The "sign of the times" are very encouraging for the success of the Democratic ticket this election—Territorial, District and County.

This act of Oct. 24, 1853, has been repealed by Congress, but until the red tape gets strung out from the general land office to the local land office, no more filings will be allowed. This is the situation and we've got to make the best of it.

They idea about Roswell becoming the future smelting point for the White Oaks country seems to tickle some of our people. There is no good reason why the idea should not come to a successful issue, however, and that, too, in the not very distant future.

The Pecos Valley needs cheap fuel and lumber, and a market for its farm products. These things the Pecos Valley Railway company can give us by building from Roswell into the White Oaks country. It is to be hoped that they will fully appreciate the situation.

If we had a special artist or could engage one for the occasion, we would like to picture Bro. Howe, of the Eddy Argus, feeling to the hills for safety when it was reported that the big dam had "broke loose." We don't censure him for getting scared, however. Editors, as a rule, are noted for their antipathy to water.

Smallpox is raging in Texas and is of a very malignant form. The larger cities are all quarantined and people have left by the thousands and are still leaving. The Texas papers are very reticent on the subject because this is the busiest part of the year on account of the various expositions being held all over the state.

At the territorial Democratic convention held in Silver City on the 30, Hon. Antonio Joseph was re-nominated for delegate to congress "with a perfect pandemonium of applause. Mr. Joseph has made the best delegate in congress New Mexico has ever had and we predict for him an unprecedented majority at the polls in November.

The Albuquerque Fair, which will be held from the 15th to the 25th of this month, promises to be the best exposition ever held in the territory, and we are sorry, indeed, that our remoteness and lack of railroad facilities precludes us from showing to the outside world what we can do, what we are doing, and what the Pecos Valley, the pride of all the west, is capable of producing, and its moorery hope that our Sept. 1, 1891, comes knocking at our doors, Chaves county, with all her wealth, will be enabled to send to the Albuquerque Fair, on the Pecos Valley Northern, the finest exhibit ever seen from any county in New Mexico.

The latest returns from the Arkansas state election, held Sept. 1, are to the effect that the fusion ticket, composed of the Farmers' Alliance and the Republicans, have been "moved under" by a regular Democratic majority of from thirty to forty thousand, showing a Democratic gain of twenty thousand over the election of 1888, wherein the same proportion of votes was secured by all the members of the fusion ticket and the members of the Farmers' Alliance are beginning to see the error of their ways—of permitting their grand and noble organization to be used as a political machine simply for the benefit of a few despotic politicians who wish to further the good of the order for the furtherance of their own selfish designs—and have waded back to their feet and have voted the straight Democratic ticket from governor down to justice.

THE ALLIANCE BANQUET

Long to be remembered as one of the most Pleasant Events in the History of the Pecos Valley.

The barbecue held last Saturday under the auspices of the Farmers' Alliance was a success in all respects. Fully five hundred people were present and all seemed to enjoy themselves.

The wagons carrying the little folks and the banner of the order from Roswell to the beautiful grounds at the Chisum ranch were tastefully decorated with the emblem of loyalty.

Shortly after our arrival at the grounds the members of the order formed in procession and marched in double file onto the platform in front of the speakers stand and our ladies and gentlemen sang that good old song "Where are the reapers" with a spirit which seemed to say that the reapers were at hand and appreciated.

After the song Lucius Dills took the stand and addressed the audience. Mr. D. succinctly set forth the principal causes which have brought about the various labor organizations in the United States and recommended an intelligent ballot as the only efficient means for rectifying the evils under which the working classes labor.

A. C. Royce, the first speaker, elaborately set forth the origin, aims and purposes of the National Farmers' Alliance. He laid the blame of the present status of the country alike to both the Republican and Democratic parties, and seemed to think that a third party was necessary in order for a right adjustment of affairs.

This closed the speeches on behalf of the alliance and shortly after dinner was announced.

When it comes to speaking your reporter can be snored under any night, but at the table he can hold his own with the best of them; and such a dinner as we had—a genuine feast. The meats were cooked as only an expert can prepare them, and our farmer women excelled themselves in the bread, cakes, pies and other delicacies. It was a feast that all partook of with undigulated relish.

Immediately following the feast G. A. Richardson, the Democratic candidate for territorial council, fired the first gun of the campaign. He gave us some of the good old Democratic talk that our fathers used to delight in. His platform is broad and comprehensive and he was attentively listened to.

P. F. Garrett, the independent candidate for sheriff of Chaves county, made his maiden speech and dwelt upon the necessity for earnest concentrated action for the permanent upbuilding of the Pecos Valley.

Wm. Fountain, in the absence and on behalf of his brother, O. C. Fountain the Democratic candidate for sheriff, replied to Mr. Garrett and made the humorous speech of the day.

F. Williams, the Democratic candidate for probate judge, placed himself squarely on the party platform "so long as there was a plank remaining."

After the speaking the dancing began and continued until the rain and darkness interfered, and the festivities closed. The chaos—darkness—it was like that unto Egypt. Everybody got "lost in the shuffle" for town, but most all got in about 10 o'clock with no serious mishaps. All those who came in before dark wore an "I told you so" expression for two days.

One joy-ride swim who was out with the divinity of his future home was overboard relating his tribulations to a confidential friend: "Confound it, I guess I had just as well throw up the sponge. Here I have been paying the devoted to her for the past two years and am no nearer the goal now than when I began. I have dreamed of her being in danger and I would come to the rescue—save her from imminent peril just in the nick of time and carry her off to a place of safety. I have built air castles after air castles with her as the central figure, and oh, how I have longed for some time to come when she should be in trouble and would have to look to me for protection, and I just watched the coming of that storm as a sort of God send. I knew that it would be darker than a dungeon and I knew we were going to get lost, and when we started it did not take me any time to get out of the road and as soon as I felt safely lost I told her so and began to apologize for my bad driving. "Well," said she, in the most matter of fact way you ever saw, "you are a fine one now, ain't you?" and with the most unexpected self-confidence air reached out and took me by the hand, adding: "Don't sit there like you had lost your wits, and if you can find the road and when we do find it we will drop in behind some buggy that has a man in it who can drive a team." Before she had finished that sentence I was out on the ground feeling around in the mud for the road. It broke me all up and after she had hummed two or three bars of "If I was a man," she called out, "have you found it?" I had not and she added "pardon me somebody with a lantern get in here and we will follow that." I got in and followed it to town. It's all over with me now. I am glad the day of my destiny is over; but I've made a damn sight."

When that fellow comes round tell him that the writer heretofore is at home in bed with the small-pox.

ARMOUR JOSEPH will succeed himself as Delegate to Congress from New Mexico. The Republicans can't help it, and will just have to "grin and bear it," as they have been doing nobly for the past several years. Joseph has done more real good for New Mexico than all the other Delegates the territory has ever had, yet together. There are lots of Republicans in the territory who realize this fact, and who will have the good sense to vote for Joseph this fall.

The location of the Pecos Valley Railway from Roswell through Lincoln county would be worth hundreds of thousands of dollars more every year to the company than if they give that section the cold shoulder. Some road is bound to lay that country under or over, and the best one in will carry off the price. The hope of securing railroad there and seeing that road would probably compensate the road for any other expense they may be put to in order to take in the White Oaks section.

A young man by the name of Buchanan took his own life with a 45 calibre revolver at Albuquerque on the 10th inst. Nothing is known of the circumstances.

The Tin Infest.

From the New York World.

It is proposed by the Republicans in Congress to more than double the duty on tin-plate, for the protection of an infant industry which is not yet born.

The duties paid on tin-plate last year amounted to $754,000. Under the proposed duty the consumer of this article of universal use would be compelled to pay at least $10,000,000 additional for a period of five years—for it is not pretended that the infant can be born and made to produce the nearly four hundred thousand tons of tin-plate required in this country in less than this time.

Mr. Moody, one of the new Senators from South Dakota, said in debate that his State "contained the most extensive and probably the richest tin mines in the world," and that not only is the tin there, "but the iron for the tin-plate and the coal out of which the coke was to be made for the fuel to do the work with."

And yet with all this natural wealth waiting to be developed, under conditions, if truly stated, which no other country can rival, Senator Moody asks, and his party associates propose to vote, a duty of 4 cents a pound on metallic tin and a duty of 22 cents per pound on tin-plate.

And for what? To set up a "busload of big tin gods on wheels to rival, in a few years, the Carnegies and the other monopolists who have grown suddenly and enormously rich by laying tribute upon the people of the United States? For this the Republican party would tax every yard of tin roof, every tin can, tea-kettle and dinner-pail in the country.

Far better and cheaper would it be to pay the proposed duty as a bounty to the tin syndicate.

The census man who was assigned the enumeration of the Sea Island coast of South Carolina made a remarkable discovery. Kiawah Island, some miles down the coast, is owned by two of the families of anti-bellum Sea Island barons. The enumerator, to his surprise, found there a black colony of about one hundred and fifty souls, and struck a region, the only one in the world, in which all the inhabitants were English speaking, reading and writing negroes. Every child of suitable age could also read and write, and the women were just as intelligent as the men. All were mulattoes and the name of the plantation was Quash Stephens, whose wife was responsible for the education of the people.—Albuquerque Democrat.

"I know personally scores of farmers who have always voted the Republican ticket that will cast Democratic ballots this fall," said Mr. Martin P. Schaefer, a talented young lawyer, of Belleville, Ill., to a Washington Post reporter. Mr. Schaefer is prosecuting attorney for St. Clair County, and is regarded as one of the prominent men of the west. The reason he continued "of this change of sentiment is found in the tariff. I don't think the farmers of America can any longer be made to believe that a protective tariff benefits them in the slightest. They have stood by this policy and grown poorer and poorer. In our country they openly declare their intention of voting the other way hereafter."

Every voter in New Mexico whether he be Republican or Democrat should examine and carefully weigh the question of statehood it is a question that does not enter into politics; it is a question of the best interest of this territory. It is best to be a state, to be in full communion with the rest of the government, to have a voice to have and control our public school lands; to set for ourselves to elect our own officers; to supply our own want with our own people. To us it seems there can be but one side of this matter, and that it would be for our best interests to be a state.—Chiefman.

A San Francisco boy of eighteen is said to have become demoralized from excessive cigarette smoking. There have been several instances reported, from the east of death or insanity from that cause, and in many places local legislation has been invoked to break up cigarette smoking by youngsters. Judging by the flavor and aroma of the average cigarette, his habitual use argues a degree of mental dereliction, or at least a disease of the sensory nerves.—Albuquerque Democrat.

The newspapers of other cities may surely be accused for their greed at Chicago when even the Chicago Inter Ocean remarks that an international congress to discuss ancient American history will assemble in Paris October 14th, and that the directors of the world's fair are probably waiting for this congress to determine whether Columbus really discovered America before they select a site for the exposition.

People intending to economize in order to attend the world's fair in 1893 need not deny themselves with such anxiety just yet. It begins to look, as the boy said of the apple core, as if "they ain't going to be any."

SMILE PROBLEMS

The fat breakfast—Are you fond of fat? Oh, I don't know; I never attended any. "This ain't a dwarf. He's over five feet tall." "That's the greatest thing about him. He is the tallest dwarf in the world."

Heaven will be full of surprises, but none greater than when a man realizes that all his good intentions have put no jewel in his crown.

He (newly married)—I wish you wouldn't call me dear while we're in company. She—Why, Charles? He—Because it makes me feel so cheap.

I hear you want to be the art photographer to get your picture taken. How did it come out? "Badly. It looks so much like me everybody says it's hideous."

Harold (A. B., Harvard, '08)—Maude, I love you. Will you be my wife? Maude (A. B., Harvard Annex, '08)—No, Harold, that can never be but we shall always be brothers.

Rather Broad.—Cholly.—They say that excessive coffee drinking induces softening of the brain. Miss Snyder—I suppose you regret now that you have been such a slave to the habit.

The Want Supplied.—Foot—I have here some vases I would like to submit. They are not perfect I admit; perhaps they want fire—Editor—You are quite right, sir, fire is what they want.

Up in Maine the husbands who kick vigorously if their wives ask them to carry home a package only three inches square, will carry home a big heavy "original package" without a murmur.

She (rapurously)—O, what is more enjoyable, more productive of ecstatic bliss, than a walk on a moonlight night? He (lightly)—I don't know, unless it's a walk on a night when there is no moon.

Husband (solemnly)—I see there is crape on the door opposite.

Wife—I have been expecting as much. The doctor's carriage has been here every day for a week.—[Lowell Chit-zen.

Timely Word.—Miss Cooney (at "the party")—Way, Mr. Mokeby, you've just dressed up to kill. Mr. Mokeby (feeling his pocket)—Golly! Did you remind me, Miss Juliet; I've lost my razor to home.

Too Generous.—"If your husband is a very generous man?" "Indeed he is. You remember those nice cigars I gave him for a birthday present? Well, he smoked only one and gave all the others away to his friends."—[Epook.

First Editor (angrily)—I saw an excellent thing in your paper yesterday. Second Editor (with animation)—Hat that so? One of my editors? First Editor—No; a recipe for making lobster salad. It works like a charm.

Fatal Use of Slang.—She—How far is it from the sun to the earth, Mr. Goodcatch? He—Now you've got me, I must confess. She—Oh, I'm so glad. I was afraid at one time that that hateful Fan Smith would get you.—[Terre Haute Express.

At the Exhibition.—Mrs. Orms—Magnificent truth to nature! Don't you think so? Second Dillo—A real triumph of naturalistic art! Perfect! But what do you think it represents?—[Piflozade Blatter.

Knowledge is Power.—"Uncle Rastus, are you afraid of ghosts?" "Yeah, I don't like 'em." "Well, I surely wanted to warn you that my chicken house was haunted." "Haunted? He, seh, 'tain't I done been dar 'fere dis, honey."—[Judge.

Mr. Rich—I won't give anything for that purpose. His son-in-law—New, come, be generous. I never knew you to give anything to the poor yet. "You didn't? Well, I think I made the greatest sacrifice of my life to the poor when I gave you my daughter."

Mr. Jones—Business is so brisk and correspondence accumulates so that I fear I shall be obliged to employ an amanuensis. Mrs. Jones—Very well, my dear, get an amanuensis if you wish; but I decidedly object to your having a woman in the office.

Feeder—Had awfully hard luck this evening. Tried with all my might to say something agreeable, but couldn't do it, somehow; so I bid them good night and went home. Fegg—And as you did succeed in saying something agreeable at last? I congratulate you, my boy.

When a potent little lecture in Kentucky declared that "the amount of water on the surface of the earth has been steadily diminishing for many thousands of years, a plain man in the crowd on the bank seat got up and interjected: "Well, celestial, you can't (sic) blame it on our people, anyhow."

Mr. Lorch—There's no dodging it, you know, but she does aim the indication of a serious case over here. She—But we have a lot of nice ones. Mr. Lorch (suspiciously)—I haven't had them. Who are they? She—Our plumber and his messenger boys.—[Lilo.

Judge—Are you guilty or not guilty? Prisoner—Not guilty. Judge (to witness)—How much was the stolen watch worth? Witness—Your honor, it was worth $100. Prisoner (talking to the judge from his perch)—That shows that he wasn't believed. Do you think that watch is worth $100?

A Preliminary Trial of the Hypnotism.—Miss Speakwell (to the doctor)—Why I thought those things before I took them! She Doctor—Why, certainly, certainly. Miss Speakwell (frowning her lips together)—But we have a lot of nice ones. Miss Speakwell (to the doctor)—Yes, I'm sure if it was not for me and my dear home, you know.

Miss Gump (frowning)—You think the hypnotism philosophy especially applies to me any more than to any other girl? The doctor (hesitatingly)—You are not very much different from the other girls.

A Monster Piece of Granite.

Yinalhavon, Maine, claims to have produced the largest stone ever brought to light. The Bodwell Granite Company recently quarried a shaft of granite which is the largest piece of stone ever quarried anywhere, and, if accepted, will be the highest, largest and heaviest single piece of solid stone standing, or that ever stood, so far as any record can be found. Its height is considerably exceeds any of the Egyptian obelisks. The tallest of these, which was brought from Heliopolis to Alexandria by Emperor Constantine, and afterwards taken to Rome, where it is still standing, is 105 feet 7 inches high, while the Yinalhavon shaft is 115 feet long, 15 feet square at the base, and weighs 850 tons. It is understood, says Home, that the company quarried this immense monolith of their own account, not having an order for anything of the kind, and they suggest that it would be a fitting contribution from Maine for the monument to be erected in honor of General Grant.

In Town and Hamlet.

The seeds of intermittent and bilious remittent fever germinate and bear evil fruit. No community has altogether escaped it. In populous wards of large cities bad sewage causes it, and in their suburbs stagnant pools in sunken lots breed it. There is at once a remedy and a means of prevention when the waters of the Stonemason Bottling, which is without preservative, the most potent antidote in existence to the malarial virus. Fortified with this incomparable, saving specific, miasmatic diseases may be encountered with absolute impunity. Disorders of the stomach, liver and bowels, begotten by miasma-laden water, or any other cause, succumb to the beneficent corrective named, and rheumatic, kidney and bladder troubles are removed by its use when it is given a persistent trial.

"The heated terms in upon us," said the week's washing, as the lady of the house boxes to iron them.

University of Notre Dame.

In another column appears the announcement of Notre Dame University. This university stands in the front rank of educational institutions, and each year attracts many additional buildings erected and latest facilities added. Already eleven large buildings are used to accommodate the attendance of over 600 students. Parents here find an ideal situation wherein to give the sons or wards full course in classical, law, science, mathematics, mechanical and civil engineering, music and a thorough commercial course. St. Edward Hall for boys under 18 years of age, is unique in the country.

For full information, terms and catalogue address Rev. T. E. Walsh, C. S. C., President University, Notre Dame. The thirty-third session will open Tuesday, Sept. 1, 1902.

W. J. McInnes hits the Louisiana State Lottery for $28,000.

Philadelphia, Pa., Nov. 27, 1901.

W. J. McInnes, of 1260 North Eleventh street had a one-twentieth ticket of No. 68,851, which drew the first special prize in the Louisiana State Lottery on the 19th instant. The whole ticket was $28,000.

Mr. McInnes received $18,500. When he received notification of the fact that he held a lucky number he was overjoyed. He was a hard-working man, and the thought of a sudden windfall had never entered his mind.

He did not receive the check for the prize until he had stopped work, and he could not believe it was true until he had seen the money in his hands.

He had been successful and he congratulated himself on his good luck. He had been successful and he congratulated himself on his good luck. He had been successful and he congratulated himself on his good luck.

Four women, all told

The first told how much easier it was to wash with Pearline. She saved half her labor, and the work was better done. The second told how much longer the clothes lasted, since she'd used Pearline. The rubbing that wore them out wasn't necessary. The next told how many things she did with it; she washed the kitchen floor, or the finest china—the most delicate lace, or the coarsest fabric. Whatever she did with it, she saved money by it. The fourth told of the harmlessness of Pearline. She had used it for ten years, and she knew nothing that was washable could be hurt by it. These are only four out of millions who use Pearline; but she others say the same things and more. Try it yourself; then you can tell about it.
