All About Shorthand.

This is the title of a 33 page pamphlet of information, containing answers to all the questions an inquirer would be likely to ask about books, instruction, salaries of stenographers, how to secure positions, etc., etc. It will show what young men have done at home on farms and in workshops; how from the humblest beginnings the highest success has been reached by learning shorthand at private study, and while pursuing other occupations. The success of stenographers as compared with the success of young men in any other vocation in life, will be seen to be marvellous and encouraging. The author of this system was himself a farm boy and learned the art while following the plow. The information he gives in this pamphlet will be of interest and value to every young man or woman who wishes to make their own way. The pamphlet is mailed for 5 cents and postage is prepaid by the author. Address: D. L. SCOTT-BROWNE, 1000 Broadway, New York.

The rainy season is long in coming, or is it that the rain must "fall on the just and unjust" and that there are none of the just here.

The ancient news in the Republican, so kindly hit off by the Old Ala Eagle, was the result of an error in "making up" during our absence, by which some old plates were used by mistake. While so large a part of the Old Ala Eagle is made up of plates, its choicest literature being found in the columns printed from them, its editor might easily have guessed the cause of the blunder.

The New Mexican says: "The Santa Fe railroad has made a 1-cent fare for people who desire to attend the Territorial Fair to be held in Albuquerque during September next. The Santa Fe railroad manages to do the right thing at the right time very often."

There might be in the paper was to be mine. This arrangement has never been changed; Mr. Dolan has never asked nor received a dollar for the use of his property. When, in May last, he decided to make the paper Republican, he became editor and I remained publisher and in charge of the local columns. It is hard to understand how Mr. Ross, knowing the facts, could be so mistaken in his statements. It is possible that he may be afraid that Mr. Dolan may intend to run for some office that he wants for himself and that he is trying the "whipping out" process before the fight begins?

Mrs. A. L. MCGINNIS,
PUBLISHER REPUBLICAN.
Heaps of Fun in Hazing.

"I never read accounts in the newspapers of the pranks of college boys in 'hazing' the freshmen," said a white-haired, rosy-faced old New Yorker in the parlor of a big athletic club the other night in a Tribune Reporter, "but my mind reverts at once to a hazing scrap I got myself into in my salad days. Like all sophomores, I was particularly intolerant of freshmen—much, more so, of course, than the seniors. We had been strictly forbidden by the faculty to do any hazing at all, under penalty of expulsion, and so we could not get together more than half a dozen adventurous souls who were willing to take the risk in order to punish the freshmen properly for daring to live and presuming to come to college at all. We had to do the thing quietly, so, after all the lamps were out, we would steal from our rooms, meet in the corridor, and then make a descent on some lonely freshman and 'do him up' without any unnecessary fuss.

"We had operated successfully on two or three men, on one night, and were enjoying the sport thoroughly. The following night it became the turn of a long tanned, quiet, local man from Maine, who had little or nothing to say to any, and whose only care seemed to be to keep his hands and feet out of sight. We anticipated some rare sport with him, and I remembered now the haughty feeling with which I crept into his dark bed-chamber, at the head of our gang, after we had pried his door open with one good twist of a real burglar's jimmy."

"The other men had generally covered under their bed-clothes or arisen tremblingly in their night-shirts, and asked pitifully to be let alone. This Maine man jumped out of bed, however, as if glad to meet us. He said not a word, he made not a sound, as he moved about in the dark; but, oh my! how he did 'swat' us! I never before experienced such Finnish strength as that fellow seemed to have. We were not familiar with his room, and it seemed to be full of furniture, against which we stumbled, and over and under which he knuckled us in the darkness with the precision and force of a trip hammer. He seemed to have a cat's sight, and he 'flamed' us as we were so unexpected shot we got confused and lost our reckoning in trying to get out of that infernal room."

"The Maine fellow must have gone out, boys, and left a gorilla in his bed instead."

"That just then we heard that vicious freshman call out with a mocking laugh:

"Now go to bed, little men, and come again some other night, when you're rested. This hazing' heaps of fun."

"That we had decided that the sport was unmanly, anyway, and not the proper sort of thing for gentlemen to engage in."

A Flower Garden in a Barrel.
There is work, hard work, and plenty of it in a large well kept flower garden, and this same hard work prevents many a woman from having a garden, who, but for this drawback would revel in flowers. I saw one garden in a barrel. A small garden you think. I admit that it was small but it was beautiful. I will try and describe it; some one may get an idea that will help them to carry out some half formed plan.

Around the barrel and about six inches from the bottom and slightly apart was bored a row of inch holes and a half auger holes. The rows of holes were continued to within six inches of the top of the barrel, being so bored that they came diamant wine.
