chapel a few days later, he endeavored to add a special appeal of his own for a large attendance.

After stating that it was to be a meeting of great interest and importance, he said: "We, the women of this congregation—"

With a flushed countenance he stopped and retraced his steps. "We, who are the women of this congregation," he began.

This was no better, and he beat a blushing retreat by saying: "Let us sing the four hundred and first hymn."—Philadelphia Ledger.

NOTHING NORMAL ABOUT HER

Critic Asserts Author is All Wrong in His Description of Heroine of His Tale.

Harold G. Armstrong, the author of "For Richer, for Poorer," apparently has no desire to enroll himself in the younger generation. At any rate his heroine is flamboyantly an old-fashioned girl. On page 153 we read, "At once Marion let down her hair. More than that, Kenneth Gramling, the hero, was thrilled thereby. "It was a symbol. They kissed. Deep-encycled inhibitions vanished. They were normal people, after all."

Marion did not seem so to us. We do not think she should be allowed to qualify. If she had been a normal heroine of today, it would have been the hair which had vanished and the inhibitions which were let down.—Heywood Brown in the New York World.

WAS A FACT ACCOMPLISHED

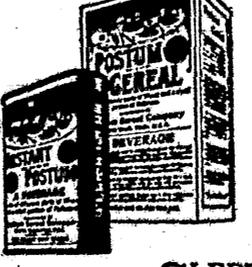

Married Men Will Be at No Loss to Understand That Further Argument Was Useless.

A couple was seated on the top of a Fifth avenue bus and their words reached everyone around them. He ventured a timid suggestion that they get off at Forty-seventh street. She had decided upon a street farther south and said so with finality. An argument followed, if a conversation can be called an argument in which one side has so much the best of it. The people listening in from nearby seats were naturally interested in the outcome.

As the bus slowed down for the Forty-second street crossing the woman remained seated, and the man renewed his argument. "It was a word in the final veto, however, which especially attracted the audience. Every married man present understood.

"There is no use talking," the woman declared with finality. "I have made up our minds."—New York Times.

Try the Grocer, first!

SLEEPLESS nights, and daytime irritation, when caused by coffee drinking, often require a call on the grocer to avoid a later call on the doctor.

Postum, instead of coffee, has brought restful nights and brighter days for thousands of people—together with complete satisfaction to taste.

You will enjoy the full, rich flavor and aroma of Postum, and never will be free from any possibility of irritation from coffee's drug, caffeine. You can begin the test today with an order to your grocer.

Postum comes in two forms: Instant Postum (in tins) prepared instantly in the cup by the addition of boiling water. Postum Cereal (in packages, for those who prefer to make the drink while the meals being prepared) made by boiling fully 20 minutes.

Greatest Farmer In The World

Booklets which are being sent out by local bank contain interesting side-lights on activities of Department of Agriculture.

There are 1,937,144,360 acres in the main lot of the largest farmer in the world. His name is "Uncle Sam."

The Department of Agriculture is his manager and it is the activities of this department which form the interesting theme of a booklet which is being mailed to residents in this locality by the Stockmen's Bank.

How people realize the scope of the activities of the Department of Agriculture. One of the interesting things that it does is to import seeds and bulbs from other countries, many of which provide adaptable to the conditions in this country and have become of great value to American farmers.

The methods by which the Department of Agriculture controls the diseases of cattle and insures that consumers receive healthy beef is another interesting subject discussed. The functions of the organization of the Department of Agriculture, which carry on this work that is of so great importance to the farmer and in fact every other citizen of the United States, makes a story that is so intensely interesting.

The service that the Department of Agriculture renders directly to the American farmer is especially interesting. If he wants to know why his wheat is rusting, or if some unknown pest is causing his tobacco to wilt, all he has to do is to write a letter to the Department of Agriculture, and if the department has no information on hand which seems to fill the bill, a special representative will be dispatched to discover the source of destruction and to co-operate with the farmer in every way to combat it.

Another way in which the Department of Agriculture co-operates with our farmers is in helping them to find the best markets for farm products. It also furnishes valuable information on methods of improving public roads and it supplies valuable suggestions for ways of improving rural communities.

"The Greatest Farmer in the World" is just one of a series of very interesting and timely articles dealing with the work of the government in behalf of the Agricultural interests of our country which is being mailed to residents of this community by the Stockmen's State Bank.

The bank seems to be performing a service of genuine help to this locality in furnishing this interesting and valuable reading matter. We understand that the Institution still has a limited number of these folders and booklets which will be sent to any resident of Corona who applies for them, either by mail or in person.
