The Thrice-a-Week Edition of The New York World

The wide, wide world has become so narrowed by science that news from all around the globe is printed in the current New York World, together with the view of nation builders, master men and leading women everywhere and particularly in the United States. No other newspaper is better equipped to give the news of the world at the time it is news than The New York World.

The Thrice-a-Week edition of The World is the greatest example of comprehensive journalism in America. It will keep you as thoroughly informed as a daily, which would cost five or six times as much. It is a unique newspaper published three times a week for $1 a year This is the regular subscription price and it pays for 156 newspapers.

We offer this unequalled newspaper and the maverick together for one year for $2.00

The regular subscription price of the two papers is $2.50

Obituary

Mr. Zeb Owen, known as Uncle Zeb in this locality, passed away at his home near here mid-night on the night of January 9, 1923, at the age of 78 year 10 months and 20 days, after a period of illness lasting thirty days. It is supposed that Mr. Owen's death was caused by cerebral hemorrhage, which illness gradually weakened him until he saw that he could not survive at which time he called his relatives and friends to his bedside and told them good bye and made little requests that he wanted done after his death. He was buried the afternoon of January 10th, and many of his many friends attended the funeral services conducted at his home and also at the cemetery by Rev. Weatherby of Vaughn Mr. Owen was born in the State of Illinois, March 20, 1844, and moved to Texas at the age of five years where he resided with his people until the Civil War at which time he enlisted with the Confederate Army at the age of sixteen and served three and one half years. He was married to Miss Henriette Johnson at the age of twenty three with whom he enjoyed a happy life, they having celebrated their Golden Wedding Aniversary in 1916, having been together more than fiftysix years at the time of his death. Two children, Mollie Owen and Robert L. Owen came to bless their home in 1869 and 1871 respectively, at which time they were residing in Ellis County, Texas Perhaps no other couple were ever more attached to one another than were Mr and Mrs. Owen nor were there ever a happier home. Mr. Owen was a member of the Christian Church for twenty years next preceding his death and was a man of highest character and kind and served a most useful and successful life as his many friends who will greatly misshim well know. He was exceedingly kind in all of his dealings and was ever willing to help some one in distress. Uncle Zeb led an active life and even at his old age he was able to ride after his cattle and look after his ranch, and on the Friday before he was taken ill he rode his horse over his ranch as was his custom We all regret so much to have our friend and relative depart from this earth, however, we all must go, and perhaps very few of us will reach the ageat which Mr. Owen death occured and enjoy the good health which he did and be as useful that we would reap the reward which Uncle Zeb must reap in that great Eternal Heaven, we would indeed have something to be thankful for. The many friends of Mr. Owen and his surviving relatives extend their deepest sympathy to these relatives in the hour of their deepest bereavement

School Notes

Last Saturday evening the 13, proved to be both lucky and unlucky for the Corona Capitan basketball teams which met on the Corona Court.

Two games were played, the first between the girls resulting in the very happy score of 22 to 11, favor of the Corona girls. The boy's game, while intensely interesting from both the players and spectators point of view did not end so happily for us the score being 25 to 15 favor Capitan.

Both games were well played, and both teams were full of the old fight and pep, maintaining a spirit of sportsmanship that would grace any court. We appreciate the splendid showing of the Corona teams.

MAKING THEM AMERICANS

How few of us realize the importance of making over the foreigner—of implanting American ideals, ideas and common sense in place of socialistic and maybe anarchistic theories. It means a lot to every American citizen. This work and many other interesting activities of the Department of Labor are discussed in the twelfth issue of the series of beautifully illustrated booklets on Our Government which we have been distributing to representative citizens of this community.

French Hospital Ship Burns; Yankee Crew to Rescue

Remarkable and exclusive photograph of the burning French hospital ship, Vinh-Long, on the sea of Marmora near Constantinople. Twenty passengers were lost by the disaster and 400 were rescued by the small American destroyer, Bainbridge. The vessel took fire opposite San Stefano while enroute from Bizert to Constantinople. The blaze was discovered in the magazine. Several explosions followed. The ship had become a roaring furnace when Lieut. Commander W. A. Edwards of the Bainbridge brought the destroyer alongside. The heat had driven many to jump overboard. These were rescued by the United States submarine chaser 96. The illustration shows the Vinh-Long afire after all passengers had been rescued. One of the stacks is crumpling and about to fall overboard. The ship was a total loss. At the right is Commander Edwards.

Young Men Form Huge Rail Combine

The consolidation of five large railroads into one of the largest rail systems east of the Mississippi river has again brought into public light the two brothers who are at the head of the combine—Otis P. Van Sweringen (left) and Mantis J. Van Sweringen, of Cleveland, Ohio. They obtained their common school education in Geneva, Ohio, where they later were newsboys. Going to Cleveland twenty years ago, they entered the real estate business on a small scale, and it was not until they interested capitalists in the purchase of a large tract of land near Cleveland that they began to attract attention. Today their interests operate and control the New York, Chicago and St. Louis; the Toledo, St. Louis and Western; the Lake Erie and Western; the Fort Wayne, Cincinnati and Louisville, and the Chicago and State Line railroads, all of which have now been consolidated into one system.

BOY SCOUTS

(Conducted by National Council of the Boy Scouts of America.)

BROTHERS ARE SCOUT HEROES

A story of spirited courage and noble sacrifice was enacted last summer when two brothers, Scouts Truman Reynolds and Stanley Reynolds, of Syracuse, N. Y., saved four women from drowning. Truman Reynolds gave up his life in the accomplishment of the brave deed.

While crossing Chautauqua lake a motorboat containing ten persons sprang a leak, the seams gradually gave way and the craft began to sink. "Truman and I told the others to be calm," relates Stanley Reynolds. I told the girls in the party to jump as far from the boat as they could so that they would not be drawn under when the boat sank. After the girls plunged into the water Truman and I jumped in after them. Truman caught hold of two girls and I grabbed the other two. The young women my brother grabbed became frightened. In their excitement they struck at him several times—there were scratches and bruises on his face and head; but he kept them afloat nevertheless. A life preserver floated near me, and I helped the girls to it. We were in the water about half an hour. It seemed hours. Finally a lifeboat came to us from a passing steamer. As the boat drew near to him Truman caught the girls by the hair and with a swing raised them into the arms of the men in the boat. The girls I had were already in the boat. I followed in. I was tired out. I asked Truman if he could make it and he answered, 'Yes, I'm all right.' The words were scarcely out of his mouth when he disappeared beneath the surface of the water. I dived in and caught hold of him as he was going down. When we came up, men caught hold of us and pulled us into the boat. Truman's heart was beating when they got him into the boat. I didn't know much about what was going on. As they pulled toward the steamer my strength came back. I thought Truman was unconscious. Two doctors on shipboard worked over him; then I tried for a long time. The doctors said he was dead."

Both Stanley and Truman Reynolds were members of Troop 3, Onondaga council, New York, boy scouts, and had received their training in swimming and life saving at the Syracuse scout camp, Camp Loyalty, on Crooked lake.

SCOUTS RESCUE FRIEND

Six Manchester (N. H.) scouts and nine-year-old Joseph Bolando, a relative of one of the scouts, were building a fort just below an old mill dam. Lodged on a little island 50 feet across the rapid stream, was a log the boys needed in their building. Young Joseph decided to cross the water for the log. He started out, fastening about his waist a wire with which he intended to draw the log back. When the lad was halfway across, he slipped and was drawn beneath the water by the current. Two of the scouts hastened to the rescue and when they found they were unable to draw the child up, a third scout dove in and discovered that the wire around the boy's waist was fastened to a rock. He unloosened the wire and the three boys brought the unconscious lad to shore, where the other three scouts administered first aid. Soon the little fellow regained consciousness. The boys took him home on a stretcher which they had rapidly constructed in the emergency.

TOWN HONORS BOY SCOUTS

Scouts of Freeport, L. I., because of their excellent community services during the past summer, have been honored by the city officials who have voted to create a municipal signal to summon the scouts in cases of emergency. An announcement to this effect was made by the chief of police at a recent scout "father and son" meeting. One blast of the home defense whistle means no school on account of inclement weather. Two blasts mean the American Legion is summoned. Three blasts is the signal for scouts to gather immediately for some civic service that is to be rendered in a hurry.

SCOUTS CITED FOR BRAVERY

Among the records of scouts in many states throughout the country who have performed significant work in forest-fire fighting the Pennsylvania scouts hold a prominent place. Last year these lads received citations from the state constabulary for bravery and efficient service.

SCOUT'S GOOD TURN AT RACE

During a race at the last Interstate fair, Spokane, Washington, a prize horse broke away from the jockey and began a wild course around the track. When the efforts of officials to stop the horse had failed, Scout David Hawkins of Troop No. 12 dashed to the track as the horse neared the turn end, after waving his hands, stopped the high strung animal, tightened the saddle girth, mounted, and sped away. The horse breasted the tape not far behind the winner.

THE AMERICAN LEGION

(Copy for This Department Supplied by the American Legion News Service.)

IS SECRETARY OF AUXILIARY

Miss Bess B. Wetherholt of Ohio Receives Important Position in National Organization.

Miss Bess B. Wetherholt of Gallipolis, O., has recently been appointed national secretary of the American Legion Auxiliary by Dr. Kate Waller-Barrett, national president of the organization which is composed of mothers, wives, sisters and daughters of Legion members and men who died in the service.

Miss Bess B. Wetherholt.

Miss Wetherholt drew national attention when the membership of the Ohio Auxiliary was trebled during the first ten months she acted as secretary of that department. During the same period the number of local units was doubled. Miss Wetherholt was secretary of the Ohio department with headquarters at Columbus from the time the department was formed until she assumed the national office. The Ohio Auxiliary was also notable in its efficient work for the relief of sick and disabled soldiers in the hospitals of that state during Miss Wetherholt's term of office. She has also been president of the auxiliary unit at Gallipolis.

Miss Wetherholt was educated in the public schools of Gallipolis and in a private school at Cincinnati. Following her graduation from the latter institution she engaged in legal work. During the war she served in the statistics section of the ordnance department in Cincinnati. Her spare time was spent in organizing chapters of the American Red Cross.

Three brothers of Miss Wetherholt were World war fighters.

ENTITLED TO THE POSITIONS

Commander of Portland (Ore.) Legion Post Asserts Ex-Service Men Should Have Preference.

The ex-service man who has equal or better qualifications for a city government position is entitled to preference in appointment or election, according to James J. Crossley, of Portland, Ore., commander of Portland post, No. 1, of the American Legion.

Jas. J. Crossley.

Carrying his theory into action, Mr. Crossley was instrumental in the organization of a committee in his post charged with the duty of seeing that all veterans of the World war received a square deal in obtaining municipal positions. Working in close co-operation with the mayor and city commissioners, men and women recommended by the Legion have been named as municipal judge, superintendent of the women's bureau of the police department and chief clerk of the park bureau.

In many cases ex-service men have led the list of applicants for positions in the civil service examinations, according to Mr. Crossley. In the examination for chief clerk of the park bureau, Albert Hafner, an ex-service man, finished first.

FOR THE ENGLISH LANGUAGE

President of Returned Sailors' and Soldiers' League of Australia Urges Co-operation.

On the eve of American Education week, during which the American Legion urged that importance of ability to read and write the English language should be emphasized, Alvin Owsley, Legion national commander, received a telegram from G. J. C. Dyett, president of the Returned Sailors' and Soldiers' league of Australia, stating that the "continued close co-operation of English-speaking peoples is the only safeguard to the peace and happiness of humanity."

Mr. Dyett, who brought the greetings of his organization to the recent Legion national convention in New Orleans, recently sailed for his home.

Replying to a message from Commander Owsley to Australian ex-service men, Mr. Dyett stated:

"I profoundly appreciate the sentiments conveyed in your message to Australian soldiers which, absolutely coincide with those uttered in my address at the Legion national convention. I desire to reiterate our admiration of American soldiers and the sincere friendship of the people of America, and trust for continued close co-operation of English-speaking peoples as the only safeguard to the peace and happiness of humanity."

In Nursing Sick, Mrs. Patten States, She Often Recommends Tanlac—Thinks It Wonderful.

"I firmly believe Tanlac is what keeps me so well and strong," is the high tribute paid the medicine, recently, by Mrs. Edith J. Patten, widely known and esteemed resident of 560 Cumberland Ave., Portland, Me.

"When I began the use of Tanlac I had not felt right for a long time and was all run down. After persistently taking the treatment considered best for such a condition I got no better. In fact I seemed to be growing worse until a lady friend insisted on me trying Tanlac.

"At that time I took two or three bottles and was perfectly well again. Since then I have taken a bottle two or three times a year and no one could feel better. I have done lots of nursing of the sick, and since Tanlac did so much for me I have been the cause of many others taking it—always with splendid results. It is with this knowledge and experience that I recommend Tanlac as a wonderful medicine."

SEASONABLE GOOD THINGS

This is the time of year when plum pudding, suet pudding and the rich steamed puddings of fruit and nuts are enjoyed. Here is a simple suet pudding, not too sweet, and when served with a sweet egg sauce is very tasty:

Suet Pudding.—Take one cupful each of sour milk, chopped suet, molasses and fruit. Three and one-half cupfuls of flour, two well-beaten eggs, one teaspoonful of soda and spices to suit the taste. Cut the dried fruit, such as raisins, into bits with the shears, add the soda to the sour milk, add the spices to the flour and give the whole a good beating before putting into pound coffee cans well-greased and covered. Steam two hours, remove from the cans and dry off in a hot oven for five to ten minutes. Wrap in waxed paper and keep in a cool place. This recipe will make two nice puddings. Serve with:

Egg Sauce.—Beat one egg until light and foamy, add one cupful of sugar and beat until well-mixed, then add one-half cupful of boiling hot milk, stir well and serve at once.

Indian Suet Pudding.—Take two quarts of milk, three-quarters of a cupful of corn meal, two well-beaten eggs, one cupful of brown sugar and one cupful of chopped suet, one-half cupful each of chopped dried fruit, (raisins, dates, figs or prunes or a combination) and flour, with spices to taste, a bit of salt and, if at hand, a cupful of sour cream. Scald one quart of the milk with the corn meal, add the rest of the milk, eggs, sugar and suet with the half cupful of fruit and sour cream, sifting the flour over the top. Stir a half-dozen times during the first hour of baking, then the meal will be well-mixed through the pudding.

Steamed Delight.—Take two cupfuls of bread crumbs, one cupful of molasses, one cupful of milk, one-half teaspoonful each of cloves and cinnamon, one teaspoonful of mace, one cupful each of raisins and currants. Steam three hours. Serve with a sauce prepared from canned fruit juice or any preferred sauce.

It is not necessary to go to the forest for adventures; they lie in wait for us at our very doors.—Samuel Scoville, Jr.

THE EMERGENCY SHELF SUPPLY

The housewife who has a shelf well supplied with canned foods, package and preserved, feels no distress in facing an unexpected guest.

With a can of salmon, a bit of cabbage, celery and a sour pickle or two, well-chopped, one may have a nourishing salad in a few moments. It is understood, of course, that all forehanded housewives have a jar of salad dressing or the "makings" of French dressing always on hand.

If no cabbage or celery is at hand, to the salmon add a half cupful or more of coconut from which the sugar has been washed, using a little milk, then with a good boiled dressing a dish which is very substantial results.

With the cupful or two of griddle-cake batter which has been prepared with milk and eggs, a cupful of canned corn is stirred and you have fritters to serve with bacon, chicken or any meat dish you desire. Cook the fritters on a hot griddle in a little fat, or fry them in deep fat.

A few marshmallows cut up may be served in place of cream on the cup of hot chocolate or to garnish a pudding, meringue, or a custard. They are nice in fruit salads of all kinds.

The canned marshmallow whip may be used with nuts to frost cakes, cookies and desserts.

It is unnecessary to mention the wide range of soups one may serve from the canned varieties. An excellent combination is pea soup and canned milk—a can of each, heated hot and served with croutons or hot crackers.

She is indeed wise who can combine and season her foods so that the ready-to-eat food may have the air of that carefully prepared by an artist.

A cooked salad dressing will become, with the addition of some chopped parsley, pickles or capers, a delightful fish sauce.

With a little left-over chicken and a bunch of celery with mayonnaise a delicious salad is ready, and who could refuse a chicken salad?

A few suggestive menus which may be prepared from the emergency shelf may be timely. For luncheon, canned chicken on toast, string bean salad, crackers, canned fruit, cookies and tea or cocoa with cheese if desired.

Cream of celery soup, salted wafers, potted ham or meat sandwiches, stuffed dates, fresh fruit, cake and coffee.

Baked beans, pickles, brown bread, fruit salad, strawberry jam, cookies, tea.

FRENCH ENTER RUHR

BERLIN ORDERS PARIS AMBASSADOR TO RETURN.

BELGIAN AND ITALIAN ENGINEERS ENTER OCCUPIED AREA WITH FRENCH.

Washington.—American troops were ordered home from the Rhine with every indication that the administration's purpose was to emphasize its disapproval of the French reparations program. They are expected to be back in the United States by Feb. 5.

Official explanation of the withdrawal order, issued after a conference between President Harding and Secretaries Hughes and Weeks was confined to the statement that the President deemed it expedient at this time. There were intimations which appeared authoritative, however, that France had been informed that perseverence in her plans for forcible measures in Germany would result in American withdrawal from the Rhine, but no inkling was given as to when or how diplomatic exchanges of such a nature had been transmitted.

Berlin.—American and English tourists in Berlin made hurried departures for Paris and London as a result of threatened invasion of the Ruhr valley by the French.

Germany has recalled her ambassador at Paris. Dr. Mayer, the German ambassador, instructions were sent to him by the Berlin government to hand over the embassy to the counsellor and leave the city.

Paris.—The French people are standing behind their government as what is frequently described as the most critical moment since the end of the war. Germany was notified in identical notes from France and Belgium that control of the Ruhr coal distribution would be under a commission, which will go in with a small army as a guard. Italian hesitation gave some concern, but Italian engineers accompanied the French and Belgians on their march to Essen.

London.—By striking first at Essen, France is hitting at the heart of German industry. Essen, a city of 300,000 souls, long before the war, had been known as the "steel city" of the German empire, principally because it was the seat of the great Krupp works, which manufactured most everything from a needle to the heaviest kind of armor plate.

With railways stretching like tentacles into all parts of the Ruhr region and its iron, coal, zinc and copper deposits, all kinds of industries flourished prior to the war and since the war ended the city again had taken on somewhat of its old appearance as a great manufacturing center.

Hope for Settlement British Debt.

George Mortufeld, a fireman, was badly burned when caught beneath a falling wall. Kemper Hall is a school for girls under the direction of the Sisters of St. Mary of the Episcopal church.

GERMAN WORKERS NONCOMMITTAL

PARIS ADMITS CAUSE IS LOST IF STRIKE IS CALLED.

MARTIAL LAW IN RUHR

GERMAN LAWS WILL REMAIN IN FORCE IN OCCUPIED TERRITORY.

Dusseldorf.—The first day of the occupation of Essen was taken up practically in obtaining contact between the French economic mission and representatives of the German coal mine operators and steel mill owners with a view of finding a basis of co-operation in working the Ruhr industries.

Conferences between M. Coste, French inspector general of mines; General Deville, superintendent of iron and steel plants, and representatives of German industries, were held both in Dusseldorf and Essen. The Essen conference was attended by delegates from both the Krupp and Thyssen plants.

Both sides to the discussions were noncommittal regarding the results achieved, the feeling was expressed by the Germans and not denied by the French that the entire success of the French occupation from the economic view point depends upon the co-operation of the existing German organisms and if they decide to refrain from co-operating, the entire structure of Ruhr industries will break down.

General Degoutte has issued a proclamation from Dusseldorf establishing a martial law throughout the newly occupied territory. The German laws, it was stipulated, would remain in force.

From French sources, it is announced that the coal operators and other industrialists attending the Essen conference are prepared to disregard the Berlin government's ruling that they must discontinue making deliveries in kind to France, Belgium and Italy on account of reparations.

Paul Tirard of France, president of the inter-allied Rhine commission, has sent out a circular to German functionaries in the occupied territory of the Ruhr informing them that they are liable to the penalties prescribed by the rules of the commission, if they carry out the instructions from Berlin and fail to make deliveries in kind.

These penalties prescribe dismissal or expulsion, or trial, with consequent fines or jail terms.

The squadron had taken the air in maneuvers under command of Lieutenant Johnson and were in the midst of the immelmann turn when the ships crashed.

FLOOD LOSS IS HEAVY

WILLAMETTE RIVER IS TWENTY-FIVE FEET ABOVE NORMAL

GREAT DAMAGE CAUSED ALONG WATER FRONT AND DOCKS BY FLOOD.

Portland, Ore.—Driving with resistless power, the Willamette river at Portland rose to more than twenty-five feet above normal, flooding the docks and lower streets along the water front and causing great damage. The huge volume of water pouring down the Willamette valley and fed by a hundred tributary streams running bankful and over, bore immense quantities of logs and drift of all kinds, which lodged against the piers of the city's bridges and rendered at least two of them unsafe for traffic. They were closed by the city officials.

Reports from points southward through the Willamette valley were that many of the rivers tributary to the Willamette had begun to fall and it was hoped that the crest of the flood, the worst experienced in western Oregon in thirty years, had been reached.

Official weather forecast gave promise of a moderation of the flood, but a continuation of rain, with a warning from Northhead, at the Columbia river's entrance, of the approach of a new southerly gale, gave rise to apprehension.

The upper Willamette valley presented the aspect of a great inland sea. Its waters lapped the thresholds of hundreds of homes in both city and country far flung throughout the level valley lands.

Cities and hamlets between Eugene and Portland, a distance of 125 miles, reported extensive damage from the waters.

Seattle, Wash.—Water in the White river, south of here, is reported to have already reached the highest point in the history of the stream.

Travel by automobile between Seattle and Tacoma remains practically impossible. The roads in the White River valley are under several feet of water.

GERMAN ENVOY FILES PROTEST

NOTE TO U. S. ASSAILS INVASION AS VIOLATION OF TREATY.

DEFAULT IS DENIED

FRENCH TROOPS PATROL RUHR VALLEY AN DSTREETS OF ESSEN.

Washington.—Dr. Otto Wiedfeldt, the German ambassador, called at the State Department and left there a formal protest against occupation of the Ruhr by France.

After reciting that the German government protested against "oppression applied towards Germany in contradiction with the treaty of Versailles and international law," the commission said the Berlin government did not intend to "meet violence with violence, nor to reply to the breach of the treaty with a withdrawal from the treaty."

"As long as the state of affairs contrary to the treaty exist," the protest continued, "Germany is not in a position to make actual reparations to those powers who have brought about this state of affairs."

The German embassy was of the opinion that the text of the communication was similar, if not identical to that presented to the British foreign office by Dr. St. Hamer, German ambassador at London.

The action of France, it was declared in the protest presented at the State Department, was "directed against a defenseless and peaceful nation" four years after the signing of the peace treaty." Commenting on Germany's default in deliveries of wood and coal during 1922, the communication stated that the default in the case of coal represented "a deficit amounting to less than 4 per cent of the deliveries of coal to the entente powers since the signing of the armistice."

Declaring that "such a default on the part of Germany is not only denied by Germany alone," the protest continues that entirely apart from that the action of the French and Belgians represented a three-fold breach in the Versailles treaty.

The treaty, it was asserted, does not admit any territorial sanctions, and the measures allowed by it against Germany "can only be applied by the allied powers as a whole and not by single powers of their own accord." According to the note of the reparations commission of last March 21, it was stated, Germany's defaults in wood and coal deliveries would "always only justify demands for subsequent payments."

Essen.—The French army is encircling the heart of the Ruhr valley. Marching into Essen in their new move for the occupation of additional German territory, French troops began patroling the streets of Essen and sentries took positions at the entrance to the great Krupp works.

French tanks command the Essen city hall square, and pickets of infantry hold the railroad station.

The advance from the Dusseldorf bridgehead was led by armored cars, while cavalry debouched from Duisburg into Muelheim. One division of infantry marched into the valley from Dusseldorf and another from Duisburg.

Two reserve divisions of infantry are camping on the edge of the former bridgehead limits.

Defy French Menace.

Essen.—The decision of the Rhenish and West Phalian coal syndicate to transfer its headquarters to Hamburg constituted the first actual defiance by "big business" interests of the French seizures in the Ruhr valley. A mass meeting of 10,000 persons adopted a resolution by acclamation in protest against the "French violation of the treaty of Versailles." The speakers included Food Minister Luther, and the meeting was composed mainly of the better class of residents.

Sun Army Captures Large City.

Canton.—The city of Shiuhing, midway between Canton and Wuchow, has fallen to the troops of Sun Yat Sen, deposed president of the South China republic, who has announced his intention of retaking Canton from his conqueror, Gen. Chen Chiung-Ming, and regaining his power in the south. It was declared that the reported capture of Samshui, which is between Canton and Shiuhing, was premature. The troops which overthrew Shiuhing are from Yunnan and Kwangsi provinces.

Writes Call for Pilot on Clouds.

San Francisco, Calif.—While cruising near the Golden Gate, Capt. J. M. Healey, bar pilot, saw a spear of light suddenly thrust its way through the drifting fog and trace on a passing cloud the word "pilot." Interpreting it as a call for help from some fog-bound vessel, Captain Healey started his boat, the Adventurer, through the mists toward the source of the flashing light and soon came upon the U. S. S. Nitro, ammunition carrier, inward bound.

MURDER?

SYNOPSIS.—Answering an advertisement calling for a young man willing to engage in service of danger, Matthew West, ex-service man just returned from France, where he had been captain of engineers, meets Natalie Coolidge, writer of the advertisement, and without being instructed as to his probable duties, is engaged by her, and that same evening introduced to her friends as her fiance. That night, in the Coolidge home, West is startled by the appearance in his room of a young woman, whom he takes to be Natalie. Next morning Natalie tells West she has been troubled by some woman, apparently her double, who has been impersonating her. Percival Coolidge, Natalie's uncle and guardian, is disgruntled by West's appearance as Natalie's fiance. Natalie, Coolidge and West plan a visit of charity. Leaving West in the car, Natalie and Coolidge enter a small cottage. Before they return, West secures information which leads him to believe Coolidge is deceiving Natalie for a purpose. Natalie informs West she has been mistaken in her suspicions and that she has no further need for his services. West is astounded, but leaves.

CHAPTER VI

The Body of a Suicide.

As the car whirled West down the circling driveway, the only sign of life visible about the house was the motionless figure of Sexton on the steps. If either Miss Natalie, or Percival Coolidge, took interest enough in the proceedings to witness his departure, they chose to remain carefully concealed within. There was no pretense even at speeding the parting guest. He had simply been dismissed, turned out, decently enough, perhaps, considering his status, yet with a certain measure of contempt which rankled nevertheless.

The young man could not altogether reconcile this style of treatment with his preconceived conception of Miss Natalie Coolidge. He had been too deeply impressed by her to easily relinquish his previously formed opinion of her character. This latest action did not at all coincide with her former open friendliness. He had not gone to her as a servant, nor had she in any way treated him as such. What could account for so remarkable a change?

Perhaps it was the influence of Percival Coolidge. This explanation seemed probable. The man had in some way regained her confidence, and then, through trickery, had succeeded in poisoning her mind. From the very first Coolidge had disliked him instinctively, and made no effort to conceal his feelings; he resented the intimacy between him and Natalie, naturally enough, and would use every means possible to get the younger man completely out of the house. No doubt he looked upon him as dangerous. But why? There could only be one answer to this query. His own dishonesty; his secret knowledge of some trickery relative to the funds of the estate. He had convinced the girl of his honesty, but, more than ever, West believed the fellow a rascal.

These thoughts flitted through his mind, yet not consecutively, as the car left the grounds, and turned on to the main road, leading citywards. They were still skirting the Coolidge estate, although the house behind was concealed by shrubbery. Suddenly, just as they cleared the bridge, and began to mount the opposite grade, there came a sharp report, sounding so close at hand the chauffeur clamped on his brake, and glanced anxiously over the side of the car.

"Blow-out, wasn't it, sir?"

"No," said West shortly, staring himself out into the thicket of trees at their left. "It was a shot fired over there; a revolver I should say. Wait a second, Sanders, until I see what has happened."

It was largely curiosity which led him to leave the car. The sound of either a rifle or a shotgun in that lonely spot would have been instantly dismissed as natural enough, but a pistol was different. That was no place for such a weapon. It somehow had a grimly sinister sound.

Determined to learn exactly what had happened, West pressed his passage forward through the vines of the fence, and emerged into the field beyond. A half dozen yards and he found the clover trampled, as though a man had passed that way. The trail led into a shallow depression, past a rather large boulder, near which the trampling of the grass was even more plainly revealed, as though the stranger had remained here for some time, and even waited himself, and then, abruptly ended a few yards away. Obviously the fellow had turned back at this point and retraced his steps.

West, now thoroughly puzzled and already convinced that some mystery hovered over the place, began to circle through the untrampled clover, but without any defined purpose. All at once, at the lower end of the gully he came, unexpectedly, upon another trail, this one well marked, apparently frequently used, which led straight across the field, and terminated at a small gate leading through the wire fence. Evidently here was a short cut to the road, well known to the servants on the estate, and possibly others. The discovery, however, told nothing further than this, and contenting himself with another glance about the unchanged field of rustling clover, West proceeded along the course of the path, intending to thus rejoin the automobile, waiting his return behind the trees.

Within a few steps of the gate, which was closed, he came to a sudden, horrified pause, staring ahead at a strange something huddled in the path. It was a shapeless thing, bearing no resemblance to a human being, until he advanced closer; then he recognized the form of a man, curled up as a dog sleeps, face down, hidden by his arm, and limbs drawn up, as if in a sudden spasm of agony. A hat was in the path beyond, where it had fallen, and a revolver lay glittering in the sunlight a few feet away. There was nothing familiar about either figure or clothing, yet unquestionably there lay the body of a suicide. The single shot they had heard, the tell-tale revolver close to the dead man's hand, were clear evidence of what had occurred.

The unexpectedness of this discovery, the peculiar position of the dead man, the loneliness of that deserted field in which he lay, shocked West and, for a moment left him strangely hesitant. Who was the man? What could have led up to the pitiful tragedy? Yet he advanced step by step nearer to the hideous object in the path. The man had been shot directly behind the right ear, killed instantly, no doubt, as the deadly bullet crashed through the brain. West lifted the arm which concealed the face, already shrinking from the suspicion which had begun to assail him. Then he knew who the dead man was—Percival Coolidge.

West stood guard beside the body until servants came and bore it to the house, but made no effort to follow. Instead he gave his address to Sexton, and continued his journey into the city. After what had passed between them he had no desire to again encounter Miss Natalie; and under these circumstances, actually shrank from meeting her. Just what this man's death might mean to the girl he could not safely conjecture, yet deep down in his own heart, he felt convinced that this act of self-destruction would later prove to be a confession of guilt. Yet, be that as it may, he was already definitely ruled out of the matter. Not unless she personally sent for him could he ever venture to go to her again in any capacity. To his mind this decision was final.

He was called for the inquest and gave his testimony. The hearing was brief, and the facts ascertained so clear there remained no doubt in the minds of any one but what this was a case of suicide. No particular attempt was made to probe into the cause, the personal affairs of the dead man being left for later investigation. West saw Natalie at the inquest for the very few moments she was upon the stand, but their eyes did not meet, nor did the girl give any evidence of recognition. Somehow the impression the young woman left upon him in these few moments was not a pleasant one. He could not clearly analyze this result, yet she was either acting a part to conceal her true emotions, or else she was really indifferent.

It was not until the following day that reason began to reassert itself, and he succeeded in marshaling the facts of the case more clearly in his own mind. He even began to doubt and question his own testimony, yet, before he reached any real conclusion, one of the club servants approached his chair.

"Captain West, there is a man out here asking to see you."

"A man! Where?"

"I had him wait in the anteroom, sir."

"Very well, Mapes."

It was Sexton, twirling his hat nervously in his hands, and still standing irresolutely in the middle of the floor. At sight of West he took a hasty step forward, eager to explain the cause of his presence.

"You'll pardon me, sir," he burst forth in apology, "But I must see you, sir."

"That's quite all right, Sexton. Let's step in here where we can talk quietly."

He pointed the way into a private card room, closing the door behind his visitor.

"Take the seat over there, Sexton. You came in to see me from Fairlawn?"

"No, sir, I didn't. The fact is, I'm not out there any longer."

"Not there! What do you mean?"

"I've been discharged, sir, with two other servants, since the funeral yesterday."

"Discharged! By whom? Not Miss Natalie, surely?"

"Yes, sir. She didn't give no reason; just said we were not wanted any longer. That's one reason why I came here to see you, sir."

"But I hardly know how I can be of help. I have no house of my own, and—well, the truth of the matter is, Sexton, just at present I am not on very good terms with the young lady myself."

"I know that, sir," more confidently, "and it isn't a position I am seeking, at all. I have quite a tidy bit of money laid away, and could get plenty of work. That's not the point, sir. Why should Miss Natalie tell me to go like that? It isn't a bit like her, sir; she ain't seemed natural at all lately, and I tell you there's something wrong goin' on out there. I'm sure of that, sir."

"Sure of what?"

"Well, for one thing, it's my opinion that Percival Coolidge never killed himself, sir."

West sat up stiffly, as though struck a blow. These words startled him; drove his own mind into sudden activity.

"What makes you think that, Sexton?" he questioned slowly.

"Well, there's more than one thing," as though glad to have made the plunge, and anxious to justify himself. "But first of all that wasn't his revolver they found lying beside him. He always had one in his valise, an' it's there now, or was when I looked to see."

"You didn't tell that to the coroner."

"No, sir; he never put me on the stand. Besides I didn't know about it then. Did you notice where he was shot, sir?"

"Behind the right ear; the wound was plainly visible."

"Not very easy for a man to do himself, sir."

"No, but possible, nevertheless. The coroner was satisfied on that point."

"Yes, sir, but the coroner overlooked one thing, sir. He was sure it was a suicide case, and wanted to get done with it in a hurry. I and Simmons, sir, washed the body to get it ready for burial, an' I combed the hair down over the bullet wound. There wasn't no powder marks on the skin, an' not a hair was singed, sir. That's what makes me say he never killed himself."

West sat silent and motionless, looking straight at the man opposite, endeavoring to decide on a course of action. Some way in the depth of his earnestness, Sexton no longer appeared a servant. He was a man, voicing a man's heart. West realized the change instinctively; here was an intelligent loyal fellow, to be met frankly, and for the time being, at least, on the ground of equality. It would be useless to try to either mislead, or deceive.

"Sexton," he began finally, "this is a pretty serious charge you make, my man, but since I have been thinking things over, I confess some suspicious circumstances have arisen in my own mind. Of course I was not aware of these facts you have just related, but they fit in nicely with some observations of my own. The truth is," he confessed frankly, "I did not tell all I knew to the coroner's jury. I meant to do so, but the right questions were not asked me, and certain details slipped my memory until too late. Do you recall a boulder of rock out in that clover field?"

"Yes, sir, to the right of the path; it is mostly hidden now by the growth."

"Entirely concealed, a few yards away. Well, when I crawled through the fence after hearing that shot fired I saw nothing, and heard nothing. I had advanced into the field several rods when I came upon the trail of some one leading directly north. It was not a path; merely evidence that a single person had passed that way. I followed, and came to this boulder. Here there was every proof to me that the previous party had waited for some time, seated and lying on the ground under protection of the stone. The occupancy was a recent one. Then evidently, whoever it was, had advanced to the right in the general direction of the gate through the fence, near where Coolidge's body was found. The marks of advance ended on a little rise, some ten yards from the boulder, where the fellow apparently turned about and retraced his steps."

"How far was that from the gate into the road, sir?" Sexton asked breathlessly.

"Within easy shooting distance for a revolver of that calibre, I should say. Any good marksman could have rung the bell."

"And you saw no one?"

"No; not a sign; the fact is I failed at the time to put two and two together. The thought of a possible murder never occurred to me."

"You think it was murder then, sir?"

"Yes, I do," replied West gravely. "It has all the marks, but who committed the crime? What was the motive? It will never do for us to make such a charge, after the coroner's verdict, without positive proof."

"No, sir."

"And you know of nothing which might clear this up?"

"No, sir; I've been with the Coolidges sir, ever since Miss Natalie

"You Think It Was Murder, Then, Sir?"

was a little girl, and I ain't heard of any trouble that ought to end in murder, sir."

"How old was Miss Coolidge when her father died?"

"She must have been seventeen, sir."

"And since then Percival Coolidge had full charge of the estate?"

"Practically, yes, sir; there was another trustee, but he died; and then, as I understand, Miss Natalie had some funds of her own."

West took a cigar from his pocket, and lit it. Although not altogether clear in his own mind, he had begun to see light.

CHAPTER VII

Against a Stone Wall.

Was this discovery anything to him? What difference could it make whether Percival Coolidge had died by his own hand, or been treacherously shot from ambush? How would it benefit Natalie Coolidge to have the truth revealed? And, if it would benefit her, why should he devote his time and labor to such an effort? She had cast him off, thrown him aside; her affairs had no further interest for him. Let her lawyer take care of them. These were West's first thoughts.

All true, yet this state of mind brought no satisfaction. He was interested; he could not escape his first impressions of the girl, or drive from him a desire to serve her, whether she wished it, or not. She might, indeed, be in equal danger from an assassin. He could not determine this until he learned the cause of the slaying of Percival. Then, on the other hand, suppose some one else's suspicions were also aroused. Who would they naturally look to as guilty of this horrible crime? There was but one answer—Natalie Coolidge. She was seemingly the only person to directly benefit by his death. All these considerations urged him on, overcame his doubt and indecision. Then he desired to learn the truth himself. His eyes rested on Sexton's anxious face.

"I've been thinking it over," he admitted quietly, "and I guess it is up to you and me to find out what this means."

"Yes, sir," hesitatingly. "You—you don't think it was Miss Natalie, sir?"

"No, I do not, Sexton. I have my own reasons for saying that. Yet naturally she is the one to be first suspected. Do you know anything?"

"Only that I am sure she was in the garden, sir, when the shot was fired. I saw her there just after you drove away."

"That is conclusive then, so far as her personal actions are concerned."

"Rather a wild guess, but it will give us something to do. Are you game, Sexton?"

BEAUTIFUL NEW LINGERIE;

KNITTED WEAR FOR TOTS

NOW is the time of year when annual sales of underwear are in progress and the discriminating advertiser, who recently described this merchandise as "beautiful and delicate, luxurious and practical," selected just the right words. Style has become such an important factor in lingerie that it is only salable when it is beautiful. Fabrics used for it, in cotton or silk, are delicate and at the same time very durable; color is an important item that adds, with dainty trimmings and decorations, to that luxurious quality that women adore in all their apparel.

Cotton fabrics divide favor with those of silk and both are liked in light colors. Just now light pink, peach, or "honeydew," pink shades approaching coral, and orchid are in demand. Crepe de chine, crepe-satin, and even the fragile-looking georgette crepe are employed in simple styles. In crepe-satin, trimmings of self material, made of narrow folds in lattice or other open-work borders, are featured, but there are many lace trimmed models. French triple voile, in light colors and white, adorned with lace and handwrought needle work, is acknowledged to be as beautiful as silk.

The lovely nightdress pictured reveals a return to sleeves in the new styles. Lace and Swiss embroidery make the yoke and cap-sleeves, the body is of crepe de chine, but batiste, voile or dimity might be used.

Pajamas rival gowns, and are especially liked by the younger girls. Cotton pongee, cotton crepe, dimity and colored striped fabrics are in demand for them, with colored embroidery and band trimming in contrasting color, the favored decorative features. The coats are made in the slip-over style with kimono or set-in sleeves and there are varied neck-lines. Trousers are wide and run on tape at the waist line.

The attractiveness and the comfort-giving qualities of knitted outerwear appeals even unto the "seven ages of man." It now is an accepted fact that no wardrobe is complete without its quota of things knitted. We grownups have only recently appreciated knitted art in dress.

Today, more than ever, designers are giving attention to the creation of knitted clothing for infants and children of all ages. In the specialty departments one finds cunning sweater sets, bootees, clever little house robes of camel's hair, crochet and knit hats, leggings, mittens, four-piece outfits which wrap the baby in "comfy" wool from head to foot.

Great thought and care is being exercised in the producing of infant knitted coatees and sweaters. One reason the knitted sacque, sweater and coat (some are also hand crocheted) are in such high favor is that they can be taken on or off with each change of temperature, thus proving first aid to mother's program of protecting her little one's health. Most mothers love to see their children in dainty lingerie frocks. There is no risk when a delectable knit sweater coat is at hand, such as the infant's model to the left.

It is lovely in pink and white with trimmings bordered with stitched rose silk. There are two sets of woolen buttons with silk loops.

Infant's pull-on sweaters are something new. The one in the picture is a charming model done in basket stitch. It has what is termed, the "turtle neck," with collar and wrists of pink on white.

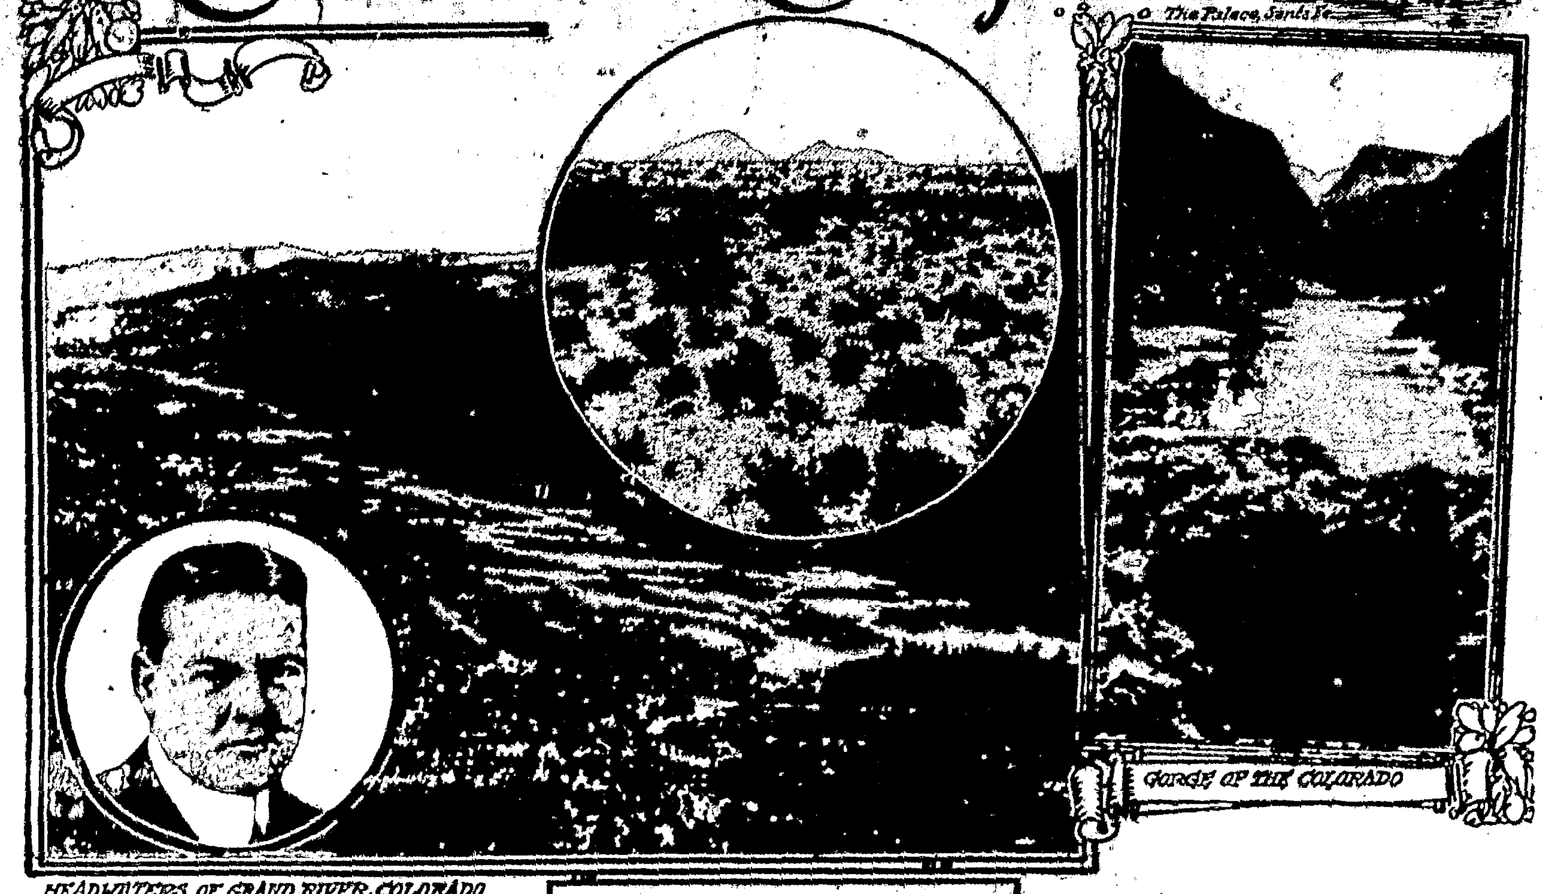
Seven States Sign Colorado Compact



HEADWATERS OF GRAND RIVER, COLORADO

SEVEN sovereign states of the Union—Arizona, California, Colorado, Nevada, New Mexico, Utah and Wyoming—have met in the historic Palace of the Governors in Santa Fe, have come to an amicable conclusion regarding the much vexed question of the control, disposition and use of the waters of the Colorado river and have signed a compact which is subject to ratification by the legislature of each of the seven signatory states and by congress. In so doing these seven states of the Colorado River basin have—

Settled by treaty instead of by resort to the United States Supreme court fundamental and vitally important interstate rights;

Settled at small expense within 11 months after the appointment of the commission a multitude of disputes that threatened years of litigation blocking the development of the Colorado basin;

Set a precedent in American history.

Taken the first step toward the creation of an empire within an empire, the development of which fires the imagination and will affect individual living from coast to coast.

The headwaters of the Colorado river, as the map shows, are in Wyoming just south of Yellowstone National park, and in northwestern Colorado. Water flowing from Milner pass in the Rocky Mountain National park falls 10,759 feet on its course to the sea. The Green and the Grand come together in Utah to form the Colorado. The Colorado in Arizona flows through Grand Canyon National park. It empties into the Gulf of California in Mexico. It is nearly 2,000 miles in length and more than a score of rivers contribute their waters. It irrigates and annually menaces with floods the Imperial and Palo Verde valleys in California and the Yuma valley in Arizona. Its basin totals 242,000 square miles of American territory.

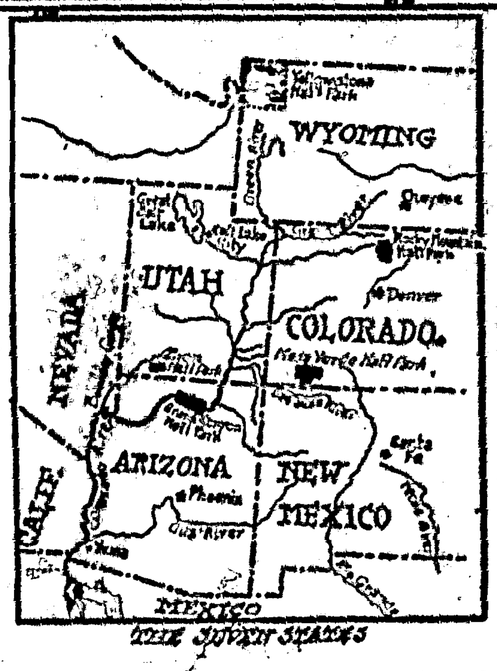
It is no exaggeration to say that the original contentions of the seven states were so far apart that an agreement seemed hopeless. But Herbert Hoover, secretary of commerce, appointed by President Harding as the representative of the United States, was there as chairman of the commission. Enough said! The compact has been signed by the representatives of the seven warring states and bears this: "Approved. Herbert Hoover."

Following is the official text of the compact, with the omission of certain technical details not necessary to a comprehensive understanding of the whole:

"The States of Arizona, California, Colorado, Nevada, New Mexico, Utah and Wyoming having resolved to enter into a compact under the act of the congress of the United States of America approved August 19, 1921 (42 Stat. L., p. 171), and the acts of the legislatures of the said states, have through their governors, appointed as their commissioners W. S. Norviel, for the State of Arizona; W. F. McClure, for the State of California; Delph E. Carpenter, for the State of Colorado; J. G. Scrugham, for the State of Nevada; Stephen B. Davis, Jr., for the State of New Mexico; R. E. Caldwell, for the State of Utah; Frank C. Emerson, for the State of Wyoming, who after negotiations participated in by Herbert Hoover, appointed by the President as the representative of the United States of America, have agreed upon the following articles:

"Article I. The major purposes of this compact are to provide for equitable division and apportionment of the use of the waters of the Colorado river system, to establish the relative importance of different beneficial uses of water, to promote interstate comity, to remove causes of present and future controversies, and to secure the expeditious agricultural and industrial development of the Colorado River basin, the storage of its waters, and the protection of life and property from floods. To these ends the Colorado River basin is divided into two basins, and an apportionment of the use of part of the water of the Colorado river system is made to each of them with the provision that further equitable apportionments may be made.

"Art. II. As used in this compact: (A) The term 'Colorado River system' means that portion of the Colorado river and its tributaries within the United States of America. (B) The term 'Colorado River basin' means all of the drainage area of the Colorado River system and all other territory within the United States of America to which the waters of the Colorado River system shall be beneficially applied. (C) The term 'States of the upper division' means the States of Colorado, New Mexico, Utah and Wyoming. (D) The term 'States of the lower division' means the States of Arizona, California and Nevada. (E) The term 'Lee Ferry' means a point in the main stream of the Colorado river one mile below the mouth of the Paria river (extreme southeast corner of Utah). (F) The term 'upper basin' means those parts of the States of Arizona, Colorado, New Mexico, Utah and Wyoming within and from which waters naturally drain into the Colorado River system above Lee Ferry and also all parts of said states located without the drainage area of the Colorado River system which are now or shall hereafter be beneficially served by waters diverted from the system above Lee Ferry. (G) The term 'lower basin' means those parts of the States of Arizona, California, Nevada, New Mexico and Utah within and from which waters naturally drain into the Colorado River system below Lee Ferry, and also all parts of said states located without the drainage area of the Colorado River system, which are now or shall hereafter be beneficially served by waters diverted from the system below Lee Ferry. (H) The term 'domestic use' shall include the use of water for household, stock, municipal, mining, milling, industrial, and other like purposes but shall exclude the generation of electrical power.



"Art. III. (A) There is hereby apportioned from the Colorado River system in perpetuity to the upper basin and to the lower basin, respectively, the exclusive beneficial consumptive use of 7,500,000 acre-feet of water per annum, which shall include all water necessary for the supply of any rights which may now exist. (B) In addition to the apportionment in paragraph (A) the lower basin is hereby given the right to increase its beneficial consumptive use of such waters by 1,000,000 acre-feet per annum. (C) If, as a matter of international comity, the United States of America shall hereafter recognize in the United States or Mexico any right to use of any waters of the Colorado River system, such waters shall be supplied first from the waters which are surplus over and above the aggregate of the quantities specified in paragraphs (A) and (B), and if such surplus shall prove insufficient for this purpose, then the burden of such deficiency shall be equally borne by the upper basin and the lower basin, and whenever necessary the states of the upper division shall deliver at Lee Ferry water to supply one-half of the deficiency so recognized in addition to that provided in paragraph (D). (D) The states of the upper division will not cause the flow of the river at Lee Ferry to be depleted below an aggregate of 75,000,000 acre-feet for any period of 10 consecutive years reckoned in continuing progressive series beginning with the first day of October next succeeding the ratification of this compact. (E) The states of the upper division shall not withhold water, and the states of the lower division shall not require the delivery of water which cannot reasonably be applied to domestic and agricultural uses. (F) Further equitable apportionment of the beneficial uses of the waters of the Colorado River system unapportioned by paragraphs (A), (B), and (C) may be made in the manner provided in paragraph (G) at any time after October 1, 1963, if and when either basin shall have reached its total beneficial consumptive use as set out in paragraphs (A) and (B). (G is omitted).

"Art. IV. (A) Inasmuch as the Colorado river has ceased to be navigable for commerce and reservation of its waters for navigation would seriously limit the development of its basin, the use of its waters for purposes of navigation shall be subservient to the uses of such waters for domestic, agricultural and power purposes. If the congress shall not consent to this paragraph, the other provisions of this compact shall nevertheless remain binding. (B) Subject to the provisions of this compact, water of the Colorado River system may be impounded and used for the generation of electrical power, but such impounding and use shall be subservient to the use and consumption of such water for agricultural and domestic purposes and shall not interfere with or prevent use for such dominant purposes. (C) The provisions of this article shall not apply to or interefere with the regulation and control by any state within its boundaries of the appropriation, use, and distribution of water.

* * * * * * *

"Art. VI. Should any claim or controversy arise between any two or more of the signatory states: (A) with respect to the waters of the Colorado River system not covered by the terms of this compact. (B) Over the meaning or performance of any of the terms of this compact. (C) As to the allegation of the burdens incident to the performance of any article of this compact or delivery of waters as herein provided. (D) As to the construction or operation of works within the Colorado River basin to be situated in two or more states or to be constructed in one state for the benefit of another state; or (E) as to the diversion of water in one state for the benefit of another state. The governors of the states affected, upon the request of one of them, shall forthwith appoint commissioners with power to consider and adjust such claim or controversy, subject to ratification by the legislatures of the states so affected.

"Nothing herein contained shall prevent the adjustment of any such claim or controversy by any present method or direct future legislative action of the interested states.

"Art. VII. Nothing in this compact shall be construed as affecting the obligations of the United States of America to Indian tribes.

"Art. VIII. Present perfected rights to the beneficial use of waters of the Colorado River system are unimpaired by this compact. Whenever storage capacity of 5,000,000 acre-feet shall have been provided on the main Colorado river within or for the benefit of the lower basin then claims of such rights, if any, by appropriators or users of water in the lower basin against appropriators or users of water in the upper basin shall attach to and be satisfied from water that may be stored not in conflict with Article III. All other rights to beneficial use of waters of the Colorado River system shall be satisfied solely from the water apportioned to that basin in which they are situated.

"Art. IX. Nothing in this compact shall be construed to limit or prevent any state from instituting or maintaining any action or proceeding, legal or equitable, for the protection of any right under this compact or the enforcement of any of its provisions.

"Art. X. This compact may be terminated at any time by the unanimous agreement of the signatory states. In the event of such termination all rights established under it shall continue unimpaired.

"Art. XI. This compact shall become binding and obligatory when it shall have been approved by the legislature of each of the signatory states and by the congress of the United States."

"The big thing about the Colorado river compact," says Secretary Hoover, "is that it breaks the blockade on development of the whole river. It allows us all to go ahead with river development and with flood protection to the Imperial and Yuma valleys.

"The first step is to settle the controversy between the upper and lower districts of the Colorado basin. There can be no development until that is settled. Ratification by the states of the pact agreed upon by the Colorado River commission will speedily accomplish this. If the matter is forced into the Supreme court it may require years.

"Yet, behind all the precise and commonplace language of this compact lies the greatness and romance of the West, the building of a million more homes out under the blue sky in security and good will."

While the commission made no recommendation concerning the site of the dam, Mr. Hoover said he favored its construction at or near Boulder canyon. This is below the Grand canyon and close to the line between Arizona and Nevada.

The annual flow of the Colorado is about 20,000,000 acre-feet. One-third of this is now used.

MOBS CRY "DOWN WITH FRANCE"

BERLIN CITIZENS ADOPT RESOLUTIONS OF PROTEST AGAINST INVASION

HOLD PROTEST MEET

COAL MINE OPERATORS TO CONTINUE WORK IF PARIS PAYS BILL.

Berlin.—Great demonstrations of protest against the French occupation of the Ruhr took place here. There were no untoward incidents.

There weres triking displays of patriotic fervor.

The principal meeting called by the non-Socialist parties was held on the Koenigsplatz, opposite the reichstag. An immense crowd assembled about the great monument to "Victory," erected after the Franco-Prussian war. Flags were hal-masted on government buildings and for the first time since the republic was established the Republican colors were prominently displayed at many of the fashionable hotels.

The crowd was composed of middle-class people. The speeches were acclaimed with proletarian enthusiasm. Cries of "Down With France" were shouted and resolutions of protest against the French occupation were carried by acclamation.

The French are making desperate efforts to win over the mine workers in the Ruhr, says a special dispatch to Vorwaerts, the Socialist organ.

The same conciliatory attitude, however, is not being shown the mine operators and mine owners, the correspondent of Vorwaerts declares.

Duesseldorf.—Bochum, the great center of the Stinnes industries, will be occupied a few days hence, the French have decided, unless the German government undergoes a change of heart and abandons its policy of interference and opposition, which the French consider it has been following for the past week.

Concerning coal deliveries, which the Ruhr industrialists have agreed to resume, France undertakes to pay the cost of the labor and the salaries of the employes and miners; only the owners must look to Berlin for other than overhead expenses.

The French are prepared to assist the owners in collecting from Berlin to the extent of occupation of the Bochum region and also further territory eastward later, should Germany fail to come to terms. They will pay the miners' salaries from the proceeds of the tax on coal which the French have decided to collect for themselves and take other necessary measures.

Paris.—The reparations commission has received a note from the German government signifying its intention to suspend payments of money and in kind because of the occupation of the Ruhr, which it says it considers a violation of the Versailles treaty.

Hughes to Visit South America.

Washington.—Secretary Hughes expects to visit South America at the time of the Pan-American conference in March at Santiago, but will not serve as one of the delegates. While Secretary Hughes feels unable to remain away from this country long enough to serve as delegate to the conference, it was said today at the state department, he plans to visit other South American cities, including Buenos Aires, Argentine, Montevideo, Uruguay and Lima, Peru.

Socialists Back Wisconsin Governor.

Madison, Wis.—Gov. John G. Blaine won control of the legislature with the aid of three Socialist senators, who cast their votes with the executive's followers. The Socialists created a sensation with a statement that they took this action, as they looked upon the legislative program of the administration as a step forward to the ultimate Socialistic system they advocate.

Body of Bandit Leader Found.

Denver.—In a rented garage in fashionable Capitol Hill, the famous Buick, bearing 1922 Colorado license No. 81-000, that carried the gang of desperadoes who held up and robbed the Federal Reserve Bank truck in front of the Denver mint of $200,000 and killed Charles T. Linton, bank guard, on the morning of Dec. 18, and the frozen body of a man were found by the Denver police, acting on a tip from a man who had peered into the garage and discerned the license number on the car. The car and the body of the man, which has not been identified, apparently had been in the garage since the day of the robbery, according to the belief of the police.

Search Continued for Missing Aviators

San Diego, Calif.—Determination of the government to lift, if possible, the veil of mystery surrounding the disappearance of Col. Francis Marshall and Lieut. Charles Webber, is seen in orders sent here. The two officers left Dec. 7 in an airplane from Rockwell field here for Fort Huachuca, Ariz., and have not been heard from definitely since. The orders direct Maj. Theodore MacAuley to head a party of army officers enlisted men in a search for the missing officers.

172 Indians Sentenced to Death.

London.—Advices from Lucknow stated that the death sentence has been imposed on 172 Indians accused of murder and arson as a result of the Bolsheviki-operationist rioting at Chauri-Chaura last February. Seven of the 228 persons who were originally held on the charges died while awaiting trial. Two others received two-year prison terms, forty-seven were acquitted.

Big Tim Murphy Ordered to Prison.

Chicago.—Big Tim Murphy, picturesque labor leader, one time state legislator and formerly private secretary to Congressman McDermott, is in the shadow of Leavenworth penitentiary with his years of immunity from imprisonment apparently at an end. The Circuit Court of Appeals has issued commitment papers for Murphy, who is under sentence of four years and a $20,000 fine for his part in the $350,000 Dearborn station mail robbery. The United States marshal's office notified Murphy's attorney to tell him to surrender.

Washington.—American soldiers who have married German girls and who have been ordered to return home from the Rhineland will be able to bring their wives with them, although the women are not, under the new law, citizens of the United States until they have taken out naturalization papers. The more or less secret marriages to German girls of about 200 American soldiers of the 1,000 remaining there are giving the army authorities concern in connection with the order for the troops to return home.

MISS DUCK'S VISIT

MISS DUCKY DUCK had lived in a city park all her life, but one day she was sick and was taken to the country and put in a barnyard, where there were many other ducks and many things that Miss Ducky Duck had never seen or heard about.

To be sure there was a pond near the barnyard but it was not so deep or as large as the one in the city park, and Miss Ducky never tired of telling the country ducks about what she had left behind.

She could not get used to the other animals. "We never had such creatures where I came from," she would say, turning her head away from the pig pen with an air of disgust, and Mr. Dog she did not like at all. She said he was "so noisy, always poking about to see what is going on."

One day he came to the edge of the pond to get a drink of water when Miss Ducky was going for a swim. "It seems to me, Mr. Dog, that you might find some other place to drink than this little pond. There is hardly water enough now for me to take a good plunge. I really cannot see of what use you are around here. Why don't you stay in the house?"

Mr. Dog was good-natured. He kept on lapping the water and wagged his tail, but as Miss Ducky swam away he remarked to Mr. Rooster, who was passing, "That new duck has a great deal to learn."

Of course, Miss Ducky Duck had never seen Mr. Fox, though there were several that lived in a big cage in the park where she came from, but so far away she knew nothing about them, so one day while out swimming, when she came near the bank where Mr. Fox was lying in wait under some bushes, she thought it was another Mr. Dog.

"Oh, dear," she sighed, "can't I go anywhere without seeing one of you tiresome creatures?—though I must say that you are better looking than the Mr. Dog at the barnyard."

Mr. Fox had never met a city duck before and he was surprised enough that she did not swim away when she saw him, but when she spoke about Mr. Dog he knew she did not know who he was.

"The Mr. Dog at the barnyard is only distantly related to our family. Are you a stranger around these parts?"

"Yes, indeed. I came here from the city park for my health," replied Miss Ducky Duck. "I am not used to rude country ways and I shall return very soon to my city home."

"I wouldn't be too sure of that," remarked Mr. Fox.

"What did you say?" asked Miss Ducky.

"I said you might like the country well enough to remain here," fibbed Mr. Fox quickly. "But of course you have not seen this side of the pond. Wouldn't you like to take a stroll? I am sure the walk through the woods will be good for you." Then thinking he did not wish to have a sick duck for his dinner, Mr. Fox asked: "What is the matter with you?"

"Oh, nothing, but that I needed a change. I did not eat well," replied Miss Ducky.

"Oh, well, this walk will be just the thing then," answered Mr. Fox. "You will never have that trouble again."

And if Mr. Dog had not come running through the woods at that minute Miss Ducky would not have had that trouble again, just as Mr. Fox promised, for he was ready to spring upon her as she waddled out of the water.

Miss Ducky swam back to the barnyard, where she told the other ducks how rude Mr. Dog had been to a very polite Mr. Dog she met on the other side of the pond, but when she learned who he really was and how Mr. Dog had saved her life, Miss Ducky Duck began to respect Mr. Dog and never felt safe unless he was around.

Carol Dempster

Winsome Carol Dempster, the "movie" star, was born 18 years ago in Michigan. Her father, owner of a large fruit ranch in California, took her to that state when she was only three. At twelve she danced for a prominent motion picture producer and her pantomimic ability attracted attention; when she was sixteen she was asked to return to take up screen work. Meanwhile she became a solo dancer. She has appeared in numerous popular productions.

Important to All Women Readers of This Paper

Thousands upon thousands of women have kidney or bladder trouble and never suspect it.

Women's complaints often prove to be nothing else but kidney trouble, or the result of kidney or bladder disease.

If the kidneys are not in a healthy condition, they may cause the other organs to become diseased.

You may suffer pain in the back, headache and loss of ambition.

Poor health makes you nervous, irritable and maybe despondent; it makes any one so.

But hundreds of women claim that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, by restoring health to the kidneys, proved to be just the remedy needed to overcome such conditions.

Many send for a sample bottle to see what Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder medicine, will do for them. By enclosing ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., you may receive sample size bottle by parcel post. You can purchase medium and large size bottles at all drug stores.—Advertisement.

FREEDOM FROM LAXATIVES

Discovery by Scientists Has Replaced Them.

Pills and salts give temporary relief from constipation only at the expense of permanent injury, says an eminent medical authority.

Science has found a newer, better way—a means as simple as Nature itself.

In perfect health a natural lubricant keeps the food waste soft and moving. But when constipation exists this natural lubricant is not sufficient. Medical authorities have found that the gentle lubricating action of Nujol most closely resembles that of Nature's own lubricant. As Nujol is not a laxative it cannot gripe. It is in no sense a medicine. And like pure water it is harmless and pleasant.

Nujol is prescribed by physicians; used in leading hospitals. Get a bottle from your druggist today.—Advertisement.

I have two sons of high school age who have always made our home a gathering place for their chums. I have become more or less interested in all boys, their problems and perplexities.

Last summer a stranger came among them. After he had been coming to our house a few weeks, he sat down in the porch swing with me one night and poured out his troubles. I advised him as well as I could just as I would have done to one of my own sons.

He said: "I wish my mother understood things as you do!"

SOCIAL CALLS

The old order changeth, yielding place to new.—Tennyson.

AFTER all it is usage that makes our code of manners.

No matter what may seem to be the most courteous thing to do, and no matter what the authorities on etiquette may write and preach, if well-bred people don't actually do those things then they are not essential to good manners. A year ago if any one had asked me whether it was necessary for a busy man to make a call as a mark of courtesy after going to dinner at a friend's house I would have said emphatically, "Yes." Dinner calls had for a good many years been pointed out as really essential marks of respect. The idea was that if you could find time to enjoy a good dinner at a friend's house you could likewise find time to pay a call.

But there are so many people who never do pay dinner calls that it is not fair to make these sweeping statements. In what we know as "formal" society this is still the rule, but really the majority of even well-bred folk do not have time to conform to these strict standards. In many communities married folk have few opportunities for going out together in the evening. A congenial set of such folk will occasionally meet for a dinner party or evening of entertainment at each other's houses. If there are children at home and no maid or a maid who takes it for granted that her evenings are her own, this means that some one must be got to "hold the fort" while the mother and father are away. With such people, though the women of the circle managed to call occasionally in the afternoon, there is a sort of their agreement that party calls will not be expected from the men because the only time they can pay these is in the evening, and when they do go out in the evening they like to have some more substantial diversion than paying calls.

So also it happens that in large cities where distances are great the busy business man takes a dislike to going to a friend's house when that friend may not be at home to receive his call. It means sometimes an hour's trip with a chance of only leaving a card at the end. And, of course, no one properly telephones ahead to warn a hostess of a call.

The newcomer, however, always makes a better impression if he does pay the party call and it should be within ten days of the courtesy entertainment for which it is paid. Moreover, he should pay it whether or not he has attended. If he has received an actual stated invitation for a definite entertainment then the call is due, but if the invitation has been verbal and only indefinite then he need not consider it as requiring a call.

"What's in a Name?"

By MILDRED MARSHALL

FACTS about your name; it's history; meaning; whence it was derived; significance; your lucky day and lucky jewel

EUGENIA

BORN to queenly honors is she who bears the name of Eugenia. Its origin is in the Greek language where it is derived from a word meaning well-born. Its modern adaptation by the French into Eugenie is famous throughout the world since it is borne by one of the most illustrious women of history, the forcier Empress Eugenie. Its popularity in France is enormous and its Anglicized version, Eugenia, has great vogue in England and America.

Its history dates back from Eutropius, a very old Greek writer, but Eugenias was the name most popular in classical times. It was carried on as Eugenius by the Romans. St. Eugenius was a confessor and another Eugenius was Bishop of Toledo in 646. Indeed, it has always been a favorite as a masculine name and has been borne by men of power and prominence. Eugenio was the name of that high-spirited Savoy called "le petit Abbe du Rot," who was later the Prince Eugene, dear to England and Austria, and terrible to France and Turkey, yet, curious to relate, for that he was, his name enjoys greater popularity in France than in his native country.

The first and only Eugenia that history records before the birth of the great Eugenie, was a virgin Roman martyr, about whom there is very little known. The Empress Eugenie's history is too well known to need recalling. Her poignant grief over the loss of Alsace and Lorraine has made her one of the world's tragic figures. It was she who said that when she was dead, if her heart could be removed from her body, the names of those two beloved provinces would be found engraved there.

Eugenia's talismanic stone is that regal jewel, the diamond, which denotes victory over enemies, when it is dreamed of. Worn by Eugenia it is an antidote from poison, since the stone itself was believed by old superstition to be a deadly poison. The stone also affords protection from plague and set forth in verse is its prophecy:

The Evil Eye shall have no power to harm
Him that shall wear the diamond as a charm;
No monarch shall attempt to thwart his will,
And e'en the gods his wishes shall fulfill.

Saturday is Eugenia's lucky day and 1 her lucky number. The daisy, signifying innocence, is her flower.

WOOL INSTEAD OF FEATHERS

Freak Duck Born on Long Island May Be Progenitor of New Breed.

Eastport, L. I.—"Fuzzy," the featherless duck, a white Pekin freak, bred by George Frey of the Sunnyside duck farm, is creating great excitement among breeders, who see a way to make a fortune if "Fuzzy's" tribe can be increased.

It costs 6 cents to pluck a duck. When a man has 20,000 ducks to prepare for market plucking runs into money

"Fuzzy" came along more or less by accident, but Mr. Frey is dreaming of the "edge" he would have if he could run a featherless duck farm.

"Fuzzy" came into the world queerly dressed. As he grew older his coat became queerer. Some say it is down, others think it is wool. At any rate, it is short, white and fuzzy. Hence the name.

"Fuzzy" will head a pen of breeders from which Mr. Frey expects eventually to produce ducks that will do away with the expense of hiring pluckers.

Jump Fool.

Talking about "getting work out of a husband," in a certain family there is a saying, "I wish you would do this while you are wet." A woman whose husband was very good about helping about the house had been imposed upon until it came to the last straw, when he was driven in from a hard day's work in the field in the rain.

When he reached the house his wife met him with, "While you are wet" do this, and "while you are wet" do that.

After she had kept him going for some time she ordered him to get a bucket of water "While he was wet."

He did, and when he came back with it he threw it on her and said: "Now you do something while you are wet."

HAMBONE'S MEDITATIONS

Copyright, 1923 by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

Russia's Christmas Comes Late.

In Russia Christmas occurs 13 days after our own. Perhaps one of the most interesting customs of the season is the Russian Christmas feast, for old and young alike, for which they dress themselves in various masquerading costumes and visit house after house, accepting the hospitality of their neighbors. The Christmas season is also notable for the fact that the young girls try to find out whether they will be married during the coming year or not. Some of them at twelve o'clock on Christmas Eve, secretly go out into the street and ask the first man they meet what his name is. Whatever name he gives will be that borne by their future husbands—such is the belief. Some of the girls are very much disappointed when the name is not a nice one, or when the man, as he will sometimes, calls himself Satan or something similar.

We Thank You

This issue of the Maverick marks the completion of the paper's second year. Next week we begin with "Volum 3 Number 1," as a date line.

When the Maverick press and equipment was first being set up in Corona in January 1921 it was pretty generally predicted among the citizens of the town that the paper might last three months. It did. That it has continued during the past two years was due partly to our "dammed if I'll quit" disposition but mainly to the loyal support of our advertisers and subscribers, who have almost unanimously been faithful to their home town paper.

Commendable Effort

The walls of Nick Russell's tannery are now conspicuously visible over across the railroad tracks, and they are growing a little in height each day, for Nick and his partners continue to work, regardless of the prediction of a few of the town croakers that the enterprise is doomed to be a failure. It may be. No small town enterprise can do otherthan fail without the cooperation and backing of the citizens in its immediate vicinity.

A tannery would be a real beneficial asset to Corona—and the boys are to be commended for their efforts toward establishing the plant here.
